My Colt, His Horse.

[From The Western Rural.]

"Oh, mother! Oh, dear, oh dear!" sobbed Willie Carter, as he threw himself on his mother's lap.

In her surprise and fright, Mrs. Carter sprang to her feet, and Willie slid to the floor, where he moaned and writhed like one in mortal agony.

"What is it, Willie?" she cried as soon as she could speak. "What is the matter? Are you hurt?"

"Oh, my lamb!—my lamb!" was all the reply.

"What about the lamb? Tell me, Willie, quick?"

"Father's sold it!"

And with that the child's grief broke forth anew.

"Never mind, Willie, I'll go and see about it," said the mother. "and you go and let Aunt Letty comfort you."

"Come and tell his old aunty all about it," said the good old lady, as she spread out her comforting arms. "Cuddle right down, that's a dear; and here's a ginger snap for you.—Now tell tell me all about the matter, won't you?"

Willie brushed the tears away from his eyes, and sat up while he told his story.

"The lamb's muver died when he was ever so little, and the lamb mos' died too, I asked pa if I might have him for mine, and he said I might, and I took off my, coat and wrapped him up in it; he was awful cold—and shivered des so," and Willie shook himself to illustrate, "and muver she warmed some milk and fed him with a teaspoon, and by'me by he got well, and growd so big," measuring with his hands, "and now pa's sold him to the ugly old butcher man. Oh, dear, oh, dear!" And the boy wailed afresh.

"It's all right, Willie," said his mother, as she came in, followed by the lamb, who ran at once to Willie and began to hop around him.

Willie put his arms around his neck, and they hugged and kissed and cried together.

After he had hugged and kissed the lamb to his heart's content, he bethought him to ask his mother how the miracle was wrought, and ran to his mother with the question:

"How did you get Dick away from the old butcher man, muver?',

"Your pa gave him his money back."

"Did he? He's a good pa, and I'll run and kiss him!"

Mrs. Carter busied herself for some time in the kitchen, and when she returned to the sitting room it was plain that she had been crying. But she began to apologize for husband, by saying:

"Mr. Carter did not know that Willie claimed the lamb as his, and would take on so to have it sold. He is a little pinched for money now, to pay taxes on the wood-lot he has just bought, and the butcher offered him a good price for Dick, so he let him have him."

She thought Aunt Letty did not see her come into the house, and take her scantily filled purse from the bureau drawer, and empty its contents into her hand, and transfer them to the hand of Burt, the "old butcher man." But Aunt Letty's keen eyes saw a good many things that she never told of. She knew that Mrs. Carter had hoarded this money to buy gloves and fresh ribbons, and pretty flowers for "the girls," as she always spoke of them. Aunt Letty could see that any little garniture for Sadie and Rosa had to be gotten by mother, and that the money for the "necessities" always came from Mr. Carter's pocket with a grunt, and some kind of a fault-finding remark.

"They are always a-wanting something to wear," he would say. "It didn't used to be so. My sisters used to wear a linen gown in Summer, and a woollen one in Winter, and thought they were good enough, too."

Willie was so grateful to his father for his supposed generosity that he kept as closely to him as his shadow, and when they came into dinner, he had to sing his praises to Aunt Letty: and she, knowing what she did, watched the father to see if she could detect one sign of shame in his face. She saw none, but instead, a meek deprecating expression, as if he might have said.—"You praise me over-much; I but did my duty."

But poor Mrs. Carter's face flushed painfully, as though she had stolen a lamb instead of buying one.

Curious, is it not, how anxious most women are to hide the faults of their husbands?

I wonder if it is because they are ashamed of loving, or trying to love, such pitiful specimens of humanity as have fallen to their lot.

I think it is a very great mistake to suppose that wives are blind to the little meannesses of their husbands'. They are not. They are keenly alive to them, and always on the alert to hide them, or voluble in their excuses for them when discovered.

Women pretend not to see, a great many things that they do see. And, it is perhaps, just as well for them to do so, seeing how much like paupers they are in their coulition. They literally own nothing on the face of the earth—not even themseves; and, if they have treasures laid up in heaven, it is a happy thing to go to them.

And it may be as well to keep an eye on their treasures there, if they are convertable intohouses or lands.

After dinner, Villie was fretful and feverish, and so Aunt Letty took him on her lap and told him stories.

"You felt verybad about your lamb, Willie, but you got him back again. I know a little boy who did not fare as well as you." She had not fairly begun her story, before Villie was fast asleep, and Mrs. Carter came in and sat down with her sewing. So she told it to her.

"You knew the Rhoades family who lived on Brier Hill, didn't you Sophornia?" she asked.

"Yes, I remember them very well. Old Rhoades was as mean an old hunks as ever lived."

"That's so; and the selling of Willie's lamb made me think of something that happend when I was there once, making the old man a suit of clothes. They had a large family, of children of all sizes and ages, from John who was five and-twenty, down to Sammy who was six. Sammy had a pet lamb which he called Jerry, that he loved better than anything else in the world. In the Spring he had found it in the fields half frozen, and nursed it back to life, and it became the pet of all the family. It was a great nuisance though, roving about the house and jumping on the beds. Along sometime in September there was to be a grand ball at Ethridge's Hotel, and they scoured the town for chickens, turkeys, and lambs. The landlord got his eye on Jerry, and nothing would do but he must have him. He offered the old man Rhoades a good round price, and he sold him and put the money in his own pocket. None of the family knew that Jerry was gone till the next morning when Sammy went out to feed him the next morning after he was sold, and came rushing back, crying, 'I can't find Jerry nowhere, mother!' 'Well, Sammy,' said his mother, 'I guess he's asleep somewhere, we'll go and wake him up.' They walked and called in vain. No responsive 'ba-a!' met their listening ears. At last Mrs. Rhoades saw the old man in the field, and called, 'Father, father, where's Jerry? Sammy nor me can't find him.' 'He was a-goin' over to'rds Etheridge's tavern the last I seen on him,' replied the old man, gruffly. 'Sammy, run right over and get him,' said his mother, not mistrusting any thing wrong; and Sammy started off on a full run. Pretty soon he came back, a-screeching as though he'd go into fits, and all the answer his mother could get from him was, 'Jerry's killed, Jerry's killed!' Just then the old man come in, and says he, 'What's all this rumpus about?' 'Sammy's been over to Etheridge's and he says they've killed his lamb. What does it mean?' 'It means jest this—I sold it to 'em; and what have you got to say 'bout it?' 'I've got this to say—you have done the meanest, cruelest thing you ever did!' 'You jest shet up your head,' said the old man angrily, 'or I'll make you! And if I hear any more bellerin out o' that young man, he'll git what he can't buy at the store.' Sammy sprang from his mother's side, and ran and caught hold of his father's hand, saying, 'You didn't sell my lamb, did you, pa?' 'Yes, I did; and if hear another word out of your head I'll skin you alive! I guess I can do what I please with my own.' 'Your a mean, nasty, old pa,' shrieked Sammy, 'and I hate you, and I'll kill you!' And he seized hold of his father's hand and bit as hard as he could. The old man struck him two or three blows on the head with his big, hard hand, and Sammy fell to the floor in convulsions. He was dreadful sick for a long time, and he's never got over it from that day to this. He has dreadful fits every little while. The old man was so scared that he went kind o' crazy, and finally went off, and they have not heard from him for years."

"Awful, wasn't it!" sighed Mrs. Carter; "but I don't suppose his father thought that Sammy would mind it any more than Mr. Carter thought that Willie would feel so about Dick."

"That's no excuse," said Aunt Letty. "They both ought to have thought. Boys have rights as well as men, and they ought to be respected. Going about as I do, from place to place, I have a chance to see a good many things that make me boil over with wrath. Men will give their children a lamb, or pig, or calf, or colt, and they they will love and pet them, and feel a pride in their ownership, and lay plans about keeping them always or selling them for fabulous sums, and buying farms and houses for themselves with the money. And when, some day, the fathers sell their pets, without even a word to them, and pocket the money, I don't wonder at their grief and impotent wrath. The wonder to me is that they ever forget and forgive. And sometimes they don't forget. Grown women and men have confessed to me that the memories of such injuries done them in childhood, have rankled in their hearts and poisoned many hours of their lives."

"Yes, I know," said Mrs. Carter, with a quivering sigh. "When I was married father gave me a very fine cow, and Mr. Carter sold her when I was sick abed, and I never knew she was sold until a month afterward. He got sixty-eight dollars for her, and I never saw a cent of it."

"Well. How did you feel about it?"

"Angry, of course. But what good did it do? He didn't care. He had the money."

"I'm thankful I'm an old maid," said Aunt Letty, as she bit off her thread with a snap, "for most men treat their wives like overgrown children, and would whip them if public opinion did not restrain them. I often think of a remark that I heard a woman make that tells the whole story. Her husband owned a very fine mare, and was very anxious to raise her colt. But it was foaled with what seemed an incurable spinal weakness. He fussed with it till his patience gave out, and was about to kill it, when his wife said to him, 'Give it to me, and I'll try and raise it.' He gave it to her, for he thought it would die. But it did not. She nursed it with untiring patience, and it grew to be a strong, healthy colt. I did not see her for several years afterward, then I asked what became of the colt. 'He sold it,' nodding toward her husband. 'Sold it!' I echoed, 'I thought it was yours?' 'It was my colt but his horse.' 'But you had the money for it?' 'Not a cent! Never saw the color of it,' she replied."

I knew of whom Aunt Letty was telling this story, though she did not speak his name. She had good reasons for withholding it, for she was on terms of intimacy with the family. always spent time pleasantly at her house, and did not care to have them know she had repeated the facts But I will expose the man to my readers. It was Mr. Smith, that was his name, John Smith. I don't care; he ought to be shown up. But he is one of the kindest of husbands and fathers, and I know it never entered his heart to do his wife any injustice. He thinks that "what is hers is his, and what is his is his own." Very likely he gives her all the money she asks for, and considers it very generous; but all the money he gives her can never be to her what that money would have been to her that was received for that colt.

I think there is nothing on earth harder for a man to do than to give women their just rights in money matters. They wouldn't fight them so hard on the ballot question if they did not know it would make them their equals in property rights.

"The ballot may go to pot for all I care," said Mrs. Carter to Aunt Letty; "if I could only have my rights at home, it's all I'd ask for. I'm ashamed to steal, and I'm tired of being a beggar. I'd rather have my ears boxed any time than ask Carter for money, and sometimes I vow I never will, if the children go naked."

Mr. Carter walked in at this juncture, and his wife rose to get supper; so the conversation ended.

—When a "mighty mean man" commits suicide, we hope that our horror of the deed is migitated by the unpleasant personal character of the doer. Thomas Shackford of Eaton, New Hampshire, sent his old mother to the poor house last year. As he was in comfortable circumstances, the town brought an action against him for the cost of her support and recovered $500. This did so weigh on the mind of Mr. Thomas Shackford that he determined not to live in a world where sons are compelled by law to support their aged mothers. Wherefore, he slit his own windpipe and then hanged himself. He felt that he could not afford to live, and so launched himself into a more economical state of existence.

—Certain facts render it probable that birds in some manner become aware of cholera infection in the air. Recent European journals state that at Munich, where several cases of cholera have occurred, the rooks and crows, which flew about the steeples and through the public promenades, have all emigrated; and the same thing happened during the cholera season of 1836 and 1854 According to Sir Samuel W. Baker the same thing occurred at Mauritius, where the martins, which exist in immense numbers the whole year round, wholly disappeared during the prevalence of cholera.

—The Boston Transcript says that the French Academy has declared against coffee. This will not settle it unless they exhibit the grounds.

—A marked bottle thrown into the river at Niagara Falls, July 13th, safely made the passage of Lake Ontario, and was found in Clement's Bay, July 31st.

—Industry is not always rewarded. A Sing Sing prisoner worked eighteen months to make a false key, and it was taken away the day it was completed.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday.....January 3, 1874.

1874.

Well, the year of our Lord, 1874, is here, and with it a realization, bordering on the painful, of the swiftness of Old Time's advances, slow moving as we are wont to consider him. How few of all our bright hopes, to be compassed ere the year rolls around, prove swift enough to keep from under his ponderous foot! One after another goes down and is laid away with things of the past, leaving vacuums every following year renders more and more difficult to fill. And as one hope after another is crushed out others are born at the grave, but all tinged more somberly with its memories save the one resplendent flower with which the good and true only can joyfully deck the tombs of all its predecessors—the hope of that life to come where Time never advances! But never mind; let us greet the New Year as a pleasant visitor come a little too soon, and in the resolve to so gauge our efforts, hopes and plans that striding 1875 may not overtake and ride them down almost before they have begun to live.

A Law Point.

The Supreme Court of Iowa has just decided that a thief may enter the premises of a law abiding citizen, and if forcibly molested, may recover damages. The case decided is about as follows: One Miller prepared a spring gun to protect his vineyard, and a man named Adams attempted to enter the vineyard and was shot by the gun. He sued for damages which were awarded by the District Court. The Supreme Court affirmed the decision.

Sentence Commuted.

Gov. Bradley, of Nevada, has commuted the sentence of Daniel Matheny, the boy murderer, who was to have been hanged December 19. Matheny is considered a simpleton, either naturally or as the effects of self-abuse, and the Governor's mercy is generally approved by citizens knowing the circumstances. Matheny, it will be remembered, murdered an old man named Green, a stock-raiser, near Eureka a few months ago.

To be Withdrawn.

A Washington special to a Chicago paper says, it is safe to say on the reassembling of the Senate the nomination of Williams as Chief Justice will be withdrawn. It has been ascertained that if a vote were taken on his confirmation in a full Senate there would be eight against him on the Republican side not counting the opposition. It is confidently predicted that Caleb Cushing's name will be sent in next.

A Novel Libel Suit.

The publisher of The National Live Stock Journal in Chicago has been sued for libeling a cow. That journal published an article discrediting the pedigree of the cow Fanny Forrester, and charging the owners of the animal with discreditable transactions, for all of which $20,000 damages are claimed.

Murder in Visalia.

An old gentleman named S. P. Grigsby was murdered and horribly mutilated while sleeping in Kraft's restaurant, Visalia, on the 10th ultimo. A vigilance committee was organized, but, so far, the inhuman perpetrators of the murder and would be-robbers, have not been discovered.

Released.

R. D. Bogart, whose sudden arrest several months since and subsequent trial and imprisonment at Mare Island caused so much comment, has been released by the Secretary of the Navy. Bogart has arrived in San Francisco from Vallejo.

Singular Accident.

Francis Conroy while trying to climb a picket fence on Van Ness avenue San Francisco, impaled himself on one of the pickets, and before assistance could reach him he was dead.

To Be Hanged.

Johnny Stewart, the Columbus murderer, is to be hanged next Friday, technicalities and the Governor permitting.

Mashed Down.

AS A RELIEF MEASURE.

here is one point in which our citizens are very unanimous—that is that some plan is very much desired that will relieve the terrible strain on our county finances. At the present cost of conducting the county business, we will soon reach a financial condition bordering on extreme depression. More if not wholly from lack of an available market rather than lack of actual money value, county warrants are slow of sale at even forty cents on the dollar. This is a ruinous discount and occasions an absolute loss in paying the current expenses of the county sufficient, if it could be saved, to pay off our entire indebtedness in a few years.

We have not the figures at hand at this writing to feel safe in attempting a statement in detail of the county expenditures, nor is it necessary in order to explain the object in view. We will state, however, that the entire indebtedness of the county is: 20-year 10 per cent bonds, $40,000; outstanding 7-per cent county warrants, $50,000, making a grand total of $90,000, upon which the annual interest is $7,650. The tax values of the county is $1,400,000, giving a tax receipt of $42,000, which is insufficient to pay current expenses, including interest, salaries and all other expenses, and at the same time to pay off any considerable amount of outstanding warrants. The total outlay for all of them, except the last, would not exceed $20,000 if paid in gold coin but, as matters now stand, it takes $2 20 to pay on each and every $1 of actual expenses in all cases, except certain fees to the Sheriff and other officers and Hospital expenses, which are paid in scrip at par no matter what the selling price.

Several plans have been proposed to obviate this ruinous business, all depending upon legislation to give them force. The best one of these in the opinion of numerous persons prominently representing all parties political, and all parties in interest, is that of Supervisor John R. Hughes. It cannot fail of being generally satisfactory, except perhaps, that it does not look to an immediate reduction of the tax rate; but that is a matter to be left to the discretion of the Board, and it is quite possible a material reduction can and will be made after the next levy.

In explaining this plan we should state first that the old Building and Mono Debt Funds will both become extinct under the present law, as the amount now on hand in these funds will pay off those debts in full, This is the calculation, but in reality it is quite certain the amount to be apportioned from the present tax to those funds will not be quite sufficient to pay them in full—may probably lack as much as $5,000 on the two and to that extent will interfere with the working of the new plan, although the extinction and transfer of the funds by name will be made just the same. These two funds are 45 and 25 cents respectively on the $100, together making 70 cents. To this is to be added the present Contingent Fund of 15 cents making 85 cents in all to go into a new fund to be called the Current Expense and Salary or New Contingent Fund, or by whatever name may be deemed proper. Out of this fund are to be paid, practically in cash, all and every expense of the county, save those provided for in the remaining funds all of which remain intact. All receipts for licenses now going into the General Fund and amounting to about $4,000 per annum, are to be apportioned to the New Contingent, raising its yearly amount to something near about $19,000, which gives an excess above current expenses (less those provided for in the other funds), of $5,000 to $7,000 each year. This becomes a Sinking Fund to be used in the redemption of old outstanding warrants, not in the order of their registration, but as offered by the lowest bidder.

The present General Fund of 60 cents is to be continued as at present, but is to be exclusively applied to the redemption of old warrants in the order of their registration and in accordance with literal terms of the contract under which they were issued. If thus applied, making no account of the anticipated surplus in the New Contingent to be applied in the same way, this Fund will wipe out the $50,000 warrant debt, interest and principle, in about seven years. By continuing in the present channel the end of the same period will find us with probably double that amount of indebtedness. It is true the two extinct funds referred to would be deducted from the three per cent tax, lessening it that much, but the 60 per-cent or even a greater discount on warrants would continue, and much more than offset this advantage for this thing of paying two or three dollars for each dollar of service done the county, must sooner later end in its ruin.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL.

The Junior Gets Industrious, and Tells How It Is.

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 22, 1873.

DEAR INDEPENDENT: Natural laziness, and perhaps my excessive modesty, have hitherto prevented my burdening your columns with accounts of doings in and about the capital, but I want to tell you of a which transpired at noon yesterday at the Hotel de France, on Second street, in this city. "Boston," better known here under the alias of A. L. Freedman, was united in matrimony with Miss Carrie Woolf, an accomplished young lady of Sacramento. The ceremonies were conducted in Hebrew by a Jewish Rabbi, and under the impressive rites and forms of their race; a select company of gentlemen and bevies of handsome ladies were in attendance, each and every one of whom seemed more than usually impressed with the importance of the occasion. I am not a Jenkins, and describing such gatherings is not my forte—so be it sufficient to say that A. L. bore himself like a hero, while the bride, a richly attired, queenly brunette, endured the trying ordeal with as much composure as if she was not one of the principally interested parties. After the discussion of a most recherche dinner, during which the happy groom and bride were toasted and speeched to their heart's content, the company escorted them, in a train of carriages, to the depot. They will remain for a few days in San Francisco, from whence they will go to Inyo, and in time Cerro Gordo bids fair to become civilized. Don't mention this to Beveridge, Hawley, Hunter, Porter, Barrows, Mee or any of those fellows up there, or they finally get the sensible idea into their heads that—by force of example—they had better reform and go and do likewise.

VERY INTERESTING EVENT

A SORRY CONUNDRUM.

The question now is: How can he be a Freedman since caught by a Woolf? However, he will be Abe. L. to stand it, not to Carrie it too far. The boys should let up on "Boston," and call him "Abe." Of you can get more than a surfeit from the reports of a thousand and one correspondents nosing around here; but their emanations are of the wondrously imaginative order, highly sensational and nine times out of ten utterly void of truth. However, among the chaff you can glean all the main facts, interesting and otherwise.

THE SENATOR

elect, His Excellency Governor Newton Booth, gave an impromtu reception last night, at which he received the earnest congratulations of many a legislator who didn't vote from. The estimable Jim Farley, as well as his supporters, take the result placidly; for the first time in the political history of the State, a Senator has been elected without their being the slightest grounds for whispers of "corruption" Hail to the new order of things! I am very sorry, individually, that my choice was not successful, because the result is so nisheartening to who now whimperingly begs for a burial of the hatchet. I don't like to say it in public, but he and his kind may as well know that their jigs are pretty near up. Have you seen anything of a $10,000-printing-office going down that way? Cause that's the programme. Then will we be assured of the advancement of the country; the mighty ship canal become a reality, and, and, well—"d—n the people."

THE CAPITOL.

The capitol building is a huge institution; in its interior no like edifice of any of the northwestern States will begin to compare with it. Its total cost to date, defrayed by the dear people, $2 390,801 15—and an appropriation of about $150,000 additional to complete it will be asked for. I am contemplating introducing a bill providing for its removal to the Back Salary Steal mine, Cerro Gordo, for a cabin.

ADJOURNMENT

for the holidays will be in order tomorrow, after the election of a short term Senator—which is likely to place since the "temper" of the members will permit no further delay upon this or any other question.

And since you spoke about it, this paragraph will constitute the adjournment, for the present, of your

GALOOT.

The Latest Excitement.

The latest excitement of a national character is that of the investigation of the charges against Gen. O. O. Howard in his connection with the Freedman's Bureau. There is no doubt that Gen. Howard was chosen to fill this important position for the reason that he had a reputation for christianity and devotedness to the interests of the Freedman, as well known as the position of any man in the Union. For this reason he was selected, and he has been trusted both by the Administration and Freedmen as man was never before trusted Very many millions of dollars have passed through his hands, and now it is demanded, in a voice that will not be silent, that there shall be an investigation, and may it be a fair and thorough exhibit of the acts of this officer who, next to the Treasurer of the United States, is the important officer who, as one of the results of the late rebellion, became a necessity. The distinguished services of Gen. Howard to the country demand that his case should not be prejudged, and that a full and complete examination of all his acts should take place at an early day.

HAGER FOR SENATOR.

The mail which arrived last Saturday evening brought the first news of the election of Judge John S. Hager as United States Senator to fill out Casserly's unexpired term. The election occurred five days previously, which shows the length of time required to get news, these days, from Sacramento to this benighted region. The result of this election is something of a surprise, as the latest previous reports conveyed the idea that Hager's prospects were hopeless and that the apparent dead lock could not be dissolved until the re-assembling after the Holiday adjournment. But the members were all anxious to free their minds of a responsibility that might weigh heavy during the brief period to be snatched for relaxation, so the joint Convention met, and after scattering votes in a promiscuous way for a while to no purpose, enough minority voters changed over from the Republican straight and the Varden ranks to settle the question in Hager's favor, and then with a sigh of relief that a painful duty was done, ye grave and reverened seignors began at once to rustle for their passes for San Francisco—at least they came near forgetting to issue the required certificate to permit the new Senator to take his seat at once, a main reason for hurrying up the election.

There were in in the Joint Convention only 103 votes out of 120—17 absentees. The final vote stood—Hager, 56; Laine, 20; Shafter, 13; Cole, 8; Belcher, 3; Haymond, 2; Downey, 1; necessary to a choice, 52. It seems strange there should have been so many absent; the explanation is the probable fact that the successful man was not generally acceptable. He was prominently identified with the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company, which tried last year to saddle a ten million subsidy on San Francisco, Hager having been one of the committee sent to St. Louis in that connection.

But the new Senator appears to be a most fortunate man. His election not only fails to awaken any ill feelings from any party, or faction, perhaps, but he is claimed by each party as its favorite candidate. This much appears to be certain: that he is a man of education, good abilities and social standing, but at the same time, he will scarcely be able to "stand off" Sargent with the powers that be at Washington; he is on the wrong side of the political fence for that, even if his energies equaled Sargent's, and it is claimed they do not However, he is not a representative for whom California need feel ashamed in any respect.

Offer to Surrender.

"J. Mora Moss, I. Friedlander, W. S. Chapman, Charles Webb Howard, John Bensley, A. H. Rose and Charles Lux offer to the State of California all the canals and property of the San Joaquin and King's River Canal and Irrigation Company at an appraised value and say:

The undersigned trustees of this company do not wish to occupy an attitude in opposition to the public welfare We therefore propose that a law be passed for the condemnation of the canal, surveys, water rights, lands, and all the property, contracts, etc., of the company, and that the same be appraised by a Commission appointed by your Excellency or the State Legislature, and taken by the State at the price such Commission shall deem just and equitable. If there is any question or doubt about the right of the State to condemn our vested rights and property, we will waive any legal rights we may have in the premises and deed the same for such sums as your Commission may determine."

Tulare News.

[From The Delta, Dec 25.]

The Times is authority for the statement that the Stockton and Visalia Narrow Guage Railroad Company will probably disincorporate at the Stockholder's next meeting. We regret to hear of this, for we believe the road may yet be built. The Senator and Assemblyman for this legislative district, have faithfully stood by the people's choice for Senator, and will receive due credit therefor by their thankful constituency.

Southeastern Nevada.

A correspondent of The Pioche Record, writing from Las Vegas Rancho, says:

Mr. Davis of Pioche, is getting along with his quartz mill, destined for El Dorado Canyon, which will be in running order in about forty days. He now has miners at work getting out ore from the renowned Tehutticup (Indian name for food.) The ore is looking excellent, with a ledge of seven feet, the ore is obtained very rapidly Mr. Davis seems to be the right man in the right place, as he contemplates obtaining a big boat, with a barge to be used in carrying provisions, tools, etc, from the mouth of the Colorado river to the mine; also in bringing wood to the mill, which will reduce the former cost very much. By this process they will be able to obtain their fuel for about $6 a cord, when formerly it cost from $12 to $27. Although this locality cannot boast of a railroad and telegraph, yet we can enumerate in our list of advantages a mail and a navagable river. Very few mining camps can boast of the natural advantages of El Dorado, and it only requires well directed energy and talent to make it one of the foremost camps in the State of Nevada.

The old Potosi mine, owned by Mr. Morgan, has been developed within the last six months to such an extent as to show an immense body of ore. They have now on the dump about 1,000 tons of first class ore. Owing to the lateness of the season (bringing it into snow and storm) it will not be worked till March, when extensive smelting works will be erected. The Morgan Company have explored the adjacent mountains, and have discovered large quantities of saw timber, as well as an abundance of pine close to the mine.

This long misrepresented section, only condemned by charlatans and brought into disrepute by men without management or mining knowledge, is at last coming into active life, and will be the chief corner stone of Lincoln county. From present appearances I am justified in stating that in less than two years the southern portion of Lincoln will exceed all the remainder of the county in population.

We are now blessed with one of the most protracted storms ever witnessed in this region, by even the oldest Indian inhabitant of this country On the 4th ultimo we had quite a snow storm, covering the ground to the depth of two inches—a very unusual occurrence here. The next day it was all rained off, and it has been raining in the valley and snowing in the mountains with very little cessation ever since, making five days of continuous storm.

Vasquez the Robber of Kingston.

A Los Angeles dispatch from Visalia, dated on the 27th ultimo, gives the following account of the daring operations of Vasquez's band of cut-throats.

Further particulars from Kingston, Fresno county, show that the robbery of that village last evening, was perpetrated by Vasquez' band, numbering about eight or ten Mexicans, two Americans and a negro. They tied their horses on the bank of the river opposite Kingston, crossed the bridge on foot and took possession of the hotel and two stores, they tied down about thirty-five men by covering their weapons in detail, and then proceeded to rifle the safes and money drawers of their contents, after which they robbed their victims of watches and other valuables. In the meantime the alarm had spread and several parties armed with guns and revolvers took up their position across the street and opened fire on the robbers, which was returned by them, who were all well armed—Vasquez himself carrying four navy revolvers. They were finally compelled to retreat, closely pursued by the citizens who continued firing on them. Two parties were formed and started in pursuit in an hour or two. An officer of this county collected a posse of 15 or 20 men and started in pursuit also, while another posse under Sheriff Blackburn started from Fresno this afternoon, one of the gang was captured on the plains and brought back to Kingston. The remainder of the band are supposed to be making for the Coast Range hotly pursued by men who will make no troublesome prisoners should they overtake them. Traces of blood found on the bridge this morning show that one of the robbers was wounded. About $2,000 in coin, besides watches and other valuables were taken. Several victims of the robbery recognized Vasquez's picture as the leader of the band.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Some malicious persons having given circulation to the report that I was one of the serenading party engaged in the late outrage, I take this method of informing the public that it is absolutely false, as may be seen from the following statement, which I am prepared to sustain by good proofs in every particular: I left the Inyo House on the night in question at a few minutes past 9 o'clock, and at half past 10 was in my bed at the carpenters' quarters at the Post. At 2 o'clock of the same night, was awakened by a soldier who demanded to know if I was the man who struck him in the row, that being the first intimation I had received of that occurrence. After breakfast the same morning, at the Hospital, I got into a personal difficulty with the same soldier on the same grounds. This affair was witnessed by at least half a dozen persons there in the Hospital. The carpenters and others at the Post will substantiate every essential particular above given.

An Outrage.

A circumstance occurred here an hour or two previous to the close of 1873 that has occasioned a great deal of feeling. Some soldiers from the Post had organized themselves into a holiday serenading party and minstrel troupe, having their faces properly "corked" up for the occasion. After serenading the officers and others about the Post, they marched down with fife, drum and trumpet to confer a similar favor upon this burg. For a time everything passed off very well, all hands enjoying the fun, or accepting it as such, until the leader took it into his head that he must march through the hall in which some eighty or a hundred ladies and gentlemen were enjoying themselves at a social dance. Reaching the door at the moment the door-keeper, John Welch, was passing out with his partner to go to supper, they demanded admittance. Having black faces, and the demand clearly an improper one, admittance was properly enough refused. At this an effort was made to force an entrance, at which Welch let go his right and a serenader went violently to grass. Then followed a melee in which a number took an active part, the result of which was several of the attacking party each received a first-rate mauling. There was a non-commissioned officer with the serenaders and another, with several privates, inside the ball-room taking part in the dance, but it does not appear that either of them accomplished or tried to accomplish anything of moment in restraining the outrageous proceedings of the others, or rather a portion of the others, for among these were one or two who exercised themselves in a very effectual manner with their comrades in quelling the disturbance. No weapons more deadly than a fence picket were used and no serious casualties ensued, although the door keeper, who maintained his position most bravely, had some tangible proofs to show that he had taken part in the discussion. It is said at least two citizens were on the side of the serenaders. Of subsequent events it is not necessary to speak further than to say that a very intense feeling of indignation has been engendered against these men for their entirely unprovoked attack, and the inefficient efforts of the non-commissioned officers to prevent or end it. The whole affair is to be deplored, and that is all we can say about it in fairness to all of the interested parties, without going into a length of detail for which we have neither the time nor inclination. We all know this occurrence is a source of profound regret to the Commandant, and that he will neither spare himself or anyone else in his efforts to do his whole duty as an officer and gentleman.

The Weather.

This is a subject of local interest, however it may be for outsiders, but mainly for the information of the latter we report that the long continued unusual cold ended with last week, since which time the snow has been disappearing rapidly in the valley, which in large areas begins to resume its normal blackness. New Years opened dark, soft and lowry; sometime during the following night a heavy rain set in, which, though welcome for other reasons, we fear will prove very destructive to stock suffering from the effects of short feed and the late severe cold. The rain ceased yesterday afternoon, and there came a north wind which rattled things vigorously until near daylight this morning.

That Card.

We have it from what we deem perfectly reliable sources that the statements set forth in Heckel's card are true in every essential particular. We will also in this connection volunteer the statement, based on good proofs, that Hopital Steward James was not in this place at all on the night in question, and also that at the moment of the disgraceful occurrence, Corporal Hubig, whose name was likewise coupled with it, was then several hundred yards away on his return to quarters.

The Big Suit.

In the matter of the application for a new trial in the Union-San Felipe mining suit, Judge Belden was to hear the arguments on the 27th ultimo. It is expected a number of days will be required to complete them.

The yearly interest, $4,000, on the Inyo county bonds was promptly paid by our County Treasuser, through Wells, Fargo & Co., at their office in San Francisco, January 1, the day prescribed by law.

Christmas at Lone Pine.

Though rather late in the season, we may mention that the ball at Lone Pine on Christmas Eve turned out as anticipated—a perfect success in all points. The attendance was larger than usual and the enjoyments and accommodations in proportion. The exercises in the school house where the Tree was located had an addition to the usual order, which added much to the general satisfaction. This consisted of solo and duet singing by the children, and others, in Spanish, French and English, and it is said the exercises were executed admirably. Santa Claus was on hand in all his glory, having a great stock of things to distribute, which he did in a manner very pleasing to recipients and all. The shooting match came off on the following day, with what particular results we are unable to say, and that evening there was another ball almost as largely attended as that of the night previous. The Lone Piners are quite proud of their Christmas celebration, and of the ladies who volanteered their services in successfully preparing the children for the Christmas Tree exercises.

The Ball.

We can't say that the ball at the Masonic Hall, New Year's Eve, turned out to perfect satisfaction, but it was not because there was not a goodly company there nor for the lack of ample preparation. Most everybody went, quite a number (and some good looking ones, too) being present from Lone Pine and the country around. The music was as good as anyone could desire, and the supper at the Inyo House was magnum bonum. Chris. Engle and John Westerville, prompter and floor manager, performed their duties very well, indeed. No credit is claimed for the other manager, but it is not necessary to specify reasons. Notwithstanding a little interruption mentioned elsewhere, the festivities were continued until morning, and "between scares" were highly appreciated.

Goes Below.

Captain McGowan proposes to start for San Francisco in a few days, in view partly as we were informed several days since, of bringing up some recruits to strengthen the company with the object of stationing one or more strong detachments out in the Armagosa region to afford protection and assistance when needed to parties desiring to develop the promising resources of that section. There are a large number of Indians on he Armagosa who, though not decidedly on the war path, are much inclined to manage things in their own way wth the very few whites who risk a residence among them. It is to be hoped this plan will be carried out, as it will certainly tend to advance the development of a large section into which small parties of prospectors do not now feel safe in pushing their way.

Taxes.

Monday next is the last day in which to pay taxes, without an addition of five per cent, practically seven per cent, or the full amount added till the day of sale after the first Monday in February—then comes the iron works.

An Opinion.

[COMMUNICATED.]

Bishop Creek, Dec. 28, 1873.

Mr. Editor: I wish to offer a few thoughts for the people in this county. I see there is a move in some parts of the county to get the Legislature to pass an act to authorize the Supervisors to pay some $6,000 more on the public buildings, after the people have given them $40,000 to begin with. We are now $100,000 in debt, with a large criminal debt, and it is still increasing. If the Supervisors transcended their authority and squandered the funds by not letting the contracts to the lowest bidder, are the people bound to stand it? I for one don't want to. If our delegation in the Legislature want to dig their political graves in this county, just let them try it. The people must speak out or we are bankrupt men after they make a move in this direction.

Bishop Creek.

—The St. Louis Democrat is thus severe on the press: "Every chucklehead in Congress gets more praise from the press of his party, than could truthfully have been said of Daniel Webster in his palmiest days."

—"The law," said Judge Ahurst, in a charge, "is open to all men, to the poor as well as the rich." "So is the London Tavern," added Horne Tooke, who was present.

Timber Lands and Irrigation.

The following is the full extent of Senator Kent's concurrent resolution, which was referred to the California Senate Committee on Federal Relations: "Whereas, the great valleys of California comprise within their limits the best arable land in the State, and for the successful cultivation of them water is necessary, and, whereas, the water for such purposes can only be obtained from small streams having their sources in the Sierra Nevada and other mountain ranges, and by denuding the lands at the sources of the streams of their natural forests the supply of water is decreased; and, whereas, there are large tracts of timbered lands valuable only for timber growing; and, whereas, the propriety of permitting the sale of such lands is a doubtful policy, and in the end may cause large sums of money to expended to secure such lands for the purpose of a general system of irrigation; and, whereas, the people of this State, from the nature of things, must be the best judges of the means necessary to protect such forests, and that it is important that they should not finally be disposed of. Therefore, be it resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, that Congress be requested to grant the State of California the public lands within this State which are covered with natural forests, except such as are in the possession of bona fide settlers, upon such conditions and restrictions as to Congress seems best fitted to carry these views into effect, such lands never to be disposed of save in small tracts to actual settlers, and upon such disposition the State will pay $2,50 per acre for each acre so disposed of.

A Home of One's Own.

Human existence implies the necessity of food, raiment and shelter. A habitation is scarcely less important to life than the question "what shall ye eat and wherewith shall ye be clothed?" Happiness in civilized countries, largely depends upon the comforts and conveniences with which a home may be invested.

Every man in this country, says The Home Guide, especially if he have a family, should possess a home of his own; and generally this may be secured in a few years by industry, frugality and prudence. In large towns and cities, the money expended for rent by men engaged in ordinary occupations will, in a few years, purchase a modest home. To be dependent upon landlords for a habitation is often inconvenient and unpleasant, besides being very poor economy. There are many vexations and annoyances, which few renters escape, attending their experiences of renting other people's houses and tenements, while the burden of taxation for municipal purposes falls mainly upon the tenants, as landlords charge the taxation imposed for public improvements on them to the rent-roll, and it therefore comes out of the pockets of the tenants.

In a house of one's own, one feels not only less dependent than when he is occupying a tenement belonging to another, but there is an incentive to improve and beautify a home, to make it attractive and thus add to its value—a motive not often present when a person lives in a rented tenement.

From every point of view it is advisable for a man of family, when he has found a permanent place of residence, to determine to provide a home for those dependent upon him. Whether in the town or the country, this is advisable, and the reasons for it are so obvious, that it is scarcely necessary to refer to them.

Snow Shoes on Mules.

Forty years ago wooden snow-shoes were worn by mules in crossing the mountains in South America. I can just remember a pair that had been used by one of the mules that carried my father across the Andes in 1828. I should think similar shoes were still worn. They were of hard wood, apparently of the shape of the hoof, and in going over the more dangerous passes, where a great rock rose on one side of a narrow path of little more than fifteen or twenty inches broad in places, and an immense precipice yawned on the other side, the traveler, on his first venture, had his eyes bandaged by the muleteer, and the mule, throwing its four wooden-shod hoofs together, slid down the pass with the utmost steadiness; but of course the slightest over balancing of the rider would have toppled both man and horse several thousand feet out of their course.—Notes and Queries.

—It has been demonstrated that a beetle is capable of lifting three hundred and fifteen times its own weight A man of ordinary muscular power is fully a hundred times feebler; and had an elephant such comparative strength, it could run away with a load of 5,000,000 pounds. The flea, too, scarcely three-hundreths of an inch in hight, manages to leap, without difficulty, over a barrier fully five hundred times his own altitude. For a man six feet is an unusually high leap. Imagine him jumping three thousand feet, or nearly three-fifths of a mile.

—An undecided fellow courted a lady for twenty-eight years, and then married her. She turned out a perfect virago, but died two weeks after the wedding. "Now," said he, in a self-congratulating tone, "see what I have escaped by a long courtship."

—A child five days old exhibited great fear during a thunder storm at Newtonville, Mass., recently, and finally went into convulsions and died.

—The fascinating Miss Richardson of Corinth, Miss., broke her lover's heart. She did it with her little pistol.

The Shrew.

The shrew is an unfortunate animal, which is the victim of popular dislike and superstition. It is said to have the power of laming horses and cattle by merely running over the hoof; and the belief is, that the only thing to cure the injured animal is the leaves of a shrew-ash applied to the wounded part —a shrew-ash being an ash tree in the trunk of which an opening has beeu made and a living shrew-mouse inclosed therein. Formerly every village green could boast of its shrew-ash, but they have now almost entirely disappeared, but the superstitious belief in the disease for which the leaves were supposed to be a remedy, still remains in the minds of the people. The origin of this curious idea is probably found in the fact that the shrew-mouse exhales a peculiar odor, so penetrating and disagreeable to cattle that they refuse to drink from a vessel which a shrew-mouse has been resting upon.—Our Dumb Animals.

Utter Nonsense.

Maklin was once lecturing upon the literature of the stage, and in discussing the education of the memory, boasted that he could repeat any formula of words after once hearing it. Foote was in the audience and at once wrote and sent to the stand that rigmarole that has since grown so famous: "So she went into the garden to cut a cabbage leaf to make an apple pie: at the same time a she-bear coming up the street, pops its head into the shop. 'What! no soap?' So he died, and she very imprudently married the barber; and there were present the Picininies, the Joblillies, and Gayrulies, and the Grand Panjandrum himself, with a little round button at the top;' and they all fell to playing the game of catch-as-catch-can till the gunpowder ran out of the heels of their boots." Maklin failed, and so has everybody else who has tried it. Suppose you try it.

Pay the Printer, or—.

Lives there a man with nose so red, who to himself has never said, "I'll pay before I go to bed, the debt I owe the printer?"—Brandon Republican.

Yes, there are some I know full well, but they, I fear, will go to—well—the place where there's no Winter.—Panola Star.

You are blind, Star, your'e reason's dim, or you'd not argue such a whim; e'en Satan bad would not have him who fails to pay the printer!—Tupelo Journal.

We're glad now the means are found, to bring the back subscribers round—so when you've run your course of years, pay then at last your full arrears; but—no arrears to have to pay,'is better far, we think and say.—Land Owner.

Wool.

Recent statistics show that the State of California has now 8,000,000 head of sheep, which will be increased by at least 3,000,000 lambs the present season. The sheep are sheared twice a year, and with a good season the clips might be expected to average ten pounds a head. This would make the wool crop of California, $80.000,000 pounds, or 15,000,000 pounds more than the total products of the United States in 1871.—Eastern Exchange.

—A thirsty citizen of Mattoon, Ill., pawned his pocket book, gun, beefsteak for his family's supper and a jug of molasses, for whiskey, and then went home and held what may figuratively be called a carnival, and a good deal more expensive than an Italian opera. His wife concluding that outside contributions were necessary to defray the expenses of the entertainment, invited the saloon-keeper into Court on a suit for damages, and obtained $1,500 00. If her husband will go on another frolic this month, she will have enough to last her through a Christmas revel.

—Said Lord John Russel to Hume, at a social dinner, "What do you consider the object of legislation?" "The greatest good to the greatest number." "What do you consider the greatest number?" continued his lordship. "Number one, my lord," was the commoner's prompt reply.

—One very warm day in June, a neighbor met the old man, and remarked that it was very hot. "Yes," said Joe, "if it wasn't for one thing, I should say we were going to have a thaw." "What is that?" inquired the friend. "There's nothing frozen," said Joe.

—The friends of a wit expressing some surprise that, he at his age with his fondness of the bottle, should have thought it worth while to marry, "A wife was necessary," he said; "they began to say that I drank too much for a single man."

—"Can you steer the mainmast down the fo'castle stairs?" asked a sea captain of a new hand. "Yes, sir, I can, if you will stand below and coil it up," Captain did not catechise that man any more.

—Said a pompous husband, whose wife had stolen up behind and given him a kiss, "Madam, I consider such an act indecorous." "Excuse me," said the wife, "I didn't know it was you."

—An Alleghany man lost a Bible on the battlefield of Fredricksburg in 1862, and has just had it restored to him by an ex-Confederate.

—Milwaukee has 502 saloons, the daily profits of which are $10,000, but the daily mischief caused by them is not reckoned up.

—A child five days old exhibited great fear during a thunder storm at Newtonville, Mass., recently, and finally went into convulsions and died.

ADIEU TO 1873.

[Written for The Independent by Frank Perkins.]

Gone! number'd with the famous past,
And with thee hopes and fears
That seemed to stay thy exit
From the highway of years

High beating hearts awaited thee,
Expectant of something
The future promised to bestow
And thou would surely bring

How has been kept the sacred trust
That they in thee reposed,
Hast thou not promised all thy days,
Until the last has closed?

'Tis true thou hast reality
Of great importance brought,
But scarce a feature recognized
That our creation sought.

Lafayette.

[From Temple Bar.]

The leading feature of Lafayette's character was vanity. He was ambitious, not so much of real power as of its appearance, of eclat, and of vain glory. Self-consciousness of power was nothing to him unaccompanied by the acclamations of the mob. In whatever position he stood, in whatever society he found himself, whether it was kings, nobles, senators, soldiers, or shopkeepers, he desired to be the central figure, the cynosure of every eye and of all applause. He had not power of mind for supreme command; he burned for its eclat, but shrank from the responsibility. Thus, to stand between Louis XVI and the people, to be the protector and master of the one, and the liberator and champion of the other, and the observed of all, was to obtain the acme of his ambition. In such leading-strings he would have held every government of France; the moment it escaped from his hands, and that other names were larger and more frequent in men's mouths, he became a revolutionist. During the whole reign of Napoleon, he withdrew himself from public affairs, not only because he conscientiously disapproved of his rule, but because, in the presence of that iron will and splendid genius he felt that he would be utterly insignificant. Courageous as a soldier, he was timid in resolution. A sincere enthusiast for republican institutions, he shrank from their realization. A man of genius and energy and at the head of that vast citizen army of which he was the creator, would have determined the revolution in its earliest days; but when the moment for decisive action came, opposing fears and scruples paralyzed his will to impotency. In so excitable a country as France, he was a dangerous citizen; more dangerous in his weakness than he would have been had he been gifted with daring and mental power; for, while especially adapted to destroy government, he had not the reconstructive genius of Cromwell or Napoleon, to give a something in their place. In fine, "he had every great quality, yet something lacking in each." (Dumont.)

Yet, beneath all the weakness and vanity of the head, there beat a noble heart, in which love of liberty and hatred of despotism enshrined in its highest place. The devotion of his person and fortune to the cause of American freedom is one of the most generous acts on record. The fortitude with which he endured his long and terrible imprisonment, and the ardor with which, in the gloom of his loathsome dungeon, he still fostered those dreams of liberty to which he owed all his sufferings, are traits of constancy and greatness of soul to which could be found but few parallels. To the poor he was the most generous of friends—to the alleviation of their sufferings he devoted much of his income, and, during the terrible cholera-time of Paris, he himself bore from house to house food and wine, and medicine, and money, and he himself worked unceasingly to mitigate the horrors of sickness and death that raged around him. Above all, he was generous to fallen opponents.

—Take care of your health and your wife; they are the two better halves that make a man of you.

—The bravest are the tenderest; the loving are the daring.

More of The Eucalyptus.

[By W. Wool, F. L. S.]

The variations of eucalyptus, in size as well as in habits, is very remarkable; for while some species are mere shrubs, and form dense bushes on the mountains, there are others who rise to an almost fabulous hight in the deep gullies of Victoria and Western Australia. In Baron F. Von. Mueller's essay on Australian vegetation, that eminent botanist remarks: "The marvelous hight of the Australian, and especially the Victoria trees, has become the subject of closer investigation, since of late, particularly through the miner's tracks, easier access has been afforded to the back gullies of our mountain system. Some astounding data, supported by actual measurement, are now on record. The highest tree previously known was the Karri eucalyptus (E. Colosea), measured by Mr. Pemberton Wolcott, in one of the delightful glens of Warren river of Western Australia, where it rises to approximately 400 feet high. Into the hollow trunk of this Karri, three riders, with an additional pack-horse, could enter and turn in it without dismounting.' On the desire of Baron Mueller, "Mr. D. Boyle measured a fallen tree of the Eucalyptus amygdalina, in the deep recesses of Dandenond, and obtained for it the length of 420 feet, with proportions of width indicated in a design of a monumental structure placed in the exhibition of 1866; while Mr. Klem took the measurement of an eucalyptus on the Black Spur, ten miles from Healesville, 480 feet high. Mr. E. B. Hayn, obtained at Dandenong the following measurements of a tree of E. amygdalina: length of stem from base to first branch, 295 feet; diameter of the stem at the first branch, to where its top portion was broken off, 70 feet; diameter of the stem where broken off was 3 feet; total length of stem up to the place of fracture 365 feet; girth of stem three feet from the surface 41 feet. A still thicker tree measured 53 feet in circumference. Mr. G. W. Robinson ascertained in the back ranges of Berwick, the circumference of a tree E. amgdalina to be 81 feet at four feet from the ground, and supposed this eucalypt, toward the Yarra and Latrobe rivers, to obtain a hight of 500 feet. * * * It is not at all likely that in these isolated inquiries chance has led really to the highest trees, which the more secluded and least accessible spots may yet conceal. It seems however, almost beyond dispute that the trees of Australia rival in length, though not in thickness, even the renowned forest giants of California, Sequoia Wellingtonia, the highest of which so far as has been ascertained, rise in their favorite haunts in the Sierra Nevada to about 450 feet. Still, it is said, that one of the mamoth trees measured, at an estimated hight of 300 feet, 18 feet in diameter. Thus to the Victorian trees for elevation must be conceeded. A standard of the comparison we possess in the spire of the Minister of Strathburgh, the highest of any cathedral on the globe which sends its lofty pinnacle, to the night of 466 feet; or in the great pyramid of Cheops, 480 feet high, which raised in our ranges would be overshadowed by the eucalyptus trees." Since these remarks, the report furnished by the Victoria Inspector of State Forests, fully confirms all that Baron Mueller has asserted respecting the extraordinary dimensions of Australian trees: "On penetrating into many of the secluded spots near the source of the Watts, and on the ranges in the vicinity, I met with large tracts of valuable timber, enough to supply all ordinary demands for many years, if carefully preserved. In many places, I observed large areas, where the axe of the splitter is yet unknown and where the timber averages from 100 to 150 trees per acre with a diameter of 5 to 6 feet, and from 250 to 300 feet in hight, the most of which are straight as an arrow with very few branches. In some places where the trees are fewer and at lower altitude, the timber is much larger in diameter, averaging from 7 to 10 feet; frequently trees of 15 feet in diameter are met with on alluvial flats near the river. Many of the trees which have fallen, through decay and the bush fires, measure 350 feet in length, and with girt in proportion. In one instance I measured with a tape line, a huge specimen that lay prostrate across a tributary of the Watts, and found it to measure 435 feet from the roots to the top of its trunk. At 5 feet from the ground it measured 18 feet in diameter, and at the extreme end where it was broken in its fall, it is three feet in diameter. This tree was much burnt by fire, and I fully believe that before it fell, it must have been more than 500 feet high. And as it now lies it forms a complete bridge across a deep ravine."

The gigantic trees of Victoria and Western Australia are certainly to be regarded as curiosities in our Flora, and by some geologists are considered to be the last vestiges of primeval vegetation, which, after having served the purposes of creation in other regions of the globe, have found a resting place in Australia. Though no longer indigenous in Europe, however, our eucalypti are likely to regain a footing in the warmer parts of that continent, for quantities of their seed are being exported monthly from our shores for the purpose of cultivation in the old world, as many of the species have already obtained an honorable reputation in medicines and the arts, and bids fair to rival the forest trees of other lands.

Our Blue-Gum flourishes in the West Indias, and accommodates itself to the climate of New Zealand. Kinsley, in his work "At Last," mentions the circumstance of having passed "the great Australian Blue-Gum," which overhangs the road toward Port-of-Spain, in Trinidad.

Panamint Mines.

[Correspondence of The Havilah Miner.]

So little is known respecting the Panamint Mines, their location, mode of reaching them, and their immense extent and richness, that the writer, one of the discoverers of the district offers the following to interest your readers. Panamint district is situated nearly due east from Lagunita P. O. and stage station on the Owen's River Road from Havilah—distant from Lagunita 60 miles, and from Los Angeles 215 miles; from Independence the county seat, say 100 miles. It was formerly known as the Telescope district, in 1861 and 1862, and is a lofty, bold range of mountains, lying between Panamint and Death Valleys; the main peak called "Chiombe," in the native vernacular, rises to the probable altitude of 12,000 feet. The point of export and import for the mines will be Los Angeles, until the Southern Pacific Railroad has climbed the Tehechepi range and crossed the present Owen's River road near Desert Springs, and thence by the old Slate Range road, it will pass west of the large borax deposits, and crossing the low divide at the head of the valley by a recently discovered pass, it will reach within three miles of the mines, when more formidable difficulties will be met with in Surprise canyon. This will soon be surmounted however, by a toll road, the company for which is now in the course of formation, and the Panamint mines will have a good wagon road by the opening of Spring, and the borax companies at Slate Range and Desert Spring Marshes, a good means of export for their borax.

But little work has been accomplished during the past Summer, except a vigorous prospect of the district, the result of which has been the discovery and location of over one hundred claims, and building by the miners of suitable winter quarters and roads to the mines. Now, however, vigorous work has been commenced by the owners, and the "Stewart's Wonder" claim, and on the Wyoming Company, by tunnel mining on the lodes.

Both the lodes mentioned above are considered first class, the ores assaying from $200 to $1,500 per ton, and averaging from 5 to 15 feet wide. A 15 foot shaft has been sunk on the Esperanza, and developed a very rich stratum of ore about 18 inches wide, which will probably pay $600 or $700 per ton.

The "Stewart's Wonder" claim changed hands a few days ago at the figure of $20,000, without a pick having penetrated six inches. Mr. A. P. Raines and partner, of San Francisco, are the purchasers, being men who mean business now, and a mill in the spring.

Nature has, in the Panamint district, saved the labor and great expense of prospecting by shafts and tunnels; a deep canyon from 400 to 600 feet in depth with almost perpendicular walls, bisecting at right angles these wonderful silver leads for many miles. The miner can stand at the bottom of the canyon and see his mine as well and clearly defined, as well as its body of carying ore, for 500 feet in depth (from the top where it is cut by the canyon) as he could if he had a shaft to that depth on his mine.

No mining expert has yet visited this mining district (and there have been many sent by mining speculators) who has not expressed wonder and astonishment at the immense amount of silver ore in sight; and several who have mined for years in the State of Nevada, have expressed the opinion that Panamint is certain in a few years to eclipse, in the amount of silver yield per annum the famous Comstock lode of that State.

Chinese Coal Mines.

Although China contains many coal beds it is nevertheless compelled to import nearly all the coal used along the sea-coast. This is caused by the difficulties of transporting it in large quantities any distance from the mine, a road being distinguished from the surrounding country by the ruts left by the wagons which have previously gone that way. In the province of Shansi, coal is worth 25 cents a ton at the mine, but at a distance of thirty miles will bring six dollars per ton. A writer in The Iron thus describes their method of hoisting coal from the mine: The shafts are not perpendicular, but are inclined planes 400 or 500 feet in length, running down a slant of forty-five degrees. Up this slant men carry the coal in baskets, one being attached to each end of a short carrying pole, which is borne on the left shoulder. The shafts are about seven feet high, and about the same in width, with a wooden roof, beams on both sides for support, and wood along the floor, so arranged as to form steps, up which the miner pulls himself by catching the projection of a step above him with a small curved staff, which he carries in his right hand.

—That is a good story of a little boy who, going into a book-store with his mother, crept up to the juvenile of the establishment with the sly query, "Say, have you got any books for boys that ain't got any religion in 'em?"

—Miss Godfrey, of Bennington, Vermont, is under arrest for dragging her father down stairs feet foremost, because he opposed her dancing round dances.

NOT AT ALL.

THE INYO (Cal.) INDEPENDENT feels a little uncomfortable over the flattering reports from the mines of this Territory, and insists that Inyo affords a better field for mining operations than even the Wallapai district. We recognize the right of newspapers to commend their local resources, when it can be done with justice, but we look upon this matter as an extraordinary piece of guess work and nothing more.—Arizona Miner.

Any discomfort that may have been implied from anything that we may have said concerning Wallapai was due to exactly the opposite reason, viz.: that the reports we received were the reverse of flattering, and that the individual experiences of several of our personal friends was quite in keeping with these reports. Furthermore, putting the matter in its most selfish light, we would heartily rejoice at the success of Wallapai in Arizona, because, to a very obvious extent, it would affect the fortunes of similar districts not named Wallapai nor not situated in Arizona, but located much nearer home, and yet, so far as our feelings and sympathy were concerned, scarcely more within our bailiwick than the one of Mohave. You are quite wrong in your conclusions Mr. Miner. We hope sincerely Arizona, from one end to the other, may blossom like the rose, or two or three roses, for the matter of that; and that Wallapai and every other mining district in it may prove fully up to the wildest dreams of its most sanguine claimholder; it can do all that and detract nothing whatever from the actual merits of Inyo county, which, as we verily believe, offers inducements to mining men second to not even the best of Arizona—and we think some of those of Arizona very good indeed.

California Senators.

Judge Hagar is the thirteenth Senator from California. The Senators first elected were Wm. M. Gwin and John C. Fremont. Gwin drew the term ending in 1855; Fremont the term ending in 1851. In 1851 the Legislature failed to elect, but in 1852 John B. Weller was successful. Weller's term expired in 1857, when David C. Broderick succeeded him. At the same time Gwin was elected for the term commencing in 1855. Broderick was killed in a duel in 1859, and Gov. Weller appointed H. P. Haun to fill the vacancy until the meeting of the Legislature. The Legislature of 1860 chose Gov. Milton S. Latham for the remainder of Broderick's term, which expired in 1863, when Latham was succeeded by John Conness, who in 1869 was succeeded by Eugene Casserly. Gwin in 1861 was succeeded by James A. McDougall, who in 1867 gave way to Cornelius Cole, and Cole in 1873 was succeeded by A. A. Sargent, the present Senator. For the remainder of Casserly's term, ending in 1875, Hager was elected, and for the full term commencing March 4, 1875, Gov. Booth was elected on the 20th ultimo. Sargent's term will expire in 1879, Booth's in 1881.

Changed Hands.

The Tulare Times of the 3d instant contains the valedictory of Messrs. Adams & Bequette, who succeeded in making it a good paper, but got tired of working for a pittance and boarding themselves, unless, in this respect, they were more fortunate than the generality of country newspaper men. The new issue also contains the salutatory of the new editors and proprietors, I. N. Matlick, late Principal of public schools in Tulare, and B. K. Strode, a newspaper writer lately from the East. These gentlemen promise an entirely independent paper, politically and otherwise.

Editor, Pro Tem.

Barnes, of The Borax Miner, is going to take a trip somewhere, and Rev. Ira P. Hale is to engineer the tripod (that's what they call using a pencil when running a newspaper), in the meantime. If Mr. Hale does his duty and succeeds in making it a good local paper and in collecting bills, he will be mighty apt to wish he hadn't learned the trade unless he learns the other part, too, which is to swear fluently.

The Aripiles.

The coal barge which was accidentally (?) sunk so as to confine the Spanish frigate Aripiles in the dock at New York, was finally raised and the frigate hauled out, but she did not get far before she grounded hard and fast where she now lies.

STAGE ROUTES AND OTHER MATTERS.

Early in the spring, and perhaps before the mail lettings at that time, a line of weekly stages is to be put on the route from Columbus to Piper's, connecting at that point with McMurry's line to Lida and Gold Mountain. All the residents of these localities are very anxious to have the service on that (Columbus) route increased to a tri weekly, since that is, and ever will remain until railroads change the present conditions, the natural and proper thoroughfare for all that section south of Piper's. At present two mails a week center at Lida, one from Austin and another from this valley in nearly an opposite direction. Both are roundabout and do not fulfill the requirements, and the Lidaites would willingly give up both to obtain the tri weekly via Columbus, which route is intermediate to the others and the shortest, most direct and feasible by which to reach the railroad at Wadsworth and the rest of the civilized world.

In this connection we may remark there is no person in this valley at all acquainted with the "lay of the land" east of the range, but is anxious to see that section obtain every mail or other facility that will tend in the least to promote its prosperity. It is plain that the Columbus route is preferable as a through thoroughfare to either of the others, but it is also equally plain that at least one of the others, that from this valley, is of quite as much importance to the mass of the people on both sides of the mountains as the thoroughfare can possibly be to the comparatively few men whose business relations, chiefly with San Francisco, are best subserved by it. Let the Lidaites say what they may, they must always hold more or less intimate business relations with the producers of Owens River Valley, because, though not the only one, it is and will be their cheapest and most reliable base for supplies of various kinds—in the aggregate certain to constitute an amount of exchange that certainly demands to the full all existing mail facilities. As before intimated, the other route and a more frequent service is essential to mill and furnace men whose dealings, in certain important matters, are almost exclusively and directly with San Francisco, or at any rate ought to be. But that class of business transactions does not include everything essential to the welfare and progress of that country, nor is it of any more importance than the aggregate of less individually prominent transactions whose base is Owens Valley. Should developments in Sylvania and vicinity approximate expectations, there will soon be a large population there, and the general interest requires direct mail communication with the county-seat, which will be for some years to come on this side of the range. The district referred to, it should be understood, lies close to or upon both sides of the State line, but the principal or business portion of it is within the Inyo line.

We may mention the fact, which can go for what it is worth, that Inyo county has expended several thousand dollars and her private citizens other thousands of dollars in bridge and road building and also in other ways, exclusively, we may say, with the object of assisting in the development of the very districts now in question—much more, taken together, than the State of Nevada, in which they chiefly lie, has ever done, or mayhap will do. It might also be advantageously remembered that it was one outlying, financially crippled or weak community trying to help another similarly affected; it is no doubt true, but none the worse for being true, that the ulterior object of the former was to strengthen its own weakness, but not by pulling down the latter. But no claims for unrequited obligations are or will be set up beyond the plane of mutual advantage. This plane, as between the several camps immediately east of the range and this valley is identical to an extent beyond what a number out there seem disposed to allow; at all events it is a waste of words, if nothing more, to try to force their connections asunder beyond what clear propriety demands. Both these mails are needed, each serving a good purpose, and the existence of neither militating against that of the other. The Austin route considered only with reference to the advantage of its terminus, Lida or Gold Mountain, is of small advantage compared to either of the others; but those places are to be considered merely incidental termini for a mail route which is of the first importance to numerous intermediate localities, whose development is so greatly contingent upon it. These routes should all be maintained by all means, but not separate and distinct from points of junction to end of lines, as we believe has been the case to some extent heretofore.

The very least the United States Government ought to do is to afford the mail facilities so essential to the development of the vast resources of all promising, though now sparsely settled regions, like that under consideration. Present unreturned outlays for the purpose are morally certain to be more than made up in the near future by the consequent advancement and settlement of such a country. And while talking about mail routes, Sylvania district is very desirous to have a branch mail from Piper's. At present the sixty odd residents of the camp have to go fifteen miles to reach the post-office either at Piper's or Lida. Although the road between the two approaches it within six or seven miles, practically the district is and ever must be fifteen miles off the line, and can only be supplied to advantage by a branch service from Piper's.

The Virginius.

New York dates of December 29th have the following in relation to the above named historical craft:

When the U. S. steamer Ossippee was boarded, soon after her arrival here, the absence of the Virginius, which vessel she was commissioned to take into port, was explained, and the startling intelligence communicated that the Virginius, being all alone and in a leaking condition, and, when off Cape Fear and in sight of land and in spite of all the efforts of the crew aboard her, settled and went to the bottom.

The Times states that the officer of the deck on board the Ossippee said that he had strict orders not to communicate with any one in relation to the circumstances attending the foundering of the Virginius. He would not even give the date of the occurrence, or the place where it happened. He, however, made no attempt to deny the accuracy of the report as to the foundering of the ship.

The Captain of the revenue cutter Grant, who boarded the Ossippee, is reported as saying that the Captain of the latter vessel told him that the Virginius had been lost off Cape Fear.

Although no official announcement has been made regarding the loss of the Virginius no one doubts the truth of the statement.

A dispatch from Wilmington, N. C., reports a sanken vessel, supposed to be the Virginius, nine miles south of Main Bar.

After the landing of the survivors and passengers and crew of the Virginius, they marched in regular line to Fulton Ferry, taking the boat there to New York, and thence proceeding to the Cuban Restaurant, on Pine street, where they were hospitably entertained. They were clad in the naval uniform of the United States, and marched briskly through the streets, showing no signs of recent suffering. When transferred to the tug boat from the steamer Juniata, which carried them to this port from Santiago, they gave rousing cheers for their several benefactors, leading off with three for the commander of the Niobe, to whom they were indebted for their lives.

The Herald has a special dispatch from Wilmington, saying that the Captain of the steamship Tonawanda, which arrived on Sunday, reports passing a sunken vessel nine miles south of Main Bar, with only her top mast or top gallant mast out of the water. The steam tug subsequently visited the spot. Her officers concur in the opinion that the sunken vessel was undoubtedly a square rigged steamship. A pork barrel was floating above from the wreck, attached to it by a strong hawser, having evidently been used as a tow rope.

Lieutenant Commander Haswell of the Ossippee, in a statement to-day concerning the loss of the Virginius, says he left the Tortugas on the 19th; had fair weather till the following Sunday, when a gale sprang up, and he continued to have bad weather, and the Virginius signalled that she was leaking badly. Friday morning, Commander Woodrow, of the Virginius, signalled with lights that the Virginius was leaking rapidly, with fires out and pumps stopped, and that the crew wished to be taken off. Boats were lowered and by 7 A. M. all on board the Virginius were transferred to the Ossippee. As a heavy sea was running the work was one of much danger and, therefore no lives were risked in endeavoring to save the personal effects on the Virginius. The hawser of the Virginius was cut and a buoy attached to mark her position in case she sunk out of sight. At 4 P. M. the Virginius went to the bottom in eight fathoms of water. The Ossipee then resumed her voyage.

Engineer, Knight, of the Virginius, says the original sentence of the Court Martial was that the entire crew should be hanged at the yard-arm, but the Captain did not want such a spectacle made of his vessel, and obtained a sentence to death by shooting.

Believe it If You Can.

A correspondent of The London Lancet, the most important medical journal published in England, relates the following curious fact: A man in his neighborhood had three daughters. wishing for a son, he made a solemn vow that if his next child should be a girl, he would never speak to her. The next child proved to be a son, as he wished, but curiously enough he would never speak to his father, although he lived with him thirty-five years. He always talked freely with his mother and sisters, but with no one else until after the death of his father, when he talked readily with every one. He was called "Dumb Eli."

Gone to Work.

The locomotive engineers, who have been on a general strike in the Western States, are going to work again at the old rates.

—Master Elster is the successful West Point cadet in Virginia City.

Needs Hanging.

If there is a man living who richly deserves hanging one Alexander McKeever, of Duckwater, Nevada, ought to come first, assuming the account of his deeds published in The Eureka Sentinel to be true. All the attending circumstances need to be given at length for a proper understanding of the blackness of this villain's acts, but it is sufficient for our space to give the main facts. One H. G. Blackwell, with his wife and seven children, were striving to eke out a living on a small ranch at Duckwater, near where this McKeever lived. On Christmas Day Blackwell's eldest daughter, aged about fifteen years, attended a party near by. McKeever came to Blackwell's house, and ascertaining that fact began to violently abuse the old man, his wife, daughter and all. He was ordered out of the house, and went, but only to get an axe from the wood-pile with which he mashed in the barred door, and getting inside chopped off the defenseless old man's head, spite of all he and wife and children could do in self-defense. The ruffian then went to the house of a sister of the murdered man, and after abusing her most vilely by words, attempted to kill her also, and all because her young niece had seen proper to attend a social gathering without consulting his will! By a ruse McKeever was detained in the neighborhood until an officer arrived and arrested him. Blackwell was a poor, unoffensive old man, and his diabolical taking off excites a very bloodthirsty feeling in the settlement against McKeever, the murderer.

Around Benton.

Our sanctum was invaded yesterday by Mr. C. H. Aaron (no relation to Moses). Mr. Aaron arrived from Benton on Thursday night's stage, and furnished these items: The mill at Montgomery is shut down for want of water, the snow and frost keeping the water back, but as soon as the weather will melt the snow the mill will start again.... There was a ball to be given at Mr. Laird's on New Year's night, which promises to be well attended.... They had a party at Partswick, given by Mr. McDonald in honor of his birthday, at the Partzwick Hotel... The snow on the South side of the hills is nearly melted off, but on the flats the snow is still firm.... Mack & Powning have ceased operations for the present.... Benton presents rather a dull appearance for the time being.... Mack has started recently to work the Wilson mine, and has struck a good body of ore, the shaft being on the line between the Comanche and Wilson mines.... William's mine, the Diana, is turning out splendid ore, some of which has been worked at Mack & Powning's, and he intends to build a mill during the coming Summer.... The Lyford mine is supposed to be worked out.... The Eureka mine is turning out good ore.... The Illinois mine, a wet mine discovered about two years ago, has paid its way. A contract has just been let to sink thirty feet more with a horse-power whim. This mine carries a considerable amount of zinc. The controlling interest in this mine is owned by Hightower & Sanguinetti and C. H. Aaron.—Columbus Miner.

Volume Five.

The Bakersfield Courier has entered upon its fifth volume and among other things relating to the progress of its locality and itself, says:

The Courier claims some share in bringing about this state of things. It can claim at least to have been a persistent champion of the local interest of this section of this State and, in whatever it may have done, to have always strictly submitted to the guidance of truth.

Oh! Mr. Hardnut! Take another look at the words we have italicised, and send in your orders for quinine, or arsenic, or anything that may avert or even modify such another attack; just to think what a struggle Truth had when she sat up as a guide to The Courier man; no wonder she became thin, over there.

Another.

The Sacramento Weekly Record of January 3 comes out also with its 112 columns of statistical information, among the rest a tabular statement of railroad affairs of much interest at the present time. It would be a good thing to do to invest ten cents each for copies of these huge Sacramento papers, one or both, and send them to inquiring friends back East They would be worth more for that purpose than a hundred letters.

Sic Transit Virginius.

The District Attorney says that no further action will be taken in the case of the Viiginius. It is not likely that the vessel will ever be raised, and it is deemed requisite that the vessel should be produced, before she could be libelled. Government officers say whatever may have been the relation of Mr. Patterson at the time of her registration, there is abundant proof that he was not her owner at the time of her capture.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Rhode Island writes poetry, which leads The Indianapolis Sentinel to observe that is the only instance on record where a Lieutenant-Governor ever did anything.

The Three Black Crows.

The official organ nobly and generously declares his intention of defending Judge Reed from the "pusillanimous attacks" that may be made against him, while it is not "prepared to apologize for him" if he "fails to retain his dignity while discharging the duties of his office," or in other words, we presume, will not stand by him when he so far forgets himself as to horrify the mountain towns and mining camps, through which he circulates, by an undue exaggeration of vulgarity and profanity in his language. This is our position exactly. If any attacks are to be made upon him, we shall certainly deprecate their being conducted in a pusillanimous manner, and while his language and conduct are seemly and becoming, treat him with all the respect due to his exalted position. Like the Miner man, we did not vote for him because we did not believe him qualified for the place, but since the people of the district, through some unaccountable caprice, have seen fit to saddle him upon us, we propose to make the best of the misfortune, bearing it with stoical patience. But when he goes too far astray, we shall still venture, nothwithstanding the championship of The Miner, to hold his conduct up to public reprobation. We are glad the Judge, since the defection of THE INDEPENDENT, has secured a new organ and the friendship of so estimable and we presume, congenial gentleman as its able and chivalrous editor.—Bakersfield Courier.

The same here, and especially with reference to the last sentence but one, but with this exception general and particular: When a Judge or any other official attends to his own legitimate business and conscientiously tries to do his best therein, we do not desire nor intend to hold up his honest failures to reprobation. It is important however that he should let other people's affairs alone—then we may better know what an honest failure or an honest success really is.

Assassination at Columbus.

The Miner of the 3. gives a detailed account of the mortal wounding of Antonio Rivera by another Mexican named Victor Moncago, alias Ramon Castillo. The trouble originally grew out of a matter connected with the loan of a guitar used at a New Year's party given by Mr. Holland. The Miner says:

A Mexican Indian named Juan Ruiz quarrelled with Castillo about the guitar, and Castillo was abusing him in the street and attempted to kill him. Mr. Rivera interceded for Ruiz, who is a small man and not at all the equal of the brawny Castillo. The result is that Castillo struck Mr. Rivera across the face with a large bowie knife and then stabbed him in the back, somewhere between the second and third ribs, with the knife. The wound in the side is very painful, and by those who are in attendance upon him, considered dangerous; but as there is no physician now in Columbus, it is impossible to tell whether or not it is fatal. The stabbing occurred between ten and eleven o'clock in front of Mrs. Barry's boarding house.

Castillo ran away but was subsequently captured. This man is said to be a Mexican guerrilla, and it is also stated by those who claim to know him best, that he is the man who murdered a man and a boy in San Louis Obispo county some time since, and for whom a reward of $2,000 is offered.

Serrano to be President of Spain.

A Washington dispatch of the 29th says: The Cortes will meet January the 29th, when Serrano will be placed at the head of Spanish affairs. England, France, Prussia, and Italy will be pleased to recognize Serrano President on the same basis that they have recognized the President of the French Republic. Minister Layard has the papers ready to sieze the opportune moment for recognition. This news was kept secret, but it is positive that if the Reds rise to oppose the recognition, these powers are expected to intervene in this matter as well as in Carlist affairs.

Fatal Railroad Accident.

As the freight train due here at 5 P. M. was coming in, the section hands attempted to run ahead, when one Chinaman fell off the hand car, and must have been stunned as he did not move after falling. The engineer on the freight train tried hard to stop his train but could not until the engine and three loaded box cars had passed over him, killing him instantly No blame is attached to the engineer. —Merced Dispatch.

We suspect that engineer won't be confined to his bed long on account of injuries suffered in trying to stop his engine.

California Reports.

The forty-fourth volume of "Reports of Supreme Court Opinions" has been printed, and will be issued in a few days. It contains cases decided at the April and July terms, and a part of those of the October term, 1872. The manuscript for the next volume is ready It will contain the remaining October cases of 1872 and those of January and April, 1873.—Sacramento Union.

—The late Thomas Baring, in his will, left a year's salary to every clerk in the firm of Baring Brothers & Co.

—Henry Bergh has taken dinner with Millard Fillmore, and he gently reproved the ex-President for leaving his doorsteps out in the cold.

A "Pea-Soup" Day in London.

The fog in London has inspired Charles Warren Stoddard to ask: "Do you realize what this fog is? They call it 'pea-soup day.' The whole town seems deluged with a thick yellow cloud that is so dense that it seems to block the very streets and fall from the eaves of the houses. The wind has changed in the last few hours and the smoke that has poured out of London and traveled up country for twenty miles, has recoiled and is coming back on us in tremendous volumes. Meanwhile we have been smoking to a considerable extent at home, and the combination is more than the lungs of a free-born American is used to. Without exaggeration I have been wheezing this forenoon as though I had the asthma; as we felt our way along the dingy walls of London town, our eyes smarting, our throats burning as though we had inhaled some gas or other, I looked up toward the imaginary English sky and saw a thing that looked like a red wafer and knew it was the London sun; and then I began to realize that the fog of the tourist was not a fable, and that probably the half had not been told."

Oil Refinery.

The machinery for the oil refinery at Petroliopolis was dispatched this morning from the depot. It consisted of large tanks, stills, pipe, etc. Some heavy castings are being made at the Los Angeles foundery for the refinery, and in a short time the company hope to have the works in operation.—Los Angeles Express, Jan. 3.

The Wounded Chinaman.

A Lone Pine correspondent writes as follows concerning the Chinaman whom one Grady, at Swansea, grievously wounded with his little hatchet some time since. The inference is that the information upon which we based the statement that Grady was justifiable was not just as correct as it ought to be, but still as no full investigation was held, we are not justifiable in positive conclusions to the contrary:

"Mew Leon, the Chinaman, who had his skull split open with a hatchet, and two ribs broken on his left side, by Mr. Grady of Swansea, is fast recovering under Dr. Gelcich's care, and able to move around, but absolutely destitute of means. In a late issue of The Independent, it was stated that Grady was justified for his deed, but strong justification indeed without any examination—the truth is he was discharged from Justice Peerson's court merely for some technicalities in the form of the complaint, which the able counsel P. Reddy, Esq., for the defendant, saw at a glance, and obtained the release of the prisoner. If man's law absolved Grady, nature's law may still talk to his heart, and it is to be hoped that he will at least, for charity sake send some money to the poor disabled Mew Leon.

Free Citizen."

Attempt to Murder.

On the 6th ultimo Henry Brodt at Log Springs, east of the Inyo range, made a murderous attempt on a Mexican, Magill Parra, hitting him about the head with some instrument of iron, breaking his under jaw, and knocking out some of his teeth and otherwise cutting and bruising him, and finally turning him out of doors to die. He was out all night; the next morning he made his way to a house two miles distant. The night was very cold, the ground being covered with snow, which, perhaps, prevented him from bleeding to death. Brodt was taken before Justice Brown of Lida for examination, and in default of $1,000 bail, the Justice thought that Brodt had better move his residence to a higher altitude and a colder climate, so he concluded to go to Aurora, and took Deputy Sheriff Nichols with him as a body guard. The wounded man, at last accounts was trying to make his way to Camp Independence Hospital to place himself under Dr. White's care, but up to this writing we have not heard of his arrival.

The De'll's Amang 'em.

Since the beginning of A. D. 1874, commencing therewith, many people hereabouts have been much on the rampage. At least, we incidentally hear rumors of wordy wars, (call me pet names, dear), of conflicts more or less dire, and of calls for Sheriff Mulkey who admires a good joke, but as our war reporter became much demoralized at the very outset, and has become like the famous war mule which smelled the battle afar off and said "e-haw!" because he was glad he wasn't close enough to smell it any plainer—so is this reporter pleased to say "phew!" and no more.

Oasis Postoffice.

This is the name of the postoffice recently established at Piper's Ranch, and it is to be a distributing office, being at the junction of several routes; viz: Columbus on the north, Owen's Valley on the west, Sylvania on the south, Lida and Gold Mountain on the south-east, and Silver Peak and other camps easterly. N. T. Piper has been commissioned Postmaster.

Riot at Lida.

We are informed that a most disgraceful riot occurred at Lida Valley about three weeks since, which was followed by a general skedaddling. A lot of men got on a furious drunk, and busted the daylights out of a saloon, beat the proprietor, Tom Brown, fearfully, defied the authorities and otherwise conducted themselves in a most disgraceful manner, after which they cleared out.

Furnace for Sylvania.

Samuel Halsey and Thomas Coates of Gold Mountain, have made a conditional sale of their interest in the famous Oriental mine of that district to the Manhattan company, and propose to turn their attention to Sylvania where they have some valuable interests. They design to erect a furnace there if things progress favorably.

Read This.

Ye that owe the printer, which is us, ought to remember that these are war times, and worst of all, also tax times, without exemptions or commutations in favor of even printers, and who, consequently, need that "little balance" very much.

Pack Train.

A train of some twenty-five mules loaded with general merchandise at Harris & Rhine's yesterday, for L. Wick, at Lida Valley.

Preaching.

Rev. Mr. McKean will preach in this place at 11 A. M. to-morrow.

Some Interesting Facts and Figures.

Mr. J. L. Darrah returned a few days since from a visit to the mining camps east of the range. Mr. Darrah is eminently a practical man, and while at Lida he submitted the plump question to Mr. Hiskey, manager of Hiskey & Walker's mill and mines, to know "what they were doing, whether he might have an abstract of assays and working results of the ores of that section that would give a reliable idea of their average value, etc." In reply to this Hiskey told him that there was his office and books, to "pitch in and copy the ore, assay and bullion books, from one end to the other if he wanted to." Darrah "pitched in," and after carefully transcribing the figures on the mill books as they were set down from day to day, the results are as follows:

The assay value of 219 samples gives the extraordinary average of $292 per ton! One assay from the Brown's Hope, which, by the way, in the richness of its ores has not more than two or three superiors on the coast, gives a yield of $4,351 41. This was the largest assay; the smallest, which was a simple prospect specimen, $6 13.

The working result of 668 tons put through the mill since last March, gives an average value of $244 per ton, or an aggregate product of $163,000. This is certainly a showing not often excelled in any camp, and the entire statement may be accepted as perfectly reliable.

Mr. Darrah is confident that the section embracing Lida Valley, Gold Mountain (20 miles to the south) and Sylvania (15 miles west of Lida) is inevitably bound to prove itself, sooner or later, the most prolific mineral section east of the Sierra Nevadas. Our own personal knowledge of the two first named inclines us strongly to that opinion, as the number of rich silver mines is innumerable. The prospects are, however, that the newer district of Sylvania will do more to determine the status of the entire region than either or both the others, though either one is undoubtedly capable of adding greatly to the world's wealth, and of making a noise in the world in consequence.

Sylvania district has one feature worthy of special mention, even in a necessarily brief local reference: For a width of about 3 miles, and 10 miles in length, the country rock is a perfectly defined body of granite. Through the center of this streak runs another of softer and whiter rock than the granite, and again through the center of this soft rock runs a large lode of rich argentiferous galena, which wherever uncovered for full eight miles invariably yields ore identical in characteristics, one place with another, and thus proving this lead to be full eight miles long—eight miles of a lode composed of the best quality of smelting ores; superior, Mr. Darrah thinks, to those of Cerro Gordo, in the reduction of which he was actively engaged for three years. There is the greatest abundance of timber for wood and charcoal all along the lead, and water can be obtained in numerous localities close at hand. Wood and its product, charcoal, can be furnished fifty per cent. cheaper than at Cerro Gordo, and, taking that famous locality still further as a standard of comparison, the ores of Sylvania are said to be many times more abundant, and presumed to be generally richer in silver and quite as easy to smelt; further, Cerro Gordo bullion has to be hauled 275 miles on wagons, while that from the other will be but 195. In the nature of the case, however, it may cost as much or more per ton to land it in San Francisco from Sylvania than Cerro Gordo, but in other important particulars the advantage appears to be entirely in favor of the former. Unless people's hopes are allowed to run away with their judgment, Sylvania district is surely capable of producing more bullion of a richer quality and at a cheaper rate than Eureka with its score of big furnaces. Looking at the prospects for Sylvania and Waucoba, at one end of the county, as it were, with Panamint, equally undeveloped but promising, at the other, and our present mainstay of Cerro Gordo, and other important mining operations now or likely soon to be in full blast, it strikes us that the future of Inyo is about as flattering, prospectively, as any reasonable person could desire. It is bound to be the banner mining county of this State. It needs but a narrow gauge railroad, or cheap freights, to enable it to hold its head up with the biggest mineral producing county of any State or Territory. Nevada and Arizona papers will take notice.

The Ball at Lone Pine.

One of our particular friends at Lone Pine, writing on the 2d instant, after giving us his and his owns' warm New Year's greetings, gives the following in relation to the New Year's ball there, which we take the liberty to transcribe:

"I am glad to say that we had a splendid ball last night. It was given as a benefit for the school children, and it turned out to be a magnificent affair and a pecuniary success, the more so because Mr. R. L. Peterson gave the use of his spacious saloon free of charge, and also, on account of the sweet music by the Italian orchestra, who volunteered their services for the occasion. A feeling of true enjoyment was manifest on the faces of all, especially on those of the fifty young couple when waltzing to the melody of the famous 'Kiss Waltz.' We think such a party as this would do honor to any community, however large or ancient in date of settlement, and of course are proud of it for this young sage-brush country."

A Fence Law.

Mr. J. J. M'Call is in town and informs us of a movement to be set on foot to effect a change in the present no-fence law, making it continuous the year through. We will endeavor to explain his views more at length next week.

A Prospector.

Among the lucky claim-holders in Sylvania district is one named—well we have forgotten the name, but he is rather advanced in years and a typical prospector—tireless and venturesome to an eminent degree. Last Spring he decided on a general prospect, and soon organized a reliable company consisting of two old horses, a two-wheeled vehicle and himself. With this outfit he left Lida, or some of those camps out there, prospected Amargosa, Death Valley, Ivanpah, and, in short, the entire country clear down to the Colorado river and back to Sylvania, where he arrived, with the same horses and cart, just in time to obtain a good location on the big lead lode, which bids fair ere many months to make that district rate among the famous ones of the world. In answer to the query, "Didn't you find any good mines, or have any trouble with the Indians in your long, lonely tramp?" he replied to both questions by saying that he found plenty of Indians, and that they invariably told him to turn out his horses, "give um heap Injun's grass, heap Injun's water," till morning, and then he was told to "move on," which out of respect to their wishes he always did without unnecessary delay. He could travel through their country in peace, but was given emphatically to understand their hospitality extended no further—he nor no other prospector would be permitted to tarry at all, and therefore he could say but little, by actual investigation, of the mineral value of the region he traversed

Notice to Inyo Pioneers.

As yet the ranks of the brave few who stood and staid through the troublous taboose times of Inyo remain almost if not quite intact, but old Time will one day make his requisitions, and but a few years thereafter will elapse when it will be a mooted point perhaps if certain of their number ever existed, much less, bore an important part in making local history that would reflect honor on themselve and be a source of pride to their posterity, if posterity could be made to know the facts. There is but one way to insure that result, and others more desirable and immediate in experience, and that is outlined in a call for a meeting of Pioneers, to which we would call special attention. It is to be hoped that every man (and woman?) to whom it can properly apply will take earnest stock in the proposition. The rising generation of this county will surely have a country to take pride in, and in the same proportion, will be proud of their ability to point to the names of parents and predecessors who were the first in laying the foundations of such results.

Personals.

Our burg has been honored with a number of visitors this week; some as matrimonial accessories before the fact, some after; others who don't worry about such trifles at all, or have got beyond worry and consider life as a purely business matter. We may mention the following: A. L. Freedman and R. Van Dyke and ladies (just committed). J. L. Horton, solo (at latest dates); Dr. Columber, ditto, ditto; J. L. Darrah and Superintendent Van Arsdale (no returns); Levi Firestone (past hope, as he is just from the States and elsewhere, an exemplification of the old adage about the rolling (Fire)stone and the moss); Thomas Passmore (resigned to pass more chances yet); J. W. McMurry (in the third category, but an object of affectionate awe to numerous young men of serious intentions); Dad Moore (who ought to be more dad than he is); Deputy Sheriff Hightower, of Mono (on a tour after horse thieves or something), and others in the steerage. Per contra, we have among the departures in addition to the above, Captain MacGowan (San Francisco); Mrs. F. K. Miller, of Lone Pine (and who has achieved quite a reputation as a successful M. D. during her stay here), and the contemplated early departure of Judge Hanson (who wants to climb the Green Mountains once more). Es todos.

Not so Well.

V. G. Thompson, whose illness we mentioned last week, took a slight relapse a day or two since. His medical attendant in chief is Mrs. F. K. Miller, who practices the homeopathic system with good results.

"See Me."

In another column S. A. Densmore has a few lines which are worth looking at by parties interested, not so much on literary as substantial merit which is explained in the above caption.

We are Told

That a wedding or two has taken place not far away from here this week, but having no official information to that effect we can give no further particulars.

Weather

Bright and pleasant till this morning; now cloudy and threatening rain.

A Huge Paper.

The Sacramento Daily Union of January 1st, contains no less than 112 columns of very valuable statistical matter relating to the affairs of every county in this State, and Nevada, and Pacific Coast and National affairs generally. Altogether it contains many dollars' worth of information in a nutshell, and all for only ten cents. Every working man ought to have a copy of this number or the still larger weekly containing the same matter issued on the 3rd.

—A Boston preacher, speaking o the danger of the Bible being crowded out by the newspapers, perpetrated the following excellent pun: "Men now days," says he, "are like Zaccheus, desirous of seeing Jesus, but they cannot because of the press."

How a Reporter Lost his Situation.

It is said that in a moment of temporary insanity a Boston city editor assigned a horse-racing, base-ball and aquatic reporter to report in half column the Sunday services at the church of a sensational preacher. This is the report he published, and for which he was discharged:

"The House met at 10:30 A. M. Prayer by the Chaplain. The first race was between the chaplain and the singers, it being a pretty even match the first two heats; but the singers got the best of the last three heats, and came in on the amen two lengths ahead, winning the last three heats and race. Time, 5:02. Petitions were then presented for forgiveness and other similar matters, and notice was given for special assignments during the coming week for various objects. The singers then sailed up to the judges' stand, and after getting into position sailed away on the course with all canvass set and a spanking breeze from the organ, which drove them along in fine style. The top-rigged flat flying the blue pennant was well ahead at the stake, and came home ahead of all the fleet. The speaker then took the floor and announced his intention to ask that the resolutions of censure that had been heaped upon Ananias should be rescinded, and proceeded to read the records of the case, from which it appeared that Ananias had sold his house and had not given all the price to the church. The speaker then went on to say that no reason appeared on the records for Ananias to give any, and much less all of his property to the church, and he questioned if any of those before him would do any more than Ananias did in the same place. He then went on to show that Ananias had obeyed his wife in the matter, and expressed the belief that few of those before him could say as much for themselves. After further arguments of similar character, he moved that the character of Ananias be and hereby is declared A 1 by the members of the House."

A Dignified Man and a Postoffice Clerk.

The human heart, in all its expansive, limitless capacity for enjoyment, takes greater pleasure in nothing more than witnessing a portly, solemn visaged man, the embodiment of natural dignity, importance in clothes, administer a scathing rebuke to some "smart" petty official. This morning just such a personification of innate dignity loomed up at the stamp window of the postoffice, and glared in gloomy and majestic displeasure at the busy clerk registering a letter before he sprang to the window and asked the stately customer what he wished. The great man did not answer for several moments. He gazed steadily and impressively over the clerk's head, and then asked, in ponderous tones:

"Is there anyone her-re who attends to business?"

The embarrassed clerk blushed, faltered for a moment, and then recovering himself, said with the characteristic and national cheerfulness becoming an official of the Republic.

"I will see, sir."

And he disappeared. He went into the other department, tortured a carrier with an original conundrum, and heard a good story in the mailing-room, and then came back.

"Yes, sir," he said to the great one, "there are, in addition to myself, three clerks in the letter department, one in the mailing room, four carriers, three route agents, the mail driver and a janitor.'

"Ah-hsh? I am glad there are so many. I may, in all that number, find one who is at his post.'

And then he looked as impressive as a special agent, and was silent for three minutes, while the impassive clerk awaiting his orders, and impatient men behind him fidgetted and grumbled. Finally the great man said, with deep solemnity;

"I wish one three cent stamp."

The clerk tore off the stamp and held it, waiting for the consideration. The great man made a somewhat longer pause than usual, he felt in his various vest pockets, he gradually lost his look of impressive rebuke, and his chest caved in, and he assumed the aspect of an ordinary frail mortal, and he said:

'Ah—the fact is—I'm sure—ah—in short, I find that I have carlessly left my purse at home. Can you kindly—'

The impressive clerk, with the faintest suggestion of triumph in his eye, waved the great man aside with:

'Sorry for you, sir, but the clerk who sells on credit is not in. What does the next want?'

And we felt so good to see how that clerk was taken down by the dignified man that we went home and laughed a week.

Contents of the Yeast.

One of the most remarkable illustrations of the mysterious line that separates the deadly and the wholesome in nature, is given in The English Medical Press, which states that the poison of the cobra, the most deadly of the East India serpents, has been chemically analyzed, with the following result: Carbon, 46; nitrogen, 13; oxygen, 6; sulphur, 24, and hydrogen, 10. This is exactly the composition of beer yeast. The latter is used in manufacturing the staff of life—bread; the former is so deadly in its nature that, even when taken from the snake and preserved, and afterwards injected under the skin of animals, it is immediately fatal.

—The Boston Post noticing the fact that 10,000 cubic yards of obstruction had been removed at Hell Gate, near New York, says "they will get it open pretty soon so that they can all get in."

Criminal Lawyers.

[From Appleton's Journal.]

Turning over an old number of The Galaxy, we find the following statement relative to the late James T. Brady:

"He was counsel in fifty two capital cases, in not one of which was he ever unsuccessful, except in that of Beall, who was tried by a court-martial, at Fort Lafayette, on a charge of being 'a spy and guerrilla.'"

The appreciative but unreflecting reader, who pondered this in its day, was doubtless lost in admiration of the cleverness and subtlety of Mr. Brady's intellect, and of the personal magnetism that must have contributed to a success so remarkable. If admiration induced him to push his inquiries into matters of private history, he found very much in the great lawyer to command unqualified respect, if not, indeed, veneration. The life-long devotion to his mother and sisters; the ready sympathy he ever manifested with distress; the constant cultivation of poetry and elegant letters; and the submission of his spiritual nature to religious authority—were sufficient peculiarities, in an age of unbounded self assertion, to render him nobly conspicuous and ever lovable. Considering these various elements of success or praise in Mr. Brady's career, the appreciative but unreflecting reader utterly missed the prodigious significance of the passage we have quoted from The Galaxy.

But the reflecting man must have read that professional record with profounder insight. In him it induced thoughts that could not have much differed from these: "Mr. Brady was defendant's counsel in fifty two capital cases, fifty one of which he successfully carried through. Fifty one criminals, then, he turned loose to imperil human safety anew. Fifty-one times, by intellectual strategy, he vanquished law, thereby weakening its power in subsequent cases to bind the individual and public conscience. Fifty-one times he made it apparent that if a villain can procure the services of a lawyer sufficiently able and unscrupulous, he need not hesitate to commit a murder, in so far as this world's penalties are concerned. Fifty-one times he demonstrated that Divine and human statutes, in the opinion of human courts and juries, were not necessarily binding. Fifty-one times he illustrated the fact that law, as humanly administered, has no necessary connection with justice."

Fifty-one times are a good many times. Fifty-one admitted violations of a statute, in any given direction constitute a rule.

Let it be granted that in some of the cases wherein Mr. Brady was defendant's counsel, there were extenuating circumstances, through the operation of which the person arraigned was justly extricated from extreme penalty. But is it possible to suppose that in his entire practice of fifty-one consecutive cases every culprit was falsely charged, or was justified by the omnipresent right of self-defense? If Mr. Brady had sometimes been unsuccessful, there would have been stronger probability of justice. But he cleared every murderer for whom he appeared. The worst case, as well as the most deserving, was safe in his hands. Brady being the lawyer, his client was secure, no matter what the law and evidence, the common-sense of the jury, or the intelligence and moral soundness of public opinion. (Yet it might be shown that the easy toleration of crime, and the consequent success of criminal lawyers, is due to a wide spread unsoundness of public sentiment in moral questions.)

The methods of Mr. Brady in eliciting or suppressing testimony, and his lines of argument in addressing juries were, of course, closely watched by other attorneys, who reproduce them in many quarters. Thus the criminal courts are more and more becoming mere gladiatorial arenas for intellectual athletes, whose highest ambition is to triumph over law and still further debauch public opinion, then by winning for themselves profit and reputation, under the sinuous forms of legal practice.

But just here we shall be met with the question: "May an attorney refuse a case, or, having taken one, may he fail to do his utmost for his client?" to which but one answer can well be returned. An advocate's management of any case will depend on his sense of moral obligation. If he is a man of sensitive conscience, he will go just such lengths for his client as his conviction of his client's innocence will justify—but no further. If he is anxious, above everything else, to preserve his own honesty, and to furnish the world an example of uprightness in the face of temptation, he will never, under any circumstances, lend his powers to defeat a duly-enacted law. He will act upon the theory that the displacement of law, in a single instance, is attended with immeasurable danger to all law; that the destruction of one righteous statute is the sure forerunner of the destruction of every legitimate bond of human society.

We must inevitably think that he who accepts a "forlorn case"—all the while secretly feeling that his client is guilty—and strains every sinew to make him appear innocent; and by persuasion, brow-beating, trickery and mishandling of law and fact, forces an unrighteous verdict, is hardly less criminal than the villain he shelters from penalty. He is, certainly to the extent of his higher abilities, more particeps criminis than the clumsy fellow who gives physical aid and comfort in such common ways as helping to break jail or furnishing a horse to facilitate escape. Indeed the moral difference between knavishly unlocking a prison-door with skeleton key and unlocking it by legal obliquities, is largely in favor of the former method, for it does not pretend to be respectable, but skulks under cover of silence and darkness. How strange that society views with such different eyes the man who opens the door of a jail by means of a cold chisel, and the advocate who, quite as immorally, does it by a lever of sophistries!

The very incidents, commonly employed to exemplify legal greatness, are such that indicate utter indifference to moral integrity and to crime. Yet we will all confess that where success rather than love of justice, where self-projection into the foreground of motive, rather than reverence of law and obedience of authority, are habitual inspirations, no man deserves to be called illustrious, and go off the stage with clamor of applause. Rather should the public verdict stamp him a participator in crime—a man as deadly dangerous to the outward aspect of society as he is morally criminal to himself.

But, in the present constitution of society, we can hardly hope for correct popular estimates. It is to be feared that success, or what is termed such, will perpetually have its part in moulding public opinion. And yet success must always be far from the true test of a right cause. If it were a true test murder, and in fact all lawlessness, would seem the correct thing in most instances. Bradys can be found to make subtle and plausible apologies for everything. But, after all their fallacies, some of us will ever feel that crime can never be anything less than crime; and that the advocate who shields a guilty man from merited punishment—no matter under what preposterous color of law—is himself a partaker of the guilt he defends. If he is triumphant in fifty-one cases, he inflicts fifty-one dangerous stabs on law, order and society; and fifty-one times does grievous injury to his own moral nature. His success is an encouragement and consolation to the guilty, but a matter to be deplored by all good men.

Which is Which!

"Ah, Pat," said a schoolmistress to a chuckle-headed urchin, into whose muddy brain she was attempting to beat the alphabet, "I am afraid you will never learn anything. Now what is that letter, eh?"

"Sure don't you know, ma'am? replied Patrick."

"I thought you would have recollected that much, because it has a dot over the top of it."

"Och, ma'am I mind it well; but sure I thought it was fly speck."

"Well, now, remember, Pat, it's I."

"You, ma'am?"

"No, no; not U, but I."

"Not I, but U, ma'am. How is that?"

"Not U, but I, blockhead."

"Oh! yes: faith, now I have it, ma'am. You mean to say that you, not I, am a blockhead."

"Fool! fool!" exclaimed the teacher, almost bursting with rage.

"Jist as ye plaze," replied Pat. "Fool or blockhead, it's no matter to me what ye are, so long as ye are free to own it."

Beecherism.

If a fire-place have a good chimney, the smoke will escape through the flue and the room will have the benefit of the warmth and the ruddy light. So there are people who will be kind and good natured to all about them, if you give them some single person on whom they may vent impatience and peevishness. Otherwise they will fill the whole room with smoke. Social circles need chimneys as much as do houses.

—The successful construction of the breakwater at Wilmington is having the desired effect. There is already a perceptible deepening of the channel going on.

Number Nine.

[From Appleton's Journal.]

The most romantic of all numbers is figure nine, because it can't be multiplied away or got rid of anyhow. Whatever you do it is as sure to turn up again as the body of Eugene Aram's victim. One remarkable property of this figure (said to have been discovered by W. Green, who died in 1794) is, that all through the multiplication table the product of nine comes to nine. Multiply by what you like and it gives the same result. Begin with twice nine, 18; add the digits together, and 1 and 8 make 9. Three times nine are 27; and 2 and 7 make 9. So it goes on up to eleven times nine, which gives 99. Very good; add the digits 9 and 9 are 18, and 8 and 1 are 9. Going on to any extent, it is impossible to get rid of the figure 9. Take a couple of instances at random. Three hundred and forty nine times nine are 45639; the sum of these digits is 27; and 2 and 7 are 9.

M. de Maivan found out another queer thing about this number—namely, that if you take any row of figures, and make a subtraction sum of it, the total is sure to be 9. For example:

3366=18, and 1 +8=9.

The same result is obtained if you raise the numbers so changed to their squares or cubes. Starting with 62, begin the sum over again. By reversing the digits we get 26, which subtracted from 62 leaves 36, or 3 +6=9. The squares of 26 and 62 are respectively 676 and 3844. Subtract one from the other and you get 3168=18, and 1 + 8=9. So with the cubes of 26 and 62, which are 17576 and 238328. Subtracted, they leave 220752=18, and 1 + 8=9.

The powerfully be-nine influence of this figure is exemplified in another way. Write down any number, as, for example, 7549132, subtract therefrom the sum of its digits, and no matter what figures you start with the digits of the product will always come to 9.

7549101=sum of digits 27, and 7 +2=9.

A very good puzzle has been based on this principle, as follows: Get another person to write down a horizontal row of figures, as many as he likes, without letting you see what he is about from beginning to end of the whole performance. He is then to reckon up the sum of the digits, and subtract that from his new set figures. When he has done this, bid him cross out any figure he pleases from the product, and tell you how much the figures add up without the crossed out figure. From the numbers so given you will be able to tell what figure he has crossed out by only bearing in mind the fact learned above, namely, that if no figure at all had been crossed out the result would necessarily be 9 or a multiple of 9. Hence you will see that the crossed out figure must needs be the one required to bring the sum given to the next multiple of 9. Supposing, for instance, he gives his result at 37, you may be sure that he has robbed the product of 8, that being the figure needed to restore the total to the next multiple of 9—namely 45. His sum would stand as under:

405678237=sum of digits 42.

405678195=37.

There is only one case in which you can be at fault, and that is in the event of a multiple of 9 being returned to you as a product. Of course, then you will know that either a 9 or a 0 must have been struck out. Had the 9 have been struck out in the above instance, the result would have been 36, had it been the 0 the product would have been 45. Both being multiples of 9 it would be impossible to tell with certainty whether the missing figure were 9 or 0; but a good guess may generally be formed, because if the figure appear suspiciously low in proportion to the time taken to foot up the sum, you may speculate that your product has most likely sustained the loss of the highest number.

A Freak of Nature.

A lady residing in Empire City, who has been married about two years, and who is still nursing her first child, at noon yesterday gave birth to a perfectly formed and apparently healthy female child, weighing only a pound and a half. The child has a strong voice for a creature so diminutive, is perfectly formed, has toe and finger nails and a good head of hair. The little thing was alive at 10 o'clock last night, and showed no symptoms of dissolution, though it was apparently to weak too nurse, and the attending physician was of the opinion that it could not live.—Virginia Chronicle, Dec. 29.

IMPORTANT TO CLAIMANTS OF MINERAL LANDS.

Hon. J. L. Ward, of Chicago, has introduced in the House of Representatives at Washington, a bill amending the mining law which is of very great importance to all owners and claimants of mineral lands on this coast. It proposes that all locators of mining claims upon the public domain, either lode or placer claims, shall be compelled within one year from the date of the passage of the act, to apply for a patent for the same, and if an adverse claim is filed within the period of the sixty days publication required by law, to make final proof and payment within three months from the date of such application at the rate of ten dollars per acre. This provision applies to the claims previously located as well as to locations that may be made after the passage of the act. It also provides that where under existing laws, applications have been made for patents and no adverse claim has been made, and no further proceedings have been made to perfect the title, final proof and payment must be made within six months from the date of the passage of the act.

By the terms of the act, the failure of the claimants of any mining location to apply for a patent and make payment within the time prescribed, the claims are subject to re-location the same as if no location of them had ever been made.

This bill differs from the present law in these important particulars:

It compels all claim-holders to apply for a patent and pay for their claims at the rate of $10 per acre within one year; while under the law as it now stands, the owners of mining locations are not required to apply for a patent at all unless they desire to do so, and when application is made, the price per acre for placer claims is $2,50, and for lode claims, $5.

If this bill should become a law all claimholders would be compelled to apply for their patents within one year, and pay for the same at double the present rates for lode claims and four times the present rates for placer claims.

Attention P. M's.

THE INYO INDEPENDENT has failed to put in an appearance at this office for two or three weeks, and is sorely missed. Will our friend Chalfant rise to explain why this is thus?

We can explain this trouble only in the same way we can the return of mail-bags from a postoffice up the country: they came back some times when they should go ahead, the most recent instance having occurred during the time mentioned in the above. THE INDEPENDENT addressed to The Miner has been included in the Columbus package with unfailing regularity.

Tulare and Inyo Road Company.

We learn by The Delta that the Tulare and Inyo Turnpike Company have effected a permanent organization with the following officers: Wiley Watson, John Meadows, John Cutler, J. W. C. Pogue and J. D. Hyde, Trustees. Stephen Barton, J. D. Hyde and L. Guyginhiner were elected as a Committee on By-Laws. Ten per cent. was to be paid in and the company incorporated at once.

The Palisade Narrow-Guage Road.

Notwithstanding the severe cold weather, the work on the Eureka and Palisade narrow-guage is progressing rapidly. They have the grading completed for about ten miles out from that place, and are pushing it forward with a force of about 175 men. The bridge across the Humboldt at that place will be soon completed, and they will commence laying ties and rails as soon as the weather moderates. One engine has already arrived.

Gen. Crook.

Our Legislature seems to be trying to do the right thing by this gallant soldier. Senator Evans introduced a joint resolution requesting the United States Senate to confirm Gen. Crook as Brigadier-General. The resolution passed unanimously.

A GOOD LAND LAW.

Senator Sargent has introduced a bill which reads as follows:

That all selections of swamp and overflowed lands in the State of California heretofore made and reported to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, unless the same have been listed or patented to the State at the date of the passage of this act, or which may hereafter be made, which are shown in the greater part of each smallest legal subdivisions not to be swamp and overflowed to such an extent as to render them unfit for cultivation in their natural condition at any period of the year, or which may be valuable for grazing or other agricultural purposes without reclamation, shall be excluded from listing and patent as swamp, and restored to the public domain by the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

This strikes us as an excellent bill, with the exception, perhaps, of that clause relating to grazing purposes, which makes the effect of the bill rather too sweeping. The Bulletin and Union both very strongly condemn the whole bill, asserting that it is almost entirely in the interest of the railroad. The Union says: "If this bill becomes a law there is not an acre of land within twenty miles of either side of the railway, any where within the State, that will not be listed to this railway monopoly, regardless of the rights of those in possession." This may be the result possibly, and it may be injustice may thereby be done to innocent parties holding unperfected titles to such lands within those limits, but if such injustice is to follow it would be as the effect of an ex post facto law, or a violation of the law of contracts. If such should be the case, the courts would be amply sufficient to protect the rights of all parties holding unperfected titles by virtue of a contract with the State, and therefore, so far the bill could not be to the special advantage of the railroad.

The railroad is rightfully entitled to a certain amount of unoccupied land on either side its line. Heretofore, by a fiction of law, or rather by a lying interpretation of the same, large areas of the same have been declared swamp and overflowed, and then turned over to the State--i. e.: speculators--thereby defrauding the railroad out of lands to which it would be entitled under its contract with the general Government. The swamp land law, as administered, was, and is, not only a fraud on the railroad in this respect, but on the poor settler as well, for the State law is almost exclusively in the interest of the speculators, who hold the so-called swamp lands in large bodies only for speculative purposes. But they now have possession and are likely to keep it, spite of any ex post facto law such as we should consider this bill if executed in the manner these papers seem to apprehend.

But the bill is certainly a good one, however it may effect the twenty-mile limits. It is almost word for word the true interpretation of the original swamp land law, which has been grossly perverted in application everywhere in this State, and when thus perverted, to its injury in all cases. As now administered it is only in too many cases to give the best lands to monopolists, not railroad, who, unlike that, give nothing in return for the valuable gift. However objectionable a land monopoly by a railroad may be, it is, proportionately, a thousand times better for the country than that of the land grabber, whose ownership, if not a general detriment, confers no advantage to anything or anybody but himself.

This class of public dead-weights are not limited in their field of operations to the comparatively insignificant forty mile stretch along the railroad. Their field is unlimited, and we sincerely hope Sargent's bill may become a law, because, whatever its effect for or against any railroad, its definitions of what really constitutes swamp land, in law if not usage, are based on good common sense, and is in fact nothing more or less than the re-enactment of a good law already on the statutes, but so perverted as to inflict more real damage upon home-seeking poor men than the free-gift of the entire forty-mile stretch to the railroad can ever hope to effect, though that corporation was to make such damage its especial object.

A Model Indian Agent

The Salt Lake Herald thinks it would be hardly safe for Indian Agent Ingalls to make another trip through Southern Utah and Nevada, where some eighteen months ago he bought up all the grain and goods the settlers had to spare, and paid them in bogus checks. Ingalls should go back to the more congenial clime of Washington.

Vasquez.

The Legislature has authorized the Governor to expend $15,000 to be used in capturing or killing the Vasquez gang, who are virtually masters of Fresno county. They ride into any small town and rob the people generally with perfect impunity.

EDUCATIONAL AMENDMENTS TO THE CODE.

This session of our State Legislature has been prolific in amendments to the Code, and especially in that part relating to educational matters. It is presumed the Committees on Education will endeavor to condense all the proposed amendments into one general bill and recommend its passage. So far as we are able to judge the proposed changes are good ones, but there is one matter not yet touched upon in any one of them which we consider of more importance than any of them. That is to devise some better plan for apportioning school moneys and teachers, and to give county Supervisors discretionary powers of laying taxes to make up probable deficiencies in any district, without reference to the others, or some plan to avoid the heavy expenses now involved in raising and collecting such taxes by special elections and officers.

Of the several bills introduced one is a short bill by Assemblymen Stowers and Dean from Alpine and Amador. Section 1874 of the Political Code, which declares that text books once introduced into a school there shall be no change for four years. The amendment projected by Stowers extends the time to eight years. The intention is of course to check the designs of unscrupulous publishers and trustees on the pockets of parents.

The second bill introduced by Senator Tuttle, Democrat, from Sonoma, is a much longer one, and makes several amendments in the now existing law.

Clause one amends Section 1517 by adding the School Superintendent of El Dorado, with blanks for others which the Legislature may see fit to insert, to the State Board of Education.

Clause two removes the reservation at present existing of the power of the State Board prescribing and enforcing a uniform series of text books by taking out the words "except in corporated cities and towns."

Clause five alters the time for the election of School Trustees from the last Saturday in April, as at present provided for by Section 1593 of the Politcal Code, to the last Saturday of each year.

Clause six relating to the duties of School Trustees as to excluding certain books from schools and school libraries, adds the words, "partizan and denominational" to the word "sectarian."

A new duty, as follows, is also imposed upon School Trustees:

> To visit every school in their district at least once in each term, and examine carefully into its management, condition and wants; this clause to apply to each and every member of the Board of Trustees.

Clause eight amends Section 1872 relating to filling vacancies in the offices of Assessor and Collector of School taxes, by making it incumbent upon the School Trustees to give ten days notice of any election to supply such vacancies.

Five new sections are added to the Political Code, the last of which is as under:

> No officer named in this title, or teacher in any public school held under the provisions of this title, must (shall) act as agent for any author, publisher bookseller or other person to introduce any book, apparatus, furniture, or any other article whatever, in the common schools of this State, or any one or more of them, or directly or indirectly contract for or receive any gift or reward for so introducing or recommending the same; and any officer so acting or receiving must (shall) be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and on conviction, be punished by fine or imprisonment, and be removed from office.

SALARY BILLS.

The excitement in reference to the latest salary grab, though involving many more millions of dollars than any preceeding Congressional act of similar character, scarcely equalled the storm created by the first raise which occurred in 1816. The pay of a Congressman previous to that date was $6 for each day's services and mileage. It was raised to $1,500 a year, and that led to an explosion of wrath such as has not been since witnessed until a like cause produced the effects that are now seen and felt all over the country.

The change by the act of 1816 increased the pay of each member about $5,000, and the whole cost to the Treasury did not exceed $112,000. Therefore it was not the amount of dollars and cents, but a principle which stirred up that stern resentment.

In 1856 the per diem system was abolished and a salary of $3,000 a year established. As we learn from The New York Sun this bill was carried through by barely one vote—100 yeas to 99 nays:

In 1866 the salary was again raised to $5,000 a year. This was the law until last March when the great steal of all was perpetrated by a bare majority of two votes in a total of 261.

The present Congress went to work resolved to repeal the steal instanter, but up to the 7th instant, had failed to do so. On that day Stewart of Nevada, moved an amendment, compelling the restitution of all back pay heretofore received. This was done of course, to kill the bill, as it is not only practically but legally impossible to enforce such a measure. Senator Carpenter of Wisconsin said he should vote for the repeal of the grab simply and solely because the people whose servant he was demanded it. Senator Harrington, the carpet bag Senator from Texas, thought $7,500 none too much; "indeed, it ought to be $10,000" said he, and drawing out a bundle of stolen greenbacks from his pocket, this Honorable Senator of these United States asserted that "he had his money and meant to fight to keep it."

ANOTHER GOOD BILL.

Congressman Luttrell has introduced a bill to enable persons entitled to the benefit of the pre-emption and homestead laws to pre-empt or take up as homestead, public lands in this State that are neither mineral, agricultural or timber lands, but fit only for grazing. The bill provides that the price shall be fifty cents an acre and that 640 acres shall be the maximum allowed to any one purchaser. In all cases the purchaser must comply with all the requirements of the pre-emption and homestead laws. The land so taken must be surveyed by the proper officer. The United States Surveyor General must, upon the survey being made, determine whether the land is, within the limits of the act, grazing land, and he must certify his decision to the proper land offices, which certification shall be subject to appeal as in all other cases to the authorities at Washington. The person so taking up grazing land shall make oath to these facts:

First, that he or she does not apply to purchase the land on speculation, but in good faith and to appropriate it to his or her own exclusive use or benefit.

Second, that he or she has not directly, or indirectly, made any agreement or contract, in any way or manner, with any person or persons whatsoever, by which the title to be acquired from the Government of the United States should inure, in whole or in part, to any person but himself or herself.

It is provided that false swearing upon either of these points shall subject the purchaser to all the pains and penalties of perjury, forfeit the money paid for the land and also the title to the land. These are the points in the bill, whose object appears to be to promote bona fide settlement in remote quarters of the State, by securing title to the honest settler.

If it can be honestly administered—that is to say, if distinctions as to the character of the lands can be fixed properly, as a rule—this law will meet with great favor. The maximum amount of this land now obtainable under the pre-emption and homestead laws, is too small to make such selections any object, but a section, as provided for in this bill, will give pasturage enough to justify the time and attention necessary to perfect a title, and will no doubt, cause the settlement by actual settlers of large quantities of such lands. Otherwise these lands will be for years untaken, except it should be taken by speculators after they manage to twist the swamp or some other act so as to secure it by whole townships.

The San Juan Country.

As there is some inquiry as to the whereabouts of the San Juan mining district, which is attracting a good deal of attention, we will state that it is located on the Rio Grande, a branch of the Colorado, between ranges of the Rocky Mountains, 250 miles from Denver, Colorada and 160 from Pueblo, New Mexico. A correspondent of The Pioche Record, from which we take the above, reports 3,100 locations made in the district in the last two years, giving an average assay of 300 ounces per ton—one going $37,000 which would help to average a number of poor ones.

Cushing for Chief Justice.

The President, having recently withdrawn Williams' name, has sent in that of Caleb Cushing for Chief Justice. It is thought the Senate will buck against Caleb's confirmation also. That body thinks he will do well as Minister to Spain, but is too antiquated or something, for the responsible position of Chief Justice. The newspapers are commiserating Williams in having a wife who has worked him into such a prominent position in satisfaction of her own vaulting ambition but only to occasion him such a lofty tumble.

A Big Scheme.

The Alta's Washington special says it is reported that Senator Jones, of Nevada, has a scheme for the reclamation of the Colorado desert, which will be presented as soon as he arrives.

THE NO-FENCE PROPOSITION.

We alluded last week to a proposition to have our no-fence law changed so as to make its operation continuous the year through. Mr. M'Call proposed, through a petition, to submit the question to all interested parties in the county; in order that each name signed might have its due weight, it was intended that each person signing should have his occupation set opposite his name. If it could thus be shown that a majority of the stock men were favorable to the change, no difficulty would be apprehended as to its becoming a law, otherwise, so far as the Inyo Representative is concerned, it is quite certain he would oppose the change. We have not heard that any steps have been taken towards bringing the change about. We are inclined to think, however, that the proposition will not meet with general favor. The present law is about as fair as any that can be devised. It gives the poor man, just opening up a new home, a chance to do so without getting hopelessly in debt at the very start through the formidable expense of having to protect his crops by fencing, and on the other hand the stock man has the advantage of the pasturage when it is most needed. A law to exclude stock the year round would bear hard on farmers of all grades, but particularly on those who have but a few head to look after—the whys and wherefores are too obvious to need explanation.

But it is urged that stock ranging over fields during the Winter cause much damage to the ground when wet and soft. As this is a country where irrigation has to be wholly relied on to raise a crop, and as there are but few fields subject to damage by being trampled up where the rainfall is generally so very small as it is here, that objection amounts to but little.

At least so says Mr. Lank and others with whom we have conversed, and who carry on farming and stock-raising together. They are all opposed to the proposed change. There are satisfied to let well enough alone; and it is a good plan, for if the fence question is re-opened to amendment it will also be re-opened to repeal and a strong fight will be made on both issues.

Columbus Items.

[From The Miner, Jan. 10.]

During the high wind on Friday, the 2nd instant, a fire broke out in an Indian camp just outside the suburbs of the town, by which some six or eight of the Indians lost their blankets, provisions, clothing, etc.

Mr. Frazin's ore, lately brought in from Pahoet, milled at the rate of $107,44 to the ton. The result shows, that however well such ore in quantities might pay if worked at or near the mine, that it will not do to pack and haul it twenty-five or thirty miles, pay expenses out of it, and expect a profit from the net proceeds.

The burial of Ramon Castillo took place on Thursday, under the direction of Justice Farewell, acting Coroner, as provided by law. The deceased was about 35 years of age. His grave is a short distance away from the others, and is properly designated with head and foot boards, on which his name is written. "Homo homoni lupes."

Mr. F. Miller and some other parties have lately been engaged in putting tubes in the boilers at the works of the Columbus Mill and Mining Company, and a few days since, while so engaged, the weather being cold, some charcoal was put into the boiler to warm up. The result was that Mr. Miller was badly poisoned by fumes and gases, which brought on or developed lead cholic and severe purging and vomiting, and for some hours he was very dangerously sick. Dr. Marrotte having opportunely come into town, was called upon and administered such remedies as gave relief; in a couple of days Mr. Miller was himself again.

Senor Rivera was born in the State of Sinaola, Mexico, June 11th, 1853; he was wounded on New Year's night and died on Tuesday, January 6th, aged 40 years, 6 months and 25 days. He leaves a wife and an adopted son in this place, and a mother, sister and brothers in Mexico. He came to California in 1853, though he had been here before. He has resided in Columbus for three years past, where he was highly esteemed by his neighbors and acquaintances. On Wednesday, the 7th instant, after a short religious service conducted by the Methodist minister at the house of the deceased, his remains were followed to the grave by a large procession, and there, after the reading of the burial service of the M. E. Church, he was laid to rest.

Stock Taken.

Articles of incorporation of the Havilah Mining Tunnel have been drawn up. Considerable enterprise in the project has been shown already and the majority of the 25,000 shares have been taken in the county. We have got two hundred shares in the enterprise and consider it a safe investment, as the surface line of the tunnel prospects well—tip-top.—Havilah Miner

The Team Depurtures.

Lynching at Columbus.

Last week we made mention of the mortal wounding of Antonio Rivera by Victor Moncago, alias Ramon Castillo, at Columbus, as given by The Miner. The same paper of the 10th gives the full details of how the majesty of the law was vindicated through the administration of Judge Lynch. Rivera died from his wounds on the morning of the 9th. It was the verdict of the Coroner's jury that he came to his death by wounds inflicted by Moncago on the night of January 1. The Miner can tell the rest:

The above verdict was rendered about 10 o'clock on the night of the 6th, and was soon known by those who remained up till that hour. Some little groups of persons were noticed during the evening, talking together on the streets, but little attention was paid to the matter. Quiet seemed to prevail. The hours sped on, and so the night, until about 2 o,clock on the morning of the 7th, when a body of men made for the "lock up" (a building made of boards doubled and spiked together), and with tools cut off the boards some four feet from the ground, at a girt that ran across, and with a pick or sharp pointed bar pried off and broke the boards until an entrance was made into the cell of the prisoner. The work probably occupied one or two minutes. They took the prisoner out and fled. In the meantime, we learn from the keeper (who, by the way, was overpowered), that the prisoner called loudly for the Deputy Sheriff. His noise was silenced until he had been taken about two blocks in the direction of Powell's slaughter house, when he must have obtained some liberty, as a most hideous and unearthly yell or shriek was heard by many who happened to be awake, and and by our printer, three blocks distant, who sprang from his bed, not knowing what to think—perhaps only a drunken man—but it sounded like the despairing cry of some one in mortal agony and terror. It was the prisoner's last hope of attracting the attention of the authorities to his fearful situation, but it availed him naught. At this time the crowd must have been hastening along the back way next to the flat, behind buildings, mills, concrete fences, etc., which hid their movements, for nothing could be seen of them by those who had been aroused by the awful shriek of the doomed man. Shortly after this the deed was done. An hour later he was removed by order of the officer, who had in the meantime been told that the prisoner was out. Mr. Duxbury, who assisted Mr. Morrison, the keeper of the lock-up, to cut Castillo down, states that the heart beat twice after the body was lowered.

Another Coroner's Jury was summoned on the following day to ascertain how Moncago came to be so very dead, but nothing as to who hung him up there was discovered. The general verdict of the people, however, is to the effect that whoever did it, did a very good thing.

The Bullion Production.

[From The Austin Reveille.]

We publish herewith a statement of the bullion production of the Pacific States and Territories for the year 1873, as furnished by John J. Valentine, General Agent of Wells, Fargo & Co's. Express. From this statement it will be seen that the product of Nevada alone nearly equals that of all the others:

Too Much Bullion.

Beaudry's furnace has shut down and Belshaw's will soon do the same for the reason that bullion has accumulated so much beyond the capacity of the teams that it is only a waste of money to continue piling it up at such an outlay with prospects for realizing returns only at such a distant day. The amount on hand now will keep all the teams employed for two months to come. These two furnaces alone can produce each day as much bullion as the teams on an average can move in two. To their product is to be added that of the Swansea, so that the present number of teams would have to be more than doubled to keep pace with the furnaces, even if the former were not now so far behind. The three furnaces together now turn out about 25 tons of bullion per day. The mines at Cerro Gordo have ore enough in sight to yield three times that amount for an indefinite time—for months if not years to come. Cerro Gordo is only one of several similar locations in this county, which, though not absolutely tested, yet are just as promising or even more so, than those mines ever were at the same stage of developement. Yet that one camp alone can only be run at a third, more likely, a tenth of its capacity because of a lack of means of transportation for its products. Don't we need a railroad? can our county ever amount to anything, comparatively without one?

Incorporated.

From a trust deed now on file in the Clerk's office we learn of the incorporation of the "Panamint Mining Company," to operate in Panamint District. The deed conveys in trust all the right, title and interest of J. Palache, R. C. Jacobs, Charles P. Schmidt, G. Wiss and Henry W. Schmidt in and to the noted ledge known as the "Wonder of the World," millsite, water privileges and appurtenances, to said Panamint Mining Company. Capital Stock, $2,000,000, divided into 20,000 shares of $100, par value, each. The Board of Trustees to consist of five members, and the principal place of business to be San Francisco. Four thousand shares are held as reserve stock the balance to be proportionally divided among the above named incorporators; all of the reserved stock remaining unsold at the end of one year from date of incorporation, will likewise revert, pro rata, to the incorporators.

Going Ahead.

A report to the contrary notwithstanding, Mack's mill at Benton has been running steadily all the time, except two days during the holidays, when steam was shut off long enough to give the boys a chance to take a dance and recover breath. It is gratifying to know that this mill, under Mr. Mack's management, has been a perfect success in all particulars, as we think we shall be able to show by the figures one of these days. Mill-owners are generally very reticent on these points, and it is certainly their right to be, if they prefer it, but where it can consistently be done it is a good plan to give them for the satisfaction of communities whose interests are so intimately blended with those of the mills in their midst. Any how we hope Mack & Powning's mill may continue in its well doing until it makes them millionaires.

Calls.

We have been honored with calls from the following named gentlemen who got tired of always staying away out in the country without seeing this fine city: A. Mack of Benton and J. G. Thompson of the same place and County Surveyor of Mono, both of whom have been on a tour of observation in connection with mining engineering; J. N. Duddleston, of Bridgeport, in connection with "domestic relations" between Inyo and Mono counties, and J. B. Hiskey of Lida, who persists in the belief that they have as big a county out there as there is any where where boundary lines are no better defined.

Connubial.

If the gay times following and connected with the two weddings elsewhere recorded are to be taken as a prognostication of the connubial felicities hereafter to govern those principals there will be that number to bear witness that matrimony is not such a very bad thing after all—which, however, may have a tendency to mislead the unsophisticated. The pair that went to Lone Pine had to re-introduce themselves to so many old friends they had no time for hours to cogitate about future possibilities, but everybody enjoyed themselves all the same, while the other pair up at Bishop didn't have a house half big enough to correspond with the enjoyment of the large number present. That's what Judge Hannah, who passed the sentences, and John Laird who knows, both say—but they may have been "prejuced" by the good things going round. Our judgment would be valuable being without bias.

Metereological.

PIONEERS.

A meeting was held at the office of Bennett & Gregg, in Independence, on the 15th of January, 1874, for the purpose of organizing a benevolent Society of Pioneers of Owens River Valley.

A preliminary organization of the Society was effected with:

Paul W. Bennett, Chairman;

Thomas May, Secretary;

T. F. A. Connely, Treasurer, and R. A. Loomis, Thomas Passmore and Stephen G. Gregg, Corresponding Secretaries.

On motion of Mr. Connelly it was

Resolved, That public notice of this meeting be given in The Inyo Independent, and that

All persons who were residents of Owens Valley on the Sixth of January, 1865, or who had been residents prior to that time, are requested to join in forming, permanently, a Benevolent Society of Owens River Pioneers, and are requested to send in their names and the time of their arrival in the valley, to either of the Corresponding Secretaries without delay; also,

To meet at the office of Bennett & Gregg in Independence on the 15th day of March, 1874, for the purpose of permanently organizing, a "Pioneer Benevolent Society."

The meeting then adjoureed to the time and place above named.

P. W. Bennett, Chairman.
T. May, Secretary.

The Wounded Mexican.

Miguel Parra, whose grievous wounding by one Brodt at Lida was mentioned by us last week, arrived at Camp Independence Hospital on the 24 instant. We learn that the wounds of the skull proved to be not dangerous, and are now nearly well; but the face and lower jaw showed evidence of the inhuman treatment he is said to have received being chopped over the jaws with the sharp edge of a hatchet. The lower jaw was not only broken, but chopped into pieces; several teeth are gone as well as a portion of the jaw bone. Dr. White has wired the broken bones together, and the poor fellow is now able to take fluid food quite well, and is now gaining strength rapidly. When he was first received the saliva all flowed out at the wound; this was soon stopped. He was so weak from loss of blood, want of nourishment and pain from his wounds that it was deemed prudent not to administer choloform for the operation. He stood the pain like a brave man. The Doctor hopes to give him a jaw he can chew with but speaks of some deformity as almost inevitable.

The Pioneer Meeting.

We wish to call the attention of all ye ancient taboose eaters to the proceedings of a meeting held here for the preliminary organization of a society. The gentlemen composing this meeting deemed it best, after mature consideration, to change the date of meeting in March next from the 1st, as heretofore published, to the 15th of the same, and to bring forward the time for membership from the 1st to the 6th of January 1865. This is done so as to bring it up to the day of the occurrence of the big fight at the head of the Lake when so many Indians became reliably good though not set forth in the proceedings, it is in contemplation at the March meeting to arrange time, place and programme for an introductory anniversary celebration of the society, to take place perhaps in May, and annually thereafter. We hope every qualified taboose eater, not only in the county but country, will cordially respond to the published invitation; the movement is worthy a grand success and will prove such without doubt.

A Quasi Webfoot.

I. Davison, who used to be Mr "Co" here in the Rothschild firm, has returned on a visit. He has been up among the Webfeet so long he got a little scared at the rapid starting of his own webs, and thought to check 'em up a little in this dry climate—but the steady down-pour of rain since his return is most as bad as a regular Oregon mist, and makes things unpropitious. Dave looks as fresh and rosy as to lead to the belief that his sins sit lightly upon him—but that may be owing to a lack of sunshine in the last ten months. Anyway he has numerous friends glad to see him back again.

Race.

A six-hundred-yard race is to come off at Bishop Creek on the 24th instant between Hutchison's "Pinto," and Cochran's "colt," for $600 a side. It is considered a pretty even match between the two horses, and a lively time is anticipated.

Rain.

Since Thursday it has rained in the valley and snowed on the mountains around almost continuously.

Stock.

From Paul Bennett, who, with Sheriff Mulkey, has been up the country looking after their horses, we learn that the equines are all getting through the Winter splendidly. Cattle have fared the worst but Mr. Laird estimates the total number dead on Bishop Creek, by stress of weather, at not more than fifty head, and they mostly perished by getting on the ice on the small creeks, and after breaking through being too weak to extricate themselves. Snow had disappeared from Bishop; at Big Pine there was yet about a foot.

Preaching.

Mr. McKean will hold the morning and Mr. Pratt the evening services here to-morrow.

The Next Congressional Election.

As the law now stands, four members of Congress will be elected from this State next September. According to the Code this election should have occurred last September. The Legislature adjourned without noting particularly this provision, and afterward Congress passed an act providing for an election in 1874. Now that the matter has been settled, although in a clumsy way, there is little to be gained by an attempt to secure any further changes. The election will occur nearly a year and a half before members would take their seats; but no greater time would intervene than in the case of a Senator. Once during the most critical period in the history of the country, California was without a representative because a sufficient margin of time had not been allowed for electing members of Congress. The next Congress will cover the year commencing March 4, 1875. But if the election should go over until a year from next Autumn, and an extra session of Congress should be called, California would be again without representation just when it would be needed most. These ought to be controling considerations against any change.—S. F. Bulletin.

A Terrible Entanglement.

"I married a widow who had a marriageable daughter. My father who often came to see us, took a fancy to my step-daughter and married her. Thus my father became my son-in-law, and my step-daughter became my mother, since she was the wife of my father. Sometime afterward my wife had a son; he was the brother-in law of my father and also my uncle, as he was the brother of my step mother. The wife of my father—my step-daughter—also had a son; of course this son was my brother and at the same time my grandson, since he was the child of my daughter. My wife was my grandmother, since she was the mother or my mother. For myself, I was at once the husband and the grandson of my wife; and as the husband of a person's grandfather, I was my own grandfather."

Nature of Wit.

Wit is often an unprofitable gift, for the dull people of the world look with suspicion on the witty man, who often make mal apropos speeches rather than loose what he considers agood thing. Queen Elizabeth, seeing Sir Edward Dyer walking in her garden, called to him, "What does a man think of, Sir Edward, when he thinks of nothing?" referring to his work entitled "The Praise of Nothing." He, smarting under supposed neglect, answered, "He thinks, madam, of a woman's promise." Lord Bacon, after relating this anecdote, adds that "Anger makes dull men witty, but keeps them poor." In later times, Thomas Warton paid a dear price for a joke. On one occasion, a fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, who was not remarkable for wisdom, while reading the service, came to Psalm lxix 5, "Lord, thou knowest my simpleness." Warton, who sat below him, whispered, "Why, that is known to everybody." Soon afterward the office of president became vacant, and Warton was obliged to canvas this man for the casting vote. The answer he received was, "No, I am not so simple as that neither," and Warton lost his election. It is curious to remark on the various classes that have been the butts of witticisms. The old jest-books are full of jokes aimed against the monks; but now very few have the clergy for a subject, and those that have are mostly of a good-natured character. The clergy themselves have been quite equal to the task of holding their own in wit-combats. What can be finer than the following anecdote of a witty archbishop: One day Dr. Whateley was walking with a young officer of artillery, who was allied to him in blood, when the latter propounded the following riddle: "What is the difference between a donkey and an archbishop?" Whately gave it up, and received the following reply "The one carries his cross behind, and the other before," referring to the marks of the cross on the back of the domestic ass, and on the apron of an archbishop. "Very good, indeed," laughed Whately. "And now can you tell me the diff rence between a donkey and a captain of artillery?" "No, indeed, I cannot," replied the officer. "There is none whatever," rejoined the archbishop.

A Fitting Rebuke.

There are many men in existence who deem it no harm to speak slightingly of women; according to their ideas, it is quite meet that the strong should assail the weak. One of these robbers of reputation received a severe rebuke on a recent occasion. At a dinner at which no ladies were present, this man in responding to a toast, "Women," dwelt almost solely on the frailty of the sex, claiming that the best among them were little better than the worst, the chief difference being their surroundings. At the conclusion of the speech, a gentleman present rose to his feet, and said: "I trust the gentleman in the application of his remarks, refers to his own mother and sisters, not ours." The effect of this most just and timely rebuke was overwhelming, and the maligner of women was covered with confusion and shamn.

A "Tinker's Dam."

The Newburyport Herald has made the following interesting philological discovery: It says a "Tinker's Dam" is not profanity, but simply an enclosure made commonly of bread around the hole to be mended, that the melted solder may be retained till it cools off around the bread. After being subjected to this process the bread is burned and spoiled, and is a fitting type of utter worthlessness.

Not Impossible.

The question was put some time since to a candidate for installation in ——, Conn., by an excellent brother, "Could not God have changed Pharoha's heart?" The answer was shrewd but evasive. "I insist upon an unequivocal answer," cried the questioner. "Could not God have changed Pharaoh's heart?" After thinking a moment the answer came, "If he had neglected everything else, and given his whole attention to it, I don't know but he might."

—"How is it that you came home from your party so early last night, Susan? Didn't you enjoy yourself?" Susan—Yes, ma'am, but the young man as tuk me hin to supper insulted me. Mistress—Insulted you, Susan? Why what did he say? Susan—Yes ma'am. He asked me if my program was full, and I'm sure I never 'ad nothing but a sandwich and a glass of lemonade, so I come away home.

—At a Christmas entertainment in a Boston public school, lately, a Miss Kringle regaled the scholars with stockingfulls of ice cueam.

—Here's an example for bores: A man in Livingston county, Kentucky, hangs his hat on a gate-post and talks to it for ten hours at a time.

—A lot of German newsboys are dying of consumption. They cried the "Bundsservashdisunsgethachnfolks."

—Madame de Stael wrote that "love" was the entire history of a woman.

—The number of people who are likely to starve in Bengal during the famine there has been reduced to 36,000,000.

—A Kansas preacher has had his salary increased $50 a year for thrashing three men who disturbed his congregation.

—The total cost of fences in California is $29,000,000. The annual cost of the same, including interest and repairs, is $8,000,000.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED OUT of the County Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, in the suit of F. F. Gallardo against V. Hoff & Co., wherein the defendants recovered judgment against F. F. Gollardo on the Eighth day of January, A. D. 1873, for the sum of Twenty-seven dollars U. S. Gold coin with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, duly attested the Fifth day of January, A. D. 1874, and to me directed and delivered. I have levied on all the right, title and interest of the said F. F. Gallardo in and to the following described real estate, to-wit: A certain lode, vein or mine, known as the Guadeloupe lode, situated, lying and being in Cerro Gordo Mining District, Inyo County, State of California, said lode being of record in the mining records of Lone Pine Mining District now Cerro Gordo Mining District, together with all the appurtenances thereunto belonging. Notice is hereby given that on SATURDAY THE THIRTY-FIRST DAY OF JANUARY, A. D. 1874, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 5 o'clock P. M. to-wit: at the hour of 1 o'clock P. M., in front of the Court House, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title, and interest of the said F. F. Gallardo in and to the above described real estate, or so much thereof as will be sufficient to satisfy said judgment and costs and interest, at public auction to the highest and best bidder or bidders for cash in hand in U. S. Gold Coin.

Terrific Steamboat Race.

[From The Gilded Age, a novel written conjointly by Mark Twain and Charles D. Warner.]

At night the boat forged on through the deep solitude of the river, hardly ever discovering a light to testify of human presence: mile after mile and league after league the vast bends were guarded by unbroken walls of forest that had never been disturbed by the voice or foot fall of man, or felt the edge of his sacrilegious axe.

An hour after supper the moon came up, and Clay and Washington (two boys) ascended to the hurricane deck to revel again in their new realm of enchantment. They ran races up and down the deck, climbed about the bell, made friends with the passenger dogs chained under the life boat, tried to make friends with a passenger bear chained to the verge staff, but were not encouraged; "skinned the cat" on the hog chains; in a word, exhausted the amusement possibilities on the deck. They then looked wistfully up to the pilot house, and finally, little by little, Clay, ventured up there, followed diffidently by Washington. The pilot turned presently to "get his stern marks," saw the lads, and invited them in. This cosy little house, built entirely of glass, and commanding a marvellous prospect, was a magician's throne to them, and their enjoyment of the place was simply boundless.

They sat them down on a high bench, and looked miles ahead, and saw the wooded capes fold back and reveal the bends beyond; and they looked miles in the rear and saw the silvery highway grow smaller and smaller and at last close itself together in the distance. Presently the pilot said:

"By George, yonder comes the Amaranth!"

A spark appeared, close to the water, several miles down the river. The pilot took his glass and looked steadily at it for a minute, and said chiefly to himself:

"It can't be the Blue Wing. She couldn't pick us up in this way. It's the Amaranth, sure."

He bent over the speaking tube and said:

"Who's on watch down there?"

A hollow inhuman voice rumbled up through the tube in answer.

"I am. Second engineer."

"Good! You want to stir your stumps, now.—Harry—the Amaranth's just turned the point—and she's just a humping herself!"

The pilot took hold of a rope that stretched out forward, and jerked it twice, and two mellow strokes of the big bell sounded. A voice on the deck shouted:

"Stand by down there with that labboard lead!"

"No, I don't want the lead," said the pilot, "I want you. Roust out the old man; tell him the Amaranth's coming. And go and call Jim—tell him."

"Aye, aye, sir?"

The "old man" was the captain; he is always called that on the steamboats and ships. "Jim" was the other pilot. Within two minutes both of these men were flying up the pilot house stairs three steps at a jump. Jim was in his shirt sleeves, with his coat and vest on his arm. He said:

"I was just turning in. Where's the glass?"

He took it and looked.

"Dont appear to be any night hawk on the jack staff; it's the Amaranth, dead sure!"

The captain took a long look and only said:

"Damnation!"

George Davis, the pilot on watch, shouted to the watchman on deck:

"How's she loaded?"

"Two inches by the head, sir"

"Tain't enough."

The captain shouted now:

"Call the mate. Tell him to call all hands and get a lot of that sugar forward. Put her ten inches by the head. Lively, now?"

"Aye, aye, sir!"

A riot of trampling and shouting floated up from below presently, and the uneasy steering of the boat soon showed that she was getting "down by the head."

The three men in the pilot house began to talk in short, sharp sentences, low and earnestly. Their voices went down as their excitement went up.

As fast as one of them put down the spy glass another took it up; but with a studied air of calmness. Each time the verdict was:

"She's a gaining!"

The Captain spoke through the tube.

"What steam are you carrying?"

"A hundred and forty-two sir? But she's getting hotter and hotter all the time."

"That's it! I thought it wasn't any slouch that was running that middle bar in Hog Eye Bend. If it's Wash Hastings—well, what he don't know about the river ain't worth knowing—a good deal kid glove, diamond breast pin pilot Wash. Hastings is. We won't take any tricks off him, old man!"

"I wish I'd stopped for him, that's all."

The Aramanth was within three hundred yards of the Boreas, and still gaining. The "old man" spoke through the tube:

"What is she carrying now?"

"A hundred and sixty-five, sir!"

"How's your wood?"

"Pine all out—cypress half gone—eating up cottonwood like pie!"

Break into that rosin on the main deck—pile it in, the boat can pay for it!"

Soon the boat was plunging and quivering, and screaming more madly than than ever. But the Amaranth's head was almost abreast the Boreas' stern.

"How's your steam, Harry?"

"Hundred and eighty-two, sir!"

"Break up the casks of bacon in the forrard hold! Pile it in! Levy on that turpentine in the fantail—Drench every stick of wood with it!"

The boat was a moving earthquake by this time.

"How is she now?"

"A hundred and ninty six and still swelling—water below the middle guage cock—carrying every pound she can stand—nigger roosting on the safety valve!"

"Good! How's your draft?"

"Bully! Every time a nigger heaves a stick of wood into the furnace he goes out the chimney with it!"

The Amaranth drew steadily up till her jack staff breasted the Boreas' wheelhouse; climbed along inch by inch till her chimneys breasted it; crept along further and further till the boats were wheel to wheel, and then they closed up with a heavy jolt and locked hard and fast in the middle of the big river, under the flooding moonlight! A roar and a hurrah went up from the crowded decks of both steamers; all hands rushed to the guards to look, and shout and gesticulate; the weight careened the vessels.

The boat was straining and groaning and quivering like a monster in pain. Both pilots were at work now, one on each side of the wheel, their coats and vests off, their bosoms and collars wide open, and the perspiration flowing down their faces. They were holding the boat so close to shore that the willows swept the guards almost from stem to stern.

"Stand by!" whispered George.

"All ready," said Jim, under his breath.

"Let her come!"

The boat sprang away from the bank like a deer, and darted in a long diagonal toward the other shore. She closed in again and thrashed her fierce way along the willows as before. The captain put down the glass:

"Lord! how she walks up on us. I declare to be beat."

"Jim," said George, looking straight ahead, watching the slightest yawing of the boat and promptly meeting it with the wheel, "how'll it do to try Murderer's Chute?"

"Well, it's taking chances. How was the cottonwood stump on the false point below Boardman's Island this morning?"

"Water just touching the roots."

"Well, it's pretty close work. That gives six feet scant at the head of Murderer's Chute. We can just barely rub through if we hit it exactly right. But it's worth trying anyhow. She don't dare try it" meaning the Amaranth.

In another instant the Boreas plunged into what seemed a crooked creek, and the Amaranth's approaching lights were shut out from view in a moment. Not a whisper was uttered now, but the three men started ahead into the shadows, and two of them spun the wheel backward and forward with anxious watchfulness, while the steamer tore along. The chute seemed to come to an end every fifty yards, but always opened out in time. Now the head one it was at hand. George tapped the bell three times, two leadsman sprang to their posts, and in a moment their weird cries rose on the night air, and were caught up by two men on the upper deck:

"No bottom!"

"Deep four!"

"Half three!"

"Quarter three!"

"Mark under water a three!"

"Quarter less twain!"

Davis pulled a couple of ropes—there was a jingling of small bells far below, the boat's speed slackened, and the pent up steam began to whistle, and the guage cock's to scream:

"By the mark twain!"

"Quarter less twain!"

"Eight and a half!"

"Eight feet!"

"Seven and a half!"

Another jinging of the little bells and the wheels ceased turning altogether. The whistling of the steam was something frightful now—it almost drowned all other noises.

"Stand by to meet her!"

George had the wheel hard down and was standing on the spoke.

"All ready."

The boat hesitated—seemed to hold her breath, as did the captain and the pilots—and then she began to fall away to the starboard, and every eye lighted.

"Now, then!—meet her! meet her! Snatch her!"

The wheel flew to port so fast that the spokes blended into a spider's web, the swing of the boat subsided—she steadied herself—

"Seven feet?"

"Sev—ix feet and a half!"

"Six feet! Six——"

Bang! She hit the bottom! George shouted through the tube:

"Spread her wide open! Whale it at her!"

Pow wow—chow! The escape pipes belched snowy pillars of steam aloft, the boat aground, and surged, and trembled—and slid over into—

"Mark twain!"

"Quarter less——"

"Tap! tap! tap!" (to signify "Lay in the leads")

And away she went flying up the willow shore, with the whole silvery sea of the Mississippi stretching abroad on every hand.

No Amaranth in sight.

"Ha, ha, boys, we took a couple of tricks that time," said the captain.

And just at that moment a red glare appeared in the head of the chute, and the Amaranth came springing after them.

"Well, I swear!"

"Jim, what is the meaning of that?"

"I'll tell you what's the meaning of it. That ball we had at Napoleon was Wash Hastings, wanting to come to Cairo, and we didn't stop. He's in that pilot house now, showing those mud-turtles how to hunt for easy water."

As the boats ranged side by side they careened over toward each other—officers flew hither and thither, cursing and storming, trying to drive the people amidships—both captains were leaning over their railings, shaking their fists, swearing and threatening—black volumes of smoke rolled up and canopied the scene, delivering a rain of sparks upon both vessels—two pistol shots rang out, and both captains dodged unhurt, and the packed mass of passengers surged back and fell apart, while the shrieks of women and children soared above the intolerable din. And then there was a booming roar, a thundering crash, and the riddled Amaranth broke loose from her hold, and drifted hopelessly away.

Instantly the fire doors of the Boreas were thrown open, and the men began dashing buckets of water in the furnaces; for it would have been death and destruction to stop the engines with such a head of steam on.

As soon as possible the Boreas dropped down to the floating wreck, and took off the wounded, the dead and the unhurt; at least all that could be got at, for the whole forward half of the boat was a shapeless ruin, with the great chimneys lying crossed on the top of it, and underneath were a dozen victims imprisoned alive, and waiting for help. While men with axes worked with might and main to free these poor fellows, the Boreas' boats went about picking up stragglers from the river.

And now a new horror presented itself. The wreck took fire from the dismantled furnaces. Never did men work with a heartier will than did those stalwart braves with axes, but it was of no use. The fire ate its way steadily, despising the bucket brigade that fought it. It scorched the clothes and singed the hair of the axemen; it drove them back foot by foot, inch by inch, they wavered, struck a final blow in the teeth of the enemy, and surrendered. And as they fell back they heard prisoned voices saying:

"Don't leave us! Don't desert us! Don't, don't do it!"

And one poor fellow said:

"I am Henry Worley, stoker of the Amaranth! My mother lives in St. Louis. Tell her a lie for a poor devil's sake, please. Say I was killed in an instant, and never knew what hurt me—though God knows I've neither scratch or bruise this moment. It's hard to burn up in a coop like this, with the whole wide world so near. Good-bye, boys—we've all got to come to it at last, anyway!"

The Boreas stood away out of danger, and the ruined steamer went drifting down the stream, an island of wreathing and climbing flame, that vomited clouds of smoke from time to time, and glared more fiercely and sent the luminous tongues higher and higher after each emission. A shriek at intervals told of a captive that had met his doom. The wreck lodged upon a sandbar, and when the Boreas turned the next point on her upward journey it was still burning with scarcely abated fury.

When the boys came down into the main saloon of the Boreas they saw a pitiful sight, and heard a world of pitiful sounds. Eleven poor creatures lay dead, and forty more lay moaning or pleading, or screaming, while a score of Good Samaritans moved among them, doing what they could to relieve their sufferings, bathing their skinless faces with linseed oil and lime-water, and covering the places with bulging masses of raw cotton, that gave to every face and form a fearful and inhuman aspect.

A little wee French midshipman of fourteen lay fearfully injured, but never uttered a sound till a physician of Memphis was about to dress his hurts.

"Can I get well? You need not be afraid to tell me."

"No, I—I am afraid you cannot"

"Then do not waste your time with me—help those that can get well."

"But——"

"Help those that can get well. It is not for me to be a girl. I carry the blood of eleven generations of soldiers in my veins."

The physician—himself a man who had seen service in the navy in his time—touched his hat to the little hero and passed on.

The head engineer of the Amaranth, a grand specimen of physical manhood, struggled to his feet a ghastly spectacle, and strode towards his brother, the second engineer, who was unhurt. He said:

"You were on watch. You were boss. You would not listen to me when I begged you to reduce your steam. Take that!—take it to my wife, and tell her it comes from me by the hand of my murderer! Take it!—and take my curse with it, to blister your heart for a hundred years to come—and may you live so long."

And he tore a ring from his finger, stripping flesh and skin with it, threw it down and fell dead.

But these things must not be dwelt upon. The Boreas landed her dreadful cargo at the next large town, and delivered it over to a multitude of eager hands and warm Southern hearts—a cargo amounting by this time to thirty-nine wounded persons and twenty two dead bodies. And with these she delivered a list of ninety-six missing persons that had drowned or otherwise perished at the scene of the disaster.

A jury of inquest was impaneled, and after due deliberation and inquiry returned the inevitable American verdict, which has been so familiar to our ears all the days of our lives, "Nobody to blame."

"Squelching" A Newspaper.

[From The Springfield (Mass.) Republican.]

"Squelching" a newspaper is, we presume, a rather exhilarating pastime. But it has its risks.

Not very many years ago, a newspaper made itself very disagreeable to the (then) most powerful man in New York. It called out "Watch!" and "Stop thief!" and the like. It dealt in the plainest and most brutal Saxon. It took a drugged and snoring community by the shoulders and fairly shook and pummeled it into wakefulness.

The most powerful man in New York resented this conduct very highly—as was natural. It was given out that the offending paper would soon be "squelched." He had complete control of the city government. He owned the Mayor, the Common Council, the army of minor officials, and even a Judge or two. He was the acknowledged head and autocrat of a great political organization. All the depraved and dangerous elements in society recognized in him their natural leader. He had immense power, immense wealth, and immense personal following. Even among the respectable classes, even among the bankers importers and merchant princes, there were not a few to discredit the newspaper charges; and not a few to censure it as going to far, and indulging in an unnecessary violence of language; not a few to charitably insist that, after all, the powerful man had done a good deal for the city; not a few to argue that he was a great deal too powerful to be uneated, and that it was very useless and ill advised in the newspaper to make such a fuss. A drugged city, a lethargic public sentiment, peevishly mumbled a desire to be let alone. The prospect for a successful issue to the "squelching" experiment seemed excellent. Most of the newspapers of the city stood afar off, gleefully rubbing their hands in anticipation of what was coming. Some of them were in the great man's pay; others had not even that shameful excuse, but were governed by a mean and petty hatred of a business rival.

Notwithstanding all which, The New York Times is still published regularly at the old stand, and, to all appearance, is enjoying very fair newspaper health; while at last accounts, the address of the powerful man was "Wm. M. Tweed, Penitentiary, Blackwell's Island." The verb "to squelch," you see, has a passive voice—a little circumstance which amateur conjugators are apt to forget, but which it is rather important to remember.

Mr. Kellogg, the Superintendent, says the mine will be pumped dry to day. A few days since he had a man (Mr Archy McGregor) dive to a car of quartz, at the bottom, in a drift. A piece of quartz was brought up which prospected $20 per ton. This car of quartz was the last ever extracted and was submerged before it could be taken from the mine.—Haviah Miner, Jan. 17.

JAS. E. PARKER | P. A. CHALFANT

P. A. CHALFANT, : : EDITOR.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.;

Saturday,.....January 24, 1874.

The San Francisco Chronicle.

As we are informed by its issue of the 18th, this paper has reached its ninth year, the age from which jockeys begin to mark years by wrinkles around the eyes. Nine years ago The Chronicle began its bashful career as a little seven-by-nine. It squeaked along, a blower of feeble power, so modest withal that it rarely ever alluded to its own virtues oftener than once in each 20-line paragraph; now a forty-horse power Root Rotary can't get up a stronger blast. In fact, as it so diffidently intimates itself, it is the only paper worth speaking about west of the Rockies. To it, henceforth, we are to look for our news and opinions, and above all, our geography. True its lessons in the last are a little too flattering for an outside county like ours, inasmuch as its maps credit this of Inyo with several cities, where for years past the bats and owls have not been able to find enough of the ruins for a roosting place. But it don't matter; the map is yet good enough to illustrate the principles of geography—to people who don't intend to travel. It is pleasant to watch The Chronicle swell and expand and wax important, and its millions of readers feel grateful for its delicate compliment to their intelligence in never alluding to its own superior excellencies. Besides, for the few who feel an interest in such things, it affords an excellent opportunity to bet whether the end will be a collapse or an explosion. Those who lean to the frog fable will bet largely on the latter result, while the better informed in regard to the cheap quality of the gas used in the inflation, hold strongly in favor of the former.

Publication of the Laws in Spanish.

E. F. De Celis, the editor of La Cronica, the ably conducted Spanish newspaper published in Los Angeles, has presented a memorial to the Legislature of this State urging the importance of continuing the publication in the Spanish language of the laws of California, it having been recommended by Gov. Booth that this publication should cease, on the score of economy. Mr. De Celis proceeds to show the necessity of their publication, and argues that the native Californians are really entitled to this much consideration. Mr. De Celis claims that there are more than 8,000 votes from Monterey to Arizona, 2,000 of which are in the county of Los Angeles. A large proportion of these do not understand English, and are now too old to learn. It is their right under the treaty by which they became American citizens and tax-payers, to have equal privileges with those who can read English, and to give them this right, and at the same time obviate frequent violations of law, due wholly to a lack of knowledge of its requirements, it is better and cheaper to expend a few thousand dollars in printing them in the language which so many alone understand, and especially in that language which, as it were, became our own with the soil. We are sure the State will lose nothing in trying to promote the intelligence of its citizens in the manner prescribed, which is to make the Spanish newspapers a medium for disseminating a knowledge of the statutes instead of ponderous books that never reach one in a thousand of those for whom they are intended. As these books are rarely ready for distribution under two years after the enactment of the laws they contain, they avail little or nothing, and might as well be dispensed with. But the laws ought to be published in the newspapers.

A Perilous Stage Accident.

The stage which left Bakersfield for Delano on the 3d instant, in crossing the ferry was backed off by the horses into the river. The Bakersfield Courier gives the full particulars of the accident and the rescue of the two passengers. One horse was drowned, and all would have been but for the bravery of a stranger who plunged in and extricated the others. Baggage, mail and express matter were considerably damaged, but Mr. Thoms, representing the stage company, promptly paid all damages and satisfied everyone for services rendered, not forgetting a liberal remuneration to the man that saved the horses.

—A lady made a complaint to Frederick the Great, King of Prussia: "Your Majesty," said she, "my husband treats me badly." "That is none of my business," said he. "But he speaks ill of you." said she. "That," said he, "is none of your business."

AS TO THE NO-FENCE PROPOSITION.

It appearing that some of our farmer friends are not well satisfied with the existing no-fence law, and are also of the opinion that our position upon the question as outlined two weeks since is not quite what they anticipated, we shall very briefly refer to the matter again.

When the propriety of the present law was being discussed two years since we did all we could in its support. It was almost a specific agreement at that time, as between the almost equally divided interests, that the bill then proposed should be made the law, the stock interest being willing to give up their Summer pasture adjoining cultivated lands, on condition that it could have unresricted range during the Winter months when there were no crops exposed. Of course it was as well understood then as now that the stubble fields would become common property unless protected by good fences, that being the price paid as it were for the immunity of the growing crops. It was a clear gain over prior existing conditions for then not only the stubble fields but the growing crops were common property unless protected by good fence. And it was then generally believed that without an arrangement that would accommodate both interests, the old conditions would be continued and every farmer have to protect his growing crops as best he could with no chance of legal relief in case of its partial or even total destruction from any man's stock. We urged the adoption of the law now in force because we then and now believe it to be the fairest that can be devised. The crop raiser does not ask to have his ground protected nor his fences nor his garnered crop—nothing but his growing crops; the stock man was willing to give seven months wholly to that interests and then divide the remaining five. The arrangement, for such it was, was pronounced fair and satisfactory and the best for the interests of the county at large it being subserved quite as much in money value by the live stock as the crop interest. We have every reason to wish for the maintainance and retention of both, but both we cannot expect to have except in greatly reduced proportions, if we legislate wholly in the interest of one and against that of the other. The public pasturage of this valley in actual value is probably equal to that of the planted crops, and either is more than equal to the damage necessarily incurred by a free Winter range for stock. The present law gives us, as near as possible, the full advantage of both. There can be scarcely any general law that does not work a hardship in some individual cases, but reconciling existing facts with apparent future results, it was thought that it would work a general injury to all interests to insist upon a law that would drive a large portion of the personal property out of the county, or on the other hand, to restore the old regime and put every farmer to hundreds of dollars of expense, now saved. But notwithstanding all this we feel perfectly confident Mr. Parker will exert his best endeavors to effect any legislation in the matter that can be shown by petitions or other means to be most in accordance with the wishes of the majority of those most interested.

Late yesterday afternoon, and since the above was in type, we received a communication sustaining the other side of this question. We direct attention to that communication in another column. It is just what we want—that is for those most interested on both sides to ventilate both facts and opinions as seen from their respective stand points. We cannot undertake a review now, but will say in reply to the assumption in the first paragraph, that the reason why we attach more weight to the desires of the stockmen than to those of the opposing interest, is because this paper two years ago, by consent of or at the request of several of the advocates of the no-fence law, secured the co-operation or non-opposition of the stockmen to the adoption of the present law, on condition that nothing further would be insisted upon without due deference to their wishes. By stockmen we mean all those raising stock for market, whether as a specialty or in conjunction with crop raising. If a majority of these wish the law extended it would not be such bad faith to make the change, whatever the policy in general; otherwise it would, and that is our position in that matter precisely.

Flattened Out.

The famous Ely & Raymond mine has petered entirely, according to latest reports. The mine during the first three years of its corporate existence paid $3,075,000 dividends to stockholders, and was considered one of the safest mines in the world; but its beauties have all faded away and stock gamblers mourn deeply.

SARGENT'S SWAMP LAND BILL.

A number of the papers of this State, both monopoly and anti-monopoly, pronounce Senator Sargent's swamp land bill a gigantic frand, gotten up wholly in the interest of the railroad.

Among the former we find our admiring friend of The Bakersfield Swamp Organ. It may be that paper is right in one point presented, to which we shall presently refer.

The principal objection raised by all these papers to the bill is that it will unsettle titles to lands within the railroad limits. Now this bill specifically excepts all lands that have been listed or patented to the State from the operations of the bill. The greater portion of both the real and so-called swamp lands heretofore reported, and now held by private claimants, has merely been "listed" to the State but not patented. Now, it occurs to us that any application for listed lands granted by the State to any private claimant secures him in his rights, to all intents, as effectually as a United States patent. That being the case no claimant upon the listed or patented lands, either within or without the railroad limits, can be disturbed by this law. But The Courier says the State has already granted patents to vast tracts of these lands, but through the carelessness of our Surveyors-General they have never been formally listed over to it by the General Government. If that is a fact, the State would probably be held responsible to her patentees, since she exceeded her own rights in giving title to that of which she was not legally possessed. Both the State and her patentees would still be secure from all damage if those tracts, by the smallest legal subdivisions, or as a body, were bonafide swamp lands, even within the true intent of the existing swamp land law, which differs in but one particular of any moment from Sargent's bill—in that clause referring to their grazing capacity. If the State, through her easy going agents, has given titles to a class of lands to which she had no title herself, nor could present no good claim for a title (since the lands differed from those named in the original bond, as no doubt a large portion of them do) then she ought to lose them, and besides be made to indemnify the honest claimants.

If these lands have not been listed to the State, then the title must still rest with the United States, whose homestead and pre-emption laws secure all applicants under them against the claims of the railroad as effectually as a United States' title deed, provided, of course, that these applications antedate the railroad reserve, as we suppose most of them do on the Southern Pacific.

We conclude that the law cannot in any case grant to the railroad more than the alternate sections, as provided in the original compact; that it can in no case affect the so-called swamp lands already listed or patented to the State, nor the bona fide swamp lands not so listed or patented to the State or by the State to private holders; nor the private claimants whose applications granted by the State or the United States antedates the railroad reserve, and, that the remaining area of swamp land lying within the railroad limits, and covered by the railroad alternate sections, is very small, and of still less moment, as compared to the importance of this bill in properly and specifically defining the class of lands throughout the whole broad area of the State now subject to the land-grabbing monopolists, whose operations in local if not general effects is a hundred fold more disastrous or objectionable than those of the railroad in the same line because it is limited in its field of operations. The swamp lander who expends money and time in making his tract yield something, where before it yielded nothing, does something to commend and, against him, Sargent's bill enterposes no obstacle. But he, who by a perversion or fiction of law, secures possession of the natural inheritance of a dozen or a hundred poor men, reaping from it just what nature has sown, and no more, will, and ought to find his occupation forever gone by the operation of this law. This is the only class of swamp landers to be "injured" outside the railroad limits, and if our conclusions are correct, as we think they are, there are but few, indeed, of any kind within those limits it can wrong. Allowing these papers to be right in all their unsupported assertions it still remains a fact that the whole extent of the alleged grab is limited to its original grant, while, as matters now stand, the omnipresent land-grabber, who takes much and gives nothing, is circumscribed in his field only by the diminishing area of Government and State lands unsold. That is to say his field has no limits, practically, for he makes all lands swamp which by natural causes at any period of the year, no matter how short, is ever covered with sufficient water to float a tadpole. Talk about unsettling titles! If the grabbers progress or even continue in the path they have marked out, they can and will double discount the railroad in unsettling titles, with all of Sargent's land bills to help. The railroad can only "grab" its own under this bill, while without it the more numerous and objectionable land-grabber can and do get a great deal more than they are honestly entitled to.

FARES AND FREIGHTS.

The Assembly Committee on Corporations has reported back on Freeman's bill to regulate fares and freights on railroads with amendments.

Sec. 1. provides that it shall be unlawful for any railroad company to charge more than four cents per mile for each passenger, or more than the following rates per ton for freights transported on such railroad: If such freights be carried eighty miles or over, the amount charged shall not exceed 3 cents per ton per mile. If carried 70 miles, and not exceeding 80, the amount charged shall not exceed 3¼ cents per ton per mile, and shall not exceed $2 40 per ton for the entire distance. If carried 60 miles and not exceeding 70, the amount charged shall not exceed 3½ cents per ton per mile, and the whole amount charged shall not exceed $2 27 for the entire distance. If carried 50 and not exceeding 60, the amonnt charged shall not exceed 4 cents per ton per mile, and shall not exceed $2'10 per ton for the entire distance. If carried 40 miles and not exceeding 50, the entire amount charged shall not exceed 4¾ cents per ton per mile, and shall not exceed $2 per ton for the entire distance. If carried 30 miles and not exceeding 40, the amount charged shall not exceed 6 cents per ton per mile, and shall not exceed $1 90 for the entire distance. If carried 20 miles, and not exceeding 30, the amount charged shall not exceed 8 cents per ton per mile, and shall not exceed $1 80 per ton for the entire distance. If carried any distance less than 20 miles, the amount charged shall not exceed 10 cents per ton per mile, and shall not exceed $1 60 for the entire distance.

There are eight other sections, making conditions for class freights, grades, etc, but the foregoing will suffice to give a good idea of the whole. The bill is likely to meet a strong opposition, being considered too severe.

Withdrawn.

The Hon. Caleb Cushing ranks, as a man of learning, among the great men He is essentially a man of parts—a lawyer, statesman and scholar—also of years. But he also has a record. Senator Sargent, when the matter of confirmation came before the Senate, raked this record out of the recently purchased rebel archives, and it is of such a character as to effectually blast the Hon. Caleb's chances for the Chief Justiceship. He wrote a letter to Jeff. Davis in 1861, addressing him as "my dear friend," "President," etc., which proves him to have been quite as much a rebel sympathizer as Jesse D. Bright, who was expelled the Senate for a letter of the same tenor, and as the Senate has never formally removed the alleged "political disabilities" of Cushing, his rejection was placed beyond doubt when Sargent read this letter; but he requested the President to withdraw his name, which was done. So ends nomination No. 2.

Will Resign.

The rumor that Booth is about to resign the Governorship is gaining volume. It is now said that he is likely to resign on the 31st of March. The explanation of this course is that he proposes being a candidate for the Presidency, and will during the next two years visit all the principal cities, and deliver lectures and addresses with especial reference to securing the support of the Grangers and Anti-Monopolists.

Typographical Ball.

We are pleased to acknowledge the receipt of a tastefully printed invitation card for the "Typographical Ball," given by the craft in Los Angeles on the 22d instant. While expressing a hope that the "prints," from the boss to the sub-devils and their guests, each and all found this a fat take with many others like it to register hereafter, we forcibly restrain an inclination to technical remarks, because we have seen proof enough that that style don't justify—is never a good take for a blacksmith and always presses even an expert to make even.

Salaries.

The Assembly Committee of Ways and Means is preparing a bill to reduce the salaries of all State officers about one third from the present figures. The pay of members of the Legislature will be fixed at $8 a day, whether they remain in session one month or four.

The New Air-Line Railroad From New York to Omaha

A Chicago, dispatch says: the proposed Continental Railway, for which a charter has been asked of Congress, as marked on a map in the Railroad and Canal Committee-room, is almost an air line from New York to Omaha. It starts from Jersey City, and runs due west across New Jersey, crossing the Delaware at Belvidere; traverses Pennsylvania without deviating from a straight line, passing through Bloomsburgh, Milton and Newcastle; enters Ohio near Youngstown, and runs through Akron, London, Lima; takes Fort Wayne in its route through Indiana; passes through central Illinois; thence to the northward, crossing the Mississippi at Muscatine, and reaching Omaha by a bee line of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, and the Chicago, Burlington and Missouri Railways. The road never deviates from its course to reach a town or a city, and the purpose of its projectors appears to be to open a great direct line between the far West and New York without reference to local trafic. The project is not fully matured yet, but a bill is in course of preparation which will have a number of prominent capitalists as incorpoartors. The parties who indicate a willingness to undertake the enterprise with moderate aid from the Government, mention the guarantee of bonds bearing four or five per cent interest to an amount of about the cost of construction. The company have been in correspondence with a number of these capitalists with a view to induce them to accept a Congressional charter, and under it construct a line from the Atlantic, agreeing to carry freight at a stipulated price below the present rates. Responsible parties are willing to undertake this work without Government aid, but the company will endeavor to secure their object without incurring any expense or responsibility on the part of the Government, and they have hopes that this can be done. If nothing better can be done Congress may recommend that the Government guarantee interest at a low rate upon the bonds representing a portion of the cost of construction and take a first lien on the road for its security.

Pacific Coast Items.

Judge Dwinelle has decided that Paul Newman and C. L. Taylor were legally elected State Harbor Commissioners.

Judge McKinstry has taken his position as one of the Justices of the Supreme Court.

Three gentlemen of Sacramento have agreed to subscribe $5,000 each toward erecting smelting works in that city for the reduction of iron ore. Twenty-five thousand dollars, it is said, will start it and put it in successful operation.

Says The Los Angeles Star of the 10th: Dr Gelchich starts for Petropolis to-day to attend to the interest of the oil works of that place, of which he is a heavy stockholder. The springs in that region are very productive. Those who have examined them state that they will doubtless prove to be about the most remunerative on the coast.

A large number of cattle in Honey Lake, Nevada, are dying from starvation, cold weather and the deep snow in those valleys is the cause of it. Many of the ranchers are killing their cattle to save their hides.

In Los Angeles they talk of building a grand opera house, 63 feet front by 175 feet depth, to cost $40,000.

Thirteen silver bricks have been presented to the public schools of Virginia City to be awarded to the best scholars.

From Washington.

The President has withdrawn Cushing's nomination.

Mr. Sargent has introduced a bill into the Federal Senate giving to the extra Mormon wives power to file petitions for the dissolution of that relation with their polygamous husbands, and giving them the custody of their minor children and an equitable share of their husband's property.

A bill has been introduced in the United States Senate by Mr. Frelinghuysen to bring about the resumption of specie payments. He proposes the issuance of $225,000,000, in 10-40 bonds, to be sold for not less than $200,000,000 in gold coin, the coin to be used for redeeming greenbacks at par.

The House of Representatives passed the Senate substitute for the salary bill, which restores the old Congressional salaries, and needs only the approval of the President to become a law.

Severe Storm.

A heavy gale and rain storm raged through the coast counties, January 16. Considerable damage was done to gardens, fences, barns and houses in San Francisco, Vallejo, Livermore and numerous other places. At Livermore a large grain warehouse was demolished, and the new Presbyterian church in course of erectton at Vallejo, experienced a similar fate. It was the most fearful gale for many a day.

Wood's Household Magazine.

For January, contains a lavish supply of first class articles. It is now in its fourteenth volume and every year has increased its popularity and added new friends to its large list of admirers. The magazine is splendidly adapted to the members of the household. The present number contains three engravings and other good things in proportion. Price of magazine, one dollar per year—with chromo Yo-Semite, one dollar and a half. Address Wood's Household Magazine, Newburgh, N. Y.

Race Proposed.

Thad Stevens and Joe Daniels are to run a four-mile-and repeat race for a stake of $5,000, should that purse be obtainable from the lessees or owners of a mile track in the neighborhood of San Francisco, three to enter and two to start, and the race to be run in sixty days.

FOR AN ORDER OF DISTRIBUTION.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE COUNTY OF Inyo, State of California. In the matter of the estate of Joseph L. Laird, deceased. Order to show cause why decree of Distribution should not be made. On reading and filing the petition of John W. P. Laird, Executor of the last will and testament of Joseph L. Laird, deceased, setting forth that he has filed his final account of his administration of the estate of said deceased in this Court; that all the debts and expenses of administration have been duly paid, and that a portion of said estate remains to be divided among the heirs of said deceased, and praying among other things for an order of distribution of the residue of said estate among the persons entitled: It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of the said Joseph L. Laird, deceased, be and appear before the Probate Court in the said County of Inyo, at the Court Room of said Court, in the town of Independence, in said Inyo County, on MONDAY, THE SECOND DAY OF MARCH, A. D. 1874, at ten o'clock A. M., then and there to show cause why an order of distribution should not be made of the residue of said estate among the heirs of the said deceased, according to law. It is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published for four successive weeks, before the Second day of March, A. D. 1874, in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in the said Inyo County.

Special Notice.

All subscriptions and transient advertisements must invariably be paid for in advance. Advertisements, to insure insertion, should be handed in on or before 6 o'clock P. M. of each Friday.

Religious Services.

By alternation of the several Ministers, it is so arranged that hereafter there will be preaching by regular appointments at each place of worship in the valley three Sundays every month. But at this writing we can only give the appointments of Mr. McKean, who holds forth to-morrow at Big Pine, February 1, at Bishop Creek and Round Valley, on the 8th following at Lone Pine in the morning and this place in the evening. If we can have it so arranged we will give a standing monthly directory of all appointments for each place.

Sylvania.

The Los Angeles Express, in introducing an extract from this paper referring to Sylvania, infers that that district is in the north*western* portion of the county. It is in what we may describe as the north*eastern* border of the county, and by the traveled route from Cartago (the point of shipment for Los Angeles) through Lone Pine, Independence and Big Pine, thence across the Inyo range to the eastward, about 125 miles further removed from Los Angeles than Cerro Gordo.

Adverse Claim Filed.

P. Reddy, on the part of the Empire Mining Company of Cerro Gordo has filed an adverse claim in the Land Office to the ledge upon which the Boushey Company have made application for patent. The matter will come before the District Court in May next. "Right is right," of course, but we are sorry, nevertheless, that matters for litigation should thus intervene to delay the advancement of the camp.

Cerro Gordo.

Belshaw's furnace is still running, but is expected to lay up for a time as soon as a stop is necessary for repairs. The Omega tunnel is working but a light force and the Union but one shift, so times are pretty dull for the time being. The water works are in good running order throughout but have not yet steamed up. Considerable interest is felt in the result of a prospecting expedition which set out from Cerro Gordo quite recently. We may be able to give particulars presently.

No Mails.

The late storm has so effectually blockaded the road beyond Benton that no mails have come through from Aurora for a week. It must be rough indeed when the indominitable Ullrick finds it impossible to get his mails through, even on the backs of Indians, the hitherto always successful reliance. The Southern line continues to make trips with its usual regularity.

Gold Mountain.

Hospital Steward James, U. S. A., returned a few days since from Gold Mountain, Nevada, and reports the prospects of that camp as very bright. It is considered an assurance that a mill will be built there in the Spring. Plenty of water for the purpose has been struck right in the camp.

Impassable.

The road leading across the Bend City bridge to Mazurka Canyon, which was recently the base for our wood supply, has become impassable for teams, the bridge across the slough being afloat and the main one across the river nearly so.

Deep Snow.

Parties from Benton by last night's stage report the snow on Esmeralda mountain as being from three to eight feet deep. Ullrick with a gang of Indians was doing everything possible to get the mails through; the mails will probably reach here to-morrow.

To Warrant Holders.

Lucky people who hold county warrants which they would like to exchange for cash (three or four bits' worth for a dollar), will note, under the proper heading, what County Treasurer Harry Isaacs has to say on the subject.

No Decision.

Judge Belden has not yet promulgated his decision in the San Felipe-Union suit, large number of other suits under advisement having precedence in order. Mr. Belshaw with his family is in San Francisco.

Didn't Find It.

T. Laspeyre, Esq., and James Sharp took a hundred mile trip down the country last week with the hope of finding some of those famous "lost leads," but—they have arrived home again all safe.

Once Again,

We hear P. P. Dow's familiar voice singing out "stage!" after his long absence among the heathen away down the country. His lungs ain't a bit affected.

To Recover.

P. W. Bennett and P. Reddy have entered suit in the District Court against Wm. Watt, et. als., to recover $30,000 alleged to be due on the Santa Maria mine.

Preaching.

There will be preaching here to-morrow at the usual time.

Taxes.

The delinquent tax list will appear in our next issue. It suits us to have it pretty long, but at the same time, we advise delinquents to rustle before Thursday night, although costs will not increase now until the day of sale, three weeks after first publication.

An Acquisition.

Young gentlemen fond of Flowers will henceforth look upon Coroner J. A Lank with eyes most benign. He has just received two all the way from Delaware, and of the sort more valued than any botany has yet illustrated.

The No-Fence Proposition.

[COMMUNICATED.]

Ed. Indepenent: In an article under the caption "The No-Fence Proposition," the impression conveyed is different from our understanding of the matter. In the first place you say in effect that if a majority of the stockmen were favorable to the change there would be no difficulty in its becoming a law; otherwise the Inyo Representative would oppose the change. Now, we do not see the justice in this. If the Inyo Representative was elected in the interest of stockmen we, as farmers, wish to know it, and as The Independent speaks so of him we must accept it as pretty good proof that he is in their interest. [Our correspondents are quite in error in their conclusions on both these points.—Ed.]

The law we ask for we consider a just and equitable one. Any law doing the greatest good to the greatest number is certainly a good law, and a law in conformity with the fundamental principles of a republican form of government. And we think our Representative could not and would not oppose such a law, nor do we think that a majority of stockmen should rule, for certainly, they are not in the majority in this county, nor do they represent a majority of the taxable property of this county (we mean stock men exclusively; we are all owners of more or less stock). We do not think the interests of the farmers should be so fixed by law as only to make them subserve the ends or interests of stock men or any other class, but should be equally protected. Then you say you do not think the proposition will meet with general favor; we are inclined to think it will; it may not with stock men as termed in this article alluded to, but we will give all a fair show; we will circulate our petitions and we feel fully satisfied that we will have the names of the farmers and some stock men, and fully believe that we will have a majority of the stock in the county represented on our petitions. Many farmers are stock owners in a small way, as we are small farmers in a very small way and need protection to enable us to exist; as farming has to be done here under difficulties, a fact well known to all. Again you say the "present law as it stands is as fair as any that can be devised; that it gives the poor man a chance just opening up a new home to do so without getting hopelessly in debt for fencing, and on the other hand it gives the stockman the 'pasturage when most needed.'" We do not see the consistency of the proposition; if it is impossible to fence against stock as you admit where is it fair in the present no-fence law that when the farmer gathers his crop that the stock man drives his stock on the farmers land and eats up his pasturage without remuneration, when actually if the farmer were protected by such a law as we propose his profits on his pasture would equal his net profits on his crop, and could not fairly be called an injustice to the stock man if he had to pay the farmer for his pasture a reasonable recompense; this would be only paying for what he gets, the farmer has to pay for his land, has to pay taxes on it assessed from $8 to $12 per acre while the stock man has the use of the public domain free of purchase and free of taxes. We know there are stockmen who own land and pay taxes on it but not a majority—we do not wish it understood that we wish to drive stockmen away, but think it only fair that all should fare equally.

Farmers need stock men and stock men need farmers or some one as consumers, so we propose to live and let live. We think a law requiring every man to take care of his own stock is only just, as he is the one profited by it. We know of instances in this neighborhood where men had their stock ready to turn loose on the morning of the 16th of November, boasting their time had come, and we hear of instances of the like kind in other parts of the county. There is one stock man—and pretty extensively engaged too—who proposed to purchase the fields and pastures and pay a fair price for them, but others said they considered they had a right to the fields, and did not wish their stock driven off. The owners or ranches having pasturage worth $500, did not realize one dollar, nor have they feed for their own stock. Now, we do not see why a no-fence law to continue throughout the year would not benefit the farmers of all grades instead of being a damage to them as stated in your article. In regard to that item of damage being done by cattle running over the fields and trampling the ground, that is very thin. We do not know from whence it came, but it is far fetched; the trampling does no good but the tearing down fences and eating every thing up—fruit trees, and such damage we do complain of. It is impossible also to protect fall sown grain and alfalfa which is easily destroyed by stock running on it in the Winter. We do not ask a law that will take from the stock man what is justly his, but we want equal protection, we want a law similar to the one of our neighboring county. A law that the farmers are loudly and numerously calling for. As to Mr. Lank's views and others, we wish to treat all kindly and considerately. We are not many of us situated just as Mr. Lank. We farm and raise some stock while he raises stock and farms some. Situated as he is, if the law which we propose to have passed should become a law he would not have so many fields for his stock unless he made it satisfactory with the owners first. As to the finishing clause that if "the present no-fence law was opened for amendment it would also be open for repeal, and a strong fight made on it it was best to let well enough alone." Pretty good reasoning, possibly, but it is not quite well enough to let alone. We will try it a little; if defeated we will abide the result—with as much profit as we can. We do not look upon the Legislature as being composed of a body of men chosen by the people to do their bidding that if there has been an act passed doing a community some justice or partly some justice in any matter—that if that community ask for still further or full justice in the matter that the Legislature would be recreant to justice and right as to turn around and take away or undo what they had already done. There is no danger of any such a turn even if the fight is made; there is too much justice and wisdom in that body for such a result.

Equal Rights.

The Land Laws.

A Correspondent of a San Francisco paper, writing on the 16th, gives this report of Legislative proceedings in reference to Sargent's Land Bills:

The following is the resolution introduced by Assemblyman Ferguson, relative to the land laws;

Resolved, by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, that our Representatives in Congress be requested, and our Senators instructed, to use their influence to secure the annulling of the Public Land laws, so far as to allow the actual settlers on the public domain in the foot hills in the State of California to pre-empt or homestead 640 acres of land, and that the mimimum price of said land be fixed at $1,25 per acre, and that the timber lands be sold in tracts not exceeding 640 acres, and that the minimum price of said timber lands be fixed at $2,50 per acre.

Mr. Ferguson has also introduced the following concurrent resolution:

Whereas. A large amount of public land in the State of California is unsurveyed; and, whereras, a large number of persons have settled upon said lands, and are desirous of obtaining a title to the same; therefore be it

Resolved, by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, that our Representatives in Congress be requested, and our Senators instructed to endeavor to secure an appropriation of money sufficient to survey all of said lands now unsurveyed in the State of California.

The debate in the Assembly to-day on the resolutions instructing our Representatives in Congress to oppose Sargent's bill to Return to the Federal Government swamp lands listed to this State, not already acquired by individuals, Estee, Kercheval, Tinnin, Myers Paulsell favored the resolution, and Messrs. Williams, Parker, Ammerman and Bowers opposed to it. Mr. Parker of Inyo, in which lie many acres of swamp lands, said that as far as his county was concerned, the passage of Sargent's bill would withdraw a large extent of land claimed to be swamp land from the clutches of land grabbers. Estee earnestly urged the adoption of the resolution, claiming that the passage of Sargent's bill would prevent another acre of swamp land from being acquired in this State except by Federal legislation. The resolution was finally passed.

On the following day Coggins, in the absence of Murphy, moved to reconsider the vote ordering to engrossment the concurrent resolution opposing Sargent's Swamp Land bill.

Williams moved to indefinitely postpone the matter.

Freeman moved to lay the matter on the table.

The motiou to lay on tha table was was lost, but the one to indefinitely postpone reconsideration was agreed to.

Magnolia Theater.

The beautiful and appropriate name given the new theatre, by Wilton, is "Magnolia," a name that stands first among the botanists, and one that will always awaken the poetic talent of genius. The building thus named is the one known as Bahwer's Hall, on Garden street, near Main. It is now undergoing repairs, and will be changed to a regular and handsome theatre, having a gallery made with fine proscenium, and the trappings of a first class theatre. This hall is large and commodious, with a capacity of seating six hundred. The entrance will be changed to the side. Mr. Wilton deserves great credit for the magnanimous spirit he has shown in giving the people of Visalia a series of first class entertainments. The new building will be finished in a few days, when it will be opened with actors of the first talent, and some of the modern and standard plays of the day.—Visalia Delta.

—A conscientious observer of city ordinances refrained from kissing his sweetheart "good-night" the other evening, because the old man has posted the notice, "stick no bills here," on the garden wall.

The Proposed Mining Law.

On December 15, 1873 the following bill was introduced into the House of Representatives by Hon. J. D. Ward of Chicago, and is now before the Committee on Public Lands:

A bill supplemental and amendatory to the act entitled "An act to promote the mining resources of the United States," approved May 10, 1872.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. That any person, corporation or or association, qualified under existing laws to receive a patent from the United States for mineral land, who claim mining locations upon veins or lodes of quartz or other rock in place bearing gold, silver, tin, cinnibar, lead copper, or other valuable deposits, or placer claims situated on the public domain, upon which the sum of not less than $500 has been expended in labor or improvements shall within one year from the date of the passage of the act, file with the Register and Receiver of the proper land district, in the manner prescribed by the act to which this is supplemental and amendatory, an application for a patent of the mine, mining ground, land and premises so claimed; and if no adverse claim be filed during the publication thereof, such claimant shall, within three months of the date of such filing of his application, make the final proof required under said act, and pay for the land included in his claim at the rate of ten dollars per acre.

Sec. 2. That in the case of mining claims which now are or may be hereafter located and upon which the sum of $500 has not been expended in labor or improvements, the claimant thereof shall make an application for patent therefor, in the manner prescribed by law, within one year from the time when such $500 shall have been expended in labor or improvements thereupon, and shall make final proof and payment thereof, in manner and at the rate aforesaid, within three months of the date of such application, and if no adverse claim be filed during the publication of the notice: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be considered as releasing the holders or claimants of unpatented mining locations from the obligation to expend the amount in labor or improvements thereon during each year such mining claims remain unpatented, as required by law.

Sec. 3. That where an adverse claim is filed, and the right of possession shall be determined by judicial decree, in the manner provided by seventh section of said act of May 10, 1872, the party in whose favor such final judgement shall be rendered shall, within six months from the date of the rendition of such judgement, make the filing required by said seventh section, and pay for such claim at the rate of ten dollars per acre.

Sec. 4. That where under existing laws, applications for patents for mining-claims have been made, and due notice thereof given, without the appearance of an adverse claimant, and in which cases no further proceedings have been had for the purpose of perfecting title, the applicant, his heirs, successors or assigns, shall make final proof and payment, at the rate herein fixed, within six months of the passage of this act.

Sec. 5. That all affidavits required to be made under this act, or the act to which this is supplemental or amendatory, may be verified by any officer authorized to administer oaths, and all testimony and proofs may be taken before any such officer, and, the same, shall have the same force and effect as if taken before the Register or Receiver of the Land Office.

Sec. 6. That upon the failure of the claimants of any mine or mining-ground claim, or location, to comply with the provisions of this act, the mine, claim, or location upon which such failure occurred, shall be open to the relocation by other parties in the same manner as if no location of the same had ever been made; Provided, that the said claimants, their heirs, successors, assigns, or legal representatives, have not made application for a patent for such claim after such failure and before such relocation.

Sec. 7. That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

An Ancient Humorist.

Hierocles, who lived in the sixth century, collected twenty one jests under the general title of the "Pedants," and in this fossil jest book we find jokes that have been handed down through succeeding collections, and have become old and familiar friends. Among these ancient jests is the account of a man who, for fear of drowning, determined not to enter the water until he was master of the art of swimming; of the man who complained that his horse died just as he had taught him to live without food; of the philosopher who carried a stone about with him as a specimen of his house; of one who stood before a glass with his eyes shut to see how he looked when he was asleep; of a man who bought a crow to see whether he would live two hundred years; and of one who went into a boat on horseback because he was in a hurry. Here we find the ever new story of a man who, on meeting a friend, asked him whether it was him or his brother that was buried; and the blundering excuse of the person who, not having attended to the request of a friend, said, when he met him, "I'm sorry I never received the letter which you wrote me about the books."

A New Life Preserver.

A Mr. Ormsbee has invented a new life preserver, which he calls a "Pleasure Swimmer and Cushions Combined." The principle on which Mr. Ormsbee bases his invention is that the body in itself is self-sustaining, and his preserver consists simply of two india rubber sleeves, which after being drawn on the arms, can be inflated by blowing in them, when they will sustain the body on the surface of the water in any position the swimmer may assume. The sleeves are so made that they can be adjusted on the arms and inflated in fifteen seconds. When not on the person, and when partially inflated, the preservers can be used either as cushions or pillows, and were a timid person in a vessel at sea he might adjust the sleeves on his arms, and while they furnished him with an excellent pillow he might feel certain of being safe from death by drowning. When in the water a person wearing this preserver can float any number of hours or days, carrying an umbrella for protection from the sun and sufficient cigars to insure his comfort.

Another Vasquez Robber Arrested.

A gentleman from Millerton was in town on Tuesday, who as we are informed, gave information of the capture of a Spaniard in Fresno county a few days since, who admitted being one of the Vasquez gang, and, made many important disclosures concerning the doings of his comrades. He was taken by a scouting party of vigilantes who were on the lookout, and asked to be swung, as he had no doubt of the final disposition that would be made of him; but he was placed in jail at Millerton for future use. He is reported to have told his captors that they had stolen more cattle than he had money. The tempting reward offered by the Legislature, will be apt to make mutton of several well kown characters who have taken part in the Vasquez robberies, and will most certainly result in the capture and punishment of Tiburcio himself if he should remain in this State.—Visalia Delta. Jan. 22.

Paste for a Scrap-Book.

You have had inquiry for a good paste that will keep, and in reply I will state that after an experience of over thirty years daily, I have found none so good as flour paste made with alum water—say a piece of alum as large as a walnut to a pint of paste—with a few drops of the oil of cloves added when made. The alum prevents fermentation, and the oil is destructive to vegetable mold. Paste made this way will keep for months in the warmest weather. Add the water to the flour cold, and bring to a boil.

The Grangers' Declaration.

The following, endorsed by the officers of Fruitland Grange, No. 72, as an expression of their sentiments, has been handed to The Southern Californian for publication:

First.—We hold that all wants of life are supplied by toil; that no one of natural ability is exempt from contributing his just proportion in some form to that end, and he who fails to do so violates one of the plainest obligations of his existence, and imposes an additional burden on others that he should cheerfully bear himself.

Second.—We do not ask nor do we want any legislation for the exclusive benefit of farmers as a class.

Third.—We will enter into no combinations among ourselves, or with others, to raise the price of either food or clothing, knowing as we do, that we are in part the factors of the food and clothing of the human race, and that however low the price of food or clothing may be, there are millions who, from sheer want, are unable to supply themselves with the common necessaries of life, and who, like ourselves, are doomed to constant toil.

Fourth.—As an organization, we ignore party politics, and will support for office none others than honest, competent and faithful men, who will do all in their power to reform the abuses of legislation, both State and National, believing as we do that most of the grievances of which (in common with others) we think we can justly complain, are the results of corrupt, unjust and partial legislation.

Fifth.—We ask our representatives in the Legislature to procure the passage of a law, by which on the petition of a hundred voters, the right of way to the sea coast, at any designated point, together with the condemnation to public use of not exceeding fifty acres of land for depot purposes and general public wants, which shall be valued and paid for by the county in which it is located, its value to be fixed according to its agricultural or grazing value. This law to be general and apply to all sea-coasts, inlets, bays, and navigable rivers, except in incorporated towns of five thousand inhabitants.

Sixth.—The passage of a general irrigating law, the provisions of which shall fix the cost of construction exclusively to the lands benefited thereby by assessments, which in no year shall exceed one per cent. of the value of lands so to be benefited. That the location of canals and ditches, their size and length, shall be determined by commissioners elected for that purpose by the owners of the land along the line of the ditch, and that in all instances where a ditch is already constructed along the route selected by such commissioners, such ditch shall be appraised at its cost value at the time by disinterested parties, and the individual parties or incorporated company owning such ditch to continue to hold stock in the ditch so appraised, in common with others who incur the cost of widening, deepening or lengthening the same, and to be thus continued from time to time by a re-estimate of value, so long as the quantity of water and the demands of irrigators may require. Holding, as we do, that in California land and water should be inseparable, and that the two should be handed down to succeeding generations of tillers of the soil as an indefeasible light.

Seventh.—We ask our representatives in the Legislature to use their utmost endeavors to procure the repeal of the law creating in the State of California a standing military force, by which we are taxed $50,000 a year. A standing army in time of peace, as a State institution, has no precedent outside of the State of California. It is a reflection on the intelligence and patriotism of the people of the State and ought to be disbanded.

Eighth.—We ask our representatives to use their best efforts to procure the passage of a law limiting the amount of county and municipal appropriations to not exceed one per cent. of the assessed value of the property of any county.

Ninth.—We ask our representatives to procure the passage of a law reducing the salaries of all officers of Los Angeles county to a compensation not exceeding fair remuneration, in view of the fact that Los Angeles county has the largest bonded debt of any county in the State, San Francisco excepted.

Tenth.—We will do all in our power to encourage manufactures in our midst, especially woolen mills, the building up of which will afford a market for wool, occupation for many that would otherwise be idle, and a ready market for our surplus farm products.

Nefarious.

We learn from a newspaper printed in Montpelier, Vt., that an immense excitement has been created in Norwich by the detection of a clergyman engaged in the nefarious business of playing blindman's buff. The newspaper informs us that the matter is to be investigated, a council having been called for the purpose, and it is demanded that full justice be meted out to the reverend offender. We are sorry for him—but why should he do such a thing?

—A remarkable dirty man stepped in front of a small boy sitting on the fence expecting to have some fun by chaffing him. He said "How much do you weigh?" The answer was: "Well, about as much as you would, if you were washed."

Polishing Wood with Charcoal.

[From The Cabinet Maker.]

All the world knows of those articles of furniture of a beautiful dead black color, with sharp clear cut edges, and a smooth surface, the wood of which seems to have the density of ebony; viewing them side by side with furniture rendered black by paint and varnish, that the considerable difference in the price separating the two kinds explains itself without need of any commentary. The operations are much longer and much more minute in in this method of charcoal polishing, which respets every detail of the carving, while paint and varnish clog up the holes and widen the ridges. In the first process they employ only carefully selected woods of a close and compact grain; they cover them with a coat of camphor dissolved in water, and almost immediately afterwards by another coat composed chiefly of sulphate of iron and nut-gall. The two compositions in blending penetrate the wood and give it an indelible tinge, and at the same time render it impervious to the attacks of insects.

When these two coats are sufficiently dry, they rub the surface of the wood at first with a very hard brush of couch-grass (chiendent), and then with charcoal of substances as light and friable as possible, because if a single hard grain remains in the charcoal this alone would scratch the surface, which they wish on the contrary, to render perfectly smoothe. The flat parts are rubbed with natural stick charcoal, the indented parts are rubbed with powdered charcoal. At once, almost simultaneously, and alternately with the charcoal, the workman also rubs his piece of furniture with flannel soaked in linseed oil and the essence of turpentine. These pouncings repeated several times, cause the charcoal powder and the oil to penetrate into the wood, giving the article of furniture a beautiful color and perfect polish, which has none of the flaws of ordinary varnish. Black-wood polished with charcoal, is coming day by day in greater demand; it is most serviceable; it does not tarnish like gilding, nor grow yellow like white wood, and in furnishing a drawing room it agrees very happily with gilt bronzes and rich stuffs. In the dining room, too, it is the roughly its place to show off the plate to the greatest advantage, and in the library it supplies a capital frame work for handsomely bound books.

The Etiquette of Bowing.

This is so simple that one wou'd scarcely suppose it possible that difference of opinion could exist, yet there are some who think it a breach of politeness if one neglects to bow, although meeting half a dozen times on a promenade or in driving. Custom has made it necessary to bow only the first time in passing; after that exchange of salutation is very properly not expected. The difference between a courteous and familiar bow should be remembered by gentlemen who wish to make a favorable impression. A lady dislikes to receive from a man with whom she has but a slight acquaintance a bow accompanied by a broad smile, as though he were on the most familiar terms with her. It is far better to err on the other side and give one of those stiff ungracious bows which some men indulge in. Those gentlemen who smile with their eyes instead of their mouths give the most charming bows. As for men who bow charmingly at one time, and with hauteur at others, according as they feel in good or bad humor, they need never be surprised if the person thus treated should cease speaking altogether. A man should always lift his hat to a lady.

A Criterion.

The Traveler's Journal gives currency to the following sensible ideas in regard to wives, which is well worthy of attention:

"One can always tell what sort of a wife a man has married by the way he treats the printer. If he has a common wife, he forgets the printer altogether. If he gets a tolerable good wife, he will send in a notice of his marriage. If he gets an extra good one, he will send in a slice of cake with the notice. And if he gets a glorious angelic creature—all affection and goodness—he is sure to send round a gold piece with the notice of his happiness. No good wife allows her husband to owe for his paper, and if the worst half does not attend to these things, it is a clear case of deception, for a man that won't pay for his paper will deceive his wife, and of such is the kingdom of nothingness."

A Martyr to Gallantry.

A clerk in the Indianapolis post-office is now in the last stages of drought, occasioned by his own gallantry in volunteering to lick and adjust postage stamps for the young ladies who came to his window. He is very charming—Indianapolis is full of good looking girls who dearly love to see him run out his tongue and moisten a stamp, and the first the unfortunate young man knew, he had exhausted his salivary secretion, and was as dry as a boarding house pie. The doctor says that unless he can start the sap in his system he's a goner.

—Two rustics came into a village telegraph office to send a dispatch. As they left the office the gong of a hotel sounded for tea. Whereupon one of the pair went into the air several feet, exclaiming, "By Jerusa'em! there it goes Jim!"

*Bad For Josiah, Et Als.

The following dispatch, dated New York, January 20, conveys sorry intelligence for Mr. Earl and his confreres :

The Secretary of the Interior has finally overruled all motions and objections for delay and informed the Register and Receiver of the local land office that the swamp land entries in Sierra Valley, California, are cancelled, and the land thus claimed restored to public domain. The Register and Receiver are therefore directed to notify pre-empting and homestead settlers upon them and prove up, and receive their patents.

This refers to the well known Si rra Valley case where a community of farmers had for years been engaged in producing hay, butter, and cheese. The speculators went there, claimed the lands under the Swamp Land Act, and although the claim was absurd and a swindle on its face, yet the settlers were worried for years, were put to great expense, and were in great danger of losing their homesteads. The grabbers went in on Section 3 of the Arkansas act which reads :

And be it further enacted, That in making out a list and plats of the land aforesaid, all legal subdivisions, the greater part of which is "wet and unfit for cultivation," shall be included in said lists and plats ; but when the greater part of a subdivision is not of that character, the whole of it shall be excluded therefrom.

And this and the subsequent decision of the Commissioner, in opposition to Hardenbergh's report, was what set the grabbers to work in this valley.

For Chief Justice.

The President, on the third trial has made a nomination for the Chief Justiceship which meets with almost universal commendation--The nominee this time is Judge M. R. Waite, of Toledo, Ohio. Though a prominent lawyer of that State, his reputation is not national and on that account the announcement of his name at fisrt created considerable astonishment in political circles, and the opposition began to gird their loins for a fight, but this feeling seems to have collapsed and no doubt is entertained that Waite is the coming man. The Bulletin says of him :

His dislike of party politics caused him many years ago, to decline all offers of preferment in that direction, and confine himself closely to his profession—overwork in which has often stretched him on beds of sickness. All his methods of thought and action are judicial, and we much doubt if the President has ever made a nomination more "fit to be made," or which in the future will reflect greater credit upon his sagacity and foresight.

For Confirmation.

A Washington dispatch of the 24th to the S. F. Call says :

Josiah Earl, whose nomination as Register at Independence, Cal., has been brought up in the Senate by Sargent, has arrived. If he can make good his assertions that he can disprove the charge of personal interest in land speculations he will soon be confirmed.

In other words if he can make good his assertion that Houghton and Drummond will help him cover up facts patent to every man in this land district he will be confirmed. If Earl's defense is only a flat denial of the main fact it is a most brazen faced falsehood.

A Horrible Execution.

Marshall Martin was executed at Martinez, Contra Costa county, Jan. 23, for the murder Valentine Eischler in 1872. The murder was set on by Eischle's wife. When the drop fell the murderer's head was jerked clean from his body, the blood spurting all around and presenting a most horrible sight.

Supreme Court Removal.

There is a strong movement on foot for the removal of the California Supreme Court to San Francisco. It is said by the Bay papers, that most of the lawyers in the State are in favor of it

Passed.

The bill introduced by Mr. Parker granting leave of absence to County Treasurer Isaacs has passed both Houses. The Governor rather objects generally to sign such bills but we think he will not stand out in this case.

Decided.

Judge Deering has decided the Kern county seat question in favor of Bakersfield. It hinged upon the legality of the votes of certain precincts at the election about a year ago.

Surrender of Cartagena.

Foreign advices are to the effect that Cartagena, Spain, has surrendered to the Government forces. This is a heavy blow to the insurgents.

—No noose is good news, as the man said when he was reprieved.

THE OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

There does not seem to be much diversity of opinion among the press, city or country, as to the real merits of Sargent's Swamp Land Bill. Even the old bull of The Union, while from sheer habit rushing at it as the red capote of the railroad, pronounces the extension of the Arkansas act (the real intents of which this bill defines), to this State as a serious mistake. That "the three millions of acres it transferred to us is a poor compensation for the injury the State has suffered by the clashing of titles, which have retarded the settlement and solid improvement of the country in many of its most promising parts." Yet as the chief point of objection to Sargent's bill it endeavors Kercheval's argument in these words :

Kercheval averred that the passage of Senate bill No. 17, will open immense bodies of swamp lands to fresh litigations, from which the railway monopoly would derive the lion's share of the benefits and the poor settlers come out greatly injured in purse, having to pay a second time for their homes, with heavy costs of suit. The Speaker explained at length and in detail the practical effect of the bill ; that its passage would place the settler on State swamp lands not yet listed to the State, and on those not falling within the precise definition of the bill, and being within twenty miles of the railway on either side, in a position that will compel them to go to law with a monster and soulless corporation, with all the chances against them ; that there exists no wrong which the Sargent bill is intended to right, etc.

The speaker referred to is the man who first rushed into the ring in support of his concurrent resolution in opposition to this bill with the loud mouthed declaration that "who ever opposed this resolution was a railroad man." The Union pronounces his arguments unanswerable but takes good care to make no reference to the blackmailing operations of the swamp landers as exemplified in the Sierra Valley case and scores of others both before and since the Legislative act of 1871, which gives pre-emptors a partial show for self-protection against the land cormorants whose belt of operations never had a twenty nor a hundred mile limit.

The Bulletin says the State of California has gone from year to year encouraging the most outrageous land monopolies through the swamp land and other acts. That the State Land Office has been a tool in the hands of the grabbers, etc., but thinks Sargent's bill ought to be defeated because it does not meet the real exigencies, and that we need legislation on the part of the State which effectually stops this monstrous swamp land monopoly. Convey to no individual a tract exceeding 640 acres of swamp land. Make the law so stringent that the grantee cannot convey the lands away till the work of reclaimation is done.

But the Bulletin overlooks the apparent fact that such legislation is impossible so long as our legislators are so largely interested in the opposite question, or what amounts to the same thing, see nothing but the railroad capote in every reform proposed.

The San Francisco Post, one of the ablest of the lot and which has made land legislation its specialty, has the following severe comments on the action of the Assembly.

Perhaps one-half of the land listed as heretofore, is not swamp at all, but good dry land, that has been sworn to be swamp-land in order to take it out of the control of the pre-emption laws of the United States, to enable land speculators to monopolize it in immense bodies, and to give them a pretense to take the home of the settler from under his feet. It is possible that such men as Meyers and Coggins have forgotten the Sierra Valley and Mountain Meadow iniquities, in which such men as Chapman have been endeavoring to take their homes from settlers, under the cover of this swamp land law? Is it possible that they have forgotten the report of the Joint Committee on Public Lands of the last session, showing how Roberts had got his 81,000 acres, and Chapman his 41,000 acres, and Maulding his 16,000, Boggs his 17,000, and Chester his 32,000, under this swamp land law, and so on through the long list?

This cry about the railroad profiting by this law is but the stalking horse of the swamp land ring who, as Washington telegrams show, are now preparing another campaign against the homes of settlers. Even granting that the railroad would profit to some extent by the bill, the railroad company is infinitely better than these great swamp land grabbers. The railroad company could only take half the land; the speculators take all. The railroad companies cannot disturb previous settlers, but the speculators take the settlers home without mercy and without regret.

This swamp land law was conceived in iniquity, carried out in fraud, and has been one of the most efficient means by which speculators have monopolized so much of our virgin soil. Had Sargent's bill been passed ten years ago, we should have had thousands of homes in California more than we now have. But better late than never, and instead of the Legislature of California protesting againt it, they ought to urge its passage by every means in their power.

The S. F. Chronicle in a lengthy and well written article, claims that all land hitherto rated as swamp and granted absolutely as they were to the State—The General government can make no retractions of the grant ; that, therefore, for this and other reasons given at length, Sargent's bill is nugatory but that it should not be permitted to become a law, as it might invite unnecessary litigation. But at the same time that some adequate means should be at once adopted to avert the further perpetration of such gigantic swamp land swindles operating alike against both the General Government and the State.

The Sacramento Record says:

At the present time, however, all the swamp and overflowed lands within the railroad belt has been listed over, and therefore Sargent's bill cannot benefit the railroad in any manner. Its intent is to protect the actual settler against the swamp land ring which has been the curse of the State for years—a ring let us say, which Mr Kercheval has not the ability to defend, and his sympathy for which it would be prudent in him to display less conspicuously. This bill is wholly in the interests of the State and people. It is a measure which should have been passed years ago, for it is demanded by every consideration of public policy.

That expresses our own views exactly. Passing a number of other extracts agreeing in condemning the swamp land act, if not as to the means to remedy its evils, we append the remarks of our namesake on the other side, The Tuolumne Independent, which is a paper that says what it thinks, and as a general thing thinks about right as witness this :

It appears that our "reform" Assembly has sold out bag and baggage to the land grabbers and Swamp Land Ring. On Tuesday last they passed a resolution opposing Sargent's bill, by a vote of 51 to 18. We are pleased to see that the delegation from this district voted with the people, although the "reformers" were too many for them. Sargent's bill is one of the most righteous measures ever introduced into Congress, and we hope that it will become a law in spite of the flat of the 51 "anti-monopoly" dunces of the Assembly. We suppose that Sargent's mineral bill will meet with the same reception when the resolution opposing it comes up for final action. The Union has only to crack its railroad whip, (as it is sure to do at anything labeled "Sargent,") when the whole "reform" pack will go for it blind-mad. It is too bad that the people can't be represented by men able and honest enough to do their own thinking.

A GRAND DESCENT.

Mr. Earl doubtless feels the need of encouragement and moral support in his grabbing schemes, but we had no idea his necessities and lack of sense would cause him to descend to the level of the Pike street wrangler of the Bakersfield swamp organ in open search of it. But we infer from the tenor of an article in Mr. Hardnut's last issue that he even now has come to that pitiable, forlorn last resort for a decent man. It seem that last Fall, while Mr. Earl was on his way to look after the affairs of the State and Nation, as is his wont of late years, he felt constrained to stop and exchange tales of woe with the Bakersfield ring factotum, Mr. Hardnut. Now, he ought to have known that his hope of aid or comfort from that source lay in keeping such exchange wholly dark ; that the factotum could give him valuable counsel in any dirty scheme, but that his public support would blast a good man's reputation, while to his sort it would be ruin ; that though he had even caught the other feeling in his pockets—as was likely while yielding to the seductive kindnesses of this fellow feeling—both ought to have had sense enough to know that none was the word with such worthies. But no ; whether by request or his own motion, it don't matter much, Mr. Hardnut feels called upon to launch out once again, not so much to help this member of his ring as in the desire to injure his superior. We make two quotations ; here is the first :

Mr. Earl is well known in this county as one of the most energetic, public-spirited and useful men in Southern California, and we have yet to meet a man either here or Inyo, where he resides, who is not his friend.

Just so ; Vasquez is also public spirited and very energetic, but people don't admire his method of displaying those qualities, for as with Mr. Earl, his successful endeavors are much and generally dreaded. But as Mr. Hardnut has raised the above point, we will remark he is about as near the truth as usual, and in order to show how near that is, will mention a fact or two which we have hitherto entirely ignored.

So highly were Mr. Earl's public-spirited efforts appreciated here "in Inyo where he resides" that there was a very wide spread desire among numerous "friends" to forcibly immolate him on the altar of their—own erection. They were afraid his good qualities wouldn't keep longer than "our melting snows of June and July," and actually threatened him with a rope.

So much confidence have the people of Inyo in his unselfish public spirit that for him to father any public enterprise, however laudable on its face, settles it as effectually as would a stroke of lightning.

So powerful was his political influence, the only hope left for his best candidates lay in the vehemence with with which they denounced the bans His pet and chief reliance, like the cock of old, "wept thrice, crew most bitterly," and as his last hope double denied his patron and only to find his moccasins in the sun, because people wouldn't believe him. It was melancholy.

So fearful were the people among whom this "useful man" resides that his official duties would wear him out, several hundred of them have warmly petitioned his retirement.

These are no fancy sketches, nor are they intended for anything more than mere hints of serious facts.

The second extract is in Mr. Hardnut's favorite, most intellectual vein, the only one he ever attempts in arguing with his contemporaries nearer home, and the only one in which even he claims brains enough to sustain himself ; and yet there are plenty of street blackguards can beat him in that line, and not knowingly lie half as often :

The editor of THE INDEPENDENT, who has endeavored to asperse his [Earl's] official character, we are informed, by those who know him well is an extremely feeble individual, intellectually and morally considered, and is only adopting the mode usual to such men, of repaying benefits with ingratitude.

We feel quite sure the charge of ingratitude would never have been made to lie against Mr. Hardnut for declining to countenance any scheme of public robbery. His intellectual feebleness don't run that way. We have not the slightest doubt he would, cheaply too, have gladly assisted in that other act of baser ingratitude by which our official attempted to defraud—it mildest designation—the Government of the very property and rights he was trusted and paid to look after. Mr. Earl did very wrong in misleading his low priced defender on this point. He ought to have explained that honest people in their inmost hearts look at the official who robs the Government whose bounty he receives exactly as if a private employer had been his victim ; that such a betrayal of trust on the part of an officer only aggravated an act sufficiently infamous if that of a private individual. He need not have enlarged upon its worst feature—how he hoped to rob people of vested rights at the same time. He ought to have done this, not that it could affect Mr. Hardnut's sentiments, but even his obtuseness would permit him to see that he could help his principal enough better by rigidly keeping his mouth shut and attending strictly to his own business.

REPLY TO A MISCHIEF MAKER.

In speaking of your neighbors faults,
Dear sir, don't forget your own;
Remember those with houses of glass
Should seldom, if ever, throw a stone.

If you have nothing else to do
But prate and write of others sin,
You had better commence at home,
And from that very point begin.

In what you wrote you slandered me,
And told some cruel lies beside;
Should you not like my company
You know the world is very wide.

I may have faults, and so have all,
The high, the low, the old and young;
You may, perhaps, for aught I know,
Have more than fifty to my one.

I'll tell you of a better plan,
You will find it to work very well,
Just try your own defects to cure
Before you of others faults do tell.

Although sometimes I hope to be
No worse than others that I know,
My own defects cause me to let
The mistakes and faults of others go.

You, dear sir, whenever you commence
To slander stranger, friend or foe,
Think of the harm you words may do
To those you never saw, or little know.

Remember that slanders sometimes, like
Our chickens, come to roost at home,
And don't parade your neighbor's faults
Until you have none of your own.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Reddy, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ackushousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ackushousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiffs in the District court of the sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars, in U. S. Gold coin, with interest thereon from the Tenth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America, as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this Nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy four. [SEAL]

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND,
Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, this 30th day of January, 1874. [SEAL]

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND,
Clerk.

Gallardo.

This individual has again turned up before the Supreme Court, as will be seen by this item from an exchange:

F. F. Gallardo, formerly of Inyo county, has preferred charges against Patrick Reddy, for conduct unbecoming a member of the bar, in having attempted to bribe a Justice of the Peace, and also challenged complainant to fight a duel. The Court took Gallardo's application under advisement.

Here where both parties are so well known, it is entirely a work of supererogation even to go so far as to notice it at all. Gallardo, has always displayed the desire of a monomaniac in the matter of damage suits, basing them on pretexts so absurd as to invariably create a smile of derision, but, notwithstanding this fact, his attacks cause both trouble and expense, and in cases like the above, are calculated to inflict real injury upon the professional reputation of the object of the attack The very idea of the necessity of any lawyer having resort to bribery, or being willing to bribe, to carry his points, is just as bad, or worse, than to accuse him of literal highway robbery. It is felt as a stain though only recorded at the instance of a street beggar, and then without a shadow of foundation. Mr. Reddy did say to Justice Peter Peerson when the latter doubted the propriety of a decision he had made, that if the decision did not stand, he Reddy would pay the costs himself This was in open court, Gallardo being the opposing counsel. On the same occasion he told Gallardo that he would brook no insults from him of any kind or character such as he Gallardo had leveled at another attorney in the same case. But the idea of having challenged him to fight a duel is absurd. Judge Reed who was in Sacramento, explained the character of the complainant and his complaint to Chief Justice Wallace, upon which the charge was summarily dismissed. So writes our junior.

We also learn through a private letter that Gallardo was trying to get a bill of impeachment before the Legislature against Judge Reed. We presume this would be based on the offenses recited against Reed in Gallardo's complaint in the late Peerson damage suit. It was quite certain no notice would be taken of it.

The Tax List.

The delinquent tax list which appears this week is three times as long as that of last year, but much of this is owing to the fact that most all the small sums appearing are the balances assessed against parties who paid their tax as charged last Spring, when the rate was $2 50, which rate, subsequent to these payments, was raised to $3, and now appear as delinquencies.

James Jackson.

If this party is alive and kicking any place, so that this may meet his eye, his attention is further directed to a notice in the advertising columns.

From Cottonwood.

We had the pleasure of a call from Colonel Stevens of Cottonwood, and daughter, Miss M. Sevens, who starts for New York in a few days.

For Alcatraz.

A soldier of desperado proclivities is to be sent in a day or two in charge of a detachment to Alcatraz for trial for attempt to murder.

For Panamint.

Frank Ditsworth, L. Schneider and perhaps several others start from here in a day or two on a business prospect to Panamint. They will be gone a month or so.

Returned.

Captain McGowan returned from below on Thursday, bringing some recruits and a deserter who surrendered under the President's proclamation.

New Bakery.

John Labasse has reopened the bakery, west end of Kearsarge street, and now everybody in the place can get good fresh bread, and such when needed.

Goes Below.

T. F. A. Connelly proposes a trip to Sacramento the coming week.

Preaching.

Rev. A. Clark will preach at this place to-morrow evening.

Motions Denied.

Motions for new trials in the following cases, adjudicated at the last term of the District Court here, have recently been returned by Judge Reed with a denial in each case: Baxter vs Owen's Lake Silver Lead Company. Reddy & Egbert for plantiff. Bennett & Gregg for defendant.

John Simpson vs same, attorneys same.

F. K. Miller vs Peerson & Vincentilli. Miller, Bennett & Gregg for plantiff, Reddy & Egbert for defendants

John Simpson & wife vs Wm. H. Van Arsdale. Reddy & Egbert for plantiffs, Bennett and Gregg for defendant

The Race.

The race between "Pinto" (better known as the "McBride horse") and "Cochran's colt," after a false start, which caused a postponement from Saturday until the following Monday, finally came off and was won by the colt by four feet in six hundred yards. It occasioned considerable excitement and plenty of betting. The total losses were slightly in the excess of the winnings, everything footed up.

Sold Out.

L. Schneider has sold his butcher shop business, and good will in toto to John Broder, so that Fred Schabbell who can do it as well as anybody will cut all our meat at Broder's splendid new shop. There is one good feature about the new programme that will be commended and appreciated, and that is, the price of butcher's meat will not be changed by Mr. Broder on account of having the sole business.

Rather Thin.

Our local columns look rather thin this week. Cause why—no events happened to speak of, or if any did we have had our hands too full of matters not connected with newspaper columns to hunt them up.

Legislative.

The no-fence law of San Diego and San Bernardino has been repealed.

Furguson's bill for Tulare, Fresno and other counties, passed both Houses, to take effect in the Spring.

The Senate bill to protect bona fide settlers on public lands was ordered engrossed.

By Venable—To establish a general system of canals for irrigation, agricultural and other purposes.

By Duffy—An act to exempt editors and reporters from jury duty.

By McKusic—An act to prevent the sale of liquor on election days.

The bill to prohibit the carrying of concealed weapons was killed by striking out the enacting clause—ayes, 38; noes 29. Murphy gave notice of a reconsideration.

The Speaker announced that the Surveyor General had reported in compliance with the Assembly resolution calling for the surveys of agricultural lands which had been returned to his office as swamp and overflowed lands. Referred to Swamp and Overflowed Land Committee.

Senator Hendricks introduced a bill to have "local option" on the question of a no-fence law. It provides upon the presentation of a petition representing three fourths of the taxable property of a township, the provisions of a general no fence law shall be made, by the Board of Supervisors, applicable to such township. In smaller districts, forming only a fractional part of a township, the petition must represent nine-tenths of the property before it can be allowed and providing the amount of damage done, the award of the majority shall be final The bill further provides for the recovery of the amounts so awarded. Referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Beck—Concerning County Assessors, fixing their terms and other matters. Referred to the Judiciary Committee. The bill provides that at the general election of 1875 each county shall elect an assessor, who shall hold office two years from the first Monday in March next ensuing. The second section provides that within thirty days after the passage, the old Board of Supervisors shall order a special election for Assessor, who shall hold office till the first Monday in March, 1876.

By Parker—To amend the Political Code relative to highways; also, to empower the Supervisors of Inyo county to pay balance due on bridge contracts.

Senate Bill No 17.

Sargent's swamp land bill, Senate Bill No. 17, has elicited a great deal of discussion in the Legislature and out of it. In the California Assembly the concurrent resolution protesting against the passage of the bill came up, and finally passed by a vote of 51 to 18:

Mr. Parker said he had the other day moved for the postponement of the resolution to a day certain, in order the better to understand the nature of the question; but he must say that he was not any better prepared to vote now than at that time. If the bill in question proposed (which he was sorry to say it did not) to repeal in toto the grant which extends over this State the Arkansas Swamp Land Act of 1850, it would be but a tardy correction of a gigantic error, from which has sprung a series of the most outrageous attempts at fraud ever attempted on American soil, and out of which has, in a great measure, grown the evils which make California to-day the worst cursed State in the Union. Under the operations of it, as the legitimate results of the stupidity and venality of past Legislatures, scheming aristocrats, who would fain establish a prototype of the systems which make England and Ireland to-day the most accursed places on earth for a poor man, can secure practically unlimited amounts of the finest lands. In the face of the enormous land properties which are vested in the hands of the few and comparatively untaxed, who will say that the Irish land system will not be in full force in the distant future, unless there be a radical change for the better in our laws? To prevent such calamities the United States land laws wisely reserved her domain to actual settlers, limiting to 320 acres direct acquirement of title by any one person, but lands granted to the State may be bought in unlimited quantities nominally at one dollar, and really for nothing save the simple deposit of a small percentage per acre; and on other classes of land scrip and warrants are laid, ad infinitum, overthrowing the fundamental principles of a people's democratic government, and fostering schemes conceived in fraud, nourished by bribery and delivered by perjury and corruption. The whole policy of granting the public domain to States is one to be seriously questioned, involving, as it does, the support of State surveyors, registers, receivers, commissioners, etc. Legislators did not come here to break the influence of any Senator in Congress in order to pave the way for another; neither did they come here to have their eyes blinded against a far worse class of corruptionists by any clap-trap cry of "railroad," but simply to do and act rightly, as they might see the right. The only knowledge which they had of the bill, which it is proposed to crush in the bud, is a fragmentary portion of Senate Bill No. 17, published in the newspapers. [Reads portion of the bill previously published.] Let us inquire by the operation of what railroad grants would such an enormous quantity, if any, of lands would revert to the corporation, and whether the amount of 1,423,531 acres, already listed to the State, bring all that the grabbers could get surveyed and segregated, does not include all that is desirable, or at least so much thereof as to satisfy us to kindly permit the repeal of the obnoxious law? Under the perverted interpretation of the present law, whole townships have been granted simply because the greater part of each smallest legal subdivision is under water during floods or melting snows. Senate Bill No. 17 excludes from patenting as swamp land such subdivisions as are not swamp and overflowed to such an extent as to interfere with their cultivation. The only effect of the change is to throw the onus of proof upon a grabber and carry out the true principles of the system, closing the door against future frauds. For the first time he found himself on the same side with Senator Sargent; and the organized land firms of the coast, for probably the first time, find that Sargent has so far flopped that he stands at date whilst a member of the lower House of Congress, advocating identically the same policy for which he received at that time the warm endorsement of a journal which can now see no monopoly or thieving in anything save the Pacific Railroad Company. In the county of Inyo a little steal of 133,000 acres as swamp and overflowed has been attempted, not a single acre of which can be made to produce a pound of produce without irrigation. Yet it was possible by perjury that land might be segregated under the present law, even though it might be necessary to put water on the same land afterwards to reclaim it. Some nineteen sections of this land have been filed upon and proven up by actual homestead and preemption claimants, and yet the swamp land applicants file their solemn oaths that the land has no occupants or claimants. The man who done this under the present swamp land laws is a United States Land Register under and by virtue of the patronage of Senator Sargent, but whose removal a petition setting forth his rascalities, signed by nearly 400 of the speaker's constituents, has failed to secure. Mr. Sargent was now in well defined opposition to these schemers and hence their wrath. The speaker said he should vote against the concurrent resolution, but would say nothing about the second, although he opined that was based on similar grounds.

—A gentle Quaker had two horses, a very good and a very poor one. When seen riding the latter, it turned out that his better half had taken the good one. "What!" said a sneering bachelor, "how comes it that you let your wife ride the better horse?" The only reply was: "Friend when thee'll be married thee will know."

—A man out west brags that all the furniture and flooring in his house is made of live oak, but his wife who does the hard work of the house, says it's nothing but scrub oak.

Farmers' Homes.

[From The Rural Press.]

We claim to know a great deal about farmers' homes, we have been among them all our life; we have seen and felt their comforts and discomforts, and we know well the sources from whence these conditions spring. And yet among all their innumerable diversity of causes, there is no one more fruitful of discontent to the household than a neglect to make home and its surroundings pleasant.

There is nothing else that can secure contentment to those of the family who must stay at home, equal to a neat and tasteful house in the midst of shade and ornamental trees. Of course, if the owner has these he has good sense, and that makes the garden a necessity. Who ever heard complaint from a family with these surroundings? The boys take a pride in keeping everything tidy, from the lawn in front back to and around all the farm buildings. They like to have their friends who call observe the condition of their home, because they know it will bear scrutiny; in a word, they are proud of their home.

Examples are needful in all communities, and a beautiful, well-kept homestead not only confers a pleasure on the passer-by, but is very certain to prompt a man of any spirit to try and improve his own grounds. Let children have books and papers, let them be surrounded with tasteful natural objects and they will as certainly become more refined in thought from their early familiarity with the beautiful in art and nature.

With such surroundings as we have named very few young men would be found eager to throw off the attachments of such a home for the allurements of city life, its hollow gaieties and dissipations. Farmers, try and make home pleasant, for he who does this is a public benefactor.

The Trade Dollar.

The new trade dollar has been recognized by the Chinese authorities at Canton by a proclamation. Through the efforts of B. Robertson, Consul at Canton, a joint commission was appointed to superintend the assay of this coin; upon the report of this commission a proclamation was published notifying all classes of its acceptance in payment of duties and for general use in its intrinsic value of 89 61 in pure silver. This will be good news for our Government as proving that the object of the trade dollar is rapidly being attained. As we have before stated, the object of the trade dollar was to supersede the Mexican dollar in our China trade. It was, therefore, made to exceed the latter slightly in value, being worth 1-14th per cent. more than the old Mexican dollar. A great demand for this coin may now be looked for within a few months, and a consequent rise in pure silver to be used in its coinage.—Ex.

TO PUNISH DRUNKENNESS.

There will soon be introduced into the Assembly "an act to prevent drunkenness in public places." It provides that intoxication in any public place, in in any hotel, saloon, theatre, or any place of business, amusement or religious worship, or in any street or road, is a misdemeanor. In all incorporated cities and towns suitable rooms shall be provided for the care and custody of intoxicated persons; and in all other places rooms may be obtained when required. In cities and towns a keeper shall be appointed by the Supervisors or Trustees, who shall register the arrival and dismissal of all persons admitted, and shall receive the fines of the same, and make a weekly report and pay over to the Police Court the money so collected, which shall go to an Inebriat's fund, out of which the expenses of the room, keeper, etc., shall be paid. In other places the constable shall be ex officio keeper, and may collect the fines, pay the expenses, and weekly or monthly report to the acting Justice of his township. The supervisors of each county may make such regulations consistent with this act as may be necessary to enforce its provisions. It shall be the duty of all peace officers to take into custody any intoxicated person, and safely keep him in such room so long as he shall remain in a state of intoxication. When sobered, such person shall be released on paying a fine of ---- dollars. Nothing in this act shall prevent a person so arrested from being prosecuted for disorderly conduct, or any crime committed while intoxicated.

The object of the bill is to provide for the withdrawal of drunken persons from the streets and public places, where they are a nuisance to the public, but to prevent them, when guilty of no greater offense than intoxication, from being thrown into such unwholesome, almost loathsome dens as the present cells in most city prisons, respectable citizens unused to drinking, are frequently led into excess and consequent intoxication: such, and all other intoxicated persons, ought to be removed from the opportunity of becoming a nuisance to those who may happen to come in contact with them; but they should be lodged in rooms that would not give them the rheumatism or consumption, and should not be treated like felons. It is intended that the expenses of this more humane mode of treatment will be covered by the fines imposed.

There is a good idea in this bill if it can be worked into practicable shape. It is easier and better to banish from sight for the time being the unfortunates who make their own bodies the vehicles for disgusting, demoralizing whiskey displays than to entirely banish the whisky itself, as some propose to do. Drunkenness is an offence against public morals quite as much as technical "indecent exposure of person," and is far more dangerous to peace and order, life and limb. But the law takes cognizance of and punishes the lesser evil while entirely ignoring the greater and more dangerous. Drunkenness in public ought to be made subject to punishment, and the same law that punishes that ought to go further and give the drunkard pecuniary redress as against him who dealt him the poison, at least after the first time.

How Settlers are Swindled by the Swamp Land Laws.

John M. Days in a letter to The S. F. Post, pays his respects to a certain class of lawyers like William Chairman of the Judiciary Committee in the California Legislature, who are better law breakers than law makers, because they favor that system of legislation that tends to produce litigation, as for instance by the conditions of the present swamp land law, instead of that proposed by Sargent. He explains the working of the present law as follows:

There can be no conflicting titles by the passage of Mr Sargent's bill, because the State can have no legal title to the lands until they are listed to the State; hence no individual can hold through the State title. There can be no conflict with the actual settler under the bill in question, because he pre empts as soon as the land comes into market from the United States Government.

But while there can be no lawful conflict with the actual settler under Sargent's bill, there will be many conflicting titles without it. Men and their families have been turned out of house and home, and will be again under the operations of the present law, if it is not speedily put a stop to. As I said in my letter of last Wednesday, fraudulent returns have been made, including the homesteads of innocent settlers upon high and dry land, as swamp. As soon as these returns are made, speculators enter these lands or send in their names for that purpose in the Land Office at Sacramento. A person wishing to settle on an eligible piece of agricultural land, finds out that the piece he wants has been returned as swamp. He wends his way to Sacramento at the Land Office, but is told that the State owns not an acre of swamp land. He points out the fact of the return, and is told that the land not being listed to the State the office knows nothing about it. He goes to the United States Office and can get no information there. He settles upon the land. In a few years it is listed to the State. He goes to the Capital at his earliest possible convenience, and finds that the speculator has been there before him, and claims his home, and the labor of several years. For the benefit of the settler, it would have been better if the General Government had never alienated a single acre. For the benefit of the speculator, it would be best to have no certainty whether the title is in the State, General Government, College or Indian scrip, and in fact a dozen others if possible so as to confound the people.

A friend just informs me that he had a letter from a Mr. Chapman, in Colusa county, about a year ago. Mr. Chapman and several friends had settled upon high and dry lands, when they were informed that they were swamp, and owned by others. They refused to give up their rights, were dragged into Court; spent what little money they could raise upon lawyers, lost the case, and left the State.

Now, Mr. Editor, I ask, is it not time that something should be done to relieve the poor man from the grasp of the speculator. Mr, Sargent's bill relieves the case just a little, and there is a great lack of intelligence and honesty in the attack made on Mr. Sargent in this case. In fact the withdrawal of the twin resolutions, after the speech of Mr. Williams, proves that the resolutions were introduced in ignorance, and like the Irishman at Donnybrook Fair, who is said to have planted his shillelah on the first head that appeared, they were determined to have a crack at the head of our distinguished Senator on any and every occasion.

Another Cerro Gordo Mining Suit.

Joseph Woodworth entered suit today in the 19th District Court against Matthew T. Gisborn. Both parties were living in Cerro Gordo, Inyo county, September 1, 1869, and that the plaintiff owned a silver mine and defendant a lead mine near that place. They entered into a joint contract to work both mines together and purchase on joint account a furnace already erected in that neighborhood, and divide all the profits, each being equally liable for debts incurred. They purchased the furnace for $5,250, the plaintiff paying this sum with the exception of $977 50, which was paid by the defendant. They afterwards lost the furnace by a defect in the title, and the enterprise proving unprofitable it was abandoned, after the plaintiff had spent $14,000 more than the defendant. There has never been any accounting. Judgment is prayed for an accounting and for $7,000 due the plaintiff.—S. F Post, Jan 26.

We hear through a Salt Lake letter to a friend here, that Gisborn is now receiving the largest daily income (out of the famous Mono mine) of any man in the Territory. If he is disposed to do the fair thing he will come to a "div," though but small, with the few who gave him a boost in time of greatest need—that's what he then said he would do any way. We know nothing as to the merits of the above case.

—The man only is truly brave, who fears nothing so much as committing a mean action, and undauntedly fulfils his duty, whatever may be the dangers that impede his way.

The Loss of the Virginius.

[From The New York Sun, January 11.]

The United States Naval Court to inquire into the exact condition of the Virginius when she was delivered to this Government, her condition generally before and during her voyage from Bahia Honda for Tortugas, and as to the immediate and remote causes of her sinking, etc., yesterday examined Capt. Wm D. Whiting, chief of Rear-Admiral Scott's staff, to whom the Virginius was delivered, Lieut. Marix, who commanded the Virginius from Bahia Honda to her anchorage at Tortugas and Engineer Harris, who made an inspection of the vessel at that point.

Capt. Whiting testified that at the time he took charge of the Virginius her engines showed want of care, but there was no appearance of any leaks about the vessel. The Spanish officer who turned the vessel over to Capt. Whiting reported that she made water and was obliged to be pumped out once in twenty-four hours. A small leak was discovered in the Virginius when she arrived at Tortugas, which appeared to have been stopped by filling with cement. The Virginius was put in necessary repair at Tortugas for her voyage to New York. Had it been possible Capt. Whiting would have docked her as a measure of precaution. He considered the Virginius as in a condition to make the voyage to New York in fair weather and in the convoy of the Ossipee.

The testimony as to the sinking of the Virginius was given yesterday by Ensign George A. Calhoun, who was on board the vessel from the time she left Bahia Honda to her sinking on the 26th of December, and who was the executive officer and navigator. His testimony shows that considerable exertions was necessary to keep the vessel clear of water from her start from the Tortugas. On the morning of December 23, water was gaining fast, being nearly up to the grate bars in the fire-room, and they commenced signaling to the Ossipee, "Making water badly; go ahead faster so that we can work our pumps." Afterward signaled to Ossipee, "Stand in toward land." At 9 A M on that morning threw overboard old iron and heavy weights, and took other means to lighten the vessel, and at 5:30 P. M. same day our fire in forward fire room was extinguished by water. Signaled to the Ossipee, "Will wave red lantern to-night in case we need you." Also signaled "Water rising in the fore-hold. Can go no further north. Dock at Charleston." The Ossipee answered, "Is the water rising in your fire-room?" Reply, "Yes; six inches in the last half hour." Ossipee, "Can you hold out till daylight?" "Yes, if forward bulkhead holds out." Ossipee, "We are bound for Charlestown."

On December 24 Chief Engineer King of the Ossipee went on board the Virginius to inspect her boilers, the crown sheet of the after boiler having collapsed, and at 8:25 o'clock same day the Ossipee signaled, "We will continue up the coast." Her course was then changed to the northeast.

On December 25 there was a moderate gale and a rough sea. The hawser parted early in the morning, but was afterwards secured, and in the afternoon the Ossipee was signaled to take off the crew. At 5 P M. the men came aft and requested that some arrangement be made to leave the ship, they being entirely exhausted. The leak being somewhat reduced, the Ossipee was signaled, "Can hold out until morning."

December 26, a heavy sea. At five in the morning signaled the Ossipee to be taken off, and commenced abandoning the ship about seven in the morning. The men dropped into the boats by means of a line from the forecastle. The boat made five trips, taking about ten persons each trip. About 8 A M. the last boat left the ship, taking the officers and a few personal effects.

Capt. Gore Jones, of the British Navy, and Gen. Sherman were in the court-room during the proceedings, and paid their respects to the distinguised officers of the court.

St. Nicholas.

We have never seen a magazine chiefly intended for children that we can more honestly commend than Scribner's "St. Nicholas," or Boys and Girls' Magazine. "Sweet" candy itself has no more attractions for the little ones than the pictures and very life-like stories of St. Nicholas, and it is by long odds cheaper and better for them. It is quite a large and artistically gotten up monthly, full of good things, pictures, stories, talks with the children, historical sketches, fairy tales, nursery rhymes, jingles, puzzles, etc., and only costs $3 a year. Send 25 cents, if no more, and get a specimen copy. Published by Scribner & Co., 654 Broadway, New York.

—At Anaheim the owners of the Cucamonga vineyard intend setting out several thousand orange trees during the coming season.

Repudiated

We sold our "town scrip" last week, on the "general fund" for twenty cents on the dollar, after having kept it for several months. We would like to know if the lawyers receive their pay in the same kind of coin, and whether this is regarded by the Board of Town Trustees as an honorable way of paying debts.—Visalia Delta.

Newspaper Vagaries.

There is no accounting for the vagaries manifested of late by some of our exchanges, in regard to the route selected and time taken to get here. Until quite recently The Visalia Delta, for an instance, would fail to put in an appearance for three or four weeks at a time and then it would come in full force all the missing numbers together, first having paid a visit to the Bay to see how things were down that way. At least we judge so by its coming by the northern route. On the other hand, our Columbus neighbor, The Miner, and which we are always pleased to see has become mystified in regard to routes since the bad weather began, and once in a while takes "roundance" on us, coming in finally by the southern route, but too much behind time to be of much use. By the way, the last number received, January 24, indicates that Vicker's allowed his forms to come to grief, and that he then had pi till he couldn't rest. Recurring to the original question we could name a number of other papers similarly afflicted—by the bad weather we suppose. Among those which, like the boy's cow, comes up missing is The Havilah Miner which leads us to wonder if the county seat removal in Kern has, or is going to prove fatal to it. We hope not, not that we wish any harm to the old paludal excrescence of Bakersfield, but because we are led to believe that Havilah has a future before it entitling it to the advantages of a newspaper of its own.

The Sports on the War-Path.

Quite a flurry of excitement was noticed among the sporting fraternity yesterdy, and on inquiring the cause, we found that a letter had been received from Virginia city, denouncing the course of the San Francisco Chronicle, in publishing articles against gamblers and their business in the State of Nevada, and trying to squelch them the same as it did in that city. Those who are most interested look upon it simply as a blackmailing business, and have met the issue between them and The Chronicle in a manner that will probably prove effectual. As soon as the news reached Virginia city that the paper was about to commence a war on gambling, a committee was formed, waited on such of the citizens as were subscribers to The Chronicle and stuted the facts, requesting them to stop the paper. The first day over two hundred papers were stopped in Virginia city and Gold Hill, and the work is but commenced. The circular sent here to-day, and to every town,city and hamlet where there are any of the fraternity residing, invites co-operation in the work of decreasing the circulation of the paper. Orders to "stop the paper" are now being solicited in this place with gratifying results to the solicitors, and if each town should do as well, we fear that the circulation of The Chronicle will decrease far faster than the combined energies of those "lightening canvassers" can receive their new subscriptions.—Eureka Sentinel.

Whatever motive The Chronicle may have in this matter, the fact will still be recognized by a large majority of the people of this coast that it has undertaken a good work, and will be sanctioned in it, though the entire gambling fraternity go on the war path against it.

Tax Titles.

A recent decision of our Supreme Court affirms to its fullest extent the principal, always recognized by the courts, but seemingly not understood by the public, that a tax sale and tax conveyance, in due form of taxes, extinguishes all prior liens. Any person, then, who has a lien on real estate, by way of mortgage or otherwise, would do well always to see that the owner of the property has paid the taxes on the same; for if the property is sold in due form for taxes, and a conveyance issues, all liens of whatever kind are thereby extinguished.

Cleansing the Augean Stables.

As there has been an entire year devoted to growling about the back pay steal, and as the distasteful theme has occupied much valuable time of the present session of Congress, it is gratifying to know that the infamous law has been repealed. Excepting the salaries of the President of the United States, and of the Supreme Judges, the new bill fixes the salaries of all Federal officials at the same figures which existed prior to March 3, 1873. The new bill now awaits President Grant's signature. The present Congress has recently manifested a commendable determination to cleanse the Augean stables.

—Never attempt to do anything that is not right. Just as sure as you do, you will get into trouble. If you even suspect that anything is wrong, do not do it until you are sure your suspicions are groundless.

THE BALANCE DUE.

On the 10th of July last the Board of Supervisors made the following order:

Now on this day of final settlement with E. Chaquette, the contractor for the building of three county bridges and the county court house, this Board finds that there is still a balance due to said E. Chaquette, the contractor aforesaid, on the building of said county bridges, to-wit, on the Bend City bridge, amounting to the sum of five thousand three hundred dollars ($5,300).

Two members of the present Board, Messrs. Laird and Hughes, were particularly desired by their respective constituents to look into this matter, and if found to be irregular and unjust in any essential to refuse to authorize any legislation looking to the cancellation of this debt. With a consequent and unavoidable prejudice against the whole original transaction, they entered upon this duty; they find the whole proceeding regular and legitimate and that the contractors are fully and rightfully entitled to their pay, and to that end have subscribed to the request asking the passage of the enabling act. They find that the contractors fulfilled their part of the agreement well and truly. We ought to note here that while Mr. Laird did not fully endorse this point, he found no reason to file an exception. The Board were unanimous in the belief that the contractors, so far from slighting their work, either in material or workmanship, really did better in both than the strict rendering of the agreement required. There is one conditional exception to this which we here note: The Bend City bridge was reported deficient in some particulars, and an investigation was ordered. It was found that too much strain was put upon the main hog chain or rod, but that otherwise in all essential particulars the structure fulfilled all requirements. It was an easy matter to remedy the defect, and that, Mr. J. B. White, one of the contractors, agrees to do in a satisfactory manner or ask no further pay. With this understood this Board could not do otherwise than recommend, as did their predecessors, that the county fulfill to the letter its part of the agreement. The structures are worth every cent of their agreed cost and are a credit to the county, and such being the fact the county cannot in decency refuse to pay for them. We have very good reason to believe that the cost of the work has actually exceeded the payments so far by not less than $2 400. It is not a matter of sympathy with the contractors in respect to actual losses now sustained, but one of simple honorable justice. Those who resort to the "might have been" argument and contend that the old Board ought to have accepted other and lower bids, and thereby kept within the appropriation at their legal disposal, are shut up by the easily established fact that if these bids had been made good, "by good and sufficient securities." (as they most assuredly were not), the work could not have been as well done, or even passably well done, for the money, and the result would have been a suit against bondsmen, or the county would have had to accept inferior work. But the fact has been well established to all but an interested few that but one of two courses was open to that Board in respect to the bids tendered: To accept the only one that was made good, or postpone for another half year or more the whole much needed work by advertising for bids, and, in the light of subsequent events, and with the positive assurance that the only result of the delay would have been an additional loss to the county by reason of the necessary continued use of the expensive substitutes.

But there are a few who oppose the payment of the balance due, not because the work is not a full and fair equivalent for the contract price, but because they assert the Board exceeded its legal rights in agreeing to pay money not at their disposal, and propose to repudiate that excess of authority by visiting punishment upon innocent parties. Now, we assert that the Board did not exceed their proper authority. They made the best bargain for the people of this county that was possible for them to do under the circumstances. They, in this matter at issue, bound the people of this county in no manner further than the people's own innate sense of honor and right bound them selves. This is pefectly plain from the following literal transcription of that part of the original agreement now on file in the Clerk's office. It reads:

Provided further, That if the value of the whole work on all of said bridges (deducting the contract price of the court house, $15,900) shall amount to more than $32,000, the amount for which the bonds of Inyo were sold for Court House and Bridge Fund, the said party of the second part shall not hold said party of the first part responsible for any excess which may be found due on said work, but will apply to the Legislature for an enabling act authorizing the county of Inyo to pay the same.

That is all there is of it on this point, except that the contract price, subject to these conditions, was definitely agreed upon, and there is due on this the sum of $5,300, which has been well earned, and ought to be paid as any other honest debt of the county.

There are a good many persons who appear to think the sum now asked for is for extra work done in excess of the original agreement; that it was for filling in the approaches to the bridge or something of that kind, over and above the specified amount of that kind of work, or rather as a part of the work they agreed to do in the first place, but now charged for as extra. This is entirely an error. There was a small amount of extra work done on the court house owing to a change in the plan, for which an extra charge was made. This we believe amounts to about $300. The $5,000 remaining is all a part and parcel of the price as set in the beginning, and no portion of it is for extra work.

A FINANCE BILL.

In another part of this paper will be found the full text of a finance bill for this county, to which we call especial attention. The bill was drafted by P. W. Bennett, Esq., is concise and plain in its wording and objects, and we feel quite confident that if it is made the law it will place Inyo county on an indisputable cash basis in regard to all current expenses. It meets the full approval of the Supervisors, lawyers, merchants, financiers and all who have become acquainted with its intents and scope, save, with respect to a few, in one particular. That is, instead of consigning any surplus remaining in the fund, after paying all bills drawn against it during the year, to a sinking fund for the redemption of old out standing warrants offered by bids, such surplus is retained in the fund for the payment of the first bills it will cover and drawn thereafter. We shall defer any discussion upon this point for the present, merely remarking that we concur fully with Mr. Bennett and others that the bill is better as it stands in this respect than it could be with the amendment, but there are others again whose opinions are probably worth quite as much who take the opposite view, but all of whom fully endorse the bill otherwise.

But leaving that matter for future consideration, we will as briefly as may be explain the proposed working of the bill for the information of those not fully posted in regard to the status of the different county funds.

It is based on a continuance for perhaps two years longer of the present three per cent. tax. It is expected to go into effect in May next. Immediately after the small balance now standing against the Mono Debt the old Building and Contingent Funds are liquidated all monies accruing under these funds, respectively 45, 25 and 15 cents, are transferred to the Expense Fund, or, in other words, that fund is raised to 75 cents by the absorption of the others which thus become extinct. All moneys received for licenses also go to the Expense Fund, together making a sum total quite sufficient to pay all salaries, juror, witness and all other contingent expenses of the county in cash, or what amounts to the same thing in 7 per cent warrants that are certain to be paid off in coin at the end of the year, and most cases on presentation. The Supervisors have the option of raising this rate for this fund to a maximum of one per cent., or one dollar on the $100 if unlooked for exigencies should make such a high proportion necessary in order to keep the fund on a cash basis beyond peradventure, which is a point of the first importance. All other funds now in existence—the Interest and Building Fund (40 cents applied to the interest and redemption of the 1892 bonds) the 60 cents to the General Fund (no longer a General Fund, but applicable exclusively to the redemption of outstanding warrants in the order of their registration) the 12 cent Sinking Fund, the School, State, Road and Hospital Funds all remain intact, except in the improbable event that the demands of the Expense Fund may make it absolutely necessary to disturb their relative proportions to the possible extent of a few cents to raise it equal to one-third of the whole.

The Supervisors say they can and will run this county, all contingent and salary expenses included, for less than $13,000 per annum, which sum the 75 cents set off to the Expense Fund will cover, with perhaps $1,000 or more to spare. As the warrants drawn against this fund will have but a few months at the most to run, with the certainty that full one-third of them will be paid on presentation, they will readily be received at par in ordinary transactions, among which we include all bills due us for printing and subscriptions. On the other hand all bills against the county will have to be made out on a gold basis, first, because to all intents and purposes they are at once paid in cash and secondly, because the Supervisors are unanimously resolved that no others will be allowed.

We would be pleased to receive suggestions from any source in regard to this bill or any other of like nature, but will remark that the bill will be submitted to our delegation for their action at once, and although there is no likelihood that it will be hurried through with undue haste, assuming that it meets their approval, yet any serious objections that may be discovered or essential changes deemed necessary would be best addressed to them direct; but give us a chance to let our public know what they are in either case.

The Relief Bill.

Following is the full text of Mr. Bennett's finance bill, given for the information of all concerned, soliciting suggestions and amendments if any are deemed advisable, as mentioned more fully elsewhere. The title and enacting clause we leave out:

SECTION 1. The Board of Supervisors, in and for the County of Inyo, in addition to other taxes which they may levy under authority of law, shall, in the year 1874 and annually thereafter, at the same time that they levy taxes for other purposes, levy a special tax of not more than one dollar on the one hundred dollars on the taxable property of Inyo County. Said tax shall be collected in gold coin of the United States in like manner as other taxes, and the money derived from said special tax shall be paid into the County Treasury and shall go toward constituting a fund to be known as the "Expense Fund," for the purpose of paying the general expenses of the County of Inyo.

SEC. 2. After the first day of May, 1874, all monies that shall be collected for Licenses within the County of Inyo, shall be paid into the County Treasury for the use of the Expense Fund of said county.

SEC. 3. The salaries of the County Judge, District Attorney and County Treasurer of said Inyo County shall, after the first day of May, 1874, be paid by warrants drawn by the County Auditor on the County Treasurer, payable out of said Expense Fund, and after the said first day of May, 1874, the salaries of the County Supervisors, County Assessor and his Deputies, County Auditor, Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, the salary allowed the Sheriff for a Jailor, the fees and mileage of jurors and witnesses, the fees of county and township officers for all services which are a legal charge against the county, and all such other bills as may be allowed by the Board of Supervisors under authority of law, and which, without this act, would be properly payable out of the County General Fund, shall be paid by warrants drawn by the County Auditor by order of the Board of Supervisors on the County Treasurer, payable out of said Expense Fund.

SEC. 4. The County Treasurer shall upon presentation of said warrants pay the same, if there be sufficient money in said fund. If there is not sufficient money in said fund to pay any warrant on presentation, the County Treasurer shall register said warrant, and endorse on said warrant the date of presentation, and that the same is not paid for want of funds, and subscribe the same, and thereafter said warrant shall be paid when there is money in the fund, according to its order of registration, priority in payment being given to the warrants first registered as in case of warrants drawn on other funds, and said warrant shall from said time of presentation and registration bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum until said County Treasurer shall give the usual notice of funds on hand to pay the same.

SEC. 5. After the year 1874 no tax for a Contingent Fund shall be levied in the County of Inyo. After the first day of May, 1874, no more warrants on the Contingent Fund shall be drawn, and as soon as all warrants which have been drawn or shall be drawn on said fund prior to May 1, 1874, shall be paid all monies which may remain in said fund, or which may afterward be paid into said fund, shall be placed to the credit of the Expense Fund of said county, and said Contingent Fund shall cease to exist.

SEC. 6. After the year 1874 no tax for a Building Fund shall be levied in the County of Inyo. As soon as all warrants which have been drawn on said fund shall be paid all monies which may remain in said fund or which may afterwards be paid into said fund, shall be placed to the credit of the Expense Fund, and said Building Fund shall cease to exist.

SEC. 7. All monies that may remain in the Mono Debt Fund after paying the outstanding indebtedness of said fund, and all monies that may afterwards be paid into said fund shall be placed to the credit of the Expense Fund.

SEC. 8. After the first day of May, 1874, no more warrants shall be drawn on the County General Fund of Inyo county, and as soon as all warrants that have been drawn or that shall be drawn on said fund prior to the said first day of May, 1874, shall be paid, all monies which may remain in said fund or which may afterwards be paid into said fund, shall be placed to the credit of the Expense Fund.

SEC. 9. All acts and parts of acts, so far as they relate to Inyo county, in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 10. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after the first day of May, 1874.

Discrimination.

The Sacramento Union again calls to notice the arbitrary, foolish and unjust rule of the railroad managers in excluding it from all cars, steamboats and other public conveyances under their control. There is a principle involved in this matter that makes The Union's cause the cause of the people. If a respectable newspaper can be barred at will from public places, the same rule may be applied in personal discrimination. If that paper has not been a true champion of the rights of the people, then we know of no such champion; and if there is any one fact above another to commend it to the support of the people it is this: that a powerful corporation has made it the single exception of all published in the United States, through which to reach and punish those who dare to act and think for themselves.

—"Fred," said a young man, walking up State street in Chicago the other day, after listening to his wonderful story, "do you know why you are like a harp struck by lightning?" "No," says Fred. "I give it up." "Because a harp struck by lightning is a blasted lyre."

A Railroad Proposition.

We hear that Mr. Brady of Cerro Gordo has in contemplation a very important project. If our information is correct, it will embrace a narrow guage road to the mines, the erection of a refinery here at Los Angeles and of new smelting works at the mines. The advantages of this if it be feasible, will be indubitable, and it is further stated that the Cerro Gordo people are willing to subscribe $150,000 towards the necessary capital. If it should be accomplished, hundreds of thousands of bars of bullion would be reduced here instead of being shipped to San Francisco.—Los Angeles Express.Jan. 31.

We are inclined to think that if Mr. Brady's proposition can be reduced to a tangible and practicable shape, the people of Cerro Gordo and the county generally will do a great deal better than $150,000. It is an acknowledged fact that a railroad is the sine que non of the development and true prosperity of this entire section, and any reasonable prospect of securing it would be hailed with the greatest satisfaction.

Swamp Land Frauds.

The Sacramento correspondent of The Alta writes that astounding frauds are being unearthed relative to the swamp lands of this State, in response to a resolution of the Assembly calling on the Surveyor General for a report. A list of swamp and overflowed lands, which are not shown to be such by the State segregations or the United States surveys, is rendered together with the names of the applicants, among which we find the names of A. C. Bradford, late District Judge of this Circuit, and J. M. Johnson, for large tracts of land in Fresno county. Twenty thousand dollars have been drawn in favor of parties who claim to have done that amount in reclamation in Tulare county, on lands that seem to have always needed irrigation. It would be hard to find where this money has been expended. The parties who made oath to these frauds should be called upon to answer. As it is well known who they are.—Visalia Delta.

INDIGENT SICK.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE BOARD of Supervisors of the County of Inyo:

That any Indigent Sick persons, residents of said Inyo County, who seek to obtain the benefit of an act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to provide for the care of the Indigent Sick of the various counties of this State," shall make, or cause to be made, an application to the Supervisor of the district in which such person may reside, or to the said Board Supervisors when in session, for admission to the County Hospital of Inyo County, and that no allowance will be made unless the above order is strictly complied with. And private parties are hereby especially notified that said Board of Supervisors will not be responsible for, or pay any bills presented to said Board for such services.

Hospital Matters.

At the urgent request of Dr. White, the Board of Supervisors will issue proposals for a new letting of the contract for the charge of the County Indigent Sick. We are glad that this course has been adopted for several reasons, but we can hardly undertake a statement in detail at this time, particularly as we have no detailed reports or other data on hand sufficient to give a fair statement of facts. We know there has been a great deal of grumbling about the great expense attached to the care of the indigent sick. We also know that the contract for their care was let on the fairest system that can be devised, to-wit, at so much for each individual taken into the Hospital. We have also good reason to believe that the county bounty has been shamefully abused by men abundantly able to pay their own board and medical attendance, but who preferred a good boarding place and attendance furnished at the peoples' expense instead of their own. There has been a number of these cases reported, but we are not aware that the fault rests with the physician in charge when such persons are sent to his care by proper authority, as we suppose all have been. The contract price for the care of the indigent sick, was fixed at $2 50 in scrip each per day. For this they were to receive board, lodging, medicine and all other necessary attentions consistent to comfort and health. If there were none in the hospital the maintainance of that institution would cost the county nothing, which fact is a matter of some importance when we consider that if the other system had been adopted, a hospital built and maintained by the county with regularly salaried assistants, the cost would have been nearly the same whether there were a large number of patients or none at all in it. The $2 50 paid to Dr. White at the present value of Hospital scrip is equivalent to not more than $1 80 cash—is not unduly large for the advantage of a large well fitted and attended hospital. We know that the last bills rendered against the county on this fund were materially below the contract price. We also know that Dr White would gladly be relieved from all connection with the County Hospital in every respect and have nothing whatever to do with the county indigent sick save in a purely professional capacity as with the public at large. On that account he has urged the change now proposed. In conclusion we will remark it is a satisfaction to know that all our sick in Dr. White's care have been particularly well treated and attended, and that no complaints have been heard on that score.

The Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors have transacted a great deal of business this week which at this writing is not closed nor will not be in time for us to attempt a report in detail before next week. The aggregate of bills presented is fearfully large, but this is no more than might have been anticipated, as they cover a period of half a year including one election and some other necessary but unusual expenses. The total would be large enough, if presented dollar for dollar or on a gold basis, but as it is it takes $2 20 in scrip to liquidate one dollar's worth of actual services, so that the sum total looms up ferociously, and it makes Messrs Bell, Laird and Hughes feel ferocious—but what can they do? We say to those noble would-be reformers, "put yourselves in their places and see if you havn't been slightly in error as to the force and extent of the Supervisors ipse dixit," You can swear and put your foot down and tear your hair and preach ruin or retrenchment and all that sort of thing; but experienced facts have a very different aspect from mere suppositions. Neither the ipse dixit of Congress, Legislature, or Board of Supervisors, can force any man to do a dollar's worth of work for forty cents, and take his pay in an unsaleable article of exchange, or something which is not a legal tender. That can be done only by a mutual agreement, and it takes two or more to make an agreement. The Board is one party only—a fact the reformers, will he nill he, ought to remember. But give this Board the coin or its equivalent to handle and we'll bet a small sum they will make it bring its value to the county straight along, and then we will see a very different condition of affairs thereafter.

Get One.

Rev. A. Clark has a few very beautifully lithographed and illuminated marriage certificates, with proper blanks for filling in names, dates, and cut for two photographs, which he will dispose of to those who desire such a memento of the one most important event of their lives. These pictures, for so they may properly be called, are designed for framing, and make a handsome and appropriate parlor ornament. It should be understood, of course, that they are equally as applicable to the use of those who were married so long ago they can hardly tell when, as to those who have the fact so vividly fresh in their minds as to make them think no further record is necessary.

Not of Sound Mind.

We learn from Dr. White that Ferdinand Myers a young German, who has been for some months under treatment at Camp Independence Hospital, left there suddenly and without notice on the afternoon of Wednesday, February the fourth. When first taken in charge he was sick with a low form of fever, of which he has been cured. He is now well physically, but he is very childish, almost idiotic, in mind—Dr. White has been looking for a place for him (to do away with charges against the county on his account,) where he could work for his board—but as yet with no success—He is considered harmless, if kindly dealt with; and if any farmer may have taken him, Dr. White would advise them to keep him on trial and he will forward his blankets wherever he may be. The Doctor, thinks he may have left to obtain work, as he had told him (Myers) that he was seeking a place for him. He is quite tall and slender, with blue eyes and dark hair, with a small dark mustache, and wore a soldier's (sky blue) overcoat.

The Bids.

In response to the Treasurer's proposals for redemption of county warrants, bids to the amount of $30,000, in round numbers, were received to take up the $1,457,33 in the fund. The lowest bid (by Isaac Harris) was 48 cents, though some of the other warrants offered had just been drawn. Less the interest the amount of county indebtedness liquidated by the $1,457,33 amounts to $3,040. upon which there was from six to twelve months interest perhaps more, due. In order to get warrants embracing the $30,000 in presentable shape, County Treasurer Isaacs had to cast up the interest on no less than sixty of these warrants of various ages and make a record of each. So he is glad that the whole county indebtedness was not brought to bear against this little $1,457.

Passed.

Mr. Parker's bill to fix legal distances from Inyo county to Sacramento and San Quentin has passed both houses If we mistake not the original bill, published by us was amended so as to conform to actual distances by the routes the Sheriff is required to take in conveying prisoners to San Quentin, which route must all lie within State lines. The original bill was based on distances via. Carson in Nevada, which is some forty miles shorter than the one which the Sheriff is required to take through Kern county.

I. O. G. T.

The following named officers of Busy Bee Lodge No. 250, I. O. G. T., were duly installed last evening: William H. Savage, W. C. T.; Sarah Lewis, W. V. T.; R. W. Woolard, W. R. H. S; P. A. Chalfant, W. L. H. S; Peter Hubig, W. S.; John T. Carnell, W. A. S; Margaret Lewis, W. T; John A. Baxter, W. F. S.; J. D. Blair, W. C.; Lula Lewis, W. M.; Theodore Rothschild, W. D. M.; Charles B. Terry, W. I. G.; William Goodman, W. O. G.; R. W. Woolard, L. D.

Protracted Meeting.

Revs. Clark, Orne and Pratt and toward the last McKean, have been holding prayer meetings and preaching every night this week. The attendance has been moderately large, but the interest manifested has not been particularly encouraging. These gentlemen all show a great deal of commendable zeal, and we certainly think, a very fair degree of ability in their sermons.

Rain.

We were favored with quite an extensive shower Monday night. Since then the weather has been of a mixed quality as it has been the entire Winter The unusual moisture this Winter could easily be accounted for if the Colarado had been, ere this, turned into that big lake, but it hasn't, and the weather wise can't account for the way things have been running at all.

Treasurer's Report.

We invite attention to County Treasurer Isaacs' report of the financial affairs of the county. Though it hardly needs any explanation even if time and space permitted, there are several things presented to which we should like to advert, showing that this county is not in such a desperate straight as some are disposed to believe. It will get through all right and no one much hurt either.

For Eureka.

Thos. Laspeyre, Esq, has bidden this section a final adieu, having started by the last stage for Eureka, Nevada where he proposes to locate. He has the warm wishes of many friends here for his highest success, and we truly regret the loss to our locality of such a highly esteemed gentleman and good moral citizen as Mr. Laspeyre.

Lida.

L. Wick, from Lida, has put in his usual semi-occasional, tri-annual appearance. He says the Lida mill is running steadily but people out there don't overflow with happiness some how or other. Their energies are somewhat circumscribed just at this time, but they look for an ample chance to spread soon.

For Bondholders.

There is an advertisement in this issue intended to please the eyes of the holders of 1892 Inyo bonds. They can now get rid of six or seven $500 bonds at par if they are tired of them at 10 per cent.

Religious Services To-Morrow.

Rev. M. M. Pratt, George's Creek, 11 A. M.; Rev. J. McKean, Lone Pine, 11 A. M; Rev. E. H. Orne, Independence, 7:15 P. M. Sunday school at 1:30 P. M.

For Round Valley.

Mr. Parker's bill for the relief of Round Valley School District passed to engrossment January 28, and by this time has doubtless become a law.

Dr. Livingston.

For a week or two past the papers have contained accounts of the death of this noble old traveler, said to have occurred in the wilds of Africa, but as he has been reported dead so many times heretofore, it was hardly thought worth while to make note of the rumor until its authenticity was more fully established. But though not unexpected the universally regretted event of his death is now established beyond a doubt. A London dispatch of January 27 says:

Herr Brenner, the German Explorer in Africa, in a letter to Dr. Peterman of Gotha, dated at Zanzibar, says that Dr. Livingston died on the 15th of August. This date differs from a previous report, but all doubt has been set at rest by an official dispatch received by the Government to-day from Zanzibar, which states that Livingston died at Lobisa after crossing the marshes with water for hours above his waist. The sufferings of the whole party were terrible, and ten of them died in consequence. Members of Cameron's expedition were suffering from fever and opthalmia, but would wait the arrival of doctors to convey the remains to Ujiji. From the latter place they will be conveyed to Zanzibar, where it is expected to arrive next month.

General News.

Some miners at Elko, Nevada, publish strong resolutions denouncing Sargent's mineral bill, and propose to burn him in effigy.

All the employees in the construction department at Mare Island Navy Yard have been suspended. Such things have become chronic at that yard.

Heavy rains are reported throughout the State lately.

It is likely that a Local Option and Civil Damage law (against whisky) will be enacted by this Legislature.

The Governor offers a reward of $3,000 for the capture and delivery of Vasquez alive to the Sheriff of Monterey county, or $2,000 for his dead body.

Judge Waite has been confirmed Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

At Aurora, Indiana, seven persons are lying at the point of death from having eaten fresh pork with trichina in it.

A sharp earthquake, which shook up things quite lively, visited Chelmsford, Massachusetts, a few days since.

Vasquez.

This cut-throat, with a band of twenty others, is reported rendezvoused at Tejon Pass, and great alarm exists in the neighborhood in consequence. A strong force has gone out after him.

Defenseless.

The editor of a newspaper is, individually, the most unprotected and defenseless of men, particularly if his paper happens to be published in a small country town. Whatever side of a public question he takes he inevitably offends somebody, and while he is pursuing the unconscious tenor of his way, the offended individual is maliciously seeking to injure him personally in his social or business relations and too frequently succeeds. What can an editor do? It will never do to right an individual wrong, or resent a personal injury through his paper. He is always too hard at work, too much occupied with the great public questions of the day, to spend time to rush out and break the heads of his personal enemies, or fight them with their own weapons of cunning malice, and so, as we remarked at the beginning, he is unprotected and defenseless as far as personal enemies are concerned.—Santa Barbara Press.

—San Francisco, says an exchange, has a man who makes whiskey, and the people who drink it are fined in the Police Court by the manufacturer's brother. Rather rough on those who patronize home industry.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Reddy, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiffs in the district court of the sixteenth Judicial District of the state of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty thousand Dollars, in U. S. Gold coin, with interest thereon from the fifth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this ninth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

[SEAL] M. W. HAMMARSTRAND,
Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court [SEAL] this 30th day of January, 1874

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND,
Clerk.

FOR AN ORDER OF DISTRIBUTION.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE COUNTY OF Inyo, State of California. In the matter of the estate of Joseph L. Laird, deceased. Order to show cause why decree of Distribution should not be made. On reading and filing the petition of John W. P. Laird, Executor of the last will and testament of Joseph L. Laird, deceased, setting forth that he has filed his final account of his administration of the estate of said deceased in this Court; that all the debts and expenses of administration have been duly paid, and that a portion of said estate remains to be divided among the heirs of said deceased, and praying among other things for an order of distribution of the residue of said estate among the persons entitled: It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of the said Joseph L. Laird, deceased, be and appear before the Probate Court in the said County of Inyo, at the Court Room of said Court, in the town of Independence, in said Inyo County, on MONDAY, THE SECOND DAY OF MARCH, A. D. 1874, at ten o'clock A. M., then and there to show cause why an order of distribution should not be made of the residue of said estate among the heirs of the said deceased, according to law. It is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published for four successive weeks, before the second day of March, A. D. 1874, in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in the said Inyo County.

JOHN A. HANNAH, Probate Judge.

Dated January 19, 1874

A Boy's Ride

[From the Boys' and Girls' Magazine.]

It was a beautiful day in the early spring of 18--. I lived in the West then, in one of those half rural cities for which the West is so famed. I had just started out for a drive.

Just ahead of me I saw walking on the road a very small boy. He was dressed in very plain clothes, known as Kentucky jean. On his head he wore, even thus early in the Spring, a plain straw hat; over his shoulder he carried a bundle, tied up in a red silk handkerchief, and slung upon a stick. In his hand he held his great heavy shoes, whilst he tugged on manfully and wearily, sore of foot, and sore of heart, I had no doubt.

I drove quickly past, then stopped and looked back, and waited until the little fellow came up.

"Halloa," I said, "don't you want a ride?"

"To be sure I do," said he.

"Then why didn't you ask me?" said I.

"Because," said he, "I had asked so often, and been refused so many times, that I had got discouraged, and I didn't think you would let me," with some emphasis on "you."

"Well," I said "get in."

He looked up hopelessly into the cushioned and carpeted buggy, and down at his stick, bundle, and heavy soiled shoes.

"I am afraid I ain't very clean," he said at last.

"Oh! never mind," I said. "Get in, this vehicle was made for use."

"I'd better leave my stick," he said.

"Oh, no!" I answered. "You may wan't it again."

And so he climbed in, and the bundle was put under the seat, and the stick laid between us.

"I never rode in such a nice carriage before, and I don't think I ever saw such horses," he went on, and his eyes fairly sparkled.

"Do you want to drive?"

"May I?"

"Yes, if you know how." And so I gave him the reins, and we were friends at once.

"Who did you ask to let you ride?" I asked.

"Oh! all those men in the great farm wagons."

"And what did they say?"

"If they had a load they said they couldn't, and if they had no load they only smacked their great whips and rattled by the faster, or yelled to me to get out of the road."

"And you didn't ask me. Did you think because I had nice horses, and a fine carriage and wore good clothes, and looked like a gentleman, that therefore I wasn't one?" I said laughingly.

"Well—yes—I'm afraid I did; but," he continued looking me square in the face, "do gentlemen always let boys ride when they wan't to?"

It was my turn to be a little bit puzzled; and I said, "I don't think they do; but a gentleman is one who does all he can to help others and to make them happy."

"Well," said he, "I think you are a gentleman at any rate."

And so I said, "Will you tell me who you are, for I think you are a gentleman also?" and yet he hadn't said "thank you," in words once all this time.

Consumption Curable.

Dr. William Koch of Berlin, well known to specialists from his investigations in the domain of modern surgery, and from his treatise on gun-shot fractures, has discovered a new method of treatment for consumption. It consists in healing up the affected portions of the lungs by injections of iodine, so as to check the process of festering, which is the origin of the disease. The treatment has been tested in the great hospitals of Berlin within a short time, among others at the Royal Charity, in the presence of the most eminent surgeons. All the reports of the cases in which this treatment has been administered are favorable, and hold out a promise of a complete cure. For many years Dr. Koch has been trying the experiment with animals, having tested it with more than three hundred, at a vast outlay of time and money.

The Benefits of Investigation.

This is a good, healthy time for investigation. There is scarcely a public institution which is not at this moment undergoing examination. If any have been left out, they might as well be included without further delay. There is nothing so conducive to free government as overhauling. For a long, long time, the people were careless and apathetic. The idea that there was really an overruling power began to fade away. At least, if there was any, it was so unintelligent and somnolent that almost anybody could bamboozle it. When they came to auditing bills without any creditors names in them in New York the climax was reached. But now the people are fully awake and aroused. There is not an institution in the land, from Congress down, which is not quivering in their firm grasp. We hear from many quarters tearful protests that they will never be guilty of any such little peccadillos again. The average office holder is everywhere on his knees promising amendment for the future. Indeed, the uprising against corruption in official places is as marked as that against the rebellion. If it does not make the earth tremble with its tread it is as real and potent. It has caused a quaking and trembling in places where the idea was prevalent that popular supervision would be an impertinence. We hope it will go on till every dark transaction is unraveled and every official rascality punished. Such an inquiry is eminently calculated to put all good men on better terms with themselves, and to encourage more confident hopes for the future.

The Breath of the Nevada Pass.

Billy Anderson, the well known lawyer, and who is now in this city, and who for some years (since 1866) has been a resident of Eastern Nevada, gives a startling account of the effect of the poisonous fumes from the smelting furnaces there in use. He speaks particularly of the town of Eureka, where these furnaces are very numerous and are scattered through the village. He says that in approaching the place a smell like that of garlic can be detected for at least three miles. Often the smoke and fumes of these furnaces hang over the town in clouds so dense as to resemble a London fog, and the smell of the poisonous gases is almost unendurable. Kittens and puppies die soon after coming into the world, and it is found impossible to rear these animals in the place. A sheet of white paper laid in the open air and left over night, will be covered by a thick white crust. The arsenical fumes mingled with those of lead and other minerals, more or less affect the health of all who reside in the town. Some are but slightly affected, while others suffer severely. The poisonous atmosphere not only affects the phyical but the mental health of many, causing them to become morose, nervous and, in some cases, wandering in mind.—Territorial Enterprise.

The Eureka Sentinel pronounces the above untrue in almost every particular.

The Pueblo Indians in New Mexico.

The Pueblos are ruled by their own customs and laws. They do not vote at the general elections of the Territory, though under Mexican rule they voted and were elected to office equally with the Mexicans themselves. It would require strong argument to prove that they are not citizens of the United States by virtue of a treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and the Constitution as it now stands. In the States of old Mexico the Pueblos continue to be recognized as citizens and to vote as such. President Juarez was a full blooded Pueblo Indian. So have been others of the eminent men of the Mexican republic. From the Pueblos have sprung some of the master spirits. President Guerrero had the blood, so had General Mejia, who was put to death along with Maximilian. The Pueblos of New Mexico are scattered widely over the Territory. They extend from the Taos on the north, down to the Rio Grande, to Isleta on the south, a distance of 165 miles, and from the river westward to Zumi, about 200 miles.

The Pueblos are a peaceable, industrious people, quite free from disorders and crimes. They govern themselves in a fatherly, patriarchal way, and punish under their customs and laws their infractions.—Santa Fe Union.

Trained Pigeons

Paris is now enjoying a street exhibition of tame pigeons. The owner has a portable pigeon house, which he plants at a street corner, the birds being at liberty to remain in or out. Having taken up his position, the exhibitor blows a trumpet, and off fly the whole flock a quarter of a mile or so, settling eventually on house tops and window sills. Another peculiar blast, and back they come. As they approach the Frenchman holds up a small red flag. That red flag is for one particular bird who knows his color, and settles on the staff as the showman holds it horizontally. In like manner are blue, white, and parti-colored flags held up, each of which seems the exclusive property or signal of a particular bird, and on which that particular bird, which meantime has been waiting on some window ledge or housetop, settles.

—George Francis Train says that the story that he puts up his hair in curl papers every night is "a campaign lie.

—Pirckinze of The Cincinnati Times, says that "love in a cottage often leads to a war in Ashantee."

Remedy for Poisoning.

If a person swallow any poison whatever, or has fallen into convulsions from having overloaded the stomach, an instantaneous remedy, more efficient and applicable in a large number of cases than half a dozen medicines we can now think of, is a heaping teaspoonful of common salt and as much ground mustard, stirred rapidly in a teacup of water, warm or cold, and swallowed instantly. It is scarcely down before it begins to come up, bringing with it the remaining contents of the stomach; and lest there be any remnant of a poison, however small, let the white of an egg or teacup of strong coffee be swallowed as soon as the stomach is quiet; because these very common articles nullify a larger number of virulent poisons than any medicines in the shop.

DELINQUENT TAX LIST.

We had an idea that the Inyo Tax List was pretty large this year, but compared to those of all our neighboring counties it is a mere matter of moonshine both in the sum total represented and the space occupied in type. Even Alpine "which is a wery poor county," more than doubles us and that again is more than doubled by Kern, Tuolumne, Fresno, San Bernardino and Tulare each, to say nothing about the civilized counties down along the coast where the advertising papers have to issue supplementary sheets to accommodate their numerous advertising patrons of this sort. As our tax rate is rather higher than any of them and things generally the past year not having been quite so favorable to general prosperity as usual, this comparatively short exhibit of unpaid assessments is proof enough that our people are in the same ratio that much better situated and prospered than are those of the other counties named; and if so now, how will the comparison stand when our most moderate anticipations of general advancement are realized through the probable early development of our vast mineral resources? The counties we have named are all remarkable for their many immense ranches, and a consequent smaller number of individual free holders, the few of this class having to pay an increased and undue share of the tax burden without the advantage of any returns through the saving which falls to thickly settled regions where imported necessaries for each individual, and neighborhood expenses of all kinds are lessened according to the amount of such supplies required and the number there is to help pay such neighborhood expenses—schools, roads, elections, etc. The extra amount thus imposed upon those few freeholders represents very often the whole amount of these taxes, but not having enough for both one or the other goes delinquent, and without doubt, much of it in one way or another is chargable directly to those large land holders who never pay their share of neighborhood expenses, nor poll, nor any other taxes.

"Trivial."

Our much respected Register seems to have found willing ears in his tale of grievances told to Commissioner Drummond. That functionary pronounced the charges against Josiah as "trivial"—not worthy of serious attention, since Josiah told him it was a wicked lie about his having engaged in any swamp land speculations. It remains to be seen whether the Commissioner (or his chief clerk, more likely) likes to be imposed on as a matter of business, or whether it is because he can't help it. At the latest dates, notwithstanding Mr. Drummond's favorable report, the confirmation by the Senate still remained "hung up." It would save trouble to make that a permanent order. Since the above was in type we find this Washington dispatch of the 3d instant in The Sacramento Record of the 6th:

Sargent will oppose the confirmation, as Register of the Land Office at Independence, California, of Mr. Earl, on the ground that Earl is a speculator in swamp lands and cannot hold an office in which he is sworn to defend the interests of the United States by impartial judgment.

Columbus Items.

The Miner of Februrary 7 has the following items, which we give in brief:

Deputy Sheriff D. S. Miller, of San Luis Obispo county, California, was in town last week with a requisition from Governor Bradley for the arrest of Victor Mongallo, alias Ramon Castillo, for a murder committed in the town of San Luis Obispo in June, 1872. Mr. Miller informs us that the San Luis Obispo murder was as cowardly and cold-blooded as that of Rivera, Mongallo having deliberately shot a man through the body, the ball passing out and lodging in the neck of a boy. For a time it was supposed that both of his victims would die, but the boy recovered. Mongallo made his escape, and the Sheriff offered a reward of $100 (not $2,000 as reported) for his capture. Although the officers have kept a kind of hearsay track of him—at San Bernardino, Cerro Gordo, Lone Pine, etc.—nothing positive was known of his whereabouts until the receipt of a letter from Columbus, which reached them on the 5th ultimo. Taken all together, this Mr. Mongallo-Castillo, this double murderer and Mexican bandit, was a very bad egg. But he's a good guerrilla now.

The Pacific Borax Company have levied an assessment of 75 cents a share, delinquent March 2. Those works will start up soon.

The stage will hereafter leave Columbus on Sundays and Wednesdays, connecting with Ulrick's stages south and Wilton's north.

Only a few days since, we saw Mr. Wright's wood wagon, on which were slabs and large pieces of ore (not quartz) from a mine owned by A. Mack, Brown and Smith, and worked by J. Marshall Rogers and others. If that's the kind of turn out, look for a re-turn.

The sale of delniquent stock of the Columbus Mill Company comes off on the 17th.

SINKING FUND OR NOT—WHICH?

It is not a matter of any very serious importance whether in the proposed finance bill provisions are made to transfer all surplus cash remaining in the Expense Fund to the Sinking Fund or allow it to remain to the credit of the former, lessening the levy to pay the current expenses the following year just that much; but as it is claimed there is a principle involved in this question of some importance, it is well to give it all due consideration.

We will assume that after paying off all warrants drawn during the year against the Expense Fund there should remain a balance say $1,000. No warrants could be drawn against this until the next meeting of the Board three months later, and of course this sum would lie in idleness for that length of time, but the small amount of interest thus lost would probably be more than made up in the amount of services it would pay for, since the bills for such services would be made in the certainty that they would and could be paid on presentation, instead of warrants running nine months longer and drawing seven per cent interest. In fact if the demands against the fund during those three months should require $1 000 to pay them off, to keep this money on hand three months to pay them would be to loose three months interest but save nine, or a net saving of six months interest, besides having the certain effect of giving a more tangible value to every warrant drawn against the fund during the whole year say a total of $13,000. What with the income from licenses, fines, delinquent taxes paid up and a small surplus to begin with there would be a reasonable expectation that every bill against the fund would be paid off at sight or within three months thereafter at fartherest, and such bills would be made in that expectation instead of with the inevitable addition that in one way or another would be tacked on many, if it was supposed or known that they could not be taken up before the end of the year. The moral effect in this question would tend equally to the appreciation of those warrants, whether the surplus was quite small or of considerable amount. But when the last dollar is taken from it at the beginning of the year, it will have the effect of depreciating all warrants drawn against it to the same extent as if it was known they would not be paid until the end of the year.

But it is claimed that the surplus used in a Sinking Fund will affect a material saving at the reduced rates at which holders will, by reason of competition, put in bids with the old warrants. With a further issue entirely stopped and a given amount set apart each year for their redemption at par and interest with the whole amount of their outstanding warrants in the hands of a very few persons, they at once attain a fixed value the same as interest bearing bonds, the only difference being that the interest is not payable annually. They have a fixed present value. If a holder has reason to believe that he can make 14 per cent, with his money, he, of course, will sell his 7-per cent warrants that much cheaper. But this business calculation would not likely cut any figure at all in the matter. A combination of the few holders is perfectly feasible and probable. Their bids to surrender warrants would have to be accepted if put in at 99½ cents or at par, in which case the only gain to the county through the use of this Sinking Fund would be in cutting off the interest on an amount equal, or about equal to that in the fund. Every dollar then transferred to the Sinking Fund is that much of an extra tax that we have now to pay in order to shorten the time for paying off the county debt. This time is, in justice to the tax payers of the present day, short enough now. It is already shortened (with respect to the implied understanding heretofore), not less than two years. Now the whole of the General Fund is devoted to that object, besides the existing Sinking Fund which is not interfered with. The two funds together give a total of 72 cents all of which applies directly to the redemption of old warrants, whereas, heretofore a portion of the salaries amounting to about $2,500 came from the General Fund. This gives $2,500 a year more than the holders of these warrants expected for their redemption. If money is worth over 7-per cent to these holders it is worth over 7 per cent to the tax payers, and we are under no obligations to impose a tax to raise one or two thousand dollars surplus every year to hurry the payment of the old 7-per cent warrants and issue new ones at just the same rate and to about the same or a greater amount. This one or two extra thousand dollars should go to the payment of the current expenses for the ensuing year, and the tax for this fund for that year will be reduced exactly the same amount. After the old debt is all paid off, which will be in less than five years, we can then have no use for a Sinking Fund, unless a new debt is contracted, which cannot occur unless the Expense Fund partially fails in its object, in which case there can be no surplus to provide for. In order to realize the full benefits of the Expense Fund it is essentially necessary to have it large enough to meet all demands against it at the end of the year, and to be on the safe side, the Supervisors will place the rate in its favor high enough to insure, ordinarily, a small margin or surplus, but which surplus is carried year after year into the estimates of the succeeding year, lessening the rate for the ensuing year according to the sum carried into it. This can be little if any more than sufficient to pay current expenses accruing during the first three months, but, with current receipts, may give an available margin to meet a portion of the out goes for the next quarter, and so on to the end of the year, accomplishing the real object of the bill, which is to bring the current expenses of the county to a veritable cash basis, the only system that can save the county $10,000 or $15,000 every year, now imposed by the outrageous discount on its paper.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL.

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 2, 1874.

EDITOR "INYO:" The dampest kind of a general wetness has been prevalent hereabouts so long that things seem to have become water-logged; in point of fact there is nothing dry, except the proceedings of the Legislature and the temperance agitation. Said is effusive, however. Sermons, lectures, petitions and all other known methods of firing the popular legislative heart prevail; the air resounds with "local option," "civil damage" and "prohibition," and the chances are that "the people's choice" in the matter will eventually find responsive resonance in the statutes. The most eloquent and leading Senators—Pendegast, Perkins, Finney and others—are enlisted "for the war," and not a few of the Assemblymen stand committed already. The majority will pass the laws in question and then celebrate the event by getting on an economical drunk.

ECONOMY

is individually, collectively and legislatively so much the watchword of the present lawmakers that the Sacramento gin mills are disgusted; proprietors of the places where strangers are kindly taken in and done for consider themselves an ill-used community.

THE LOBBY

is weak; up to date members haven't put their hands behind them and inquired of any man whether there was really any merit in the proposed bill.

Sacramento is dull; duller than it ever has been before when there was no Legislature in session. Many vacant store-rooms are placarded with the significant legend of "To Let," while the streets are by no means encumbered with the rubbish pertaining to the erection of new buildings—nary cumber in fact. Stanford's palace is said to be seeking a purchaser at one-third its original cost, indicating that the case of Railroad vs Sacramento is not to be compromised. The Supreme Court ought to be sent to San Francisco to adjudicate the case in accordance with Stanford's idea of the right. Judge Crocker's grand three or four million dollar picture gallery—the greatest lion in Sacramento—goes on to completion, however, while its poor, unfortunate proprietor is a hopeless mental wreck, softening of the brain being his malady.

FREEMAN'S BILL

to ruin all railroads, which passed the House the other day, will result in the 21st Legislature being as strongly pro-railroad as the present one is anti-railroad—an inevitable reaction resultant from the indorsement of the crudest ideas of pigmy intellects. All of which isn't complimentary to Swift and Freeman. Speaker Estee, the great Dolly, in voting first said "No," but instantly corrected himself, and added in a sotto voce, "I came d—d near voting according to my real sentiments." If anybody believes that Bowers was not about right when he said there wasn't fifteen members who really thought the bill a good one, they are in error. However, the Legislature of

has got through its preliminary skirmishing, and from now forward the real battles begin—apportionment, appropriations, big and little steals, local bills, bills meritorious and bills not so much meritorious. Of considerable proposed

INYO LEGISLATION

I will endeavor to speak in the future. The five able-bodied representalives from the District complain that their Inyo constituents are very lax about informing them as to the right in regard to local matters. If the House could get through another postage stamp grab your correspondent would make a raid on the members and send to Inyo a few postalcies

SEE TO IT.

In another column will be found the address of Mr. Parker, chairman of the Sub Investigating Committee, which fully explains itself, but to which we call the especial attention of all parties in interest, and particularly those who desire to put an end to the swindling land grabbing system which has already reached such immense proportions throughout this State, and now threatens our own county to a greater extent than any other. By coming forward with evidence required now, in time for the action of the present Legislature, the settlers not only of Inyo but other counties will save themselves trouble and expense hereafter. If your farm is swamp and overflowed say so, and let it go on the record as such, but if not, testify to that fact now and save the expense of a trip to the Land Office for the same purpose hereafter. It should be understood that when the State at the instigation of any speculator sets up a claim to, or selects lands alleged to be swamp, after due notice, all parties in interest are cited to appear before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land Office of the district in which this selection is made to give their testimony as to the character of each legal subdivision to which there is an adverse claim. When, as in this Land Office, the interest of the principal examining officer or Register is opposed to that of the General Government and the settlers claiming under its laws, it is plain to see that nothing but point blank testimony to the opposite can avert or change any conclusion he aims to arrive at. The settler can save his own land proper, but he cannot in that count prevent the grabber, whose application is already on file, from taking all the unoccupied lands surrounding him. But all risks on all these points can easily be avoided by giving the testimony required for the use of this Legislature through this Sub Committee, which committee is doing more real dollar and cents Legislation in favor of this State than any other in that body. They are unearthing some astounding frauds perpetrated under the swamp land laws. Some of these have already been but partially; some completely accomplished. Some, among which we find those of our highly respected Register, Mr. Earl, are mere blundering, but gigantic attempts yet in the embryo stage. These gentry first steal the land from the United States, nominally in the interest of the State. They next steal from the State the whole cost of its reclamation, though not one dollar to the section may have been expended directly for that purpose; the cost of digging ditches for fences and running dead furrows for irrigating is added up, which together with proof of the fact (just as obvious at the beginning as at the end) that the land is in a condition for use proves all that is necessary to get back cost and interest from the State. That is to say, they are paid for taking agricultural land and are given the land besides for their cuteness in proving that such lands were swamp and overflowed. But then it is worth something to prove that such lands need reclamation. The amount that has thus been stolen from the State, according to facts laid before this committee, now foots up to $167,000 and the land thrown in. Josiah has asked only $90,000 to reclaim the swamps of Inyo, the drainage of which he no doubt deems very necessary for sanitary reasons. This is why there are several besides Josiah anxious to have swamps in this county; $90,000 properly divided up would remove a large amount of paludal disorders now disastrously affecting many pockets. With the cash for posturage, and now and then the sale of a choice piece of swamp valuable to a poor man because it wouldn't cost much to get water on it for irrigating purposes, a few pockets might be partially cured of their present collapsedness, and a brown stone front in Oakland would do the rest.

But we again repeat that it is cheaper to settle this matter now, than put it off until compelled to fight, and this can be done by at once responding to this request.

Legislative.

Mr. Parker has introduced bills to repeal sections 1542 and 1859 of the Political Code relative to education; also to fix the salaries of Inyo county officers; also one to fix officers salaries in Mono County, also one to prevent stallions from running at large, [this bill has no reference to the above officers]; also a petition from the society of California Pioneers in the interest of Sutter and Marshall.

Another Proposed New County.

Senator Lindsey has introduced a bill to create a new county to be called Monache. This is to be formed from a portion each of Tulare and Kern counties, the northeast corner being located on the head of Cottonwood Creek, not far from the foot of Mount Whitney.

THE COMMITTEE.

The Special Committee appointed by the Assembly to see after the swamp land business consists of Furguson of Fresno, Parker of Inyo, Hammit of Contra Costa, Freeman of Yolo and Kercheval of Sacramento. Parker is Chairman, and if we are not very much mistaken will materially assist in pushing forward a work that will fully entitle him and the committee to the credit of having fairly earned their per diems. The Senate subsequently appointed Lindsey, Finney and McMurray to assist in the investigations. As Lindsey knows all about the business in hand it is thought some tall swearing will have to be done by witnesses, else somebody or several somebodies will get into trouble. The committee is allowed a phonographic reporter and have power to send for persons and papers. They have an immense work before them, more, perhaps, than they will be able to complete this session, in which case it is possible a special commission will be appointed to continue their work. The first case brought before him was that of the Tulare Lake Canal Company. This company never complied with any portion of their agreement, yet Governor Low signed a parchment deed giving them a full title to 89.000 acres of land and for no consideration whatever. Suit will be recommended for the recovery of this land on the ground of having been obtained through fraud. That is only one of a score or more of gigantic and barefaced swindles that have already been exposed by this Committee.

Here is an address from the committee and for which we ask especial attention and also to the remarks relating to the subject matter, elsewhere:

EDITOR INYO INDEPENDENT: Your paper can render an important service to the Legislative Committee at present investigating fraudulent applications for land under the Swamp Land Act, by calling upon the settlers on Bishop Creek and elsewhere to immediately forward to me as many affidavits, duly attested, as can be collected from different citizens, setting forth the true character of the lands sought to be segregated by Josiah Earl and others, the legal descriptions of which have been published in your paper. In all cases it should be averred whether or not grain can be raised upon said land without reclamation, etc., etc.: and any bona fide settler knowing that his claim is covered in the applications of said Earl, et. als., will also place us under obligations by attesting to the fact. Such papers might be sent to THE INDEPENDENT office, from which they should be forwarded as soon as it is possible.

J. E. PARKER,

Survey No. 2. T. 16 s., R. 37 e. Sec. 8, se qr and w hf of sw qr; Sec. 17, n hf of nw qr and n hf of ne qr, containing 280 acres; surveyed for Josiah Earl by Jos. Seely, Dept. Co. Surveyor. Received and filed August 8, 1873.

Survey No. 3. T. 16 s, R. 36 e. Sec. 1, n hf se qr, n hf sw qr, s hf and nw qr of nw qr; Sec. 2, se qr, sw qr, e hf of nw qr and s hf and nw qr of ne qr, containing 800 acres; surveyed for Josiah Earl by Jos. Seely, Dept. Co. Surveyor. Received and filed August 8, 1873.

Survey No. 4. T. 16 s., R 37 e. Sec. 6, lots 1 and 2, sw qr and sw qr of se qr; Sec. 7, ne qr of nw qr and se qr of ne and ne hf of se qr, containing 406 63-100 acres; surveyed for J. Earl by Jos. Seely, Dept. Co. Surveyor. Received and filed August 8, 1873.

Survey No. 5. T. 13 s., R. 35 e. Sec. 24, w hf, containing 320 acres; surveyed for John A. Lank by Jos. Seely, August 8, 1873.

Following the above, and a full list for the State, contained in Surveyor-General Gardner's report to the Legislature, are his concluding remarks in these words:

"In addition to the foregoing, certified copies of nineteen affidavits and applications to the County Surveyor of Inyo county, for swamp lands, have been received at this office in the name of Josiah Earl, and three in the names of other parties. These applications do not designate legal subdivisions, but simply say all of the swamp and overflowed lands in certain sections, without giving the area. Upon referring to the United States township plat of the townships mentioned, I found that no swamp lands were shown, but the sections claimed were returned as high land.

Within the past two years a large number of swamp land surveys have been rejected by me, and returned to the proper County Surveyor, for the reason that there was no official evidence of the swampy character of the land embraced, and the same was shown to be high land by the United States maps, as was the case with lands in Sierra and other mountain valleys. When claimants have notified the office that they would demand an investigation before the United States Surveyor-General, in order to prove the swampy character of the land, I have allowed their surveys to remain on file."

Josiah Earl, of the county of Inyo, being duly sworn, deposes and says he is a resident of Inyo county, and his address is Independence, a citizen of the United States and a resident of the State of California, of lawful age, that he desires to purchase land under the law providing for the sale of swamp and overflowed and tide lands, a certain tract of swamp and overflowed land in Inyo county, lying and situate in Owens River Valley, and more particularly described as all the swamp and overflowed land in Sections No. 6, 7, 8, 17, 18, 19, 20, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, in Township No. 12 S., R. 35 E., M. D. B. and M., and that he does not know of any valid claim to the same, other than his own, and that there are no settlers thereon.

Sensation in Washington.

A Washington dispatch of the 4th instant says: There is a great sensation in this city to-day over the dispatches to The Tribune. That paper prefers charges against the President, the Cabinet and Congress, and says those who have not accepted bribes of money or presents are few. It claims that all subsidies are got through Congress in that way. It threatens to give names and connections.

A CARD.

Some Slanderous Tongues.

As it was told to me the other day that I and my husband were going to separate, I thought I would satisfy the people by informing them that they had better attend to their own business and let my husband's and mine alone. As some busy slanderous tongues that have nothing else to talk about but to tell lies on others, let that person be a women or a man that told that me and my husband were going to separate, told a bare-faced lie, and without a cause. We have got the first time yet to think of such a thing, for a better man to a woman never lived in this world, and we hope God will bless us and help us to be a pleasure to ourselves and our children. I had some thought of going to pay my dear old father a visit this Spring, but have not the slightest idea of remaining more than a few weeks away from home. I want people to look at their own homes and see if they can't find enough to do without attending to others separations. When my husband and I separate it will be death alone that will break the strong tie that ties two hearts as one together, for I think, as other women should think, that I have got the best husband in the world.

PROPOSALS FOR THE CARE OF INDIGENT SICK.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT SEALED proposals or bids will be received by the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county at the County Clerk's office of said county until 12 o'clock M., on the first (1st) Monday in May, A. D. 1874, for the care of the indigent sick of Inyo county for the term of one year, to include board, lodging, nursing, washing, medical attendance and medicines. The medical attendance must be given by a physician having the qualifications as prescribed by law. Said bids or proposals will be opened between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock P. M. of said day; and that the person or persons who shall make the lowest bid therefore and to whom such contract may be awarded, shall give good and sufficient bond in double the amount of such contract price, as shall be agreed on, for the faithful performance of the same. The care and management of said indigent sick by such contractor shall at any and all times be subject to the inspection of said Board of Supervisors or any member thereof or to any person by them appointed for such inspection. The right to reject any and all bids is reserved by the Board.

By order of the Board.

Tin Wedding.

One of the neatest and most enjoyed little social affairs we have had for a long time occurred last Saturday evening in the way of celebrating Mr. and Mrs. P. Reddy's tin wedding. Mrs. N. Rhine was the major domo of the occasion, and came down on the unsuspecting couple with almost one hundred ladies and gentlemen. It was pretty much a surprise, or would have been to most people, but the bride of the occasion is too much of a housekeeper to have need to feel "put out" with visitors, no matter how many come. The wine, welcome, cake and mayhap something stronger were there in profusion, and it would all have been well enough, except the bridegroom tried to blush and feel abashed at the honor tendered in a neat speech by Mr. Gregg, spokesman for the many present. We understand now from the speeches of these two why brass weddings for lawyers were not inaugurated—the supply of the article, outside the profession, would not equal the requirements. No offense intended by these sorry jokes, no more than if we were to say there is no need to give lawyers tin because they'll manage to get enough of that for themselves. There's where they differ from newspaper people—they never have brass enough to insure them any tin worth speaking about. After a pleasant hour all, bride and bridegroom included, repaired to the Blaney House, and there, with good music, followed the best dance of the season. It was a pleasant affair throughout.

The First Meeting.

A few days since "ye noble taboosers," had a most spirited meeting here. They grew tall and expanded laterally and longitudinally as in logaœdic song they told of the "days when they went taboosing," and how they Hughe(d) their way through many troubles dire, and Harris(d) the natives, and Brady(d) their hair, and used a Lake to pickle 'em, and had to Passmore days of short commons than anybody, often having to put up with a Gill when they needed a pint or even Moore but, for all that, they were always Reddy to stand by the Happy Land of Canaan. That is about what they said and sung anyhow.

Panamint.

Mr. Gibbens of Panamint informs us that "The Wonder of the World" company (lately incorporated) are actively engaged in preparing to build a mill. Awaiting this and other works the thirty or forty miners now out there are taking things easy—they havn't many good clothes nor very much good grub nor much loose change about their clothes, but they do think they have some of the best mines in the world so they hang on in great faith, and fear not.

The Proceedings.

We give this week a full synopsis of the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors. The amount of bills paid is very large but by far the greater portion of them are for permanent fixtures and other extraordinary expenses not likely to occur again soon, if ever. The time that has elapsed (half a year) since the last payments, together with the 60 per cent discount figured in, cause the ordinary expenses to loom out much larger than common.

For America

L. Schneider thought it was a good joke on Schneider when we reported that he was destined for Panamint, when in reality he was going to Wisconsin to settle down and devote his undivided attention to Mrs. Schneider that is to be. He expects to pan a mint of happiness by following out that plan, and it is happiness, though tempered down by Wisconsin's hyperborean frosts, he is after and not the worry and wealth of torrid Panamint.

New Paper.

It is already started and is under the auspices of the Independence Literary Club, Geo. Gill and B. H. Yaney editors pro tem. It is a pretty good paper, and the first number is full of nubby jokes, heavy literature, etc., and no doubt tends materially to increase the interest that the young folks (all ought to) feel in the society it represents.

For Proposals.

We would direct attention to the advertisement for proposals to take care of the County Indigent Sick. Don't put in your bids so low as to make it necessary to starve and neglect the patients in order to keep even. We don't want any "indignant" sick on that score nor indignant Supervisors on the opposite.

Back Again.

F. Ditsworth and A. Kane sailed away for Panamint the other day, but hearing that things in that promising camp were much in statu quo just at this time, tacked ship and "comed back agin." The grass not having started yet there is no feed for any animals in the district at this time.

Warrants Payable.

There is some cash on hand to redeem some more warrants. See notice

Preaching.

Rev. F. McKean will preach to-morrow at Lone Pine at 11, A. M., George's Creek 3, P. M. Independence 7:15 P. M. Rev. Mr. Orne, Independence, 11, A. M. Rev. M. W. Pratt, at Round Valley. We shall be able next week to give a standing directory for the present month and the first week in the next month.

Deputies.

Assessor Dillon has appointed John N. Modie, of Bishop Creek, John B. White, of Independence and Thomas Passmore of Olanche, Deputy Assessors and Collectors of taxes on transient property. They start on the war path the first Monday in March.

Paid Up.

Since the first publication of the delinquent tax list fully one half the delinquents have come up to the captain's office and settled. The whole amount subject to sale will not exceed $2,000 and perhaps not half that sum.

For Lida.

P. Reddy, Esq., with L. Wick started yesterday on a tour of inspection out about Lida Valley. It will take almost two weeks to complete the inspection and get home again.

New Shop.

Mr. Broder has re-established his butcher shop at Lone Pine, so that the beef eaters down that way can choose their cuts and pay accordingly.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors met in regular term Wednesday, February 2. Present J. W. P. Laird and A. N. Bell, President.

Bids received in response to Treasurer's advertisement for the surrender of warrants opened. Isaac Harris' bid at 48 cents being the lowest the award, amounting to $1,454 33, was made in his favor. Amount of warrants redeemed, including interest, $3,030 20. Total number of bids or warrants offered were 61, representing some $30,000.

On Thursday J. R. Hughes having entered upon his duties, there was a full Board present.

On petition of the citizens of Cerro Gordo W. C. Snodgrass was appointed a Justice of the Peace for that Township.

It appearing that the sum of $3,327 26 remained in the Interest and Building Fund after the payment of all accounts against said fund to date, it was ordered that a notice for the redemption, by sealed proposals, of the 1872-92 bonds to that amount be published in The Inyo Independent and San Francisco Examiner for the space of three weeks.

R. Hilton was appointed Road Overseer for Round Valley Road District.

J. S. Bodle was appointed to the same office for Big Pine Road District, with authority to inspect and make all necessary repairs to the Big Pine bridge to secure it from danger of destruction by high water.

Ordered, that a notice relating to indigent sick be published for four weeks in The Inyo Independent, for the information of all concerned. [See notice elsewhere.—Ed.] Also a similar notice inviting proposals for the care, board and lodging of indigent sick. [See notice elsewhere.—Ed.]

J. B. White was appointed Road Overseer for Independence Road District.

J. G. Dodge same for Lone Pine District.

W. G. McCrosky same for Bishop Creek District.

On Saturday the work of drawing for jurors was completed.

Ordered, that the County Assessor be allowed two Deputies.

The bills presented by the following named persons were ordered passed subject to amendment and re-presentation: A. L. Freedman, J. O. Grant, M. D., F. P. Ball, V. G. Thompson, W. C. Columber, M. D., and P. G. Gelcich, M. D.

Report of survey of county road in Round Valley received and accepted, and road as surveyed ordered opened as a public highway. The road begins at northwest corner of Township 5, running thence to Clausen's ranch, Township 7.

Ordered, that E. Chaquette, contractor, having faithfully fulfilled his bridge and court house contract, that there is a just balance due according to the terms of said contract of $5,360, and that the Hon. Legislature be requested to pass an act authorizing the payment of said balance.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

Board adjourned to meet in special meeting March 7, 1874, to receive and act upon bids for the surrender of 1872-92 bonds, as per notice.

DECISION BY THE COMMISSIONER.

Following is Commissioner Drummond's decision in the Doyle-Wiswall case. We have no comments to offer, except that the case will likely be taken up on appeal:

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23, 1874.

Register and Receiver, Independence, Cal.

Gentlemen.—This office has examined the contested case of John N. Doyle vs Wm. T. Wiswall, involving the NW 8, 9 S. 33 East, unoffered land, trial had July 31, 1873, and find as follows:

The records of this office show that John N. Doyle filed D. S. 411 March 18, 1873, alleging settlement Jan. 10 1873, Wm. T. Wiswall filed D. S. 407, Feb. 19, alleging settlement Feb. 14, 1873.

From the testimony it appears that Doyle first settled on this land January 10, 1873, having bought the possessory right from one E. Mallory for $800. His improvements consist of a house, corral and some two or three acres under cultivation. His residence upon the land, though not continuous, is still of a character that would indicate his good faith as a pre-emptor. He being a poor man, has been compelled to be away from the land pursuing his business as a teamster.

Wiswall claims to have made his first settlement upon the land Feb. 14, 1873, by sleeping upon the land in the open air wrapped in his blankets. The evidence on this point is very meagre outside of his own testimony; none place it earlier than the 27th of February, when he moved his house upon the land in contest. From that time until the June following, his residence was continuous; from that time until the date of trial his residence was very irregular.

Both parties are qualified pre-emptors and their filings are in time.

From the above showing it appears that Doyle was a prior settler and no abandonment being shown on his part, he is adjudged to be entitled to the land and should be allowed to enter, upon showing a further compliance with the pre-emption law to date of proof and payment. You will notify the parties in interest of this action and allow the usual sixty days for appeal.

Respectfully,

WILLIS DRUMMOMD,
Commissioner.

Arizona Diamonds or What?

The Arizona Miner of January 24 publishes the following Wickenburg dispatch which is almost as "fishy" as The Eureka Sentinel's squaw burning story:

John McCorgudale, came in yesterday evening and reports a most wonderful discovery in the Aquarius mountains. He has been out about forty days, starting in at a point about twenty-five miles from this place, and in passing up a canyon he noticed the formation as being peculiar and showing signs of recent travel. On his return through the canyon he found a fresh living stream running down through the middle of the gorge, which had evidently been made by the shock of an earthquake or by the heavy rains bursting out from some underground passage. On following the stream to its source he found a fissure in the rocks out of which it seemed to come. Providing himself with torches he forced himself through the fissure, wading the stream for a hundred yards, when he came to an immense cave or cavern. Here he found old mining relics such as picks, shovels, etc., made out of stone and copper. On one side he found what he considered to be tombstones, with numerous tablets and hyeroglyphic pictures and writings. One of these tablets, made of copper, he tore off and brought with him. It bears the inscription, "sit tibi tera levis." In another place he found a stone box which he broke open and found some very ancient coins. On some of them the word "Pezzo" can very plainly be made out. Another tablet, found on the hard granite wall bears this inscription "Justa idra muros." He also found a scabbard, richly embroidered and having a coat of arms of solid gold, set with precious stones.

The place bore evident traces of many people having lived there at some previous time. And that they excelled in mining and some other arts is beyond a doubt.

He also carried away other and valuable articles which he declines to exhibit. He goes to San Francisco immediately, where he will exhibit curiosities and make arrangements to come back soon and thoroughly explore the cave and the mountains in the vicinity. It is the opinion here that there is immense wealth buried some place in the cave. Many men are fitting out to make a search for the cave themselves. McCorgudale feels safe in holding his secret. His story has created the greatest excitement among those to whom he told it and exhibited specimens.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Reddy, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to William Watt, William B Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiffs in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars, in U. S. Gold coin, with interest thereon from the Tenth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America, as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this Nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy four.

[SEAL.]

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND,
Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, [SEAL] this 30th day of January, 1874.

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND,
n189m2 Clerk

FOR AN ORDER OF DISTRIBUTION.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE COUNTY OF Inyo, State of California. In the matter of the estate of Joseph L. Laird, deceased. Order to show cause why decree of Distribution should not be made. On reading and filing the petition of John W. P. Laird, Executor of the last will and testament of Joseph L. Laird, deceased, setting forth that he has filed his final account of his administration of the estate of said deceased in this Court; that all the debts and expenses of administration have been duly paid, and that a portion of said estate remains to be divided among the heirs of said deceased, and praying among other things for an order of distribution of the residue of said estate among the persons entitled: It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of the said Joseph L. Laird, deceased, be and appear before the Probate Court in the said County of Inyo, at the Court Room of said Court, in the town of Independence, in said Inyo County, on MONDAY, THE SECOND DAY OF MARCH, A. D. 1874, at ten o'clock A. M., then and there to show cause why an order of distribution should not be made of the residue of said estate among the heirs of the said deceased, according to law. It is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published for four successive weeks, before the Second day of March, A. D. 1874, in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in the said Inyo County.

JOHN A. HANNAH, Probate Judge.

SADLY TRUE.

How the Editor Reads the Paper—His Daily Agony and Sufferings Dire.

[From The Danbury News.]

The sensations of an editor on first glancing over his paper and detecting errors are somewhat different to those experienced by the reader on making like discoveries. The latter is either amused at the blunder or incensed at the carelessness which caused it, and in both cases arrives at the conclusion that the trouble is avoidable, and that the editor is to blame for not avoiding it. He never saw an editor take his first glance over the copy of an edition. Perhaps the edition is worked off before this opportunity is afforded the weary man. He has either trusted the proofs to some one else, or read them himself, but the feeling of dread is just as great in the latter as in the former case. The proof reader may not have consulted the copy and so perpetuated the blunder of the compositor, and perhaps the compositor may neglect to undue the wrong he has done, although his attention may be plainly called to it on the proof. When the editor is about to make this preparatory survey, he does not take a cigar in his mouth and elevate his heels to the desk, as is the popular tradition. Dying men don't do that way, you know, and we have come to the conclusion that an editor examining his paper feels like a man about to pass into eternity. He reads along carefully and slowly, like a man feeling his way across a piece of doubtful ice. Suddenly his face become distorted with an awful pain. He does not cry out, he dosn't rant; the anguish within him is so broad, deep, and intense, that he dare not trust it to words. He just simply reaches up and takes a handful of his own hair, and tugs at it till the tears come to his eyes. Then he picks up the paper, which he has taken the precaution to kick across the room on discovering the error, and resumes the torturing search; for after all it is but a search for errors and agony, and not an agreeable and instructive perusal. Suddenly he groans—not the expectant groan like from one who hopes for help to reach him through it, but the groan of one who is beyond the reach of hope, who feels that the warm sunshine, the kind glance of friendship, the beautiful flowers and the song of the birds had gone forever and forever from him. It is a smothered groan accompanied by a kick out of the leg, as if the party had in that moment taken leave of all things earthly. There is still another search with aching eyes and throbbing brain, and then the paper is smashed down on tke floor, and the infuriated man bounds up from his chair, and puts both hands in his hair, and dances round the room like a mad man. He does not call upon heaven and earth to witness what he is going to do, and to blight him if he should not do it. He dosn't dash into the composing room and scorch the men with his wrath. Even this slight relief is denied him. The paper is worked off, and the search that would cheerfully find a needle in a haystack, falls paralyzed in the search for the author of this great wrong. He dosn't say anything at all—not a single intelligible word escapes his ashen lips, as he holds his hair and prances about in the dingy solitude of his room. And when he is done, he puts on his hat and rushes forth into the street, rushes anywhere to get away from the face of man, to get away from himself and everything belonging to himself.

More Pipe.

The Cerro Gordo Water Company have suspended operations on account of the snow. Mr. Barber is expected here in a few days to manufacture 2½ miles more of pipe for the company. This will make fourteen miles of pipe in all which this company will have to supply this important region.—Los Angeles Express.

—Boston has one saloon called the "Whale's Tooth." Another is soon to be opened which will be called "The Fla Bite."

Re-Districting.

The Committee on re-apportionment of the State, have taken the bill of Ammerman as the basis, and are busy at work adjusting the same. The basis will be upon the census of 1870. The bill gives one Senator to every 14,000 inhabitants, and one Assemblyman for every 7,000. Following is the outline of the apportionment thus far made:

San Diego, 1 Assembleyman; San Bernardino and Kern, 1 Assemblyman; The 3 forming 1 Senatorial District. Los Angeles, 2 Assemblymen, 1 Senator.

Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo, 1 Assemblyman each; to elect 1 Senator jointly Fresno and Mono, 1 Assemblyman; Tulare and Inyo, 1 Assemblyman; all four counties electing 1 Senator.

Mariposa and Merced, 1 joint Assemblyman, and Stanislaus 1 Assemblyman; the three electing 1 joint Senator.

Santa Cruiz and Monterey, 1 Assemblyman each; Senator jointly.

Santa Clara, 3 Assemblymen and 2 Senators.

Alameda, 3 Assemblyman and 2 Senators.

Contra Costa and Marin, 2 Assemblymen and 1 Senator.

San Joaquin, 3 Assemblymen and 1 Senator.

Amador, 1 Assemblyman, with a joint Senator with San Joaquin.

Tuolumne and Calaveras, each 1 Assemblyman, with joint Senator.

Sacramento, 3 Assemblymen and 2 Senators.

Solano, 2 Assemblymen and 1 Senator.

Yolo, 1 Assemblyman, with joint Senator with Solano.

Napa and Lake, 1 Assemblyman; Mendicino, 1 Assemblyman, the three counties 1 Senator.

Sonoma, 3 Assemblymen and 1 Senator.

Placer, 1 Assemblyman and 1 Senator; El Dorado and Alpine, 1 Assemblyman and 1 Senator, the three counties 1 Senator.

Yuba, 1 Assemblyman; Sutter and Yuba jointly, 1 Assemblyman and Senator.

Butte, 1 Assemblyman; Plumas and Lassen, 1 Assemblyman, the three 1 Senator.

Siskiyou, 1 Assemblyman; Shasta and Trinity, 1 Assemblyman, the three one Senator.

Humboldt, Klamath and Del Norte, 1 Assemblyman, and 1 Senator jointly Colusa and Tehama, 1 joint Assemblyman and Senator.

In addition under this apportionment San Francisco will be allowed 21 Assemblymen, 10 Senators, with a joint Senator from San Mateo, which latter county is also allowed 1 Assemblyman. This preliminary apportionment gives 3 Assemblymen to spare, and a subcommittee has been appointed, consisting of Amerman, Bowers, Hay, McCallum and Norton, to report as to their disposal.

Too Strong For the Teacher.

On unlocking the Pleasant Grove school house, Sacramento, recently, a new scholar was found occupying the underside of one of the seats. His name was skunk. The Sacramento Union says: "The teacher concluded that his rank was higher than he ever had anything to do with, and intimated to him that he might consider himself at liberty to withdraw. This intimation did not serve, the new scholar having evidently determined to have one day's schooling at least. Thereupon the teacher and pupils determined to put him out, and commenced a war of aggression, but the closer he was pressed upon the stronger he grew, and eventually his assailants were compelled to retreat, leaving him possession. For ten days school was not kept in that building, and in the meantime his skunkship took up quarters beneath the structure, and at last accounts he was still there. The teacher, however, keeps a shot-gun at hand during school hours, and has a patrol of urchins watching for the enemy to come out."

Remedy for Wounds.

A correspondent of The Country Gentleman gives the following remedy for painful wounds: Take a pan of shovel of burning coals, and sprinkle upon them common brown sugar, and hold the wounded part in the smoke. In a few minutes the pain will be allayed, and recovery will proceed rapidly. In my own case a rusty nail had made a painful wound in the bottom of my foot. The pain and nervous irritation were severe. This was all removed by holding it in the smoke for fifteen minutes, and I was able to resume my reading in comfort. We have often recommended it to others with like results. Last week one of my men had a finger nail torn out by a pair of ice tongs. It became very painful, as was to have been expected. Held in sugar smoke for some twenty minutes the pain ceased, and it now promises speedy recovery.

A Good Bill.

Some time ago The Danbury News Man facetiously stated that California and Nevada were the only States in which a man had to pay five cents to get a quarter of a dollar changed. Senator Jones has introduced a bill authorizing the coinage of twenty cent pieces. This will remedy the vexatious bother of making the change complained of by The Danbury News man.—Virginia Chronicle.

Correct.

Our friend Chalfant, editor of the Inyo (Cal.), Independent, disclaims all intention to belittle the mines of Wallipai district, Mohave county, this territory, in his recent article, which was based on the assertions of some restless prospectors just returned from Wallapai. All right Mr. Chalfant, we never thought you did, and hope you will consider our remonstrance in the light of a friendly hint to not put too much faith in the thoughtless assertions of "returned prospectors."

The mines of Wallapai show for themselves. They have won the esteem of the Messrs. Raymond and other keen mining operators, which ought to convince every miner on the coast that being worthy of such notice, and of such men's cash, they cannot be written or talked down.—Arizona Miner.

A MEAN ATTACK.

An obscure little sheet published in San Francisco, called The Sun, came out a few days since with one of the foulest attacks against the De Youngs of The Chronicle that has ever appeared in print. At least that is what The Post says about it. This article most foully libelled the female members of the De Young family, not excepting the aged grandmother, who is a lady of the highest respectability. The libellers, editor, publisher and printers, were all arrested and put under bonds, but the printers went to work soon after to get out another edition of the dirty sheet. They were caught at it, and Gus. De Young attempted to settle the hash of the foul writer, one Napthaly, by shooting him, but failed, and was himself arrested and put under bonds. The excitement attending these things affected the entire city, and at latest dates still continued. So great was the anxiety of the public to see the article in question that $2 50 was a common offer for a copy of The Sun containing it, but none could be obtained, as the paper had been entirely suppressed. Since the attack was mainly upon innocent and irresponsible parties, ladies of the family, and an outrageous lie in all essential particulars relating to them, we think it is a great pity that De Young had not been allowed to put a permanent quietus on the two wretches, Napthally and Fitzgerald. This Fitzgerald not long since sued The Pacific Coast Review, a very respectable journal, for a very large sum in damages in having called him a bigamist, liar, thief and other appropriate names, for such they proved to be, he having signed a libel to that effect and without getting a cent for damages. He then started The Sun as a blackmailing sheet, and The Chronicle as in duty bound exposed him, and hence this trouble.

The foregoing was in type for last week's issue, but like much other matter of current news, was crowded out. After several days' investigation Michael and Gus. De Young of The Chronicle were, on the 11th instant, bound over in the sum of $5,000 each to keep the peace as to B. F. Napthaly, of The Sun. On account of some irregularity in the papers, all the complaints against The Sun printers for libel of the De Young's were dismissed, and they were re-arrested and admitted to bail in $300 each, instead of $5,000 each as before.

An Indian War.

A war with the Fort Laramie and Red Cloud Agency Siouxs is now deemed inevitable. It is the work of swindling agents and contractors who steal the supplies intended for the Indians forcing them to either steal or starve. They can starve in peace and quietness but the moment they steal a cow from an agent to avert that fate, agents and the contractors who share with them raise a howl for blood and more stealings. This Christian nation, overflowing as it claims to be with the milk of human kindness and noble sentiments towards the oppressed of all climes, stands languidly by and permits those men to perpetrate more cruel oppressions on the helpless red man for filthy lucres sake than would shame the most barbarous nation on the face of the earth. It will never be any better in our candid opinion, until the whole management of Indian affairs is turned over to the military, and the sooner that is done the better, both for the red man and the good name of this Christian nation.

To Enlarge.

Major Truman is going to enlarge his paper, The Daily Los Angeles Star, to eight long columns to the page. It will then be the largest daily in the State outside of San Francisco. This course is made necessary on account of the general increase of business in Los Angeles county, which means a heavy pressure on the advertising columns to the exclusion of reading matter. The Daily Express is also adding to its stock of material and machinery, though it does not propose to enlarge just yet.

Ladies vs. Whisky.

The Ohio ladies have entered upon a most determined war against whisky. In the most prominent towns of the interior, precinct meetings are organized in their rooms or on the sidewalks; patrols are kept through all kinds of weather. They visit saloons and shame the owners into terms.

—A bill to repeal the revenue tax on whisky is before Congress.

THE MINING LAWS.

Ward's proposed mining law, requiring the expenditure of $500 in labor and a compulsory patent within a year from date of location at a cost of $10 per acre, surface area, is condemned everywhere. Sargent's bill is entirely different in its intents and wording, but the two have been confounded or considered as one and the same. Sargent's bill, as it now stands, permits the entry of any land not shown as mineral either placer, lode or gravel at the date of entry, in bodies the same as other lands not lying within a mineral section. All subsequent discoveries of minerals upon entered land would become the property of the land owner irrespective of the claim of any other person making such discovery. This law affects the western foothills of the Sierra Nevada almost exclusively. It is a matter of small consequence whether it is to give the railroad a large body of such lands or not, so far as the principle is concerned. Any law that could give that corporation titles to such lands would do as much for thousands of private individuals, desiring such for agricultural purposes only, but unable, as the law now stands, to obtain any title at all. It is a difficult matter to enact a general law regarding mineral lands of this mixed class that will meet all the requirements of justice and policy. It is hardly right to bar settlers from such large areas of lands, valuable for various agricultural productions, and yet it is equally as objectionable to bar miners on the other hand. The lands ought to be made subject to entry as agricultural but allowing a contingent right to miners to prospect for, and to work and own any mines they may find, conditional on the full payment of damages suffered by the owner of the land. However, we on this side are not likely to be affected by this law one way or the other, but not so with Ward's bill, should it become a law, which is not all likely, as all our Pacific delegation are strongly opposed to it. Such being the case it is not now worth the trouble of consideration.

But speaking of mining laws we note that Commissioner Drummond has recently decided that under the present law (act of May 10, 1872) when a party has located a mining claim in accordance with the local laws and customs and the Congressional enactments he has the right to hold such locations, and so long as he does comply with local laws and Congressional enactments, no other party has the right under the law to prospect for other veins or lodes within the exterior boundaries of such location.

If prospectors can be excluded from prospecting for distinct ledges within three hundred feet on either side of the simple possessory claim of another, we see no good reason why the same rule might not be made to apply to a much larger area, even to 160 acres, but we don't think it would be right or in conformity with the true intent of the mining law in either case. The first claimant is guaranteed the exclusive enjoyment of his own discovery or ledge, and the simple use of sufficient surface area for its convenient working, and nothing more in right. The right to prospect any where within reasonable limits and restrictions ought to remain intact, and as custom has always permitted heretofore.

An Apache Massacre.

A Los Angeles dispatch from Tucson, February 9th, says that a party of Apaches who recently broke away from the San Carlos Reservation, surrounded the ranch of Carlos Machado and killed a woman and two children and two men. Corrillas, a Mexican employed on the ranch escaped, and brought the news to Tucson. The band was led by Pachero, and a number of the Indians were of the old Camp Grant Apaches. A party was formed at Tucson, which proceeded to the ranch where they found the bodies of Machado's wife and the children and the two men, and buried them. The houses had been burnt, and everything on the premises had been destroyed. The troops are now after the murderous bands.

A New Timber Law.

A bill changing the timber land act passed the lower House of Congress on the 6th instant. It is proposed to give four years hereafter to cultivate forty acres of land by which the title to 160 acres can be acquired, instead of requiring all the work to be done the first year. By the new bill, ten acres must be cultivated the first year, ten the second and twenty the third, and ten acres must be planted the second year, and ten the third and twenty the fourth. The present law is impracticable and inoperative. The fees are also reduced, and only eight years total cultivation required instead of ten.

Joss.

The new Joss house recently brought from China, is already completed and in full blast, at San Francisco.

THE BRIBERY INVESTIGATION.

The work of investigating the alleged bribery in the late Senatorial election (Booth's) is in full progress, but so far without any important result other than to show that several number one fools took stock in that election. Boruck of the San Francisco horse paper, The Spirit of the Times, charged, some time since, that an Assemblyman had been offered two thousand dollars in gold notes to vote for Booth. Assemblyman Carter, "a straight Republican" says that he was offered that sum by Dick Brown of the Assembly, Enrolling Clerk. Brown ran as a Democrat, and from this investigation, those who were there during the contest, learn for the first time that he favored Booth. Brown is a San Francisco Ward Politician on a small scale and has the reputation of being slippery. The current opinion is that with an eye to "business" he attempted to sound the Hon. Carter either for the purpose of trapping him into favorably entertaining the base proposal and thus have a hold on him for the session, or thinking that perhaps there might be a chance to trade the vote for a bigger price, pocketing the difference. Brown however, denies the impeachment and says that he merely said to Carter, illustrating his desire to see Booth elected, that if he had two thousand dollars he would rather give it than see Booth defeated. It is generally understood that Brown got his place by a trade and that his office is farmed out, others drawing largely of the profits. It is probable that he will be ousted from his place, and numerous candidates are actively electioneering for the succession, prominent among them being the inevitable woman, who demonstratively and pertinaciously asserts her willingness to hold office.

Other parties are implicated, among the rest one Thomas Hughes, accused of offering Northup $3,000 to vote for Booth. This charge Hughes emphatically denies. Another witness, Escandon swore that Jiminez, of San Buenaventura, told him that the Southern people wanted Booth elected, and if he would vote for Booth he would take him, witness, to a man who would pay him $5,000 to $10,000. Escandon refused. Witness did not believe that Booth knew anything about the affair. Escandon or Jiminez, will be required to name this man, or stand convicted of telling a lie.

Should Not Be Done.

There is a bill before the Legislature designed to affect material alterations in the school law. These proposed changes all seem to be well advised save that with respect to The California Teacher. It is designed to withdraw all State support from that publication, throwing the onus of its support on teachers and other subscribers. We consider this journal of very great benefit to the educational interest in various ways. It is the only medium of general instruction to teachers, and being the only one especially devoted to the educational interest, we truly think it ought to be maintained. If there is any virtue in printer's ink—if class journalism is good in furthering the tenets of religious sects, political parties or individual interests of any kind, it will certainly do as much for the most important of all—the cause of education. But it is absurd to expect to make it self-supporting, since its main support is to come almost entirely from the pockets of teachers, each and all of whom have to spend their best years in qualifying themselves for their ill-paid, unappreciated and most thankless duties. If the State of California can't afford to spend a few thousand dollars in support of a journal especially devoted to the instruction, elevation and moral support (this last an essential) of its hundreds of teachers of the young, then the State must reduce the grade of qualifications for teachers, and go back to the old system, where muscle and not brains was the first requisite—for teachers out of their hard-earned pittance as salaries cannot keep up such a journal, and if the State won't then it must go down. We hope no mere picayune policy or prejudice will be permitted to kill off this useful publication.

Original and Efficient.

A bill for an act concerning partitions fences came up in the Assembly yesterday, the object of which was, that when a person makes a line or division fence, separating his land from that of another, a lien for half the cost shall attach to his neighbor's land so soon as that neighbor by inclosures elsewhere shall fence in that field. Motions were made by the members therefrom, and carried, exempting from its provisions the counties of Nevada, Amador, Alpine, Sonoma, San Mateo, Merced, Stanislaus, and seeing that such motions were likely to continue, Parker from Inyo, moved to amend "that nothing in this act shall apply to any county in the State," and that amendment was adopted. The bill did not pass. This mode of defeating a bill is both original and efficient.—Sacramento Bee, Feb. 11.

California to Nevada.

Following is a copy of the joint resolution passed by the Nevada Legislature in 1871, asking this State to cede to Nevada the territory east of the summit of the Sierra Nevada, and which is now before the California Legislature for action. It has been referred to the delegations of the several counties specially interested. The proposed change does not suit our individual notions, nor is it very likely to meet the approbation of the Legislature, further than it is possible a bill may be passed leaving the decision to a vote of the people living in the territory in question. Geographically, as stated in this resolution, all of this territory properly belongs to Nevada, but there is little else to be urged in favor of changing existing boundaries and State governments, so far as we can see:

WHEREAS, In the establishment of boundaries, natural and geographically defined lines are generally preferable, and should be adopted rather than artificial ones, in the separation and erection of communities into independent governments; and

Whereas, So much of the State of California as lies east of the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains belongs, as it were, to the State of Nevada, and the people inhabiting such territory are accustomed to the transaction of their business abroad chiefly in this State, and would, therefore, be better accommodated if such territory were annexed by cession to this State; and

Whereas, The act of Congress of March 2, 1861, organizing the Territory of Nevada, provides that the boundary line between Nevada and California may be established by the Legislature of the latter State on the ridge separating the waters of Carson Valley from those which flow into the Pacific Ocean; therefore

Resolved by the Senate and Assembly of the State of Nevada conjointly, That the Legislature of the State of California be, and is hereby most respectfully requested and urged to cede to the State of Nevada all the territory of the said former State lying east of the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains.

Resolved, That His Excellency the Governor of Nevada be, and is hereby, requested to forward a certified copy of the foregoing preamble and resolution to each, the Governor of California the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the Assembly, immediately upon the organization of the next Legislature of said State.

Slaughter of the Innocents.

Here is something that will startle thousands of fond mothers. The statement seems well authenticated, being from that excellent medical authority The Druggists' Circular:

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has several times been condemned in the columns of The Druggists' Circular, but we have not published the formula. The original recipe is kept secret, but the results of the analysis have been known. It has been shown that one ounce of the syrup contains one grain of morphia. If then, Mrs. Winslows' instructions be followed, the dose for an infant three months old contains an equivalent of ten drops of laudanum, and this Mrs. Winslow recommends to be repeated every two hours! The injury that may be done by the ignorant use of such nostrums is hardly to be estimated, and yet a calculation has been made that not less than 15,000,000 ounces of the syrup are annually sold in the United States; in other words, that the children of this country are dosed every year with as many million grains of morphia.

Grumblers.

Of all the classes to be pitied and avoided, the habitual grumbler ranks pre-eminent. One meets with this class daily, and is instantly collared and made to listen to a long winded series of ailments, misfortunes or necessities, which torture the ear, as well as the soul of even a sympathetic listener. If stocks are up, your grumbler is disconsolate and sad because he did not buy soon enough to take advantage of the rise. If they are down, he deplores the fact that he has any, or that he did not sell short. If the weather is clear and beautiful, he sees premonitions of a coming storm, or it is too hot or dry. If the day be cloudy, he is gloomy in accordance therewith. His chronic disability crops out in all situations of life, and renders his presence intolerable both at his fireside or among his street acquaintances. Accidents on sea and land are sweet manna, and he gloats over a chapter of horrors as a miser gloats over his gold. A chronic grumbler never sees beauty in anything; his meals are not suited to his taste, his boots are too tight, his clothes never fit well, his business is unprosperous, his lands do not produce as good crops as those of his neighbor, or his mines are less productive. In fact everything with him is flat, stale and unprofitable. Does his friend succeed, it is better luck than he has experienced, and he grumbles thereat. Does he himself have success, still he finds fault for it might have been better. The old adage, "make the best of everything," never occurs to his fault-finding sense, and he grumbles on through a series of years until death comes and gives him cause for serious lamentation. Numbers of this class are found in all stations of life, and are, we suppose, like small-pox and measles, a necessary evil.

Local Papers.

An exchange says a very sensible thing in relation to a subject to which much too little attention is given by home people:

"Do the city papers say anything in regard to your own county? Nothing. Do they contain notices of your schools, churches, meetings, improvements, and hundreds of other matters of local interest, which your home paper publisher? Not an item. Do they ever say a word calculated to draw attention to your county and its numerous thriving towns and villages, and aid in their progress and enterprise? Not a line. And yet there are men who take such contracted views of this matter, that unless they are getting as many square inches of reading matter in their home papers as they do in a city paper, they think they are not getting the worth of their money."

Still on the Grab.

The investigations still going on at Washington reveals the fact that a big lot of Congressmen—old members and new ones—have been taking bribes to vote for the big Mail Steamship subsidy. The first chap they caught was a Democratic member from one of the Western States. It is to be hoped that the purifying process will continue throughout the session.

A Stock Country.

Although the greater portion of this section of Arizona is between 4,000 and 5,000 feet above the level of the sea, the late storm, or rather series of storms, was not hard upon stock, which weathered the snows, winds and rains, without suffering much. A Brutal Outrage.

A week ago last Sunday a brute called Roney Crane went to an Indian rancheria a few miles below Lone Pine and raped the twelve-year old child of the local chief, Capt. Jim. He compelled her to terms under fear of her life, as he had chased her some distance with a six-shooter, swearing that he would kill her, and others if they interferred. There were but a few old women and children in the camp at the time. The child was severely if not dangerously injured. As soon as the news of the outrage spread among the Indians, some thirty of them, well armed, went in pursuit of the beast; they did not find him, but caught another young man employed by the same party, Mr. Ferguson, and tied him hand and foot, intending to put him to death. Capt. Jim, the father of the child, however, finding that this young man had nothing whatever to do with it in any manner, cut him loose, but told him it wasn't safe for him to remain there; accordingly the young man came to this place where he now is. The Indians then broke camp and left, apparently with the intention of going on the war-path. The beast came to Lone Pine, and soon after in company with another person (Russian Steve) passed on through this place en route to Columbus. The next day (yesterday a week) the Sheriff received a warrant for his arrest. It was supposed he might tarry among his former acquaintances up the valley, therefore it was deemed best not to publish anything in reference to the matter at that time. But it appears the dirty beast has made good his escape, a source of general regret, for this Crane is identically the same scoundrel who attempted a similar outrage near Fish Springs about a year and a half ago, an account of which we then published. We are truly sorry Capt. Jim and his band did not catch him and deal with him as they thought proper. A few years in the Penitentiary would not be an adequate punishment for such a cowardly brute as he. His kind will assault the helpless, whether Indians or white, whenever they think it can be done with impunity.

Change of Base.

C. & M. Cohn have purchased the Stuert building (Peterson's saloon), Lone Pine, and are having it fitted up in grand style to accommodate and display their immense stock of goods. With one exception this is, or will be the largest store-room in the county. The shelving, counters, two large show windows, etc., are being put in place as fast as possible, so as to be ready for business by the middle of March. This firm have resolved on a strictly cash business with exceptions in favor of none, both in their Cerro Gordo and Lone Pine stores, and will sell everything enough cheaper in proportion. See their new ad.

The Outlook.

We hope ere long to be able to inform our readers of the inauguration of mining operations on a large scale in not less than two of our mining districts, and perhaps three. The essential preliminaries are reported on good authority as perfected with respect to one, while those for one of the others soon will be in all probability. These plans involve considerations of more general importance to the welfare of this county than any we have ever had yet, but we do not feel at liberty to give further particulars at this stage of the proceedings.

Can't go this Time.

It snowed up in Cerro Gordo the other day, so a festive party up there thought we must have plenty of the same article down here and wrote down for a change of stock to snake a sleigh load of them a few miles further up the country—say to the Taboose Ranch. They were notified to come on with their sleigh—and if no snow comes in the meantime Brown will get oxen enough to pull 'em through the sand in due course of time and in good shape, barrin' the dryness.

Some Fun.

B. L. Brown and F. Ditsworth are going to have a bit of a horse race on a track just north of town next Monday. The amount involved is not very large, nor the horses especially noted for their great speed, nor is the distance to be run (three hundred yards) long enough to painfully prolong uncertainties, but the chances for fun are very good nevertheless.

Preaching.

Rev. E. H. Orne preaches here tomorrow evening. On the following Saturday Rev. M. W. Pratt at Swansea in the evening, and the next day (Sunday) at Lone Pine in the morning, George's Creek in the afternoon (3 o'clock) and this place in the evening.

Kites.

Some of our heavy business men have busied themselves this week in flying lofty kites. Sometimes their efforts were crowned with success sometimes they wern't. This is an indication that business is not very pressing about these times.

The I. L. A.

These letters represent the Independence Literary Association, and having attended its last meeting we are pleased to see that it is quite a success, not so much in regard to a large attendance as in the interest manifested by the few who have it in hand, and in general merit of the exercises. The readings, declamations and manuscript paper, The Medley, were all good and interesting. The debaters on the main question for the evening, on both sides, however, fell something short, and all because these debaters had neglected to give their subject that preliminary study so essential to a full command and presentation of arguments in any debate. But it was an improvement on previous efforts in the same direction, and improvement is the main object. A similar institution is organized at Camp Independence, and one each in every locality would certainly be productive of a great deal of good in the after lives of those, old or young, who thus spend a few hours, which otherwise are apt to be wholly wasted.

The Furnaces.

Contrary to published programme Belshaw's furnace continues to run steadily. Beaudry's will fire up about the 1st of March, and the Swansea about the same time, provided certain arrangements contemplated by the company are perfected at that date. It will put a different aspect on business affairs generally when these furnaces all get under full blast again.

The Weather.

We have had rain and snow, cold winds and fair weather, all by turns this week. From the unusual dampness prevailing this Winter, in lieu of the customary dryness of this climate, people begin to think the weather clerk of the Oregon department has changed off and taken charge of this.

Another Change.

R. L. Peterson, J. P. and S. K. of Lone Pine, having vacated the large building hitherto occupied by him, in favor of C. & M. Cohn's store, has removed his saloon business to the building nearly opposite Loomis' store.

OUR BENTON CORRESPONDENCE.

Gallardo vs. Judge Reed.

F. F. Gallardo has placed a petition in the hands of the Speaker of the Assembly, asking that body to take action for the impeachment of Judge Reed. The Speaker said he had been informed on very high authority that it was a serious question whether the petitioner was a sane or responsible man. The petition was referred to the Judiciary Committee for consideration, and there it is likely it will be allowed to take a long sleep, although it is by no means certain but what Gallardo would be able to make out a pretty plausible case against the party in question.

Four hundred women have organized an aggressive temperance movement at Xenia, Ohio. The movement has extended to Cincinnati, and is spreading all over the State, closing saloons, etc.

Secretary Fish emphatically denounces as untrue the statement of The Paris Patrie, that sharply worded notes have been exchanged between the Government of Germany and the United States; nor is the German Minister aware of any subject of unkind feeling between the two countries.

Senator Hager, of California has taken his seat in the United States Senate.

Senator Sargent has addressed a letter to the Chairman of the Committee on Public Lands, of the Assembly of California, in relation to his swamp and mineral land bills.

Indian Troubles.

Following is the Cheyenne dispatch in relation to the Indian outbreak:

A telegram from Fort Laramie states that the mail-carrier from Red Cloud Agency, with an Indian escort, just arrived, brought information, that Frank Appleton, who was acting Indian Agent during the absence of Agent Saville, was shot on Monday night by a Sioux. The same night fourteen mules were stolen from a Government freighter, Charles Garrow, within three miles of the Agency. At White Clay Agency the Indians have driven off the cattle-herders and taken charge, saying they will do their own issuing. The corpse of Appleton has left with the agency's doctor for Fort Laramie. The doctor says he will not return to be made a target of. Troops have been telegraphed for, and the greatest excitement prevails. A large fire was seen last evening in the direction of Red Cloud Agency last evening, and it has probably been burned ere this. There appears to be a general uprising. The bodies of Lieutenant Robinson and Corporal Coleman have just arrived at the post in a mutilated condition. Captain Egan's command is expected to arrive at the Fort to-night, as the Indians crossed back to the agency after the massacre. The Quaker Indian policy is now bearing its fruit.

—A priest in Sereno, Chili, endeavored to drive caterpillars from a garden by formally cursing them. They still flourish.

—Scotch keeper to young sportsman—"Ye hae shot a boy?" Young sportsman—"Good heavens! is it possible? What shall I do?" Keeper (immovable)—"Gie him a shillun."

—They tell of a citizen of Dubuque Iowa, who, after paying $3 a night for six weeks to a policeman to watch his wife, then discovered that his wife had all along been paying the same man $4 a night to watch her husband.

A New Sect.

The Philosophical Society of Chicago is an organization whose mission it is to discuss scientific topics. Its membership incongruously includes preachers, Spiritualists, infidels, and men without a belief of any kind. Its meetings are held in the Clark street Methodist Church, from whose congregation it was originally an outgrowth, the heterodox elements being later innovations. There is trouble now in the society, and it has come out of this heterodoxy. Gerald Massey lectured before it on "Why don't God kill the Devil?" and Judge Booth talked to them about "The nonsense of the old Testament." This was more than the Clark street Methodists could stand, and they gave the Society notice to quit. The society replied in a very humble letter, declaring that the two objectional lectures did not represent the sentiments of the majority, and promising to exercise a censorship over all future lectures. This eating of humble pie, however is not likely to help them, for the church insists on kicking them out.

To Tell Good Eggs.

If you desire to be certain that your eggs are good and fresh, put them in water; if the butts turn up, they are not fresh. This is an infallible rule to distinguish a good egg from a bad one

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Reddy, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiffs in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars, in U. S. Gold coin, with interest thereon from the Tenth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America, as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this Nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy four. [SEAL.]

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND,
Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, [SEAL.] this 30th day of January, 1874.

TO A NICE YOUNG MAN WHO NEVER DRINKS IN PUBLIC.

Dear sir, I have got a case,
And will state it with a little grace,
I'll neither add nor from it take
But state it just for conscience sake.

You surely must be in connection
With a chill, deadly cold water faction,
As you do nought but spend your time
In abusing whoever toucheth wine.

I do not find in Paul's epistle
Much spoken of the cold water system.
He says expressly man may take
A little wine for his stomach's sake.

A greater Author still than Paul,
The Prince of Peace, who died for all,
He at the marriage sat sublime,
And turned the water into wine.

But you more wise than Paul
Declare men should not taste at all,
That it really is a mortal sin
To touch or handle the glass it's in.

All things to us for good are given,
Decreed by the Supreme of Heaven,
Now tell me, why do you contend
Against the gifts that he nothing send?

From Judges the ninth, and thirteenth verse,
Jotham's parable I will rehearse
I'll tell it to you, sir, verbatim,
According to the words of Jotham.

The text, to which I have applied,
Is where the vine is personified.
He says, "wine cheers both god and man,"
Now deny the author if you can.

In Solomon's proverbs, if I well mind,
In a certain verse and chapter you'll find,
That wine is recommended there
To the weary soul that's worn with care.

All things for good to us are sent,
To make us happy and content.
Yes, for the welfare of sinful man
All things are ordered by God's command.

It is a fact that can't be denied
That thousands have by cold water died,
Until man's philosophy became sublime
And found out virtue in the wine.

Now cease your ranting, sir, I say,
And if you find ranting will not pay,
You are already a man of much notoriety
Just try your hand at writing poetry.

Sweetwater, Nevada, Feb. 20, 1874.

Reminiscences of the late Madame Parepa-Rosa.

[From Appleton's Journal.]

Of the many triumphs on the lyric stage of the lamented prima donna I shall not speak. Not the least of these were achieved at our Academy of Music, where she was always greeted by crowded and and appreciative houses. The records of her professional career, a series of successes from the start, would fill an interesting volume of biography. In her comparatively brief career she traveled a good deal and accomplished much. It is painful to think that her superb voice is silent forever.

Mme. Parepa-Rosa was of a jovial temperament, and partial to the sociability of home life. An acquaintance with her, formed when she made her American debut, at Irving Hall, in concert, under Mr. Bateman's management, continued throughout her sojourn in this country; of this intercourse I cherish some pleasant reminiscences.

It was the custom of Carl Rosa and madame to invite a few friends and acquaintances to their rooms at the Belvidere Hotel (then on the corner of Fourth Avenue and Fourteenth street), after the concert at Steinway Hall, on Sunday night, for a "bite" and sociable hour. Inasmuch as they did not get in until quite late, it was generally after midnight, or Monday morning, before the refreshments were removed. It being then Monday morning by the hands of the clock, there could be no reasonable objection to a little conviviality, and story telling and joking were in order.

A favorite pastime at these social re-unions, after the witching hour of midnight, was to place Colby or Mathison at the piano, and then all join in singing some rhythmical line, with Mme. Parepa Rosa leading, the fun being that each time she transposed the words so that those following were soon in confusion. Her laughter and merriment in consequence were contagious. She used to declare that she liked to hear a person laugh, that she did not want to know a person who did not enjoy a laugh.

At one of these gatherings, the humor possessing her, a general game of blind man's buff was inaugurated, madame being the blindfolded one herself for a time, till she caught a dignified and well known musical critic.

In the sociable games so popular in English home life, where the elders join just to keep the children company she was thoroughly skilled, and consequently she was a great favorite with the children in the hotels where she stopped.

On the occasion of her visit to California, in 1868, she and her husband entertained, on the night before their departure, a "jolly party" at the Belvidere, who came to wish them "God-speed," to use the words of the invitation, which I have before me. "No answer gives consent," were the concluding words in the invitations to these little social gatherings, which she always preferred to formal affairs.

On the occasion in question, Carl Rosa, in his speech, rather bungled in expressing his wishes that they should not be forgotten during their absence (there were several critics present, and he doubtless had an eye to business), when madame arose and said: "He means he hopes all of you will welcome us when we return," and awakened applause as much by her heart-felt utterance as by her savoir dire.

Mme. Parepa-Rosa's conversational powers were very great. She conversed in several languages. Her fund of anecdote and humor was ebullient, if not inexhaustible.

The proprietor of the Belvidere Hotel constructed a miniature theatre and a troup of Liliput marionetts. He gave several operas entire, with scenery, choruses, etc., after a fashion, but nevertheless very enjoyable. On one occasion, for a party of her own assembling, Mme. Parepa-Rosa was the prima donna, and broke down several times with laughter provoked by the representation. The theatre was marvelously perfect in its arrangements, to the extent of an elaborate procenium with private boxes, in which appeared mimic representatives of the crowned heads of Europe, to whom the jovial spirit of Mme. Parepa-Rosa prompted obsequious deference. There was an orchestra inclosed by the customary railing, and crowded with Germanesque musicians, who were worked pantomimically with wires; though generally the principal music was furnished by a piano.

Mme. Parepa Rosa was superstitious, and a believer in ill-luck of intercepting a funeral, the success-inspiration in touching a hunchback, and other such beliefs, that are more current in the old country than here, and Carl Rosa often jokingly quizzed her about her idiosyncrasies in this respect. Kind-hearted and sympathetic, madame was always charitable and considerate to the poor and once ran the risk of contracting a severe cold by opening a window on a blustering winter day to throw some pennies to a beggar whom she caught sight of.

Her good nature was imperturbable under the most trying circumstances of a stage-wait or mishaps, which she turned off with sangfroid. During her last engagement at the Academy of Music in New York, a disarrangement of the scenery occurred which would have justified her in quitting the stage (as one of the Italian prima donnas would have done), but she smilingly assisted the bungling stage hand, and commenced singing as if nothing had happened.

Once, when asked how she came to marry such a little man as Carl Rosa, who, probably to forestall jesting on the subject, generally good-humoredly alluded himself to their difference in physique, madame, with an arch smile and twinkling eye, demurely said:

"Now, would you really like to know?"

"Yes," was the reply.

"Why, because he asked me!" she rejoined with a merry laugh.

Her married life with Carl Rosa was a happy one.

A Sorrowful Romance.

[From The Virginia Chronicle, Feb. 17th.]

Daniel Boone Baker, a native of Kentucky, aged 27 years, sent to the Nevada State Prison from Elko county, January 19, 1871, for thirty years, for participation in the robbery of the express and mail cars of the Central Pacific Railroad at Pequop, and who escaped in the great emeute, September 17th, 1871, arrived at Carson this morning in charge of Sheriff J. B. Hume, of El Dorado county, California. The prisoner was accompanied by his young wife, a comely and modest woman of twenty, who is almost crazed with grief at the terrible blow which has clouded her young life, in the midst of her first dream of happiness. Baker confesses to have committed the crime for which he was imprisoned, but claims that the commission of the act was forced upon him by his companions in vice. He was but little over 23 years of age when the crime was committed, and had always borne the highest reputation possible. His companions in crime were Daniel Taylor, aged 34, and Leander Morton aged 27, and an old robber who escaped immediately after the robbery was committed. Taylor attempted to escape at the time of the State Prison break, but was wounded and is still in prison. Morton escaped, but was recaptured and hung in the Bishop Creek country. Baker also escaped, September 17, 1871, wandered about through California for some months, and finally made his way to Corvallis, Oregon, where he has ever since remained, under the name of John Bent.

Baker or Bent worked about Corvallis for two years, and was considered a sober industrious citizen. He secured work in a saw mill, and was to all appearances, laying up some money. About three months ago he married a respectable young lady, and since then his actions have been such as to command the respect of a large circle of friends and acquaintances. He seems to have relinquished all fears of recapture and attended strictly to business, endeavoring to gain a livlihood for himself and his family. The fates, however, decided that his happiness should be short lived, and on the 9th instant the blow fell like a thunderbolt. While quietly seated in a store at Corvallis officer McCoy touched him on the shoulder, saying: "you are my prisoner." The man never uttered a word for some seconds, but stared vacantly forward, his teeth being clenched in a vice-like rigidity. He finally groaned and said: "oh! my God! this is terrible." After taking leave of his family he was conveyed to Albany and placed in jail, completely broken down in spirit and reckless enough to take his own life if such a thing were possible. A guard was placed over him, but even under these circumstances he endeavored to open an artery in his wrist with a nail, but owing to the bluntness of the instrument he only succeeded in making an ugly wound. On being conveyed to the Albany depot he evinced a strong desire to commit suicide, and in fact openly avowed his intention of doing so on the first favorable opportunity. His every action was therefore carefully watched least he should carry his reckless threats into execution. While standing near the track as the train which was to convey them to Portland was rushing towards them, Baker, by an inquiry regarding a certain locality, managed for an instant to divert the officers attention, and immediately endeavored to throw himself across the track in front of the advancing engine. He was however snatched back in time to save him from so terrible a fate. On board of the train he was again siezed with a fit of despondency, and cried like a child most of the way down.

His future prospects are anything but encouraging, and the poor fellow feels utterly crushed in spirits, and it seems almost cruel that after two years of release from bondage, during which time he has "acted on the square with all men," and endeavored by his conduct to atone for his past crimes; that when his prospects looked the brightest he should suddenly be arrested and have every bright anticipation blasted. But this mental agony is even surpassed in intensity, if possible, by that of his young, loving, and devoted wife, who just blooming into womanhood, has had the marks of years stamped upon her brow, and her pure young heart by this overwhelming and most unexpected calamity. No sadder case ever appealed to the sympathy of mankind, and we believe that if the Board of Pardons would grant Baker a full pardon to morrow they would not only make a good, useful and honest citizen of a once misguided young man, but that they would merit and receive the heartfelt gratitude and earnest prayers of every right thinking man and woman in the State.

Further Explorations of the Siamese Twins.

A Philadelphia special of the 18th gives a detailed report of the autopsy of the Siamese twins; so far as concluded up to that date. It says the lungs, heart, liver, pancreas, spleen and alimentary canal were excellently developed in each, and all resembled those of ordinary mortals. Approaching the band, the lower portion of the ensiform cartilage, or breast bone, in each, by a doubling or bending out, made a long union with a distinct joint at the central point of union, on which the bodies hinge freely. This joint is somewhat similar to, but not so complicated as that at the elbow. The band at the smaller part has a circumference of nine inches and when the link was stretched as far apart as possible, there was a space of eight inches intervening. The great question was settled in the negative by the various abdominal dissections which were made. The peritonium or membrane lining of the belly in each was found to enter the band, and the four pouches overlapped each other at the center of the band. The most marked feature here was the presence of two such pouches from the body of the larger brother, Chang, and the upper ones shorter than the lower, but each lapping, one from above and the other from below the single pouch of Eng. An almost exact idea of the arrangement of these culs de sac may be obtained by holding the first joint of the forefinger between the thumb and finger of the other hand. The astounding and curious fact was developed that a line passing down the center of the band would sever all three of their prolongations and open the peritoneal cavity of each. If the knife had been used in life death would have therefore probably, if not necessarily, resulted. The examination also showed that there was a linear or partial circulation through the heart, as was seen from the passage of the injecting matter used in embalming. The abdominal organs lie in close contact with these pouches, but are not continuous into them.

—Josh Billings says: "Success dosn't konsist in never making blunders, but in never making the same one the seckond time."

—Schoolmaster—"What is nothing?" Boy—"It's when a man asks you to hold his horse, and just says 'Thank you.'"

—"What is honesty, anyhow?" asks the editor of The Rochester Chronicle. "It is none of his business," coolly replies The Courier-Journal.

A GOOD TAX LAW.

Mr. Freeman has introduced a bill relating to the assessment and collection of taxes which has one feature that strikes us as being the one thing needed. This feature is to empower the State to become the purchaser of property exposed for unpaid taxes. It often happens that property of considerable value, owing considerable amounts for taxes, is unsaleable to private bidders because they do not wish to buy into trouble with the owners, particularly incorporated companies, many of which escape taxation altogether because their property under such circumstances cannot be sold at any figure. Such instances have occurred in this and every other mining county in the State. This bill is intended to remedy this obstacle, to the collector of rightful taxes, not only with respect to that kind of property but other kinds which are put up at tax sale to no purpose. If it is known positively that such property will be sold either to individuals, the county or State, there is no question but the owners themselves would oftener come forward with the amount due; at all events the tax would be collectable sooner or later in every case, whereas, under the existing law much of it escapes taxation altogether. This bill however, is meeting with bitter opposition from certain quarters and may ail to become a law.

Relief for the Indians of Southern California.

Mr. Shanks of Pennsylvania has introduced a bill to provide homes for the Indians of Southern California who are now outcasts and suffering, though peaceable and industrious. The bill provides that Indians who have substantial improvements on lands occupied for five years shall receive at the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior an allotment of forty acres each which they shall not be permitted to sell to any person, except one of Indian blood, or to the United States. It provides also for the purchase of lands in like quantity for other Indians who have been deprived of their homes by white settlers, to be allotted to the Indians under like provisions. It is provided that after ten years occupation patents shall issue to the Indians. The bill asks for an appropriation of $150,000 for the purpose.

A Fresno County Swamp Land Grab.

Senator Sargent has received a petition from twenty-one citizens of Fresno county, who say that they are settled on lands which produce good crops when there is rain enough, and on which oak trees are growing and native grasses suitable for pasture are growing in abundance, and there is not the least sign of vegetation in the swampy grounds, yet they are covered by swamp land locations and have been listed to the State as swamp lands, and are now claimed by swamp land speculators, and the settlers are in danger of losing their claims without any remedy at law. They ask that some law be passed for their protection. Their petition and facts are indorsed by seventy-five citizens of that vicinity.

Still in Doubt.

Rev. Robert Moffat, the celebrated English missionary of South Africa, still doubts the correctness of the report of Dr. Livingstone's death. He thinks it hardly credible that Livingstone could have died. It is also said that the Doctor's supply of provisions was ample. The Foreign Office also entertains the same doubts. If the Doctor is not dead this time it wil henceforth be a hopeless task for him ever to die—in public belief. He will be looked upon as the veritable Flying Dutchman if he comes to life just this one time more.

Re-Opened.

A neatly printed circular from the proprietors, James and Ira Couch, announces to the traveling public the opening of the Tremont House, Chicago. It is a magnificent six story building, built upon the site of its famous predecessor, destroyed by the fire, contains over three hundred large, commodious rooms, one half of which are en suite and is furnished throughout in a style of convenience and affluent magnificence unequaled by any other hotel in the world.

For a New Trial.

Havilah has moved for a new trial on the Kern county seat question. The motion is to be heard by Judge Deering in chambers next Monday.

WHAT'S TO BE DONE?

Since the Vasquez cut throats have begun operations on our side of the mountains and close enough to make it quite probable they will come closer, it behooves this good people to put themselves on something of a war footing. Tres Pinos, Kingston, Cayote Holes and numerous other bold outrages by those murderers and bandits right in the teeth of the whole civil power of the State show conclusively that something more than the fulminations of the Governor and warrants of arrest in the hands of unsurported civil officers is necessary, not only to bring those twenty or thirty desperate outlaws to justice, but to prevent a repitition of their outrages at any point in these outlying districts they may select.

It is evident enough to the dullest understanding that it will require a large number of well armed and well equipped men, prepared to stay in the field for weeks if necessary, to give the least hope of any good results in pursuit of that band. Supposing a sufficient number of volunteers were to offer for the arduous and dangerous undertaking, where are the sinews of war—expense funds—to come from? Clearly the county won't foot the bills for operations wholly outside its lines; clearly the State reward is no inducement and it is just as self-evident that the Sheriff has no business to take such an outlay and responsibility on his own shoulders. It is not his business to hunt or capture criminals in another county, nor can he require any man of his posse to stay with him a moment beyond his county limits. From this it is plain our Sheriff as such can do no more than any other man; officially he can do nothing in pursuing this band so long as they remain outside his bailiwick, as they have up to this date. But, as everybody knows Mr. Mulkey, whether as an officer or as an individual, is ready to start out any hour to hunt those desperadoes to the death or beyond the Colorado, so long as he can start with the least hope of success; but for him as Sheriff or otherwise to go alone or without a strong support would be absurd; he can demand no posse for the present emergency, nor pay the several thousand dollars that would almost surely be needed to maintain a sufficient number of volunteers long enough to give a hope of the least good, even if such volunteers stood forth for the work, the which they have not yet offered.

But something must be done to prevent a whole State, our own portion with the rest, from being ridden down by a handful of robbers and murderers and that something can only be attained by concert of action among the citizens, which means liberal contributions from each and all in money and material to put twenty or thirty good men on the trail not for a day but for weeks. The capture or destruction of that Vasquez gang will be no child's play by whomsoever undertaken; but should anticipations be realized in regard to further outrages, steps as here proposed will be taken at once to put such a force in the field. Captain MacGowan, as will be seen elsewhere, is ready to co-operate to the full extent of his means, but these are circumscribed by red tape and a lack of a mount for his men and sufficient transportation; but he can and is anxious to afford valuable aid, nevertheless, in the way of good men and arms, but for whom citizens will have to furnish a mount and some transportation to make them effectively available other than as guards at given points. This tender of men and arms will materially lessen the difficulty of organizing the needed force.

Of Interest to Settlers Near the Post.

MR. EDITOR: As a matter of great interest to claimants of land near our military post, I beg to inform you that I have received several communications from Mr. Josiah Earl on this subject. The last received speaks very encouragingly of the near success of his untiring exertions at Washington in behalf of those claimants, and that he hoped to report a favorable result in a few days. Legislative.

We are compelled to omit any extended notice of Legislative doings, but will remark our junior is getting along swimmingly with all his bills and objects. He has introduced the proposed finance bill, but whether as originally drafted or with amendments, we are not advised.

Election.

Fresno is to have an election on the 23d of March for the purpose of locating and determining the place to which the county seat shall be moved. The three competing points are Millerton, Dry Creek and Fresno.

SARGENT'S LETTER.

In The Sacramento Record of February 11 we find a long and interesting letter written by Senator Sargent to a friend in San Francisco in relation to the swamp land bill introduced by him. He gives a full history of the swamp land business and of the legislation thereon, past, present and contemplated. He shows conclusively that those journals which now so furiously oppose the swamp land bill recently introduced by him, were the foremost advocates of its principles only a few years ago, and repeatedly urged legislation to check the swamp land grabbers and protect the right of settlers. He also gives extracts of letters written to him by parties who have settled on the public lands in good faith, and are now in danger of being robbed of their homes by these sharpers, who claim as swamp, lands that have to be irrigated to insure a crop. He says that the lobbyists from all the Pacific slope—all the moneyed and social influence that was brought to bear on this measure before, is now being used again, and adds: "With the aid of the California press, which I had a right to expect from its previous course, I could carry the measure for reform for our own State. If the Legislature condemns it, and the press turn their backs on it, the responsibility of its failure will not rest with me." If space permitted, we would be pleased to give this letter in full, particularly as it gives the exact views we have endeavored at different times to express in relation to this important matter.

But though this bill may not become a law, its introduction in Congress and subsequent discussion by our Legislators and newspapers has not been without good results. Even those Legislators, particularly the Dollies, whose war cry is "down with monopoly," begin to see that in opposing this bill because it might be to the advanrage of the railroad, they were working in the interest of a far worse monopoly, which, unlike that of the railroad, takes much and gives nothing whatever in return. People now begin to realize the real nature of the gigantic land swindles that have been perpetrated on this people under cover of the smoke of the railroad fight, and that their most dangerous enemy is the one they have so far totally overlooked. We append this extract from Sargent's letter as covering the platform of the anti-land grabbers:

With our rich valleys, our vast territory and lovely climate, instead of a population of 500,000 it ought to have a population of 5,000,000. If settlers could buy lands at Government prices they would hasten to our State and settle on these lands. But supplementing our vast Spanish grants, millions of agricultural lands are given to a few individuals, as swamp lands that needs irrigating to reclaim them; if land taken in lieu of school sections are, as now by our State policy, passed into a few hands; if half breed scrip absorbs millons of acres more; if agricultural scrip and bounty land warrants plaster the State, emigrants will turn off to other States where they can buy directly from the Government, instead of paying our enterprising middlemen $15 and $20 per acre for the immense tracts of land a mistaken policy has allowed them to absorb. For the actual settler it is better that lands be left in the hands of the General Government, for he can procure them of the General Government for a homestead as a gift or for the minimum price. Where they are granted to States on any pretense, the States almost immediately surrender their grants to speculators and adventurers who have been able to control the local legislation, and who have no other interest than to obtain the largest price. Hence, if it is a doubtful question if a million of acres are or are not dry land, and not contemplated by the spirit of the original swamp land legislation, it is better for the State and the settler, whose interest is coincident with that of the State, that the General Government retain the land, to be dealt with under its wise laws for the benefit of actual settlers. If the laws of the State were as judicious as those of the General Government in this respect; if State lands were only sold in moderate quantities to actual settlers, then this would not be so. But I speak of our laws as they exist and have existed for years past—laws which I took occasion to denounce several years ago as a disgrace to the State.

Those who pronounce upon the value of a definition of swamp lands should know the purpose and scope of the original legislation. The deep and pestilential marshes in some of the Southern States were the objects of the original gift. The tule lands of the Sacramento and San Joaquin are undoubtedly of a character to have passed to the State under the original law correctly interpreted, and would pass at once under my definition. But most certainly the lands in Sierra Valley were not of the kind that Mr. Greeley legislated for and subsequently descrid in his "Recollections of a Busy Life." * * *

Sick.

The Virginia Chronicle of February 19th says: Billy Wilson, the well known Carson stage man, is lying seriously ill of pneumonia, at his at his residence in Carson, and Dr Webber of this city was called to see him yesterday.

Our Railroad System.

The following sensible and truthful article under the above head we find in The Los Angeles Express of the 17th instant. We believe every idea advanced in this to be capable of absolute demonstration by facts and figures. In a general way nothing more need be said than what is here given, but ere long we shall endeavor to give a comprehensive view of the whole route, or rather of the amount of business such a road would command from the actual developments of the day. As The Express says, these developments are even now amply sufficient to justify the undertaking, yet compared to those of the immediate future (but, of course, materially contingent upon railroad advantages), are as a mere drop in the bucket. But without further remark at this time, we submit the remarks of The Express:

Has it ever occurred to our people that we are here, in Los Angeles, within 340 miles of Pioche as the crow flies, while from San Francisco to Elko the distance is 603 miles, and from there to Pioche 325 miles further, a total distance of 928 miles. We have, as the future commercial emporium of Pioche, the richest mining center of the world outside of Virginia City, an advantage of 588 miles over San Francisco. This advantage of course would be somewhat lessened by the sinuosities of a practicable road; but the great fact remains that we are really in a position to control the commerce of Pioche and Eastern Nevada against all competitors, if we shall only exhibit the right kind of enterprise. The very first link in a railway system which would make Los Angeles the outlet of South Eastern Nevada, would be the construction of a narrow-guage railroad from here to Cerro Gordo. Such a road would pay from the very start. It would commence business with a carrying trade which is capable of being increased many fold, for we are assured that the furnaces of that marvellous region are now shut down on account of the inadequacy of the facilities to haul the bullion to market. Over 30,000 bars are awaiting shipment, and the vast capital this bullion represents is lying idle, simply because teams cannot be pressed into the service to keep up with the capacity of the furnaces already erected. We know enough now of the exhaustless character of the mines in Inyo to justify the assertion that that country alone will supply sufficient business to a narrow-guage to make it a handsomely paying enterprise from the very start. Here then is the true key to our railroad advancement. A railroad is a flourishing operation to Inyo would of itself, and by the enterprising influences it would spread, compel its own extension in the main direction which would ultimately tap the trade of Southern Nevada. It is the logic of railroad enterprise to advance. If we had a narrow gauge railroad in successful operation to Cerro Gordo today, to morrow reasons would appear for extending it still further on. The system, implied by the building of this section of the road, would force itself to a successful completion, and we insist that no man of intelligence, familiar with our country—knowing the resources of Southeastern Nevada and the practicability of a railroad from that section to Los Angeles, together with the geographical propinquity of the two points as against the distance between San Francisco and Pioche—would for a moment hesitate to agree with the proposition that such a railroad system is one of the necessities clearly pointed out by our location and by the motive of economy in transportation which underlies the building up of all commercial centers. Let us but once more make the start—let the first division of this system be built—as it can easily be done—and the full completion of the system will follow as surely as day follows night. No enterprise ever started out with better prospects than would a narrow guage from here to Cerro Gordo. It would open with an assured business and a certainty of prosperity from the very start. We look to our clear headed and far seeing business people to push this important subject ahead. Let the Chamber of Commerce take hold of it and give it the influence of their leading commercial position. Capital will not be wanting to build the road, if we only do our share toward giving the project the prominence it deserves.

Foreign News.

By a very large majority the German Parliament has defeated the proposition made by the member from Alsace for a vote of the people of Alsace and Lorraine on the question whether they prefer to belong to France or Germany.

Disraeli has formally accepted the Premiership of England, and will form a new Ministry.

A fight took place recently between an army of Egyptians and 10,000 troops of the Su tan of Darfour. The latter lost the battle. This news comes to Sacramento, says The Union, from Khartoum, the capital of Nubia, at the junction of the White and Blue Nile, in four days.

More Power.

Senator Lindsey has proposed a new section to the Code, giving Boards of Supervisors power to direct the Sheriff to attend by himself or deputy all their meetings; to maintain order thereat; to serve notices of citations, and endowing Supervisors with the power to punish by fine or imprisonment for contempt or disobedience. There can be no great objection to this amendment, although among quiet country folk it can be of little use.

OUR BENTON CORRESPONDENCE.

BENTON, Feb. 25, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: The weather of the past week has been very changeable here; cold, bleak and dismal clouds, accompanied with high northerly winds made up the day, while the long passing hours of the night were filled with a murmuring ode, fit only for a Greenlander's habitation where water hardens and mercury congeals.

Valentine Day passed off very pleasantly, our Washington birthday likewise (which was on Sunday); on the evening of the 23d at the Partzwick Hotel we had the honor of being at one of the most pleasant and sociable parties ever given in this locality; the supper table groaned with its luxurious burden of delicacies, the best the market could afford. The 5 o'clock whistle of the Mack & Powning Mill on the following morning broke up the enjoyment of the happy participants.

On last Thursday two of our prominent citizens Mr. A. Mack and his brother August Mack, left for San Francisco to join in the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the landing of the steamer California at San Francisco, February, 28th, 1849. Mr. A. Mack and his two brothers were passengers on the California. Death lessened their number from three to two. The history of that notable steamship's crew up to the present would be truly interesting.

Mr. Barnard McKean, a miner and prospector of no little fame, has returned from Panamint where he has been putting in the blunt end of the Winter. He gives a glowing account o the richness of the mines on the surface, and the facilities for working them are unsurpassed. Mr. A. B. Williams, one of the original locators, and at present the sole owner of the Diana mine, left a few days ago for San Francisco to purchase a five-stamp quartz mill, to be put up here somewhere in the suburbs of Benton. A few days ago, two gentlemen from near Belmont, Nev., passed through here for San Francisco on their way for the Stickeen River excitement. That promising youth who lost the $80 purse near Columbus is in town to-night from Bishop Creek where he resides. To you young man I would say, keep out of those dens of evil and shun the ways of the wicked, then you shall have no occasion to loose your purse. CONTRIBUTOR.

A Generous Offer.

INDEPENDENCE, Feb. 27, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: Since the receipt of last nights' news of the daring attack made by Vasquez' band on the South ern stage line, at Cayote Holes about 100 miles south of this place, a great deal of anxiety is felt by our people to devise some means for our protection in case of an attack by that desperado; but so far no plan to that effect has been adopted. In this emergency I am happy to inform you of the receipt of a letter from the energetic and patriotic Post Commander, and we may feel quite assured of our perfect safety by his generous offer:

DATED HEADQUARTERS,
Camp Independence, Feb. 26, 1874.

I have just been informed that the stage has been attacked and robbed by a gang supposed to have been Vasquez'. Please inform the Postmaster that I will furnish a reliable guard to and from Baker's-field as long as he thinks the mail is danger. I also desire that you inform the Sheriff of my readiness to co-operate with him, whenever called upon, for the protection of this entire section of country, north and south, against the attacks of that desperado band of robbers.

(Signed.) A. B. MACGOWAN,
Capt. 12th Inf't'y, Com'd'g Post

Now, dear sir, let me assure you that this offer of our generour Post Commander cannot be too highly estimated, because we have ample proof of the daring and danger of Vasquez and his band, and I beg to suggest some concert of action with Capt. MacGowan for our protection. Yours, very truly.

The King Dead.

Lunalilo, King of the Sandwich Islands, died at Honolu'u after a reigh of about fourteen months, on the 3rd inst. The Legislature in the absence of Lunalilo naming his successor will elect; the aspirants for the throne are David Kalakua a native Chief, and Queen Emma the widow of a former Kamahameha, with all the chances in favor of Kalakua.

Visalia and Inyo Road Company.

"Kaweah" writes to The Visalia Times in relation to this important enterprise, as follows:

A company named as above, was recently organized in Visalia, with the nominal capital stock of $150,000, for the purpose of making a wagon toll road across the Sierra Nevada mountains, from the Tulare valley to the Owens River basin, and its articles of incorporation will in a few days be filed with the Secretary of State. This road will commence at section 36, township 17 south, range 27 east, near Newton's lime kilns, and follow up the south side of the Kaweah river to the East Fork; thence up the south side of the East Fork, keeping the grade of the river, and passing through the mines of the Mineral King district, to the summit of the mountains; thence down the eastern slope of the mountains to a point at their base near Owens Lake, a distance of about sixty miles. This road is now being constructed, and about twenty-five men are now employed working upon it. Teams now go to the East Fork, a distance of fifteen miles from the initial point of the road, although considerable work is still necessary on the rocky bluffs near Tharp's, to obviate the necessity of crossing the river, which is not fordable at its high stages. Men are, however, at work upon these bluffs, and the entire road to the East Fork will soon be passable for teams. From the end of the road, at the East Fork, a trail with the grade of the proposed road is being cut to the Mineral King mines, which trail will be completed about the middle of March. This road is a very important enterprise. One third of this county is embraced in that part of the great chain of Sierras within its boundary, and is almost unknown. Through this vast undeveloped region the road will pass. Here are mountains of quartz apparently surfeited with gold and silver; minerals of every name and kind; broad meadows rich in pasture; streams waiting to lend their power to machinery; exhaustless forests of timber, and granite, marble, cement and lime to build cities in all time. This road is a movement in the direction of the utilization of this crude and unappropriated wealth. When good roads threading the mountains shall make every part of them accessible, the subjacent valleys will be more desirable for habitation. The mountains here seem to be the natural correlative of the plains. The prevalent diseases of the plains are those which are corrected by the pure air and the chemical springs of the mountains. The level monotony of the one, void of scenic effect, is supplemented by the majestic scenery of the other, with its snow-crowned peaks, its canyons, its waterfalls and its trees, the highest and kingliest in the world.

Should the road be completed to the Owens River Valley, the exports of that region would have a much shorter passage to the Bay than by their present circuitous route. We would also be likely to become better acquainted with our neighbors of that locality, a desideratum, if our Legislature do what has been contemplated, form Tulare and Inyo in one Legislative district.

Application for Patent.

NOTICE NO. 21.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
Independence, Cal., February 21, 1874.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT JOHN R. HUGHES and M. W. Hammarstrand have made application for patent for eight hundred linear feet of the WITTIKINT Silver Quartz Mine, lode, vein or deposit, being 400 feet northwest and 400 feet southeast from the main shaft and point of discovery on said mine, with surface ground 100 feet wide, being 50 feet on each side of said mine or lode, measuring from the center of the claim, situated and being on unsurveyed land in Township 16 south, Range 39 east, in Cerro Gordo Mining District, Inyo county, California, said Wittikint Mine being described on the plat and field notes on file in this office as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the shaft on said lode at point of original discovery; thence with a variation 15 degrees, 40 minutes east, running south 55 degrees, east six (6) chains and six (6) links, to a post set in mound of rock marked, "A. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence returning to point of original discovery at shaft; thence with a variation 15 degrees 40 minutes east, running north 55 degrees, west six (6) chains and six (6) links, to a post in mound of rocks marked, "B. L. W. S. Q. M."

SURVEY OF EXTERIOR BOUNDARIES:

Beginning at post "A. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence with a variation 15 degrees 40 minutes east, running north 35 degrees, east seventy-six (76) links to a post in mound of rocks marked, "P. 1 W. S. Q. M.;" thence north 55 degrees west twelve (12) chains and twelve (12) links to a post marked, "P. 2 W. S. Q. M.;" thence south 35 degrees west seventy-six (76) links to post "B. L. W. S. Q. Drunk or Crazy, Which?

Henry Stevens, better known as "Russian Steve" writes us from Benton in a manner which leads us to think he was very drunk or is rapidly going crazy. He wishes us to distinctly understand, first, that he don't want his name mentioned in this paper at all; second, that he did not have any connection with Crane, the squaw man; and did not start to go to Columbus with him; thirdly, that he never absconded or left in the night on account of any crime or dishonesty; fourth, that everybody knew that he proposed to go two weeks before he started, in search of work which he could not obtain in Lone Pine; fifth, that he did not run away from his creditors on which account he supposes that we had given the lash to "Russian Steve;" sixth, that he proposes to unexpectedly return and settle up with his friends, the editor of this paper included, and seventhly, some more of the same sort. Now in response to this senseless tirade we advise Russian Steve to look at the article which gave rise to all this, and see if he can find that he was alluded to or "lashed" or connected with Crane in any manner, directly or indirectly whatever, except the sole statement that "Crane passed through this place in company with another person (Russian Steve)." As before stated, there was not another syllable applying to this "other person," in any manner whatever. But now Crane and Stevens did come to this place together and did leave Bishop Creek together Sheriff Mulkey having shaken hands with both at that place as they got into the stage. Mr. Mulkey then knew nothing of Crane's crime nor until the next stage brought the warrant for his arrest, nor did any one assume or intimate so far as we know, that Henry Stevens was cognizant of Crane's dirty deed or was in any way responsible for his actions. We neither know or care whether Mr. Stevens, or "Russian Steve" left debts unpaid behind him or whether he proposed to remain away or return, or whether he was going to Columbus or Texas. We referred in that connection only to Crane who told some he would probably go to Columbus, others that he was going "north," simply.

The Races.

The match race between Brown's "Buckskin" and Ditsworth's horse came off last Monday according to programme—that is according to Brown's programme, which was to "get away with it." He did, and Buckskin holds the belt. Also another horse of B. L's took another race. The betting on this and subsequent scrub races was lively and spirited if the amounts staked wern't large. They ranged from three marbles to a double eagle on a side. A gentleman from the country, Harry Wright, came down, feeling as though his Norfolk or Lodi whichever it was could "clean the party," Harry likes good horses, and felt as though he would like to beat the old speckled mare with his Lodi for a few marbles and sich but the best of mortals are often disappointed, and so it was in this case. So far as Harry's Norfolk was concerned the old speckled mare proved much of a "singed cat," and Harry went home grieved in spirit, not because he lost his marbles but because Brown smiled at him. We are sorry to say that we have to take this report second hand; we intended, a la Chronicle, to have a "Commissioner" on the ground or be there in person to take notes, or anything else we could conveniently, but it wasn't possible.

On Suspicion.

A wretched looking Mexican arrived here in company with a George's Creek Indian on Wednesday evening and as best he could, asked charity at different places. When the news of the stage robbery came this beggar was taken up by Sheriff Mulkey and critically examined as to who he was, whence he came, and what his business was, whether he entertained any hopes for the future, where he thought he was going to and so on ad libitum County Clerk Hammarstrand was interpreter. The interview ended in a pretty general belief that the object of so much solicitude was loco—i. e., crazy—and he was acordingly turned loose again.

Left Us.

Our genial friend Harry Clausen, has left the Kearsarge property which has been under his charge so long, and gone to take charge of a mine located some thirty miles from Virginia, Nevada, and at a good round salary. We are sorry to loose such an estimable gentleman as Harry, both on his own account, and also because the change indicates that the Kearsarge mill is not likely to steam up very soon.

Beef Down.

Quite recently beef at Broder's shop took a sudden fall—the suspension rods sustaining some two thousand pounds giving away—that's what caused the fall and Peter Margueritte to make some healthy remarks in French.

VASQUEZ!

A Most Daring Robbery by Vasquez—One Man Shot.

By the southern stage, which arrived Thursday evening, we have the particulars of a most wonderfully daring robbery committed by Vasquez and one man of his gang, which took place at Cayote Holes, 80 miles south of this place, on the previous evening:

THE FIRST VICTIM.

To give the whole story requires reference to occurrences early in the day. That morning a traveler who had stopped at the station the night previous with some stock, went out into the hills to look up his animals. Less than a mile out he found himself in the camp of two Mexicans, who took him prisoner and tied him. One of them said he was Vasquez, and informed their prisoner that they intended to

and both the up and down stages, and ascertained from him, as near as he could tell, at what time they would be along. Soon after, taking their prisoner, they proceeded in the direction of the house, and while some distance away met Raymond, the station-keeper. Raymond was taken in hand, securely bound, and, with the other similarly secured, left on the ground. The two robbers went on to the house, and when in suitable range firing some fifteen shots, but without a response. The inmates were told to come out one at a time and give themselves up. This, to the number of six or seven, including Mrs. Raymond, they did. But a man known as refused to come forth for some time, and until Vasquez went in and marched him out at the muzzle of a Henry rifle. The whole party were then taken to a small hill about a quarter of a mile away, but no near the place occupied by the two prisoners previously mentioned, and there told to sit down and be "investigated." All obeyed with seeming willingness except "Tex," who had been drinking just enough to feel it his duty to be as contrary as possible. Vasquez insisted upon his taking a seat, otherwise he, Vasquez, would have to shoot him. Texas was still obstinate, whereupon the robber fired inflicting a severe but not necessarily dangerous flesh wound. Tex gave it up, and took a seat, and the investigation was carried out with minuteness, but without valuable results.

OPENED FIRE UPON IT,

"OLD TEX"

A SHOT THROUGH HIS THIGH,

The whole party were

PUT ON PAROLE

not to leave the spot on pain of being shot. No other precautions were taken to insure their quietness, but until the finale, some hours after, every one of them made it a point of honor to stay exactly where he was put. The two desparadoes then returned to the house and took things with patience for two hours or perhaps longer, but at the same time not without keeping an eye on the PARTY HERDED ON THE HILL.

At the expiration of the two hours the stage from the south drove up to the door, where it was received by two robbers, one on each side.

M. W. BELSHAW, ESQ.,

of Cerro Gordo was on the outside with Davis, the driver; inside, with the curtains closely buttoned down all around, were Mr. Craig, of Cerro Gordo, and Mr. Wm. Fessenfield, of Los Angeles. Belshaw and Davis were invited to get down, and the same invitation was extended to the gentlemen inside. To say that the whole party were much at these proceedings right there at a regular station, where a number of persons were known to be stopping, would be a mild way of putting it. But two Henry rifles at present and four six-shooters at the hands of two desperate looking men, even if polite as they were in address, showed the propriety of first obeying orders, leaving mystification for future elucidation All took seats on the ground in a row pursuant to orders, and each in turn were requested to contribute something to the which, seriatim, all did save Davis, the driver, who smuggled a purse containing $40 into the sand. Fessenfield contributed $40 in gold, a splendid spy-glass and also tendered some silver, but this last

SURPRISED AND MYSTIFIED

WAS RETURNED TO HIM.

He had a watch he wanted to keep, and that he managed to work into his over shoe and thus succeeded in saving it. Mr. Craig came out liberally, but the exact amount of his contribution we have not heard. Mr. Belshaw helped to the extent of $20 in gold, a fine silver watch and subsequently, from his carpet sack,

HIS NEW BOOTS,

designed especially to favor his pet corns, and on which account, as we are informed, he regrets the loss of them more than all the rest. These ceremonies ended, all save Davis were to a neighboring hill, which, in company with one of the robbers, they did. After being left to themselves to enjoy the outlook and scenery, this party saw the larger one some distance away on another eminence, but thought they were a portion of the robber gang, so they laid low and said nothing. In the meantime Davis had been ordered

TO UNHITCH HIS TEAM,

and that being done, to get out Wells, Fargo's box and break it open. Though not an adept at this business, Davis was under the circumstances, and by means of a bar of iron furnished by one of the robbers succeeded finally in getting the box open. Vasquez examined the contents critically, but found nothing he wanted or took, notwithstanding there were some law books consigned to Judge Hannah, and other things of like characier in the box. Up to this time the whole amount of their winnings in cash,

NOT COUNTING WATCHES,

would only foot up to about $300. By the time the express box business was ended two of Belshaw's heavy teams from Los Angeles drove up. The drivers were requested to explain themselves, after which they too were stationed on the hill, making all told, thus put on the lookout by these two bold freebooters. None of these except Raymond and the traveler (and old Tex, of course, since he was disabled by the shot) were put under any restraint by tying or otherwise, except the wholesome regard each and all entertained for their two captors, or rather their formidable weapons. In the house at the outset was

FOURTEEN PERSONS,

ONE HENRY RIFLE, BUT NO CARTRIDGES,

and a shot-gun unloaded. One of the prisoners had a pepper box, or an Allen deadless, or something of that kind, but wisely concluded it wasn't best to make himself conspicuous with such a weapon. All were treated with except Tex, who came to grief through his own obstinacy. Tex's proper name we have not heard.

It was getting along towards evening, and there being nothing to justify a longer stay, Vasquez took a look through the stage stable, and selecting started off southeasterly, going out of sight in a short distance from the barn. Vasquez rode away on his own horse, his companion on one of the stage horses, leading the others between them. This companion was a short, heavy man, not over 25 years of age, if that old. The other, claiming to be appeared quite tall, with chin whiskers moustache and hair all inclined to be sandy in color. In complexion he appeared, save a sunburnt hue, to be quite fair.

Without further comment upon this most extraordinary transaction, we will conclude by stating that soon after the robbers disappeared all hands in a condition to travel

CAME IN FROM THEIR STATIONS ON THE HILLS, and proceeded at once to set things to rights, and to relieve "Texas" and the two men tied down. Belshaw then took some of his freight mules with which the stage came on. Some hours later the

DOWN STAGE WAS MET.

It contained a number of passengers, among whom were H. B. Stuert, wife and mother, all of Lone Pine. They were duly notified of what had occurred, but not having much cash, other than in checks, to lose in case of an attack they decided to proceed. This evening's stage may bring news as to what fate befell them, about which it is useless for us to speculate.

Mail Contracts Awarded.

Among the many mail contracts awarded on the 17th ultimo, we note the following. First is Bakersfield to Lone Pine, (tri-weekly we presume), to Wm. Buckley to us unknown, for the very low figure of $895. Next is Visalia to Havilah, a shorter and easier road than the above, for $3,350, to J. J. Hines. Owen Fuller, also a stranger, gets the route from this place to Cerro Gordo, at $2,995 and will make a good thing out of it. From this place to Gold Mountain, Nevada, weekly, M. S. Clark $1,650, which will require good management to allow a margin for profits. Carson to Aurora, Gillette Bros., at $2,837, while from Carson to this place, over a road one-third longer and less profitable generally, A. E. Smith does the work (tri-weekly) at $729. But Smith makes up for this by receiving $4,965 for the Reno and Susanville route. Mr. Fuller, above mentioned, also gets another good thing, amounting to $3,000 from Columbus to Aurora. This is the more valuable because of the double over from Benton to Aurora, about half the total distance; we suppose he will divide with Smith so as to save the latter gentleman from loss, and both from complications with the Department. E. E. Corbin only gets $200 for the route from Junction to Gold Mountain. We don't know for certain where these localities are, especially "Junction;" if in connection with Gold Mountain, Nevada, Corbin will do very well, as he can get the other contractors to carry the letter and papers he will now and then have, over the 20-mile space intervening and covered by both contracts. However, this may refer to some other Gold Mountain, in which case it may worry Corbin to come out even. But here again Corbin is safe, as he has not less than two other routes, one from Argenta to Belmont at $7,990, and another, a 25-mile route, for $1,750. Following up the list we find Owen Fuller again with fair prospects ahead of him, having the Wells and Hamilton route at $12,000. Earl does not appear to have been successful in his own bids, but it is hard to say how many straw men he has put forward. Darrah lost an Arizona route, worth several thousand dollars, by informal presentation. These contracts all begin in July next and continue for four years.

The Post Lands.

Elsewhere will be noticed a reference to what Mr. Earl expects to accomplish with respect to lands claimed by himself and other settlers lying within the limits of the Post Reservation. His chances of success as we understand it depends wholly on a special law by Congress. To this end all the settlers interested have been looking and working; our junior in their interest, made it a special business with our new Senator, Hager, then in San Francisco, and as Sargent and Houghton, are likewise willing to give it their assistance, the chances are Earl's anticipations will be realized, either by such a law or other means more especially his own. He has our beat wishes in this matter however much we may oppose him in others.

To be Trained.

At the special request of Theodore Winters Mr. Mulkey sends his fine blooded "Treasure Box" three-year old to be put in thorough training by Mr. Winters at the Wolfskill Ranch, Solano county, for the fall races Harry Clausen took the colt with him, and will deliver him to Winters via the railroad from Carson. This colt is full brother to both Pill Box and Ballot Box, the former having obtained a great deal of celebrity for so young a horse. But those who are capable of judging think Treasure Box is the fastest of the three, allowing for difference of ages.

New Bonds Filed.

In compliance with the requirements of the new law Assessor Dillon yesterday filed his official bond, with the following named securities: Thos. Boyce, $2,000; A. B. Kitchen, $1,000; David Thomas, $1,000; Joseph Harris, $1,000 and P. A. Chalfant, $1,000. The amount of the bond is $3,000.

Gone to Farming.

Fred Schabbell has purchased J. W Martin's farm near the Post, and is going to be a Granger. Peter Margueritte, of Cerro Gordo, who is an expert at this business, now presides in Broder's shop in Fred's place.

Gone to Lone Pine.

Sheriff Mulkey started yesterday evening for Lone Pine to review the situation in regard to the Vasquez affair.

Very Fair.

This incident took place at the time of the stage robbery: Mr. Craig had on a pair of new gloves which attracted the attention of Vasquez, who asked or ordered him to take them off. Craig told him he needed them to keep his own hands warm. "Very well," said the bandit, "I'll buy 'em of you. I'll give you two dollars for 'em." Craig was not anxious to sell, but all things considered he thought here was an opportunity for a trade that should not be neglected and agreed to the proposition, whereupon Vasquez took the gloves and handed over $2—but he was still ahead, for he had just taken $5 from Craig, all that gentleman had, as we now learn.

—A good brother in the Baptist church, while giving his experience, said : " My bretherin, I've been tryin' nigh onto forty years to serve the Lord and get rich both at onct, and I tell yer it's mighty hard sleddin."

--An idle young man was complaining to a prosperous friend that, although he had tried his luck in all sorts of fairs and lotteries, he had never been able to draw anything. " Indeed," said his friend. " Well, suppose you try a hand-cart ? You can draw that."

—Peter Van Dyke, an old chap who died in New Hampshire the other day, worth $140,000 in cash, requested in his will that no one should snuffle and shed crocodile tears at his funeral, but cover him up and then hurry home to fight over his money.

—" Be careful how you drink, or you will wash the color from your cheeks," said a gentleman at a fashionable party, as he handed a glass of water to a lady. "There is no danger of your ever taking water enough to wash the color from your face," was the reply.

--An ingenious wife in Des Moines cured her husband of snoring thus : She had a gutta percha tube with two cup-shaped ends, one she puts over his nose and mouth, and the other over his ear. He consumes his own noise as a stove does its smoke, and wakes up instanter.

—A preacher in a town out West took up a collection one recent Sunday, and found when his hat was returned that there wasn't a cent in it. " I thank my God," said he, turning his hat upside down, "that I have got my hat back again from this congregation !"

—A Georgia negro bored a hole in the top stick of his wood pile. The next morning a colored neighbor, with all her pots, pans, and kettles, was seen to ascend through the roof of her house at an alarming rate of speed, while all the windows of the amatuer detective were driven in.

—A Mr. Dahm runs a large stove store up at Eagle Harbor, Minn., and The Marquette Journal says : " He must have an extensive trade, for we have heard his name mentioned in connection with all the stoves and stove-pipes we ever saw put together, here or elsewhere.

—Martin Van Buren once said that it was better for a man to travel thirty miles to see a person than to write him a letter, and The Chicago Tribune believes that Caleb Cushing will agree with him. But as Cushing did write across the line, he is like a verb, " to be, to do, or to suffer "—for the lost cause.

--A Beaver county, Pennsylvania man threatens to bring suit against a young farmer who persists in sitting up with his daughter Sunday nights till four o'clock in the morning. The stern parent claims firstly, that the next day being wash-day, his gal ain't of no account ; secondly, that if they would only use two chairs, the one they do use wouldn't cost so much for repairs.

—A Rhode Island man has invented a torpedo in the shape of a grain of corn which is designed for the beguilement of crows. As soon as that offensive bird takes hold of it, it explodes and blows the top of his head off. This affords a cheap and harmless amusement for the crow, and at the same time does away with serious evil.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Reddy, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to William Watt, William B Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiffs in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars, in U. S Gold coin, with interest thereon from the Tenth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America, as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this Nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy four.

[SEAL.] M. W. HAMMARSTRAND, Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, [SEAL.] this 30th day of January, 1874.

MARCH.

In the snowing and the blowing,
In the cruel sleet—
Little flowers begin the growing
Far beneath our feet.
Softly taps the spring, and cheerly—
"Darlings, are you here?"
Till they answer: "We are nearly,
Nearly ready, dear."

"Where is Winter, with his snowing?
Tell us, Spring," they say;
Then she answers: "He is going,
Going on his way.
Poor, old Winter does not love you—
But his time is past;
Soon my birds shall sing above—
Set you free at last!"

SARAH'S STORY.

[From St. Nicholas for March.]

Sarah's stories were wonderful things. To be sure they were apt to be a little startling, and generally ended by scaring her listeners half out of their wits; but that only made them more delightfully exciting. By this time the children, getting a hint of the coming treat, began to crowd around, and Sarah began:

"Now, all you young 'uns must sit 'mezin still if I'm gwine to tell a story."

Nimpo and Anna were already occupying the only spare chairs. Rush sat on the wood box, and the biggest Johnson girl on a keg, while the rest of the children squatted around on the floor, making a close semi circle about Sarah.

Sarah's virtue as a story-teller was in her face and manner. She was very black with large rolling eyes, a very long face, a monstrous mouth, great white teeth and long thin hands, which had an uncanny, white look on the inside, as though the color were coming off.

Perhaps you don't think hands have much to do with story-telling, but they had with Sarah's. I can tell you.

Quieting her audience with threats of "clearing 'em all out the house," she began in a low, solemn voice:

"Onct upon a time, way down in Ole Kentuck', there lived a MAN! He was a-w-f-u-l rich, and had heaps an' heaps o' nice things in his dark cellar. Bottles an' bottles o' wine, bar'ls an' bar'ls o' cider, an' lots an' lots o' hams, bar'ls an' bar'ls o' bacon, an' bins an' bins o' apples, an' jars an' jars o' sweetmeats, an' boxes an' boxes o' raisins an' O! piles o' good things to eat in that dark cellar."

Sarah paused to see the effect. Rush smacked his lips, and the eyes of the whole Johnson family rolled in ecstasy at the delightful picture.

"But he was a-w-f-u-l stingy! Not a speck of all these yer goodies would he guv to a-n-y body. Lor'! he al'us kep the k-y-n his own pocket, an' if he wanted ham for dinner he went down in that yer d-a-r-k cellar an' cut a slice, 'nuff for hisself. An' if he wanted wine, he jest went down an' fotched a bottle, and al'us locked the do' arter him, an' n-e-v-e-r guv Sam the fustest speck!"

"Who's dat ar'?" asked one of the children.

"You shet up! I'll crack ye over the head if ye don't stop cutting up such shines!" Sarah replied.

The interrupter shrunk behind his mother and felt snubbed.

"Well now," Sarah went on, rolling her eyes, "that ar' Sam was a po' nigga—the only nigga the stingy man had; and he was that stingy he never lat fed him no way. He guv him a leetle corn meal fur hoe cakes, and onct in a g-r-e-a-t while a leetle teeny bit uv a thin slice o' bacon. So Sam got thinner an' thinner, till he was near a shadder, and his fingers were l-o-n-g and b-o-n-y."

And Sarah held up hers and clawed them in the air, till the children could almost see Sam and his bony hands.

"Well, one day this bad man had to go 'way off to the big city, and he hadn't nobody to leave in the house but jes Sam. So he done measured out jes so much corn meal, an' he said: 'Now, Sam, I shall be gone away three days, an' that'll have to last ye till I get back. I'll warrant ye'd like to jes eat it every scrap the fust day, an ax fur mo'—its jes like ye—but not a sno-jen do you get till I get back, fur I've locked everything up. An' if I find anything out o' order when I come back, I'll—I'll—wallop you; see if I don't!'"

"With that ar d-r-e-f-f-u-l threat the cruel Mah'sr went off an' lef' Sam all alone. Well, Sam went to clarin' up the house, an' when he went to hang up his Mah'sr's everyday cloze—fur in course he wore his Sunday ones to go to town—he hars somethin' hit agin the wall, an' he thought to hisself: 'I'll see what that ar is. Mebby Mah'sr's done leff a penny in his pocket. Oh, golly! won't I buy a bun!' An' he put his hand in the pocket, an' what do you s'pose he found?

"THE CELLAR KEY!!!"

Sarah looked wildly at her listeners, said these thrilling words in an awful whisper, with a roll of the eyes and a dropping of the jaw, that made it still more horrible.

"Oh, Lor'! heres 's the key! said Sam to hisself; 'what s-h-a-l-l I do?' An' then he thought awhile. But, sakes! chillen, 'pears to me like the Debil is al'us waitin' fur chances, an' so he popped into Sam's head to jes go an' look at the good things. 'I won't touch ary bit,' said Sam, 'fur Ole Mas'sr'd find out if one apple stem's is gone,—but I'll lo-k.' That was the fust wrong st-p, chillen. Ye know how hard it is to defrain, if ye look at these things ye oughten ter. Well, this yer onreverent nigga c-r-e-p-t down stairs an' unlocked the do', an' p-e-e-p-e-d in,—trem'lin,' fit to drop. He more 'spected to see Ole Mah'sr behind a bar'l. But it was as s-t-i-l-l as the grave, so he c-r-e-p-t in. There hung the l-o-n-g rows o'hams,—so juicy an' sweet; an' Sam went up an' thought to hisself, 'Now I'll just smell of one.'

"So he smel'ed of it, an' it was so nice seems like he couldn't help jes touch it with his finger an' clap his finger to his mouf, an' then he did it agin. Ye know, chillen, how the ole Debil stan's side o' ye an' helps ye on. Arter Sam had tasted onct or twice, he seen a t-e-e-n-y bit of ham, way off in the fur corner, an' he said to hisself, 'I don't b'leeve Ole Mah'sr 'll ever miss that ar one,—'t aint much 'count any way,' An,' chillen, he was that hungry he couldn't help it, I do b'leeve. He snatched that ham, an' he eat an' eat till he couldn't stuff another mouthful, an' hid the rest behind a bar'l. Then he went on an' went on till he came to the apples,—bins an' bins o' b-e-a-u-t-i-f-u-l red apples? An' he smel't of 'em, an' then he eat an' eat an' eat an' eat till he couldn't stuff another mouthful. Then he went on an' went on till he came to the shelf o' sweetmeats, an' he looked at 'em and smelt of 'em, and finally he snatched a jar, tore off the cover, an' eat an' eat an' eat till he could't stuff another mouthful.

"An' then he couldn't eat any more, sure nuff, an' he went out an' locked the do'. But he never had so much to eat in his life, an' 'pears like he sort o' lost his reasons. He went out an' laid down on a bench in the sun, an' he said to hisself, 'Lor'! ain't it nice to have nuff to eat fur onct; there's poor Sam, I don't spose he ever had nuff in his life.' An' then a w-e-r-y wicked idea come into his head. So, bym-by he got up an' went over to Jim's,—he lived next do'—an' he tole him as soon's it was night to come over, an' he tole him to fotch Sally. Sally was the house gal, a likely wench, and Sam liked her. An' then he went to Tom's an' tole him to come too; an' finally, chillen he 'vited quite a 'spectable company. Then he went home, an' he went into the woodshed and an' fotched in great sticks o' wood, an' he made a mose won'erful fire, an swept out the big kitchen clean an' nice, tho, he wasn't extra neat now, Sam wasn't. About ten o'clock his company gan to come, the ladies all dressed up fine in some of their Missis' things,—an low neck an' short sleeves, an' ribbins an' white gloves. O, go way! you don't see any sich things up har! An, the gemmen! Lor', chillen if ye could see the fine long-tailed blue coats, with buttons shinin' like marygolds, ye'd laff fit to sp'lit y'r sides.

"Arter the company was all there, an' talked 'bout the weather, an' sich topics o' conversation, he axed 'em 'Wouldn't they like a little defreshment?' They was very polite, an' said, 'No, thank ye, an' I'd ruther be 'xcused.' But he went to the cellar, an' he tooke'd out g-r-e-a-t plates o' apples an' g-r-e-a-t pitchers o'cider, an' Tom helped him; an' they fotched out Ole Mah'sr's tumblers, and he filled 'em all up; an' he fotched out a great jar of sweatmeats and a g-r-e-a-t dish of honey an pickles,—oh' Lor'! sich heaps of things! An' all the time Sam said, so polite, 'Ladies and gemmen, help your selfs, there's mo' in Mah'sr's cellar!'

"An' they did help themselves, an' they eat an' eat an' eat till they couldn't stuff another mouthful. An' while they was all s-t-u-f-f-i-n,' an' Sam was gwine round with a bottle o' wine in each hand, sayin, so polite, 'Ladies an' gemmen, hep you'self there's mo' in Mah'sr's cellar,' he happened to look up!

"THERE WAS HIS MAS'SR!!!"

As Sarah said this she gave a horrible yell, and sprang forward, clutching in the air, as though to sieze them; and her spell-bound listeners screamed, and some of them fell over backwards.

Delighted with the effect of her tragedy, she waited until they gathered themselves up, with awe struck faces to listen to the end.

She lowered her voice to a ghostly whisper.

"The Mah'sr sprang to get Sam, but Sam let out a screech nuff to raise the dead, an' clared out thro' the do' 's tho' the Debil was arter him. The rest of the company slunk out 'thout axin to be 'xcused, an' was in bed every soul of 'em in two minutes, an' snorin' fit to raise the roof. Sam's mah'sr run till he was done tired out, an' then he drugged hisself home.

Sarah stopped. After waiting a few minutes, Rush asked in a scared sort of voice, what became of Sam.

Sarah rolled her eyes, dropped her jaw, and said, slowly

"He n-e-v-e-r was heard of agin."

"Run away?" suggested Rush.

"S'pose so. Mebby up Norf this very day, f'r all I know." And Sarah turned to her work.

Appleton's American Cyclopædia.

The work originally published under the title of "The American Cyclopædia" was completed in 1863, since which time the wide circulation it has attained in all parts of the United States, and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature, and art, have induced the editors and publishers to submit it to an exact and thorough revision, and to issue a new edition entitled "The American Cyclopædia.

Within the last ten years the progress of discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of reference an imperative want.

The movement of political affairs has kept pace with the discoveries of science, and their fruitful application to the useful and industrious arts and the convenience and refinement of social life. Great wars and consequent revolutions have occurred, involving national changes of peculiar moment. The civil war of our own country, which was at its height when the last volume of the old work appeared, has happily been ended, and a new course of commercial and industrial activity has been commenced.

Large accessions to our geographical knowledge have been made by the indefatigable explorers of Africa.

The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of time, a multitude of new men, whose names are in every one's mouth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. Great battles have been fought and important sieges maintained, of which the details are as yet preserved only in newspapers or in the transient publications of the day, but which ought now to take their place in permanent and authentic history.

In preparing the present edition for the press, it has accordingly been the aim of the editors to bring down the information to the latest possible dates, and to furnish an accurate account of the most recent discoveries in science, of every fresh production in literature, and of the newest inventions in the practical arts, as well as to give a succinct and original record of the progress of historical and political events.

The work has been begun after a long and careful preliminary labor, and with the most ample resources for carrying it on to a successful termination.

None of the original stereotype plates have been used, but every page has been printed on new type, forming in fact a new Cyclopædia, with the same plan and compass as its predecessor but with a far greater pecuniary expenditure, and with such improvements in its composition as have been suggested by longer experience and enlarged knowledge.

The illustrations which have been introduced for the first time in the present edition have been added not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give greater lucidity and force to the explanation in the text. They embrace all branches of science and natural history, and depict the most famous and remarkable features of scenery, architecture, and art, as well as the various processes of mechanics and manufactures. Although intended rather for instruction than embellishment, no pains have been spared to insure their artistic excellence; the cost of their execution is enormous, and it is believed they will find a welcome reception as an admirable feature of the Cyclopædia, and worthy of its high character.

This work is sold to subscribers only, payable on delivery of each volume. It will be completed in sixteen large octavo volumes, each containing about 800 pages, fully illustrated with several thousand wood engravings, and with numerous colored lithographic maps.

Price, varying with style of binding, from $5 to $10 per volume.

En-Route for Eureka.

The Carson Appeal has this item: Hon. Tom. Laspeyre, old-timer, from San Joaquin, a noted man on the sunny side, in stirring times of California Legislatures, latterly from Independence, Inyo county, came in here day before yesterday from the last named point. He reports a rough time in stage and sleigh, and blinding snow storms this side of the race track near Aurora. It has been an unusually rough Winter at Independence, he says. Mr. Laspeyre will remain here a day or two and then move on to Eureka, he thinks, with a notion of abiding there. He is heartily welcomed in Carson.

—An engineer on the Western North Carolina Railroad shouted to a crowd of rustics who had gathered to see the first train come in, "Put down your umbrellas! You'll scare the engine off the track!" The umbrellas were lowered at once.

The Whisky Crusade.

In the State of Ohio the women have succeeded in closing up 100 saloons and 22 liquor selling drug stores, and the war still goes on. In Jeffersonville, Indiana, the anti-rum movement is in full blast, and the women have agreed to raise a fund of $25,000 to carry on the work.

—An exquisitely dressed young gentleman, after buying another seal to dangle about his person, said to the jeweller that he would—ah, like to have—ah, something engraved on it to denote what he was! "Certainly, certainly," said the tradesman; "I'll put a cipher on it."

The Apportionment Bill.

The bill to define the Assembly and Senatorial Districts of this State, as originally intended, gave Tulare, Inyo, Mono and Kern two members of the Assembly jointly, which, all the facts considered was little better than no representation at all. Mr. Parker interested himself however to some purpose, and got the bill amended so as to give one member to Mono and Inyo jointly, which next to one member at least for every county in the state, is as good an arrangement as can be made. Mono and Inyo are pretty much one and the same in general interests and needs. The Fourth Senatorial district is composed of Tulare, Inyo, Fresno, Mono and Kern, and are to have one Senator jointly. Fresno gets one Assemblyman all to herself, while the other four are arranged in pairs, one Assemblyman to each pair. It is humiliating to Kern county to be yoked with Tulare, and vice versa to Tulare, since each of these wide extended ague districts had begun to think itself of much political weight, and no doubt they would have been heavy and willing enough to have disfranchised this sage-brush region if the aforementioned division had not have been effected. The bill as now agreed upon will doubtless become a law.

Contest Decided.

The seat of Thomas Fraser, State Senator from El Dorado county, was contested by Charles Gildea, on the for Fraser, were not printed as prescribed by the Political Code. The matter after being reported to the Senate and argued, there being no disagreement as regards the facts, was referred to the Judiciary Committee. That Committee reported, that by actual experiment it was found that the tickets could be so folded as to make it impossible to detect the difference in them. In the absence of any proofs to the contrary they were bound to assume that the tickets were so folded There were informalities in the printing of the ballots, but there was no evidence of fraudulent intent, and to decide that the ballots were illegal would be to disfranchise all the men who voted for Mr. Fraser. The Senate by unanimous vote declared Mr. Fraser entitled to his seat.

Army Salaries.

Officers in the United States army are paid as follows: The General-in-Chief receives yearly $13,500; the Lieutenant-General, $11,000; a Major-General, $7,500; a Brigadier-General, $5,000; a Colonel, $3,500; a Lieut-Colonel, $3,000; a Major, $2,500; "mounted" Captain $2,000; "unmounted" Captain, $1,800; the same is paid regimental Adjutants and Quartermasters, while a first Lieutenant receives, if mounted, $1,600, and if not $1,500, as do second Lieutenants who are mounted, to whom $1,400 is paid if they are not. A chaplain gets $1,500 a year. A Surgeon is paid $2,500, and an Assistant Surgeon from $1,600 to $2,000.

The Rights of Colored Children.

The Supreme Court have decided in the case of Ward vs. Flood, that colored children in this State have, under the Fourteenth Amendment, the right to attend the public schools. They also decide that the act of our Legislature in establishing separate schools for colored children is not in violation of the Federal Constitution, and they add that unless such separate schools be actually maintained, the colored children have a legal right to attend the schools where white children are taught, and cannot be excluded therefrom.

Paper at Belmont.

We are in receipt of paper No. 2, of The Belmont Courier, the new paper recently started at Belmont, Nye county, Nevada, by Cassamayou of The Austin Reveille and John Booth—"Uncle John" the old newspaper man whom everybody knows. Except that their satan didn't keep his "color up" as shown by our copy, The Courier presents a nice and business like look, and from what it containes we begin to see that Belmont is quite an important mining city, after all, and not a semi rancheria in the wilds nobody knows where.

—Buffalo hides can be bought for a dollar apiece down the Platte, a hundred miles from Golden City, Col.

—Colorado has sixty flouring mills, turning out an annual product amounting to $1,225,000.

EDUCATION.

Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, in a recent speech relating to popular education, presents some startling facts showing the need of some legislation against ignorance. He states that "one-quarter of all the voters to-day are unable to read and write," and that "for the next ten years thirty-two Senators and one hundred and four Representatives will be elected by States one-half of whose voting population has not sufficient knowledge of reading and writing to make it available in the transmission of information," and this state of things is, in the opinion of those best qualified to judge, growing worse instead of better. It is obvious that in this particular radical measures should at once be adopted. There is a bill before the House, introduced we believe, my Mr. Hoar, which proposes to apply one-half the proceeds of the sales of public lands to the support of popular education. This fund is to be distributed among the several States for the next five years in proportion to their illiteracy. The sum estimated to be realized from the annual sale of public lands is about $2,000,000. One million is to be divided equally among the States, of which the South will get the far greatest proportion, and the other million is to be put at interest for a permanent national educational fund, the interest of the same to be divided annually upon the same basis. The bill may be faulty in detail, and doubtless, if passed, will be found needing amendments, but the principle is a good one, and in our opinion is a movement in the right direction. The state of facts set forth by Mr. Hoar calls for immmediate, curative and decisive legislation. Education, general and easily obtainable, is the bulwark of free government. With intelligence, widely diffused neither superstition or tyranny can successfully wage war. The boast of our Government is the intelligence of its laborers. Therein also lies its security and perpetuity. In our humble opinion, for the future of our system of self-government, no better use can be made of the public domain than to apply the proceeds of its sale to the education of the people who, under the Constitution, are the supreme and ultimate arbiters of its destiny.

Women as Educational Officers.

Senate Bill No. 230—an act to make women eligible to educational offices—has been passed by the body in which it was introduced. Senators Finney, Roach and Pendergast supported the bill, and Senator Farley was its principal opponent. The latter doubted the constitutionality of the measure. The same question has recently been raised in Boston, where its agitation has created quite a breeze. Several ladies have been elected members of the School Committee (answering to our Board of Education); the majority of the Committee refused to recognize them as lawful members, and in effect, ousted them from their seats. This created a popular excitement, and led to two "indignation meetings," in which the action of the Committee was severely censured. That body, however, seems to be supported by the opinion of the City Attorney, who in response to a question, submitted to him by the Committee, says: "In my opinion women cannot legally be elected to or perform the duties of the office." The City Attorney adds that he bases his opinion on a decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, to the effect that women cannot be appointed to, or exercise the duties of Justice of the Peace. The reasons assigned in that decision he considered applicable to the case of women holding educational offices. The excitement in regard to the matter does not yet seem to have subsided, as the Boston papers are full of it, and daily publish acrimonious communications on either side of the question.

An Excitment.

Quite an excitement was caused in San Francisco last week, by Stanley, County Judge, charging the Treasurer and Mayor of that city, before the Grand Jury, with felony, because the Treasurer a few days previous had a large amount of money deposited in the Bank of California, which by the consolidation act was required to be in that official's safe, and the Mayor had knowledge and approved the course of the Treasurer. The whole of the money was paid to the State before the charge was made.

Defeated.

The bill to abolish capital punishment was defeated in the California Senate, February 25, and the good old way of jerking people's heads off will proceed as usual.

—The Oregon Pioneers expect to have a very interesting time at Astoria on the occasion of the annual meeting February 22.

SWAMP LAND FRAUDS.

The Swamp Land Investigating Committee occasionally find a little time to look into the matter especially intrusted to them, but apparently the more they do and find out, the more there is to do and find out. One development points the way to still another, and also to the fact that the committee has more work before it than it can possibly accomplish in the limited time at its disposal. But something of value to the State will come of its labors, nevertheless. The late Surveyor-General, J. R. Hardenbergh, has been giving some interesting testimony He tells of the rascalities of Wm Chapman, Jesse D. Carr and others who effected somethihg of pecuniary benefit to themselves by forgery and lying, and of others, among them our own Josiah, who tried—but so far unsuccessfully—to make some big steals on their own account. The whole of Hardenbergh's testimony is quite interesting, but we can in this only give space to the following:

Q.—What is your opinion as to the result in case you had made the appointment for Earl? A.—It would have ousted the settlers, and they would have had no redress. What could they do? The Commissioner told me that there was no redress after the report of the Surveyor was approved in Washington, and told me to be very careful in making appointments of Surveyors. [Witness here instanced a Lassen county case, which had come under his observation, to show that after the United States Surveyor-General has accepted a plat it cannot be appealed from, under the rulings of the Department, even though fraud has been discovered. "There is no redress for the settlers." This was the only fraud he knew of—the only case where a surveyor had made an improper return.]

The great grabbing of land has been done by Chapman and a few others. It has not been done so much in the United States Land Office as in the State Land Office.

Under the State law a survey would not be legal where the surveyor did not go on the land, but made up his plat in the office. There cannot be any mistake about that. Such surveys could be invalidated.

All the lands in the southern part of the State which are returned as swamp lands are entirely different in character from the swamp lands on the Sacramento river. The lands there really are swamp and overflowed lands, made so by the river overflowing its banks. The land is but little higher than the banks of the river, and the basin there, in the wet season, is filled up with water.

Amendments to the School Law.

The amendments to the school law, introduced into the Senate by Mr. Tuttle, are of great interest to the public and will increase the facilities for education in various portions of the State should they become a law. The important provision is that, which recognizes the duty of the State to educate its children and to make the cost fall equally on the populous and wealthy, as well as the poor and sparsely settled districts. It proposes to raise a State tax, that shall yield seven dollars net, to each census child between the ages of five and seventeen years. This will require but a small additional levy on the part of the State and at the same time relieve those counties that are now compelled to levy thirty-five cents on each hundred dollars valuation for school purposes, and then fall short of raising means sufficient to keep the school open the time contemplated by law. This amendment has passed to engrossment in the Senate, and its friends think there will be no danger when it comes up for final passage. It should be early acted on by the Assembly. Two years ago a similar bill was passed at the end of the session, but for want of time failed to become a law. No delay that will endanger such a law should be allowed.

St. Nicholas.

We have never seen a magazine or publication of any description intended chiefly for the young that can begin to compare in real merit, with Scribner's St. Nicholas. It is a large, elegantly printed and splendidly illustrated monthly, full of amusing stories, quaint fancies, entertaining alike for old and young. As a specimen of one of these stories we print in this issue "Sarah's Story," a portion of a continued story by Olive Thorne. The subscription price is only $3 a year which, to subscribers for 1874 includes the November and December numbers without additional cost. Scribner & Co., 654 Broadway, N. Y.

The Finance Bill.

The Inyo Finance Bill has passed the Assembly with an amendment by Mr. Parker, which is a very good one. It makes the maximum sum of the tax which the Board may levy for the Expense Fund $1 10 instead of but $1. This amendment gives the power to insure against deficiencies in the Expense Fund which is a matter of great importance, although without unlooked for contingencies 80 or 85 cents will be all that will be required.

Kern County Officials.

Under the pending apportionment bill Inyo and Mono are likely to be made yoke fellows with Kern, therefore we begin to feel some interest in knowing the names, at least, of some of those of that county who expect to be drivers of such a scrubby spike team. We have it in this from The Californian of February 26: "Next week the new county officers will be sworn in. W. R. Bower will take Mr. Coons' place as Sheriff and ex-officio Tax Collector. Mr. Bower has been Under-Sheriff under Mr. Coons, and will take his place as chief familiar with his duties. D. A. Sinclair, will re-enter upon his duties as Treasurer. A. C. Lawrence, Esq., will enter upon another term as District Attorney. F. W. Craig will take the place of Mr. A. A. Bermudez, as County Clerk. Mr Beardsley will be our School Superintendent. Mr. James, Surveyor. Our Board of Supervisors, Mr. Jewett, of Bakersfield, Mr. Denker, of Havilah, Mr. Narboe, of Tehachepi."

Columbus Item.

We condense the following from the Miner of February 19.

G. R. A. Brown, a faro dealer, attacked James Duxbury with an iron bar inflicting severe injuries on Duxbury's arm and head. About money won and lost.

Peter Bradley, an old Nevada miner, died at this place February 18. Dropsy, superinduced by intemperance, was the cause of death.

Pinchower and Crane's teams have just started for Wadsworth loaded with some 20 tons of Borax.

Speaking about mail matters The Miner adds this:

Happening in at the Columbus post-office Tuesday night while the mail was being put up, we noticed letters which were being sent back that were plainly addressed to Columbus, Nebraska, Olanche, Inyo county, California, Columbus, Ohio, and divers and sundry other places. We were informed that the night in question was not an exceptional one—that it wasn't a good night for stray letters, hardly up to the average—and that it is a common occurrence to send back from one to half a dozen letters by nearly every mail that leaves here. Who's fault is it?

Don't Get It.

The Sacramento Union of February 23, gives this in relation to Paul Neumann's failure to become Harbor Commissoner after all:

The Supreme Court on Saturday rendered a decision in the case of Neumann vs. Mathewson, published elsewhere. Neumann was elected State Harbor Commissioner at the last election. Mathewson was then the incumbent. Neumann qualified and demanded the office; Mathewson refused to vacate. Neumann brought suit in District Court—the Court held that he was entitled to the office; Mathewson appealed; the Supreme Court held the election invalid because there was no law authorizing it. Mathewson holds his office.

OUR BENTON CORRESPONDENCE.

BENTON, March 4, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: Time tells, while all signs fail to tell the coming events; to-day has been one of nature's own days, such as we find in the "Sunny South," yet the flying missiles of yesterday hung heavy on our vision, thus making the sudden change incomprehensible. March has undoubtedly entered as a lion—nature may yet please him, and christen him a lamb ere the anniversary of the Lone Pine earthquake approaches us.

It is a mystery unsolved to us all, that diseases spread like bad money, falling in the lap of those least prepared to suffer the consequences. Our people here have been somewhat harassed and racked with severe colds, accompanied with a hard dry cough, bordering on the brink of pneumonia (and in fact, two or three case of this fearful disease have actually visited us) The patients were attended by Dr. Griswold, formerly of Bridgeport, a non practising physician of high standing among the students of medicine, and at present an honest miner. He thinks more of an argentiferous lead ore vein than he does of the fascinating teachings of the medical dispensary. Mr. Piessnecker, our druggist at this place, was taken very ill suddenly last week with a severe cold and convulsive cough. "Strangulated hernia," caused by extreme exertion, was the result. His case was critical and rather desperate, and his attending physician thought it desirable to call in other medical aid Dr. Middleton, of Bishop Creek, and Dr. White, of Camp Independence, were sent for immediately, and the patient is now improving.

Improvements appear to be the custom of the day among our citizens. The Partzwick Hotel is being enlarged by the addition of a cosy little room on the north-west corner, fronting on Main street; a new floor in the bar-room, and a few new doors, together with a good outfit of new wall paper. Mr. Kelty has added to his mansion in the way of a shed compartment on the east side of the main buildings—rather a peculiar style of architecture, but nothing unusual in Benton. Mr. Hightower is overhauling his wood and blacksmith shops; a new roof and square front, with interior improvements, mark the energy of this unyielding enterprising gentleman. Mr. Ullrick, the stage man, has completed a fine, roomy stable for the accommodation of his stage stock. Other improvements of considerable magnitude are likely to be carried into effect the coming Summer.

The Illinois Company, operating at Yellow Jacket Springs, have suspended operations for the present, owing to an extra amount of water from the melting snows. The Pioneer mill, in Montgomery District, is undergoing repairs, and will start up in a few days under the superintendence of Mr. Aaron.

It is rumored here, and partially confirmed, that Mr. Holmes of Columbus has offered a compromise with the parties who filed objections to his right of patent. CONTRIBUTOR.

To the Point.

Last week we copied the editorial remarks of the Los Angeles Express upon our railroad question. The same paper a day or two later contained another pertinent editorial on the same subject and also the views of a correspondent which latter we give as well worth the consideration of our own readers:

EDITOR EXPRESS:—Allow me to congratulate you upon your very able and judicious article upon the importance of a narrow guage railroad to Cerro Gordo, and for calling attention to our comparative proximity to the richest mineral region in the world. The grand idea of Brigham Young in establishing his colony at San Bernardino, was to complete his communication with the bay of San Pedro. One year ago last Summer the writer of this conversed with this extraordinary man on this matter, and the ultimate terminus of his system of railroads then and now in progress of construction. He remarked that at one time he had his eye on our section but that we were too slow, and that we should have moved in obtaining franchises and grants for a road to Salt Lake while Congress was in the giving mood. Now he would have to content himself with the Colorado River for the present, while his people and settlements are fast approaching Los Angeles. Now I would suggest that the building of a narrow guage railroad is entirely practical. Let our business men, property owners and farmers enter in earnest into the matter; form a joint stock association called the Los Angeles and Cerro Gordo Railroad and Transportation Company. Put a practical man at the head of it; at first run all the trains that can possibly be needed to do the business of the route. Commence at once to grade our track, and every ten miles of road we build will be so much gained on the ox and mule team. It will pay from the day we commence to work and will be the life of our farming and industrial interests. Let us commence, and the vast region of Cerro Gordo, White Pine and Pioche will assist us, and capital from abroad will soon seek interest in the enterprise. J. G. D.

United.

The Protestants and Catholics have affiliated upon the temperance question in Philadelphia. The Roman Catholic Total Abstinence Union had an enthusiastic demonstration at that city recently, and many Protestants participated.

Died.

The Railroad.

We have it from good authoity that earnest work is going on both in San Francisco and Los Angeles in favor of the Cerro Gordo and Los Angeles narrow gauge. A number of capitalists in both places are very favorably disposed toward the enterprise, and we feel quite confident active work on the road will be commenced this very Spring. We truly believe there is not a more promising railroad enterprise offering on this coast. It will tap the most extensive and uniform mineral region in the world, which though scarcely touched, will even to-day furnish a fair paying business for such a road, and with the ten-fold increase, greatly contingent but certain to follow its completion, places the probabilities of a grand success for the undertaking entirely beyond question.

Los Angeles.

The Los Angeles Herald can't brag much for the enterprising spirit of the authorities of that city, but gives high praise for the amount of public spirit displayed by certain private citizens. Concerning the works of two of these The Herald says:

The most important enterprise undertaken by a single individual, is that of Mr. Beaudry. In the way of opening streets, laying water pipes, building a reservoir, and generally improving the city he is doing a work of unusual magnitude.

Mr J. W. Potts is also grading the street on which his property fronts, and has spent a considerable sum of money. The best we can do is to wish these enterprising gentlemen success in their praiseworthy efforts to improve the city, and to urge our cititzens to encourage them.

Public Lands.

A Washington dispatch of February 27, says:

The Senate Committee on Public Lands to-day agreed to report favorably on Hitchcock's bill allowing any person who has failed to acquire perfect title to his pre-emption or homestead entry, to file another declaratory statement or homestead application for another tract. They also agreed to report favorably on Pratt's bill granting to the several States all the unsurveyed overflowed lands, and, with sundry amendments, the House bill amendatory of the act to encourage the growth of timber on the Western prairies.

Bullion Shipments and Roads.

The Cerro Gordo and Los Angeles Freighting Company dispatch two heavy teams regularly every day from Cartigo loaded with bullion. The average load for each wagon is 170 bars or a total each day of 340 bars equal to, or a little in excess of 15 tons—about three-fifths as much as the daily product of the furnaces when all are in full blast. We are reliably informed that at the present time there is from fifteen to twenty thousand bars ahead of the teams. The Freighting Company have 46 teams continually on the road, but of late they have been much retarded in their operations by the almost impassable condition of the roads especially down near Los Angeles. Besides high waters which in one instance recently caused the loss of a portion of one team by drowning, and much trouble and danger at all times, there is (or were at least) a number of stretches where the roads have "no bottom at all;" but the difficulties from this source will soon cease altogether, and the capacity of the teams be increased to an equivalent of eight more teams when the railroad begins to take their freight at San Fernando, which will be almost immediately.

Unfortunate.

We are sorry to learn that John Herald, generally known as "Tennessee," is laboring under an aberation of mind, the effects of disease, which is likely to prove serious or lasting. Of late he has been living at Lone Pine, and owing to the frequency of his insane actions has been kept under close surveillance by Dr. Colamber and others of his friends. Several times lately he has wandered off long distances, apparently without aim or object, but on each occasion has been brought back by his friends. On the last occasion he had made his way up Cottonwood Creek to Steven's saw mill, some thirty miles from Lone Pine. Sheriff Mulkey went after him with a view of calling an inquirendo lunatico, but with what result we are not prepared to say.

Returned.

P. Reddy, Esq., returned a few days since from an extended tour around the east and northward. He visited Lida Valley, Silver Peak, Columbus and Benton. He feels grieved to think people should suppose he went all that round merely to prospect for a mine; he went in his own conveyance for an airing and got it well mixed with sand and snow and cold, and comes home a travelled man, surprised at the size of this world, but in full faith that it will grow smaller after awhile if the sand keeps blowing away all the time, as it appeared to be doing out on those roads east of the mountains, or, if it don't get smaller that way, the cold will condense it so as to make some difference.

Installed.

The new county officers and those re-elected were all duly installed into their respective offices last Monday. The new officers are R. B. Snelling, District Attorney, and Albert Wayland, Coroner. J. F. Dillon, enters into the Assessorship by virtue of the four years' term as originally provided by the Code, but which went into effect after the election of 1871, and after the Assessors then elected entered upon their duties. The legal point thus raised was settled by an act of the present Legislature legalizing the continuance in office for the four years.

The Bandits.

Nothing definite has been heard of the Vasquez cut-throats since the robbery at Cayote Holes. A Mexican informed Sheriff Mulkey that a short time previous to that robbery that Vasquez himself and eight or nine men of his gang had visited Coso, 60 miles south of Cerro Gordo, and remained two or three days. He went there for supplies but found none and went quietly off. The inhabitants of that district are but few and all Mexicans engaged in mining.

Columbus.

From Mr. Reddy we learn that the Holmes Mining Suit has been compromised which is a good thing for the camp; that the Moeshimer and Pacific Borax works and the Sweetapple & Hazeltine mill were all running which is likewise a good thing for the camp; also, that Mrs. Barry designed to quit business in Columbus and re-open her house in Lone Pine which is a bad indication for one camp and a good one for the other.

The Salary Bill.

The bill to fix the salaries of Inyo officers has passed both Houses, but we doubt if it was signed and perfected in time to be of any avail to the present incumbents. It allows the County Judge $1,200 and the District Attorney $1,000 per annum.

The Balance Due.

The bill authorizing the payment of the $5,300 balance due on the bridge contracts, has passed both Houses.

As a Financier.

That dignified individual Capt. Jim, generalissimo of that portion of the Piute nation located hereabouts got an idea the other day that he could do well as a confidence man. He stepped into Harris & Rhine's and politely informed Harry Isaacs, chief of the dry-goods department, that he wanted to purchase a pair of "fus'rate pants." The selection made, the Captain, after the manner of the white man, tendered a paper—which might be an "order," but wasn't—in payment and demanded the change. Harry looked at it and said, "Captain, you sabe this paper? How much you think him worth?" "Yesh, we sabe bery well. Dat's worf hundred dollars; you give me change." "Not much it ain't, Captain," said Harry, politely. "You heap cheat, Captain, this is a white man's note for $1,100, Captain, but it ain't worth a cent because the name's torn off, do you see?" "Yesh, me see dat a dam white man cheat'em Injun; me catch dat of white man, and he say it's all same as $100 order; dam order money; dam foot injun," and with an injured air the Captain took back his "order," or cancelled note, produced the coin for his pants, and walked out, no doubt full of wonder how some people came to be so smart.

Shot Himself.

A few days since Buckley, of whom mention is made elsewhere, got into an altercation with some one in Scott & Fitzgerald's saloon, Lida Valley. In consequence of this he went on the hunt for arms and stepping behind the bar he found a deringer which he flourished around awhile and then put back, but without uncocking it. To prevent possible mischief, Jim Fitzgerald put the pistol in his own pocket, and without observing that the hammer was still up. Soon there was an explosion in that pocket and soon after Fitzgerald discovered that the ball had entered his thigh and coursed along down it about six inches. J. B. Hiskey, Esq., who is considerable of a sawbones not to have a diploma, went at it, extracted the ball and dressed the wound in good shape. Though pretty severe no serious results are apprehended from the hurt.

Invited to Take a Walk.

Out at Lida the other day one Buckley shamefully maltreated a squaw, and in other ways made himself very obnoxious to the community, so Mister Buckley was notified that he had better take a walk—a good, long one. He was outfitted with a small sum of cash, crackers and advice, and with his bed on his back he proceeded gaudily to gratify the peculiar whim that he had noticed cropping out among those people. The mountain he had to face at the very outset was steep and high, the snow deep and the weather boisterous, but these obstacles were as nothing to Buckley; he is too proud to stop a moment longer than necessary with people subject to such curious notions. At last accounts he was heading for Bishop Creek where he proposed to tarry awhile.

Will Celebrate.

Oasis Lodge, No. 152, I. O. G. T., of Bishop Creek, and Busy Bee Lodge, No. 250, of this place, will both hold a picnic, or something of that kind, in the course of a month or two, say May 1st. The public will be invited to participate, everyone to bring his own "bread and dinner." Due notice will be given, through these columns as to time, place and programme, for both occasions.

The Legal Distances.

Assembly bill No. 31, introduced by Mr. Parker, has become a law. Section 162 of the Code is amended so as to read "From the county Seat of Inyo county to Sacramento, four hundred and seventy-four miles; to Stockton, four hundred and seventeen miles; to San Quentin, five hundred and twelve miles. This act shall take effect from and after its passage."

The Pauper.

The mendicant Mexican whom we mentioned as having been hauled up to explain himself, staid around town a day or two and then took the road to the north. He did not ask charity at the stations where he stopped but tendered in coin the equivalent for accommodations received—which is proof enough that he is entirely loco.

Is it any Wonder!

A friend in San Francisco writes us among other things as follows: "Connelly, Simpson, Egbert, Mairs, Wingard, Brady and Beaudry are all here." As everybody knows these gents we ask, is it any wonder San Francisco's moral status is no better than it should be?

Religious.

Rev. M. W. Pratt will preach the funeral sermon for Mr. and Mrs. Ball's little boy, in Lone Pine in the afternoon to-morrow. Friends of the parents are all invited to attend. Revs. Orne or McKean will preach here tomorrow evening, beginning at a quarter past seven.

Unwell.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. F. P. Ball, of Lone Pine, in addition to his other trying afflictions, is himself quite ill. He came up here on a short visit a day or two since but as yet is unable to return home on account of this attack of sickness.

Shut Down.

Pending a Trustee's sale, to occur within two months, the Lida mill is shut down, so times in that undoutedly rich district will be dull enough for a time, or until the mill can be started up again which will be at the earliest possible date.

Credit to Whom Credit is Due.

Independence, Cal., March 6, 1874.

Mr. Editor: In the last issue of your paper I noticed a communication from "Citizen," in which he begs leave to inform you that he has received several communications from Mr. Josiah Earl (lucky dog) in reference to land claims near Camp Independence; the last received, he says, speaks very encouragingly of the near success of his (I presume Earl's) untiring exertions at Washington in behalf of those claimants, and that he (Earl) hoped to report a favorable result in a few days.

This is a sneaking attempt on the part of Josiah Earl to steal the credit due to the parties who have, in a legitimate way, labored to obtain title for the claimants near Camp Independence to the lands occupied by them. The history of Josiah Earl's connection with this matter is brief, and is as follows: Some time last Summer he called on many, if not all, of the claimants above referred to, and stated to them that he would obtain title for them to the lands in question if they would pay him one thousand dollars, and that if they did not do so "they could not secure a patent from the Government;" this proposition was not accepted.

The greater number of said claimants then sought advice of attorneys at this place, who took the matter in hand; procured the affidavits of the claimants, setting forth the facts in each particular case, and laid the whole matter before Capt. MacGowan, Commandant of the Post at Independence, who after a full examination, reported to the War Department with a recommendation that the claimants above referred to, be allowed to pre-empt the land occupied by them. This was the first step towards bringing about the result which Josiah so modestly declares is due "to his untiring exertions." The attorneys for claimants drafted a bill to be introduced in Congress for their relief, which bill was forwarded to the Hon. James E. Parker, who, at his own expense, made a trip to San Francisco to interview Senator Hager upon this subject, and obtained his promises to support the bill. Our Congressman, Mr. Houghton, had been spoken to before the commencement of the present session of Congress, and he also promised his support. Senator Sargent was also in favor of it, and, in fact, all our representatives from this coast. Now the War Department being satisfied of the equities of the bill, and willing to have it passed, and it being supported by all the members from this coast, it is not surprising that the guileless and self sacrificing Josiah should have a hope within him "that his untiring exertions" would be speedily crowned with success. But in view of the facts above set forth, the question arises where and in what manner did Josiah exert himself, and was there anything left undone in the premises before Josiah commenced his labors, the performance of which would tire or fatigue a superannuated Lilliputian. The only persons entitled to credit in this affair are Capt. MacGowan and Hon. James E. Parker. All others connected with it have simply earned their fee or performed acts simply within the line of their duty, while the last named gentlemen seem to have devoted their time and attention to it because of its equitable phase.

It is not to be wondered at that Josiah should try to connect himself with a success of some kind, since "the waters from the melting snows" have began to fail him, but one could hardly believe that he would engage in such a small steal as this, until the admiring "Citizen" exposed Josiah's modest pretensions to your readers.

In concluding this communication I have only to say, that Josiah ought to be satisfied with his little swamps in Inyo county, without trying to claim credit for himself which belongs to others.

A Lesson.

So that Nevada Lottery has received a quietus. After having been allowed to exist and its tickets set afloat upon the market and sold everywhere where anybody could be found to purchase them, and after having been advertised in The New York Herald for months, and in various locations wherever in fact the law and authorities permitted, until cords of tickets had been disposed of, the Supreme Court of the alkali land, has decided that the lottery contra bonus mores, and must cheat no more. Now the question arises with those who have exchanged certain dollars for uncertain hopes, "Who has got the money, and what is going to be done with it? Am I to get what I paid for my ticket back again?" Not much my friend. Put that amount down and credit it to experience. Perhaps that may be of more intrinsic value to you than those vagrant "scads" you paid for those worthless bits of pasteboard. —S. F. Alta.

Silver Ware.

Never put a particle of soap about your silver if you wish it to retain its original lustre. When it wants polish take a piece of soft leather and whiting and rub hard. The proprietor of one of the oldest silver establishments in the city of Philadelphia says "housekeepers ruin their silver by washing it in soapsuds, as it makes it look like pewter."

A Problem.

A man employed two men to dig a ditch one hundred yards in length for one hundred dollars. One of them goes to work at one end for 75 cents per rod, and the other at the opposite end for $1 25 per rod; as one end was harder to work than the other, they make this difference. At what point must they meet to receive fifty dollars each?

—Maysville, Kentucky, hires its Mayor at $150 a year.

Panamint.

Reports from Panamint district, Inyo county, are of the most encouraging character. As work progresses on the Wyoming the ledge developes very flattering features, the ore assaying from $200 to $2,500 per ton. The Little Chief also shows plenty of high grade ore, some of it giving as high as $3,000 per ton. John Copely, Superintendent of Stewart's Wonder, reports favorably. He says he has found a good deal of virgin silver in the mine. The silver belt of the Panamint mountains is destined to figure conspicuously in the mining history of California and pay a large tribute to the prosperity of the State.—S. F. Stock Report.

A Criticism of Public Men by the Press.

[From The New York Times.]

It will be a very gloomy day for this country when there is not a considerable number of newspapers able and willing to candidly examine the character of public men. If we reflect a moment, we shall see that the existence of a firm, intelligent and disinterested press is an indispensible condition to the success of representative government these times. We could not make free institutions work without it. We are not a community of Athenian Democrats—we cannot all get together in a public place and talk over the claims to confidence of public men, most of whom we know personally. We must have the best agents we can get to transact the public business, and we can only select them on the knowledge we get through the newspapers. Very few of us have any other means of information, and the intimate knowledge a few influential men may have concerning candidates for public favor would be useless in our country if it could not be communicated through the papers.

Most people, even the sensitive public servants referred to, will acknowledge these truths in the abstract; but they shrink from the application. Yet we must have them applied. The people must know all they can about the men they are asked to employ. In his private business, every careful citizen investigates a man's character before he trusts him. He often investigates a great many things likely to throw light on a man's character which it is unpleasant for the employer to have looked into. He does not hesitate to inquire into a clerk's associates, or a cashier's expenditures, or the places in which a book-keeper passes his leisure time. Every public man must be ready to submit not to these inquiries, for they concern private relations, but to those which will throw the same light on their fitness for public trust as these throw light on their fitness for private trust. Doubtless the results are not always agreeable to those whose character is the subject of inquiry, neither is the process agreeable with those who go through with it. It is often laborious, and sometimes tedious and vexatious, and very apt to be thankless. The appreciation of such services by the general public would afford but a poor compensation for the performance of them. But they are necessary, and generally rendered, precisely as the best services of men in public places are rendered, from an honorable desire to do some good work in the little time each has to labor.

Nothing can be plainer than that the most careful scrutiny of the history and character of public men not only is proper, but it is a duty to which the press is bound. It is a duty, too, not only in the community in which the press exists, but to the press itself. We should have small faith in the progress and prosperity of the newspapers in this country if we did not know that so many of them are conducted by honest and courageous men, who cannot be bought, and have too much sense to become subservient to any set of selfish men. It is upon such men that the life of the press and its usefulness and growth in power depend. The politicians who would make the press their tool would soon ruin it, as well as to inflict lasting injury on the country.

Importance of Correct Punctuation.

The importance of correct punctuation was strongly illustrated the other day at the meeting of the Ways and Means Committee, when it was shown that a comma in one place was worth $2,000,000. In the tariff bill which went into effect August 1st, 1872, the free list was extended by the addition of several hundred articles. Among the number added was "fruit plants, tropical and semi-tropical," for the purpose of propagation and cultivation. In engrossing the bill, or in the process of copying for official printing, a comma was inserted after the word "fruit," and all fruit was thereby placed upon the free list. The custom officers, however, not noticing the change, continued to collect duties on fruit until the error was discovered. The Ways and Means Committee have now agreed to report a bill to remove the comma, in accordance with the intent of the law of 1872. The amount of tax illegally collected is not far from $2,000,000.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Reddy, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiffs in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars, in U. S. Gold coin, with interest thereon from the Tenth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America, as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California in and for [SEAL.] the County of Inyo, this Nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy four.

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND,
Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, [SEAL.] this 30th day of January, 1874.

PROSPECTUS.

THE BEST PAPER! TRY IT!!

BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, NOW IN ITS 29th year, enjoys the widest circulation of any weekly newspaper of the kind in the world. A new volume commences January 3, 1874.

Its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Facts, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various Arts.

The Scientific American is the cheapest and best illustrated weekly paper published. Every number contains from 10 to 15 original engravings of new machinery and novel inventions.

Engravings illustrating Improvements, Discoveries and Important Works, pertaining to Civil and Mechanical Engineering, Milling, Mining and Metallurgy; Records of the latest progress in the Applications of Steam, Steam Engineering, Railways, Ship Building, Navigation, Telegraphy, Telegraph Engineering, Electricity, Magnetism, Light and Heat.

Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, Teachers, Clergymen, Lawyers and People of all Professions, will find The Scientific American useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College, Academy or School.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several Hundred Engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. Terms $3 a year by mail. Discount to Clubs. Specimens sent free. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS, In connection with The Scientific American, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of new inventions and sketches examined and advice free. All patents are published in The Scientific American the week they issue. Send for pamphlet, 110 pages, containing laws and full directions for obtaining Patents.

LIFT HIM UP.

Lying so low in the gutter,
Degraded and black with sin,
With garments tattered and filthy;
More shattered and foul within.

His face has grown ugly and brutal,
And lost is each trace divine;
The reign of his passions has made him
Companion alone for the swine.

"He is too far gone," they tell us,
All they who pass him by;
"Impossible now to reach him,"
So he is left to sink and die.

He was once "somebody's darling,"
That man so degraded and vile,
And the heart of some one that loved him
Was once made glad by his smile.

Those lips, that now breathe but cursing,
A mother's kiss once pressed,
And the hair, once soft and golden,
A sister's hand caressed.

Those eyes, now blear and soulless,
Once lighted with love's bright glow,
And the fire of the soul within them
Burned with thoughts that angels know.

Let your tear drops fall of pity,
Upon these darkened leaves
Resting here—"Possible all things,"
All "to him that believes."

Friends of Temperance, this is your mission,
Strong in Love's power to save,
With a sympathy earnest, untiring,
Go, bring him up from the grave.

Presence of Mind.

[From Wood's Household Magazine.]

There is one grand quality signally neglected, almost never taught, no where prized at its true value, seldom preached upon, yet certain to avert many a disaster and deliver from many a peril. Were parents and teachers accustomed to show their young ones how self-command in some unexpected emergency, as in an outbreak of fire at midnight, would not only save themselves but rescue a whole company of friends or fellow pupils, were the various means of escape shown, and the necessity of instant decision enforced, many a valuable life (to say nothing of property) would be saved. So intelligent a community as ours ought not, in this advanced period of thought, to be so easily overwhelmed by calamity when one woman's prompt and resolute aid would stop the stream at its fountain head. If it is replied, as it will be, that some persons are born without this gift, my answer is that Peter the Great was born without the capacity to endure the sea; Frederic the Second with perfect terror at battle; Paley with indisposition to rise early; Judge Story with a disgust at law books, and Washington with an impetuous passion—yet all conquered their natural weakness, and so can we, if we feel the necessity.

From various quarters facts have come to me of every sort, illustrating in women, and children even, the power of overcoming panic and turning apparent disaster into an occasion of really sublime virtue.

Instances there are, as we all know, of mothers rushing in frantic fear from a burning dwelling, then remembering the dear baby they left asleep in its little crib, and flying back through the open passage to perish vainly in a whirl of mad flames. At the first alarm it would have been easy enough to have seized the child and secured its safety with her own, because the air currents were then cut off; after her own mad hand had given the fire free passage through the house, her own sacrifice came too late to be of any service.

Another mother I knew in this State, awakened from a profound sleep by the fierce light in her room, forbidding her husband from opening door or window till she had made a string of sheets, and let her child down to the ground; then she followed herself, without any serious injury from the stifled flames, and not even a very severe fright, for she had taught herself self-control, and so she was always ready to use the best means and all the means God and Nature had put in her hands.

The custom used to be universal in Ireland of storing powder in the garret of every grand country house. The great-grandmother of the famous Maria Edgeworth had sent a stupid servant girl to procure something in the garret. When the maid came back and was asked for the candle, which she had carried without any candle-stick, she answered that "it was sticking in the cask of black dirt up there." Not a moment was to be lost. Mrs. Edgeworth flew up stairs, dashed the candle upon the floor, and fell herself overcome by nervous excitement. She had saved the house and all within its walls.

That capital old story-book, Sandford and Merton, tells a story founded on fact, of a party of girls pursued by a bull in an open field. The eldest lassie turned full on the mad beast and faced him. Mr. Bull paused a moment in surprise. Then he renewed his advance, and the noble girl made the best retreat she could, facing him still, and cheering her little companions to hurry away. Her calmness seems to have been respected by the great beast, for he only drove her steadily out of his domain, giving all her party and herself time to leap the fence without harm.

A far better story I remember of an English family taking tea in the garden back of their bungalow, in upper India, one sultry eve. Suddenly a grand Bengal tiger made one of the company. The gentlemen, even an army officer, seemed paralyzed with fear. One woman alone was master of the occasion. She sprung open a large sun umbrella right in the face of the beast, who resented so unusual a reception by leaping over the green hedge and making for the thicket where he had been hiding. Would not this same genius at improvising means have made this lady perfectly invaluable in shipwreck, in midnight conflagration, a burglar's attack, in epidemic disease, in the field hospital of an army, in the panic of a crowded assembly, in railroad collision, in thousands of lesser disasters always aggravated by lack of self control?

When only thirteen Sir Astley Cooper showed this rare gift. A little playmate had been crushed by a cart-wheel. He was bleeding to death. There was not half time enough to get a surgeon. Astley brought out a silk handkerchief and tied about the wound, stopping the bleeding effectually until the surgeon could take the child in charge whom Astley had really saved. And this event was the principal one to determine that choice of his profession, which made him such a signal blessing to mankind.

The name of Eli Breem ought to have some permanent record. A railroad bridge had been destroyed by fire. An express train was approaching. Eli was determined to hazard his life to save others. He ran to meet the advancing engine, spread his little arms as widely as possible, and succeeded in gaining the engineer's attention—who stopped the train just in time to prevent another disaster like that at Norwalk.

The best wine I have kept for the last. Manning, a West India merchant, was sitting on a log on the shore of Jamaica, while his companions were bathing. Suddenly he saw a shark making full upon them. Had he cried "shark," one or both would have been overcome by fear. "Fellows, look here," he cried, "you swim miserably. Here is the best repeater in all Jamaica for the one that comes in first." So he kept cheering and stimulating, now one, now the other. When he saw Farnum relaxing his stroke, he reproached him for giving up so easily, when he was sure to win if he only pursued. At last he rushed into the waves himself, his red handkerchief streaming from the end of stick, to divert the man-eater. When Farnum was safe upon the sand, and was told his peril, he fell flat as a log, proving how helpless he would have been out at sea.

An Affecting Romance.

The New York Tribune says: Affecting is a romance that comes from Indiana. A young gentleman living near Terre Haute felt that life had no charms if a young lady of whom he thought a great deal of didn't marry him. She didn't, and he immediately went West, and employed a sympathetic friend to write to her saying that he was dead, and begging her as his parting request to stop and drop a weed a flower or a tear over his lonesome grave if she happened to be passing in that direction. Mark the practicality of the modern young lady! No thrill of anguish desolated her soul; she calmly wrote back to the friend that if he had any consideration for her feelings to send her the dear departed's watch, chain and money. The things were sent and the owner speedily followed to observe the effect of his beau strategem. Alas! he met her with another, and wearing all his jewelry. Appalled by this sudden apparition of a dead man, Another fled, but the young lady had sharper eyes for her unappreciated suitor. All's well that ends well—she was so displeased with Another for running away in terror that now she is about to marry the ghost.

—The latest instance of originality in a marriage announcement is the following: "No cards, no cake, no fuss."

—The Athens Georgian tells a story of a pious old lady near that city, who was overpersuaded by the young folks to have a party at her house—when the guests were assembled, they were surprised at the advent of a solemn minister, who proceeded to preach them a sermon two hours in length.

—A young man who was married in Detroit six months ago has joined in the discussion of the question of family economy. "I do not," he says, "understand how it is. I used to figure it out on Sunday nights, with my arm around her waist, and all it would cost me to live would be $2 75 a week, and now I spend $15 and am hungry half the time." Brute!

Mark Twain's Bucking Horse.

Moncure D. Conway writes from London of one of Mark Twain's latest stories, as follows:

"The talk of literary London just now is Mark Twain's account, in his new lecture, of Nevada. It is impossible to put it on paper, as half of the effect produced by the story depends upon the manner of telling it. It would appear that before purchasing this steed he had no idea of what 'bucking' meant, but was too proud to ask for information. This, however, he obtained through the discipline of experience. He mounted the horse. The animal then gathered its four feet in a bunch beneath it, and by a sudden upward fling sent him (Twain) into the air just 150 yards. When the audience smiles at this, Mark looks troubled at their incredulity, but proceeds. From this ascent he returns, alights in the saddle, and the horse gives another fling going 150 yards in the air. He then tells his smiling audience that he judged it was that distance by the looks of the steeples; but confessed he did not go into details. This ascent being repeated he remembers, while in the air, hearing some one on earth say, 'He might have known he was a bucking horse;' upon which the fact flashed upon him. While he was absent the last time some one cut the horse, which started forward, and when he came down it was upon the ground. He could not say he regretted it. There was no reason for the horse remaining on his account. Friends gathered around him after his descent, as they always do when one wants to be let alone, and asked if he wanted this or wanted that. What he really wanted was to sit down. He did so. He placed one hand on his head, another on his stomach and, indeed, thinks that if he had had sixteen hands he could have found suitable places for their application. But as for the horse, he assures his audience that this and its other antics—such as walking about on its hind feet with its thumbs under its arms, like a Lord Mayor—were all natural talents. The horse had been brought up in the wild West, and had never had any advantages to develope these gifts. As I have said, the way in which this story is told is inimitable, and indeed the whole lecture is admitted to be one of the most unique pieces of grotesquerie ever known in these parts."

The Rebel Forces.

In the November number of The Eclectic and The Land We Love, 1869, an interesting and important correspondence was published between Dr. Joseph Jones, Secretary of the Historical Society, and Gen. S. Cooper, ex-Adjutant General of the Confederate States. From that source are gleaned the following facts for the benefit of those who are not so fortunate as to have preserved a file of the magazines. Such facts are startling even to those who participated in the Southern struggle:

1. The available force of the Confederate army did not, during the war, exceed 600,000 men.

2. The Confederate States never had in their defense more than 200,000 men in the field at one time.

3. From 1861 to 1865 the Confederate forces actively engaged were only 600,000.

4. The total number of deaths during that time were 200,000.

5. Losses of prisoners, counted as total losses on account of the United States policy of exchange, 200,000.

6. The loss of the Confederate States army by discharge, disability and desertion was 100,000.

7. At the close of the war the force of the Confederate army was less than 100,000.

8. Out of 600,000 men 500,000 were lost to the service.

These facts are taken from calculations made with great care by Dr. Joseph Jones, submitted to and approved by Gen. S. Cooper.—Mobile Register.

Value of Silver.

At one time it was feared by owners of mines on this coast that silver would decline in value in European markets to such an extent as to affect injuriously the mining interest. The aspect of affairs has now changed, for not only is there a disposition to use more silver coin by several European Governments, but an increased demand for it is springing up in India, which has caused a rise in the price of the commodity. A London circular of recent date contains the following: The great rise in exchanges reported from India has created a large increase in the orders for silver for that country, and a consequent increase in the price. Purchases were made up to the 17th instant at 59d. per oz standard; but on that day large orders were executed at 59½d. per oz standard; and this may be considered the present rate. A large part of the recent supplies has come from Germany, but the stock of silver in that country is very firmly held, and there is no apparent intention to sell any very important amounts. Austrian florins have been sold at 57⅞d. per oz., their intrinsic value as compared with bar silver; they have been taken for coinage purposes in India.

—St. Paul papers are congratulating the climate of Minnesota because it permitted brick-layers to work out doors, in their shirt-sleeves, late in the month of December.

Mail Awards Changed.

The Post Office Department has been overhauling the bids and first awards on mail contracts and for some reason not appearing in the dispatches have changed a number of the awards. The route from Hardyville to Prescott, Arizona, first awarded to J. J. Hinds is now givento J. L. Darrah the next lowest bidder. Darrah's bid was rejected originally on account of some informality in the presentation—the certificate of deposit not being stamped or something of that sort. Of other routes local and otherwise, but with which Inyo citizens are interested we note that the route from "Junction" to Gold Mountain (mentioned elsewhere) now goes to "J. E. Blackmore" for $800, so Corbyn's bid of $200 for the same goes for naught. The next is to "J." Blackmore, (the "E." is left out if it is the same Blackmore who figures in other bids), being the Independence and Gold Mountain route first awarded to M. S. Clark for $1,650; J. Blackmore whomsoever he may be takes the job at $1.550. The whys and wherefores of this change are not stated. The original reports of the amounts of numerous accepted bids were very erroneous. For instance from Aurora to Independence was put down at $790, which wouldn't have paid Smith the bidder, for more than three or four trips, but Smith really gets $7,900 which shows that even a cipher has a value; in this instance one cipher added proves that Smith wasn't as much fool as supposed by $6,110 worth. But there is no telling what what will happen to Smith and all the rest before the Postoffice Department gets through with them; that Department is surprisingly reliable (?) and business like in all its branches, so it is not best for any successful bidder to halloa until he is quite out of the woods.

The Worst Yet.

The very worst snow storm experienced since the road was built has been raging on the line of the Central Pacific since February 28. The Chronicle correspondent gives a most interesting account of the extraordinary, almost superhuman efforts of the railroad people in their contest for the right of way through the immense depths of snow. Snow plows with from seven to eleven monster engines behind them are constantly at work, and such a sight was never seen as they rush with a speed of forty miles an hour into snow banks even with the tops of their smoke stacks. But the plows have piled the snow so high on either side that hundreds of men with shovels are constantly employed in benching it back, but notwithstanding all this, for hours at a time the storm king kept the upper hand and buried cars and engines out of sight.

Fighting in Cuba.

A Havana letter says that rumors of severe fighting in the Central Department are current. At Guanahan the Spanish troops were in full retreat on the 11th of February, bound for Puerto Principe, their starting position, when they were attacked the second time at a place called Marracassabe. They say that the object of the retrogade movement was to place their wounded in a place of safety and that an assailing force at Maka Casade suddenly took flight. The Cubans say their ammunition ran short and orders were given to cease firing. If they had an abundant supply they would have driven the Spaniards right into the heart of Puerto Principe.

WILL IT PAY?

This is the question that is propounded in connection with the proposed Cerro Gordo and Los Angeles narrow gauge railroad. We firmly believe that the answer to this is decidedly in the affirmative, though we take nothing more in the count than the actual business of the present day in the region such a road would command.

We designed ere this to present statistically as near as possible the actual freighting business of at least a half dozen of the principal districts, all embraced as one simply in general identity of interests, and especially in this matter of a railroad, but owing to various difficulties not necessary to specially enumerate, we shall have to content ourselves for the present with a brief general view.

Lying within a parallellogram of less than one hundred miles in one direction and two hundred in the other, we can name the following districts, each and all more or less developed, and each and all of which require and afford many tons of freight, every pound of which would be commanded by the proposed road. These are, Panamint, Granite, Coso, Cerro Gordo, Eclipse, Fish Spring, Kearsarge Silver Sprout, Waucoba, Piute, Deep Spring and Sylvania, all within this county. Close by to the north is the town and district of Benton, and some others in the vicinity; thence easterly, we have Columbus, Belmont and Pioche. In a straight line the latter place lies almost due east from this place and not to exceed 150 miles distant. Belmont is somewhat nearer and nearly northeast. It is nearer from either of these places to San Francisco via Los Angeles than by their present route via the Central Pacific, and their freights can be delivered in San Francisco by this narrow-gauge road cheaper and quicker than by any other way or route. But these may be considered outside our boundaries or left out of the count entirely. Inside of these we have all the others named, to which are to be added Montezuma, San Antonio, Silver Peak, Palmetto, Lida, Gold Mountain and dozens of others known to be rich in minerals, if not largely populated at this time. Every one of these can be counted as certain to contribute a great deal in the way of business to such a road, while the aggregate of the whole would simply be beyond computation, with the new impulse it would receive from this enterprise. Cheap freights just such as might be profitably furnished by such a road on this identical Los Angeles and Cerro Gordo route, would cause every one of these districts and twice as many more to literally teem with life. Truly the available mineral deposits of this region are beyond all estimate. If worked to its capacity, or to the extent it would be under the new and greatly essential advantages arising from a completed and cheaply operated railroad as proposed, we verily believe this region would afford business beyond the capacity of any railroad in existence.

But taking things as we find them we have within the area mentioned, but excluding the two principal Nevada towns of Belmont and Pioche, a population of not less than three thousand to furnish business for this road were it running to-day. This business is at present almost equally divided between two routes running in opposite directions; or rather taking the whole together, but a small part now goes by the southern route, considerable though it is. But this route would undoubtedly command the whole, even as far north as Belmont, and far east as Pioche, though these places are not considered in the count.

The mines of this region are largely of the smelting class, and in the matter of freight furnished are of the more importance on that account. That class can be made to furnish full down freights at all times, while we have enough of purely silver mines to require nearly a balance in the opposite direction in the way of supplies and machinery for the thousands whose attention could then profitably be given to them, rich and numerous as they undoubtedly are.

Is there any one measurably acquainted with this section that does not believe it possesses more dormant wealth than that portion of Colorado contiguous to Denver City, or perhaps the whole of that Territory together? In our individual belief the comparison, so far as indications can make it so, is immeasurably in our favor. Yet a little narrow-gauge railroad has in three years raised the population of that city from 3,000 or less to 25,000 inhabitants and the business of the country in the same proportion. This great increase is attributed wholly to that railroad.

We do not claim to have any one mine that can compare with the Comstock in breadth and consequent cheap extraction of ores, but we have hundreds, we can safely say, far richer, and many again, other conditions besides size being the same, that can be worked just as cheap. At all events our mines in half the aggregate will certainly afford as much business and wealth as that one big lead, yet the needs of that one are scantily supplied by a wide gauge road running thirty-two heavy trains every day.

All we ask of capitalists or railroad builders is to come and see for themselves—to investigate thoroughly. But that they do not seem disposed to do until they can ride here in the cars. We can and will develope without a railroad, but we can reach the same results and go far beyond enough sooner with one.

GAME LAWS.

The California Acclimatizing Society has prepared a bill for the protection of game and fish, which the Legislature will be requested to adopt this session. It embraces a good deal of the old law. The following are the principal new provisions:

No partridge, grouse or quail shall be killed between the 15th of March and the 15th day of September of any year; nor shall any partridge, grouse or quail be caught or taken by means of any trap, snare or net, or be killed by the means of any drug or poison, at any time whatever.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons hereafter to take gather or destroy, the eggs of any quail or grouse, mallard duck, wood or summer duck, or any other species of duck that inhabit the waters of this State.

No person or persons fishing in any of the waters of this State, shall take kill or destroy, in any manner whatever, any fish less than three inches in length. All below this size captured by net or other device, shall be returned to the waters while living.

No person shall build or maintain a dam upon any of the fluvial waters of this State, which dam is more than two feet in height, unless said person shall build and maintain during the months of March, April and May, October, November, December, January and February of each year, a properly constructed fish ladder, so made that fish can freely pass up and down the stream; or a passage or sluice way over said dam, and in mid-channel of said stream Such passage or sluice-way to be at least one foot in depth at the edge of the dam, and of sufficient width, and placed at an angle of not more than thirty degrees, and extended entirely into the running water below the dam to the depth of one foot. Such passage or sluice-way shall be protected on each side by side-planks or boards at least one foot in height, to confine the waters therein.

No person or persons who may be owners, lesees, or in possession of any saw-mill, shall allow the saw-dust made by said mills to be run into or be cast into any streams, lakes, or ponds of this State.

There are other bills now before the Legislature, amendatory to the game laws, which are in various ways objectional, and impracticable.

A correspondent of The Alta writing upon this matter says. "The Acclimatizing Society's bill is based upon three years experience, and is calculated to do justice to all parties and general good to the State. It will probably become a law." The principles and object of this bill meets our heartiest approbation, but that it will "do justice to all parties and general good to the State," is not wholly or exactly true. For instance "no saw-dust is to be run into any stream or lake." This works a hardship, with no compensation whatever to any one, upon all saw-mill men on the waters of both Mono and Owen's Lake. Except insects there is no living thing in either of these lakes to be injured by saw-dust or anything else, nor ever can be and at present at least the same remark applies to the streams putting into them, which streams afford room for several saw-mills, whose owners will be required under this law to go to considerable trouble and expense for no adequate reason, or gain to any person.

A Banter.

George Treat will match his horse Thad. Stevens against any other horse, mare or gelding in the United States or the world in a race of four miles and repeat, to rule, for $10,000 in gold coin He also throws out the following banter: He will also match a horse of his for $5,000 against $25,000 that he will beat the fastest recorded time ever made in the United States by any running horse, to rule, from one mile to four miles. The parties accepting this proposition can name the race to be run.

Gold in the Yellowstone Country.

[From The Pioche Record.]

Wm. Rea writes to The Bozeman (Montana) Avant Courier, that in 1842 he lived at Blackwater Mills, Missouri, and was frequently visited by an old trapper named Owen Rubble, who, while under the influence of liquor, would tell wonderful stories of having discovered very rich gold diggings on the upper waters of the Yellowstone river. While trapping for Gen. Ashley, he said, he had made the discoveries. In the year 1838 he accompanied Ashley and Sublet's fleet of trapping boats up the Missouri river to the mouth of the Yellowstone. Rubble said that himself and six others visited the Yellowstone country on a trapping expedition, when, after reaching the Yellowstone country, the Indians came upon them and killed all the company but himself. After his escape he took a due south course, and on the second day of his hasty retreat, while drinking at a stream, he discovered the bottom to be literally covered with nuggets of gold; and not having time to gather any considerable amount, he only gathered up a handful or two of the nuggets, and put them in his shot-pouch. Rea's story continues:

"In 1864 I left Missouri for Alder Gulch, and coming the North Platte route a little incident which I need not detail brought me to the cabin of an old French trapper, living far up on the North Platte river, who corroborated much of old Rubble's report of gold in the Yellowstone country. He went on to say, in conversation in reference to this country, that if he could find an old trapper who came to his camp some twenty-three years ago, he could find all the gold he wanted. I asked him where it was. He stated that he did not know the precise locality, but that it was somewhere on the headwaters of the Yellowstone river. I asked him who this old trapper was, and he said that his name was Owen Rubble. He then gave an account of the gold Rubble exhibited to the band of trappers then together. He stated that a few days after Rubble came to his camp they all started on a buffalo hunt, and, as was their custom before setting out, every man was required to pour out all his bullets upon a blanket, and divide them equally among them. He said that when Rubble poured out his bullets from his shot pouch there was more gold than bullets, in nuggets of different sizes.

Look out for Your Claims.

The Scientific Press of the 7th calls the attention of its mining readers to the fact that in three months from now if the requisite amount of work has not been done on claims located prior to the passage of the act of May 10, 1872, those claims will be open to re-location in the same manner as if no location had ever been made. The Press adds:

We mention this at this date, that those of our mining readers who have neglected to make this necessary expenditure to hold their claims, may be prepared to do so in time to save their property from re-location. Before the time for this annual expenditure expired, and before the time was extended last year, a number of different parties had organized a regular crusade to take possession of claims upon which work had not been done, and we do not doubt but they are still on the lookout for such opportunities.

SHERIFF'S NOTICE OF SALE.

WHEREAS, UNDER AND BY VIRTUE OF A decree or judgment of foreclosure rendered by the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, on the Tenth day of July, A. D. 1873, in a certain cause therein pending, wherein Isaac M. Bull, Wm. Watt and John H. Ockerhausen, Trustees, were plaintiffs, and the Owens Lake Silver-Lead Company was defendant, it was, among other things, ordered, adjudged and decreed that said should be made by the Sheriff of Inyo County in the manner prescribed by law for the sale of real estate of all and singular the property therein described, that is to say: All that certain portion, claim and mining right, title or property on those certain veins or lodes of rock, containing precious metals of gold, silver and other metals, and situate in the Russ District, Inyo (formerly Tulare) County, in the State of California, and described as follows, to-wit: Those certain mining grounds known and recorded in said Russ District as the "A No. One" lode or lead, and the "Virginia Gordon" lode or lead, both of which are situated near the head of Owens Lake and situated on said lodes as follows, to wit: Commencing at a monument where the notice of location of said lodes was posted, and extending in a southerly direction along said lodes one thousand six hundred and fifty (1,650) feet on each lode; being the same premises conveyed to said parties of the first part by Sherman Stevens by deed dated the 28th day of February, 1865, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Tulare County April 13th, 1865 in liber F of deeds, folios 387, 388 and 389; together with all the dips, spurs and angles, and also all the metals, ores, gold, silver, lead and other metals and mineral bearing quartz rock and earth therein. Also all the furnaces, machinery, buildings, fixtures, now erected and hereafter to be erected, tools, implements, horses, mules, ways, water courses and water powers belonging or appertaining to said mining property, (including all the furnaces, buildings and machinery which have been built or purchased by said company in the vicinity of Owens Lake or elsewhere) and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant or appurtenant or therewith usually held and enjoyed, or so much thereof as might be necessary to pay the sum of One Hundred and Two Thousand Three Hundred and Eleven 38-100 ($102,311 38-100) dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum from the Tenth day of July, A. D. 1873, and the costs and expenses of sale, of which decree, a copy duly certified under the seal of said Court has been delivered to me.

Now, therefore, I hereby give notice that on the EIGHTH DAY OF APRIL, A. D. 1874, at the hour of 12 M. in front of the Court House door, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell the said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, in parcels, as follows: 1. That certain mining ground situate in the Russ District, Inyo County, California, near the head of Owens Lake, and known and recorded in the said Russ District as the "A No. One" lode or lead, commencing at the monument where the notice of location of said lode was posted and extending in a southerly direction along said lode 1,650 feet, with all the dips, spurs and angles, and also all the ores, gold, silver, lead and other metals and mineral bearing quartz rock and earth therein, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant, or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances. 2. That certain mining ground situated in the Russ District, Inyo County, California, near the head of Owens Lake, and known and recorded in the said Russ District as the "Virginia Gordon" lode or lead, commencing at the monument where the notice of location of said lode was posted, and extending in a southerly direction along said lode 1,650 feet, with all the dips, spurs and angles, and also all the ores, gold, silver, lead and other metals and mineral bearing quartz rock and earth therein, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances. 3. The works which have been built or purchased by said company in the vicinity of Owens Lake, commonly known as the Swansea Works, with all the furnaces, machinery, buildings, fixtures, tools, implements, horses, mules, ways, water courses, and water powers, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances 4. The furnaces, water-wheel and water right situated on Tuttle Creek, on the west side of Owens Valley, about two miles in a southerly direction from the town of Lone Pine, with all the machinery, buildings, ways, water-courses and water powers, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances.

John Herald.

This unfortunate man, commonly known as "Tennessee," is now at Camp Independence hospital hopelessly insane. We mentioned last week that Sheriff Mulkey had gone to Lone Pine to see after him. Tennessee had left that place and Mr. Mulkey did not find him until he had reached Passmore's, thirty miles below. After Tennessee arrived there he appeared to be entirely sound of mind, but the transactions of the last two or three days, or from the time he left Lone Pine till his arrival at Passmore's, was a perfect blank except that he remembered having stopped over night at Colonel Steven's place on Cottonwood. He told the Sheriff that he was going to some springs down south; that he was and had been suffering the tortures of the damned, and as before stated seemed in all respects perfectly at himself, save a fixed belief in his own mind that he had committed some bad deed during the period of his mental darkness after leaving Lone Pine, for which he would be held accountable to the law, but he accepted Mr. Mulkey's assurance to the contrary on this point. He positively refused to go back to Lone Pine but agreed to wait at Passmore's until Mr. Mulkey could send him some money (belonging to Tennessee in Lone Pine) with which to perform his journey. Under these circumstances it was deemed best not to attempt to bring him back by force and it could be done n no other way, so he was left there. About daylight on the following morning Passmore was awakened by Tennessee and on going to the bar-room where Tennessee was saw at once that he raving. The crazy man siezed a hatchet, (as a precautionary measure all other weapons had been placed beyond his reach the night before) and threw it at Passmore with all his might but fortunately missed his aim. Another person stepped in at that moment and he in turn was violently attacked by the lunatic. As soon as possible the whole force about the place was called in and finally by the most strenuos exertions Tennessee was captured and bound Mr. Passmore and two others placed him in a wagon, and not without great trouble and danger to themselves, succeeded in getting him to Lone Pine from which place with like experience, W. L. Moore and two others brought himto jail here whence he was taken and placed under Dr. White's care. Physically Herald is a very powerful man, and in his present state is like a wild beast, hardly approachable even in his irons. His bodily sufferings are indiscribably severe. The roof of his mouth is entirely destroyed by catarrh, and as may be imagined, he is in no sense agreeable to approach. It is a sorrowful case.

Scan. Mag.

We are sorry to have it to record that there is a case of scan. mag. in one of the leading families of this locality—that is among the aborigines. The green eyed monster has tackled Capt. Jim; that dignified individual is much grieved at the carryings on of the wife of his bosom. He wants a divorce, and thus made his application to Sheriff Mulkey: "Mulkey, you sabe my mahala?" "Yes." "Well me no like her any more, she heap no good; me seen 'em," said the Captain darkly. "You gif me paper so she not be my my wife any more. Yesh, me seen 'em!" he repeated with woe begone emphasis, "and me want a paper, Missur Mulkey, right away." Mulkey explained the leading difficulties in the way of obtaining a divorce these days, but advised a suit for damages, and this suggestion struck the Captain as very sensible when he came to reflect upon it. Should he obtain a divorce he would not only be a wife short, but he would also be deprived of his principal revenue, her daily earnings at the wash tub, whereas a sum in damages would compensate that loss to a material extent, besides leaving him a chance to trade her off at half price to some of his subjects whose natures were not so easily worked up by trifles. Mr. Mulkey recommended the Captain to keep out of the hands of the lawyers by all means, but to state his case to the Judge, who could give him the required paper if anybody could, and at all events, could fix the amount of damages, which was the first consideration. We are not informed as to the results.

A Square Trade.

When Vasquez robbed the stage near Soledad, a few days after the Cayote Holes affair, one of the passengers whom he had tied down for a more convenient interview, complained of the cold. "I'll sell you my coat;" said the robber man, "you can have it for eight dollars," and handing the coat over he went through the tied man's pockets for the required amount and got it and some besides. The for going is the substance of an actual occurrence according to a passenger, who came up on the next stage and had it from first hands.

The Number.

Mr. Parker has introduced eight bills special to Inyo county, all of which have, or soon will become laws. So far as we are able to judge they are all good ones, and will give satisfaction. We shall publish them in text or by full synopsis as soon as we receive the certified copies.

The Swansea Furnace.

As will be seen by notice elsewhere Mr. John A. Knapp has assumed the management of the O. L. S.-L. Co.'s furnace at Swansea, Mr. Van Arsdale having tendered his resignation of that position some weeks since. Mr. Van Arsdale retains the management of the Omega tunnel mines in Cerro Gordo, which mines, though worked in connection with the furnace, are and have been the separate property of certain New York capitalists connected with but not the Owens Lake Smelting Company proper. These gentlemen hold a mortgage of some $100,000 against the furnace company, themselves being a portion of the same, and in order to place this matter in a satisfactory legal shape the mortgage is about to be foreclosed. For the time being and on account of this indebtedness Mr. Van Arsdale was made manager for both companies or parties, but with the settlement he resigns all that portion belonging exclusively to the incorporated company, but continues as before with respect to the exceedingly valuable mining property belonging to those individuals. The result of all this will be that the work of the two will be run separately, but, as we are told, to a much better advantage to both and, of course, to the county generally. Mr. Knapp is well qualified for his duties, having been connected with the furnace for a long time past. Though we cannot say definitely at what time the furnace will start up, we are assured that it will not be long first. The ore teams are now all on the road getting away the bullion, and the time of firing up at the furnace is contingent upon the completion of this work in part, but chiefly upon the adjustment of the mortgage sale, notice of which appears in this issue. We are well pleased to know that Mr. Van Arsdale is so largely identified with Inyo, and intends to remain with it.

"Who Stole My Purp?"

Friend Curtis was, last week, the owner of a most beautiful, mild eyed, curly haired, unsophisticated purp. He was a pure blood Newfoundland, or at least, not a cur of low degree, and by no means a pugnacious purp On this account friend Lank wanted to own him very much and found that Curtis was very anxious to give him that pleasure. Accordingly the young canine was brought down and placed in Postmaster Rowley's care to be forwarded the next day. The next day came but that mild eyed purp was non est—Rowley was distressed and so was Curtis; cause why: it was evident enough that somebody had stolen that purp and probably intended to steal their "thunder" as well and the tendency of the whole thing was aggravating, very aggravating. An elaborate and minute search was instituted but the oft repeeated inquiry. "Have you seen anything of that purp?" met with no satisfactory response that day. But we are gratified to be able to say that on the next, that young dog again appeared on the streets wagging as proud a young tail as anybody would wish to see.—all the prouder was the wag because of new found liberty after a bad night in durance vile or a dark back room or some where else. If that purp's tail was to be believed all nature was true and smiling, and man alone was vile.

Panamint.

We have in our possession a specimen of Panamint chloride ore which is certainly as rich as anything of the kind we have yet seen. It was presented by Mr. Kennedy to Mr. Connelly the other day during the few minutes halt of the stage at Little Lake, where Mr. Kennedy happened to be just arrived from Panamint. This specimen is out of a three-foot ledge, all of the same general quality; the name of the mine Mr. Connelly did not learn or has forgotten. This ledge is opened to a depth of about 20 feet. The "Wonder of the World" is down 60 feet or thereabouts, and the developments in these, and numerous others in the camp, are said to be as flattering as any man could wish for. The ores evidently contain a heavy percentage of copper and other base metals and will require scientific manipulation to insurre satisfactory results, notwithstanding the fact that the actual assay value of very large quantities of them is away up in the thousands. Panamint is undoubtedly one of the most promising camps of the day. Its population at present is only about seventy, but we would not be in the least surprised if this number was increased to several thousand within one or two years at the most. No district apparently ever had a greater future before it.

Where it is.

A friend out at Lida writes us as follows: "From Junction to Gold Mountain is 170 miles. It is at the junction of the Belmont-Ophir Canyon-Austin and San Antonio roads." Well if it is 170 miles Corbin has to carry the mail for only $200 per annum Corbin won't get rich on it without an accident. The writer of the above note further adds: "If you see anything of Vasquez send him out here." We couldn't do that even to gratify a friend; Vasquez destination, should we be permitted to name it, would be a much warmer one than Lida.

Takes Effect.

Gov. Booth signed the Inyo Connty Salary Bill February 28, so it was made a law in time to be of benefit to the present District Attorney, Judge Snelling. It gives that officer $1,000 per annum (a raise of $200), and the County Judge (after this term) $1,200.

Wanted.

One of the essential needs among housekeepers in this county is good female help. We have good reason to believe that twenty or thirty girls or women willing to take service, can command good places and wages here right along.

Weather, Stock, Birds, Etc.

After a Winter of much discontent veritable Spring seems to be coming on apace. The continued and uninterrupted coldness up to the beginning of the present week has been very propitious for the fruit crops, but has entailed considerable loss in live stock—both tame and wild. Thousands of quails have frozen to death or been ruthlessly destroyed while helplessly benumbed with cold, not only by powder and shot, but by sticks in the hands of men and boys. We fear the cheery whistle of the California "Bob White" will rarely be heard again in this valley—a circumstance to be truly regretted, for if there is any bird in existence whose notes can make the sagebrush land or any other seem "to blossom like old time home" that bird is the quail. It is never a desert where we can hear him pipe—it is but little better than a desert, though there be flowers and grass and flowing water, where he is never heard. But, what between Jack Frost and Tom, Dick and Harry, we are to have no whistle from Bob White, more's the pity, to help keep our courage up. Don't kill any of the birds, boys, except the hawks—go for them without mercy.

Personals.

In the past few days we have received calls from a number of gentlemen, among whom we may mention Charley Begole and R. A. Loomis of Lone Pine, both looking younger and more vigorous than ever—shouldn't be surprised if their names formed half of two matrimonial notices some of these days; (We are an I. O. G. T., so never mind the wine); W. Bercovich, long time night boss and foreman of the Union mine, Cerro Gordo, en route for Illinois; thinks he will come back again some day, and M. W. Belshaw, Esq., who thinks he made a good trade with Vasquez notwithstanding he had to give that retiring man boot, or the boots rather, in the swap. Also, Mr. Van Arsdale as yet of Swansea, but whose headquarters will, hereafter, be in Cerro Gordo. Besides this we note that Mr. Ball whose sickness we mentioned last week, was so far convalescent as to be able to return home on Tuesday last, and the return of T. F. A. Connelly from Sacramento and San Francisco, where he saw a great many personal acquaintances and some who were not.

Some Changes.

We observe that George Stevens is fitting up the Schneider building, now John Broder's property, for his tin shop, and hardware store. It is well suited for the purpose. Also, that W. H. Huff is doing the same with Reddy's old office close by. It is to be a complete barber shop when fully ready for business—baths and other new conveniences. People needn't be afraid to go there to be shaved or otherwise barberously manipulated because it was once a lawyer's office—shaving to be done there now is guaranteed to be of the most agreeable kind. No "insinivations" about the past, but henceforth keen blades will be used in that old office only for hair and beard—the man that brings a good skin there will be allowed to take it away again and in the best possible shape.

Improvements in Lone Pine.

Lone Pine appears to be improving faster than any other place in the county of late, and at quite an encouraging rate notwithstanding the dull times. Of new buildings we can name a convenient and well fitted office by Rockwell Loomis, attached to his store; an addition by L. Lasky to his store, doubling its former size, and in course of erection is a fine large building, boarded and ceiled with redwood throughout, by "Lola." Justice Bob Peterson, we are told, has refitted his new saloon and upholstered it in a style superior to anything in the county, and last but not least, C. & M. Cohn are hard at work fitting up their new and commodious store, designed to accomodate a very large stock of goods of all kinds.

Returned.

J. L. Darrah, who has been "everywheres" recently, has again put in an appearance. Among other places visited was Panamint, which in the richness and quality of its ores Mr. Darrah thinks (and he is not alone in his belief) simply beats the world, but as there is soon to be a mill put up there to test this belief we need not depend much longer on mere speculation.

To Meet.

To-morrow is the appointed day for the Taboosers to meet and organize. We have noticed several of them around recently, and hope very many of them will be on hand on this occasion. Some valuable results historical and otherwise, will come from this organization, and the more so if all qualified to enter into it will take stock in the right spirit, as in fact all that we have seen seem determined to do

Notary Public.

Gov. Booth has appointed Rockwell Loomis, of Lone Pine, a Notary Public. We believe that the county is allowed but five Notaries. At present two of them reside in this place, two in Lone Pine, and one in Panamint. The number ought to be increased to not less than seven, so as to give Cerro Gordo and Bishop Creek one each.

Religious Services.

To-morrow Rev. F. McKean preaches at this place at 7:15 P. M., On the fol. lowing Sunday, March 22, Rev. M. W. Pratt preaches at Lone Pine in the morning, George's Creek at 3. P. M., and in this place in the evening. The same evening Rev. E. H. Orne will preach in Lone Pine.

Vasquez Again.

A Sacramento dispatch dated at Los Angeles, March 2d, says:

A passenger on the Soledad stage of last Friday arrived in this city today, and states that the Los Angeles and Soledad stage was stopped between Mill Station and Soledad by the Vasquez band, and robbed of $300, chiefly from the passengers. Shortly afterwards the robbers entered Soledad and stole from Harper's stable a wagon and six horses. They also stopped a team in the same vicinity, and robbed the driver of a small amount. It is believed that Vasquez after the robbery at Cayote Holes, started for his stronghold in Little Rock Canyon, taking Soledad in his route.

SQUIBLEMS.

—In the Territory of Arizona are 2,600 children between six and twenty-one years of age, of whom 343 attend the public schools. The total receipts of school moneys during the year were $12,832 50; expenditures $11,000 12.

—An Indiana woman says that no one would believe how smart and industrious her husband has become since she got to keeping a three-tined pitchfork behind the kitchen door.

—A boy was caught stealing chestnuts near a cemetery. "What's your name?" "Tweed," blubbered the boy. The frightened farmer dropped the boy and fled.

—Common cast iron, or iron in any form, may be plated with tin by cleaning in acid, dipping in zinc chloride, and then in a bath of melted tin.

—It has been discovered that a dose of four drops of strong sulphuric acid in three-quarters of a tumbler of water for adults, and a smaller dose for children, is an infallible cure for diptheria.

—Ed. Kohn, a Rock Island commercial traveller, got his cheek damaged in a railroad accident, over in Iowa, and had to quit work. No commercial traveller can do business while his cheek is out of order.—Chicago Journal.

—We don't want to inconvenience anyone, but if some charitable person would kindly kill the Associated Press agent who sends reports from Memphis about Mardigrass foolery, we will pay the funeral expenses.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

—The theatres and churches in Galveston are fighting each other. On Christmas Day the churches gave their Sunday School children presents, and the theatre did the same for every child patron at the matinee. The Sunday Schools were out just in time to get to the matinee.

—The fact of so many new journals beginning their "salutatory" with "We've come to stay," seems to hint that, when they used to come, they did not stay, or were in the habit of chronic attacks of "suspension," etc. A man may let out a good deal of his former business life, even through a newspaper head.

Bang.

Almost every boy that goes a gunning, if he can find nothing that he wants to bang away at, considers it the next best thing to kill a few woodpeckers. They look so funny, wrong end up on the side of a tree, bobbing and whacking around the loose bark of the tree, that the temptation is strong, and the poor jolly hammer has no friends—so bang! and down he comes, and he is given to the dog to play with and tear to pieces. That poor little bird, if only a year old, has killed and eaten many hundred thousands of bugs' larvæ, in the form of grubs and worms, and almost every one of a kind injurious to vegetation. The catbird, a bird that is always sociable, if ever permitted to be so, one or our finest singers, eats a cherry occasionally, and of course must be banished or suffer death. He pays a better price for every cherry he eats than any fruiterer would dare demand in the market, with the worms he destroys, he throws in a complete bird-opera several times a day into the bargain.—St. Nicholas, for December.

An Ancient Relic.

A Washington letter to the Springfield, (Mass.) Republican says:

Sumner showed last night at a small dinner party, a very interesting relic of "ye olden time." Just after the battle of Yorktown, Washington gave Lafayette a gold watch, in memory of that battle, but in 1825 the Marquis had it picked from his pocket at Nashville. A gentleman of Louisville strayed into a pawnbroker's shop one day, forty-eight years afterward, and seeing a watch valuable intrinsically as well as for its strangely antique appearance, purchased it for $75. Examining his purchase at home, he found this inscription, telling him what a prize had fallen into his hands: "G. Washington to Gilbert Mortier Lafayette, in commemoration of the capitulation of Lord Cornwallis, at Yorktown, Oct. 17, 1781." Coming to Washington on a visit, he brought the watch along with him, and in this way it reached Sumner for the friends of Lafayette in France.

Henry Ward Beecher on the Proposed Rum Campaign.

Henry Ward Beecher delivered a lecture to a very large audience in New York recently in relation to the women's campaign against whisky. He said history would not show a paralle to the effort now making in the West to suppress dram-drinking, which he characterized as the scourge of the household. It is an evil that has defied legislation, but now, under the providence of God, there had arisen a moral cyclone—a perfect tempest of influence. In this connection the dispatch says: A praying crusade against the saloons in this city will begin to-morrow. The war began yesterday, at Alkerman Boruck's place, the women taking advantage of the absence of the proprietor to pray in his saloon. The women of Orange, N. J., begin to-day. The women's prayer meeting at Columbus, Ohio, this morning, notwithstanding the rain was very large, and much interest was manifested. A special request was made for prayer by Christian people everywhere, that their efforts may be crowned with success, and that they be given wisdom to conduct the campaign to be opened next week.

Application for Patent.

NOTICE NO. 21.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE, Independence, Cal., February 21, 1874.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT JOHN R. HUGHES and M. W. Hammarstrand have made application for patent for eight hundred linear feet of the WITTIKINT Silver Quartz Mine, lode, vein or deposit, being 400 feet northwest and 400 feet southeast, from the main shaft and point of discovery on said mine, with surface ground 100 feet wide, being 50 feet on each side of said mine or lode, measuring from the center of the claim, situated and being on unsurveyed land in Township 16 south, Range 39 east, in Cerro Gordo Mining District, Inyo county, California, said Wittikint Mine being described on the plat and field notes on file in this office as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the shaft on said lode at point of original discovery; thence with a variation 15 degrees, 40 minutes east, running south 55 degrees, east six (6) chains and six (6) links, to a post set in mound of rock marked, "A. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence returning to point of original discovery at shaft; thence with a variation 15 degrees 40 minutes east, running north 55 degrees, west six (6) chains and six (6) links, to a post in mound of rocks marked, "B. L. W. S. Q. M."

SURVEY OF EXTERIOR BOUNDARIES:

Beginning at post "A. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence with a variation 15 degrees 40 minutes east, running north 35 degrees, east seventy-six (76) links to a post in mound of rocks marked, "P. 1 W. S. Q. M.;" thence north 55 degrees west twelve (12) chains and twelve (12) links to a post marked, "P. 2 W. S. Q. M.;" thence south 35 degrees west seventy-six (76) links to post "B. L. W. S. Q. Latest News from the Sun.

[From The Scientific Press.]

At a recent meeting of the Royal Society, Mr. Lockyer gave the result of his recent studies in relation to the spectrum of the Sun.

The previous researches having shown that the former tests for the presence or absence of a metal in the sun, namely, the presence or absence of its strongest or brightest lines in the average solar spectrum, was not conclusive, a preliminary search for other metals was determined upon; and as a guide Mr. R. J. Friswell was requested to prepare two lists, showing broadly the chief chemical chacteristics of the elements traced and not traced in the sun.

The tables showed that in the main those metals that had been traced formed stable compounds with oxygen.

The author therefore determined to search for the metals which formed strong oxides, but which had not been traced.

The result up to the present time has been that strontium, cadmium, lead cerium, and uranium, would seem with considerable probability to exist in the solar reversing layer. Should the presence of cerium and uranium be subsequently proved, the whole of the iron group of metals will have thus been found in the sun.

Certain metals forming unstable oxides, such as gold, silver, mercury, etc., were sought for and not found. The same was the case when chlorine, bromine, iodine, etc., were sought for by means of lines produced in tubes by the jar spark. These elements are distinguished as a group by forming compounds with hydrogen.

It is observed that certain elementary and compound gases effect their principal absorption in the most most refrangible part of the spectrum when they are rare, and as they become dense the absorption approaches the less refrangible end of the spectrum, that the spectra or compounds are banded or columnar, and that these are broken up by the spark just as the band spectra of compounds are broken up; and that it is probable that no compounds exist in the sun. The following facts, gathered from the work already accomplished by Rutherford and Secchi, are stated:

There are three classes of stars.

1. Those like Sirius, the brightest and therefore the hottest?) star in the northern sky, their spectra showing only hydrogen lines very thick, and metalic lines exceedingly thin.

2. A class of stars with spectrum differing only in a degree from those of the class Sirius, and to this our sun belongs.

3. A class of stars with columnar or banded spectra, indicating the formation of compounds.

The Cherokee Alphabet.

The Cherokees are the only tribe of Indians who have an alphabet. Its origin as detailed by Colonel Boudinot is singular:

Sequoyah, who could not speak a word of English, one day saw the Government agent writing, and thence conceived the idea of enabling the "Indian to talk on paper." He shut himself up in his cabin for a year, enduring the jibes and jeers of his ignorant tribe, who pronounced him crazy, until he came forth with a perfect alphabet, and established his claim to rank with the first inventive minds of the country. The alphabet was formed in 1822. It consists of seventy-eight characters, and is, strange to say, most easily learned by children. Soon after the alphabet was perfected, type was procured, and a newspaper established called The Cherokee Phenix, one-half in Cherokee, the other half in English. The paper is still in existence as The Cherokee Advocate.

—One leading features of the public schools of Boston is the fact that the scholars are not allowed to trade their hunks of gum during school hours, as they are out West.

How They Measured the Flag-Staff.

The following, by a correspondent of The Christian Era, proves that many studies dreaded by the young and commonly supposed to be hard and uninteresting may be made as easy as fun.

I told the boys to go over and measure the height of the flag-staff on George's Hill, in Fairmount Park, and they looked at me in astonishment, asking me at the same time how they could do it—for both they and I knew that they could not climb to the top. So I explained to them how they might do it without going to the top—and they made the instrument themselves with which to do it.

They got a square rail about four feet long, then, at one end, they nailed to it at right angles, a straight stick three feet high; exactly one foot distant they nailed another stick four feet high, then another, one foot distant, five feet high.

The instrument was complete, and they all started towards the pole with it. When they got as near to the pole as they thought it was high, they plumbed it, by tying a stone to a string, at the top of one of the sticks; the stick was made to stand straight up and down with the string.

Then they sighted, or looked along the tops of the upright sticks, at the flag pole. By moving the instrument to just the right place, they made the top of the sticks "range" with the top of the pole; that is, while looking over the tops of the three sticks, their eyes seeing the ends of the three sticks all the while, saw also the top of the flag pole.

By measuring then, from that spot to the flag-pole, along the ground, they were able to tell me that the flag staff was one hundred and twelve feet high

Now this was a simple application of geometry, a lesson that looks "awful" hard to boys at school, but was only fun learned this way.

Prospects of the State of Nevada.

[From The Eureka Sentinel.]

The indications point strongly to the conclusion that the coming season in Nevada will be one of unprecedented prosperity. Never in the history of the Commonwealth were the prospects more promising than to-day. The mines of all the old established districts are showing better than heretofore, and a number of new districts will, during the season near at hand, be made to add largely to the bullion product of the State. Robinson, Cherry Creek, Troy, Morey, Cornucopia and perhaps some others that have not hitherto taken a prominent rank as bullion producers, are all in an advanced state of development and each may be confidently expected to contribute a fair quota of bars before the close of the Summer. A wider field for labor at remunerative prices and enlarged demands for all branches of industry, business and enterprise will thus be insured. Uunder such favorable circumstances the population and wealth of the State must be necessarily be augmented in a very marked degree.

The agricultural and grazing interests must also prosper in a corresponding ratio. Indeed, the vast deposits of snow in the mountains will render good crops a certainty in all parts of the State. For the same reason water for milling and other purposes necessary for convenient mining will be abundant. At least eighty additional miles of railroad (the Eureka and Palisade) will be in operation before the beginning of 1875. All things considered, therefore, we are firm in the belief that the year 1874 is to be the liveliest and most prosperous ever witnessed in the Sagebrush.

Belmont Mines.

The Courier takes a hopeful view of the mining outlook about Belmont.

Take the Belmont property, for instance—with a ledge of over 6,000 feet in length, with an average width of seven feet, yielding from one hundred into the thousands per ton. In six months from this time, the mine will be opened from one end of the company's ground to the other, with hoisting works at the two extremes, over perpendicular shafts, which will place the mine in a condition to work a large force of men to good advantage. A silver mine, as well defined as the Belmont Company's ledges, don't often "peter" out. And in addition to the Belmont property, we have the Monitor Belmont and El Dorado South—and others—but of the latter two incorporations named, both have taken out of their ground immensely rich ores, and in consderable quantities. If either of our mines, that are now opened, were near the Comstock, the stock of either one would be worth $75. For the Belmont mine we can truthfully say, that if the stock was worth $32, two months or so, ago, it is now worth $75, there having been a drift run of sufficient length in virgin ground, through the Moore & Martin location, in rich ore, to substantiate our assertion. The large and regular shipments of bullion from the Belmont is entirely satisfactory to stockholders here.

—A man in New York went into a bathing establishment the other day and died while in the bath tub. It is strange that people knowing as they do the danger of the thing, will persist in in fooling with water that way.

Knew "George."

A Piute who strolled into National Guard Hall a few days since, was observed to be regarding a large picture with some attention. Being asked if he knew the picture, he said: "It is Washington." He was right. "Who was Washington?" was the next question. "He was the man who first made America," said the savage, and in this he was not far from wrong.—Enterprise.

A RAILROAD IN PROSPECT.

We find the following important item in The Chronicle's (March 15) report of Legislative proceedings:

Parker has introduced a bill to provide for the construction of a railroad from Independence, Inyo county, to the city of Los Angeles, about 190 miles, and to regulate fares and freights theron. The Assembly this morning passed this bill, under a suspension of the rules.

It grants the "right of way for a railroad from Independence via Little Owens Lake to Los Angeles, to John G. Downey and others." The item further states that the franchise is to last fifty years, with a passenger tariff of eight cents, and a freight tariff of ten cents per ton per mile. The above contains all we have heard in relation to this important subject, as yet, except that, as we have previously stated, it is understood that this railroad project means business, and we have high hopes something of value to this section will come of it.

In connection with the above in the same report we find the following.

The Assembly has passed the bill to authorize the construction of a railroad from the Bay of San Luis Obispo to Santa Maria Valley, in Santa Barbara county. The rates allowed are ten cents a mile for passengers and twenty cents a mile for freight. The bill had previously passed the Senate. Thus the true sentiment of the Assembly regarding the Freeman bill is expressed.

Prohibition and the New Hampshire Election.

The result of the State election, which took place in New Hampshire, March 10, seems to indicate that prohibitory laws for the enforcement of total abstinence are not popular in that State. Prior to the election prohibition was supposed to be one of the main issues. There were three candidates for Governor in the field, Dr. Blackmer (Prohibitionist), Weston (Democrat) and McCutchins (Republican). Returns from 152 towns out of 234 (leaving 82 to be heard from) give the Prohibition candidate only 1,614 votes out of an aggregate of 56,093, the remainder being nearly equally divided between Weston and McCutchins. There is no reason to suppose that the returns yet to come will materially change these proportions. It was generally expected that the Prohibition vote would be much heavier. On old party lines the Democrats claim a small majority in the Legislature, which body will doubtless have to select the Governor. Weston has a small majority over McCutchins, but not over him and Blackmer together.

New Homestead Law.

The proposed new homestead bill contains the following among other features: It requires actual settlement and cultivation for five years, after which, on due proof thereof, the settler can obtain a title to 160 acres of land, the whole cost of which will be $10 on the entry of the land, and $8 on the final proof. If however, the settler wishes to obtain a title earlier than five years, he can do so at the end of eighteen months on payment of the price of the land. It is thought that eighteen months for settlement would make such an improvement as would keep lands under cultivation thereafter A special bill to provide for the sale of timber lands is being prepared.

Reduction of the Army.

A Washington special says the bill for the reorganization of the army, as finally agreed upon by the House Military Committee, makes a reduction of eight regiments in all, cutting down the infantry to 20, artillery to four, and cavalry to eight regiments. This will leave the aggregate of the army at 25,000 instead of 30,000 men as it now stands. They do not expect to pass the bill without encountering determined opposition, and have made up their minds to have a hard fight, the result of which is doubtful.

Restoring Land.

McKusick's bill before our State Legislature to release the claims of the State of California to certain land, provides for a release by the State to the United States and to all parties who have purchased from the United States all lands surveyed by the United States and returned to the proper Land Office as Government land since the passage of the act of Congress of July 23, 1866.

Candidates for Sumner's Seat.

Among the names most prominently mentioned as Mr. Sumner's successor are Henry L. Dawes, A. H. Bullock, E. R. Hoar, ex-Governor Clifford, Gov. Washburn, Gen. Banks and Gen. Benjamin F. Butler.

INDIAN TESTIMONY.

The value of this class of testimoey in certain cases was tested in the case of Jacob Dentz (for selling whisky to Indians, referred to in our local columns), and found wanting; the jury refusing to give it credence sufficient to justify a verdict. This fact becomes of considerable importance to this and similarly situated communities. It shows that nothing need be expected of the law in the way of protection against the unlawful and rascally acts of these unscrupulous creatures, who endanger the welfare of the community by selling whisky to Indians. The only thing these creatures have now to look to (and that they always manage to do) is to prevent any white man from seeing them dole out their poison to Indian customers, and then they can go on in safety—set the Indians to cutting each other's throats and endangering and terrifying isolated settlers—the law offers no redress.

But it is no fault of the law that such is the fact, nor no fault of our officers. The law gives Indian testimony all the legal value it safely can, and that value is sufficient to justify conviction in all notorious cases where the testimony is morally and substantially sustained by white men. But the trouble is these white men who are morally and circumstantially cognizant of corroborative facts do not come forward. They content themselves with making many complaints in a conversational way; in relating what they know to any unprejudiced mind, they conclusively, though incidentally, prove that the person of whom they complain is habitually violating the law by selling whisky to Indians. With this done outside they subside, and expect the officers of the law, unaided, to do the rest.

A case is put on trial before a jury; one Indian after another is brought up to tell his story; it is straight forward and to the point, and the testimony of one is well sustained by that of another. Not a man on that jury, perhaps, but would accept the whole as absolute truth if told to him as a private individual on the street, but as a juryman under oath he feels bound to repudiate it, because the law says he need give Indian testimony only such weight as he may deem it entitled to. Now it seems very anomalous that a story quite convincing on the streets becomes of no value whatever in the court-room; but so it is, and so it will be until mere legal technicalities are entirely eschewed, which will never be, or until white witnesses come forward and circumstantially corroborate the direct testimony of the red witnesses, whose stories, though straight forward and to the point, are deemed of no value whatever in a legal point of view.

Henceforth the District Attorney will make no efforts to prosecute such cases, each one involving considerable expense to the county, unless the white men making the complaints are willing to come forward with their corroborating evidence. Otherwise it is a mere waste of time and money, for what with technicalities no convictions need be expected from purely Indian testimony, morally convincing though it may be. Such being the facts—i. e., that the law offers no redress to any community outraged by the doings of this class of whisky sellers—then it follows that each community will have to devise a code of its own for its own protection. Such codes, as a rule set but little store by technicalities simply; when morally certain that something should be done, a rail and some tar and feathers are often excellent auxiliaries in promoting peace and harmony in such communities. These articles properly used have real merits, some of which will doubtless be brought out immediately after the occurrence of some new outrage at the hands of a drunken Indian, liable to occur at any time.

Nevada Lottery Swindle.

The only mention we have seen of the Nevada State lottery is this item from The Virginia Chronicle, of the 6th instant. That paper says: "This is the day for the drawing of the Nevada State lottery, and as D. L. Blanchard, the manager left night before last, it is supposed that he has gone to some point beyond the reach of prohibitory laws to attend to the drawing."

Summarized.

The Sacramento Union, of March 7, gives a full list of all bills introduced this session of the Legislature, by whom introduced and the action taken on each up to that date. The list occupies one entire page of The Union, and to those interested in such things is quite interesting.

A Good Thing.

The Illinois State Senate has passed a bill making drunkenness of railway officials, while on duty, a criminal offense. It is already a criminal offense, but probably the new law provides special penalties.

FILLMORE AND SUMNER DEAD.

MILLARD FILLMORE, the thirteenth President of the United States, died at his home in Buffalo, N. Y., on Sunday night, March 8th, of a sudden attack of paralysis, aged 74 years and two months. He was born at Summer Hill, N. Y., January 7th, 1800. His father was of English descent, a farmer in humble circumstances, and being too poor to give his boy a liberal education, apprenticed him at an early age to a wool-carder. By improving his spare moments he was enabled in four years to fit himself to enter a law office, which he did at the age of 19. From this time he rapidly improved in knowledge, and rose from the humblest station in life, to the highest office in the gift of the American people. In 1848 he was elected Vice President, and on the death of General Taylor, became President of the United States on the 10th day of July, 1850. He was a man of practical ability and strict integrity, and his life and success are a noble example to American youth to persevere in the right in spite of adverse circumstances.

SENATOR CHARLES SUMNER, of Massachusetts, died in Washington, March 11th, after a few hours' illness of heart disease. He was born January 6, 1811, and was 63 years of age. Mr. Sumner was, at the time of his death, the most experienced statesman in America, and was one of the most gifted men of the country who failed to reach the highest reward of public service to which they aspired and were so eminently qualified; but the names of Cass, Clay, Webster, Steward, Chase and Sumner will shine as bright lights in the history of our country without aid from a higher station. It is said that Mr. Sumner's only living relative is a sister the wife of a physician in San Francisco.

Terrible Outrage and Murder at Kernville.

[From The Miner, March 14.]

Kernville was thrown in the most intense excitement last Thursday night by the announcement that a little daughter of Mr. Boles had mysteriously disappeared, and the most doubtful feelings were entertained of her safety; foul play being the general impression of the populace. The whole town turned out to hunt the missing one, and at half past four o'clock Friday morning she was found about six hundred yards from her parent's house in a lonely spot, gagged and dead. On examination it was found that her clothing was stuffed in her mouth and that the human brute after accomplishing his hellish purpose, had tied her feet together with a shawl. His trail was found and he was tracked into town. After leaving his victim it appears that he ran at his utmost speed for one hundred and fifty yards; he, evidently being much frightened. The imprint of his boots showing the size of them to be eight and a half, and run over on the outside.

As far as external evidences will show, it appears that the little girl was returning from school home; (her parents living about a mile from town) by the trail and that she was met by some man a little before dusk who walked a short distance with her, until arriving at the lonely spot where her trail is lost and not found again, until where she was found dead, twenty-five yards from the trail. At the point where her foot-prints disappear the ground bears evidence of a heroic struggle of the little girl, and shows that she was finally taken up in arms and bodily carried to the spot where death ensued. The brave little creature here made another desperate struggle for life and honor, but without avail.

Many conjectures were indulged in, the first being that it was a Chinaman. Some thirty or forty Chinamen were immediately arrested, and it was lucky that none of them wore 8½ boots, as the excitement was intense, and no law could have overruled Judge Lynch. The next thing done was to arrest all the Indians and Mexicans. No clue being elicited opinion changed, and now it is the impression that the awful deed was committed by a white man, but who, no one knows.

The girl was very pretty, large for her age, bright and intelligent. The whole county condole with the bereaved parents.

Opinions are as numerous and thin as the wind that blows, one of the most plausible being that the man had planned and waited a long time for the opportunity, and being known to her, had killed her to prevent detection.

Mining Towns in San Juan.

The San Juan (New Mexico) Prospector says: Three towns have been located in the mining region; one in Baker's Park, near the Little Giant mine, and two others in the Animas valley about forty miles distant from that mine. Of the two last one is called Hermosa (the first named is known as San Juan City), and the other Elbert. A number of improvements have been made at each place.

Mining Expedition Forbidden.

The Secretary of War has written to the Governor of Montana saying that the proposed mining expedition from a point in that Territory, alluded to in circulars recently forwarded by Gen. Custer to the War Department, will not be permitted to move. The reason for opposing it is because of the great probability which would attend it of seriously aggravating the Indian troubles now in existence.

The Southern Pacific Road.

The Los Angeles Star, which paper, by the way, is now greatly enlarged, is working hard in the interest of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad. The following from its columns gives a fair idea of the situation and plans:

The prominent journals of all parties in all parts of the country cordially endorse the memorial to Congress of the managers of the Texas Pacific and Atlantic and Pacific Railroads, and many of the leading papers in this State have copied the articles which have lately appeared in The Star on the subject.

The St. Louis Republican printed at length, prior to its presentation to Congress, the memorial of Col. Thos. A. Scott concerning the Texas and Pacific Railway, an abstract of which has been given in this paper. The document as published in The Republican sets out some points in a clearer light than they appear in the telegraphic report. We quote:

The Government shall have a first mortgage on the road, etc; second, the entire net proceeds of the sales of land heretofore granted by the United States to aid the company; third a restoration to the Government of about thirty million acres of land of the Atlantic and Pacific, old route along the thirty-fifth parallel; fourth, $5,000 in bonds of the $40,000 authorized, or one eighth of the issue, to be retained as already specified, by the Secretary of the Treasury, and sold by him if at any time during the construction the proceeds of the sales of lands, Government transportation, postal and Government telegraphic service and the entire net earnings of the road are not sufficient to meet the maturing interest."

The memorial further recites "that the Texas and Pacific Company has now constructed and in operation 315 miles of road, together with 222 miles partially constructed and in various stages of completion, and that the Atlantic and Pacific, including the line from St. Louis to Springfield, has in operation 368 miles of road. Also, that the surveys of both lines through to the Pacific coast have been filed in the office of the Secretary of the Interior, and a reservation of the alternate odd numbered sections of land granted has been made.

"It is further set forth that the interest of the Government of the United States, as well as of the people of California, Arizona, New Mexico, Missouri and Texas, and all the Southern and Western States now connected by lines of road with the eastern termini of the Atlantic and Pacific and Texas and Pacific roads, will be promoted by the immediate completion of one great southern line through to the Pacific, and by union of the two proposed lines into such common line, whereby 30,000,000 acres of land heretofore granted will revert back to the public domain.

The junction of the two roads will be made at a point just north of the staked plains, and the common line will then proceed westwardly through New Mexico and Arizona, on as nearly a direct line as possible to San Diego."

The Republican adds: "What Mr. Scott asks seems reasonable enough. His Southern Transcontinental Railway is a necessity, not only to the Southern States but to the country at large. Should Congress pass this bill, the road will be constructed during the next three or four years, and thus we will be in direct communication with the Pacific by two routes, one by the Atlantic and Pacific branch from Fort Smith, and the other over the Cairo and Fulton to Texarkana, thence over the transcontinental branch of the Texas and Pacific to the point of junction of the two Pacific roads, and on then over the common line to San Diego."

Mining Discoveries.

Within the past few weeks discoveries have been made in various localities in the mountains near this city that promise to be both rich and extensive. We have seen several specimens from the new mines that show well, and the result of assays that have been made are in the highest degree satisfactory. If these mines on further examination prove to be as valuable as their locators anticipate, the need for refining and smelting works will be still more apparent. We have already had inquiries about the prospect for the establishment of such works, and hope that some of our energetic business men will give the matter the attention it deserves. There is no good reason why the bullion of the Cerro Gordo region should be shipped to San Francisco, when it could be refined just as well here. Besides this there are many ores in easy reach of this city that would be brought here for reduction, the owners not being able to erect mills on their own account, and the expense of shipping such a great distance being too great.—Los Angeles Herald.

County Division.

One of the most unmitigated frauds ever perpetrated by one set of people against another was that by which Vallejo secured at a recent election the county seat of Solano county. It was a fraud of might and skulduggery against right. To satisfy the ambition (animosities as well) of a few Navy Yard political hacks, the election was ordered and carried by Navy Yard votes taking the county seat from a geographical and populative centre and putting it at Vallejo in the extreme south-west corner of the county. Being well acquainted in that county and all the circumstances of this swindle on popular rights we are more than pleased to know that the Legislature is likely to accede to the desire of the people of Solano county proper and order a division giving Vallejo its own little neck of three or four miles square all to itself.

Columbus Matters.

Barnes, editor of The Borax Miner, after "rantafousing" all around the country for a number of weeks has returned and finally settled down to his borax works. We give at length the following items from last Saturday's Miner.

Alida, Sylvania, etc.—Mr. Thomas Coats, a former resident of this place, came into town yesterday from Sylvania. He has recently been at Gold Mountain, where he and Samuel Halsey have some mining interest which are being developed. There is considerable snow on the mountains and drifted into the canyons. The Alida Valley mines have been pretty badly "beared," and the miners too. From two or three parties we learn that the late operators at the reduction works, after working some very rich ore, even went so far as to pay for the same to within about seventy cents on the dollar for the whole amount due to the miners. It was pretty tough on the working miner to pay the full price for working the ore and then get only thirty per cent of the balance of what should really be his. A little sample of legal proceeding in Alida, a few days since, or rather a burlesque. From the story we listened to we think there must have been some spirits stimulating and pervading the proceedings, supposed to be under the direction of the blind goddess, but more likely Bacchus had a preponderating influence. The case, as we infer, was something of this nature: A man some time since, sold a stove, or let a man have it on credit. The man, a Mexican, went away, leaving his wife, who concluded that she might leave too. If she did she would not need the stove. The man wanted his money or the stove returned. The stove was returned, but afterwards some one had the man arrested—at first without a warrant; but afterwards a warrant was made, purporting to come from the woman. Papers were served on the ignorant man who hardly understood a word of English, and he was given fifteen minutes to answer. Afterwards he was ordered to return the stove, and his time to answer extended. He was seen loading his stove to convey it back to the woman, when our informant told him that he was being fooled, and that if he took it back he ought to lose it. Whatever pranks may be played by others, an officer should not stoop to abet such nonsense.

Mr. A. R. Williams, has recently returned from Sacramento, at which place he purchased a five-stamp mill, to be erected at Benton. A small furnace is to be put up and run in conjunction with the mill. The barrel process is to be used in amalgamating. It is well known throughout this section of the State, that Mr. Williams' mine is well developed and valuable, and the success of this new enterprise may well be regarded an assured thing.

Several large teams arrived with merchandise from Wadsworth the past week, and will load back with borax—one from Teel's Marsh, and others from Rhode's & Wasson's.

It is rumored that Williams of Sweetwater, and McLeod of Mason Valley, two of our County Commissioners, intend to take hold of the Carson and Columbus wagon road and complete it during the present Spring.

It is rumored in San Francisco that the Silver Peak Company intend to resume operations this Summer. It is also currently reported that a considerable quantity of freight is now on the road for that point. It is to be hoped that this may prove correct.

Stewart's Railroad Bill.

A late Washington dispatch says that Stewart's railroad bill provides that any number of persons, not less than five, may become a body corporate for the purpose of locating, constructing and operating a railroad in any of the Territories except the Indian Territory, and after complying with requirements, which are elaborately prescribed, for the organization, etc., gives the right of way through the public lands to the extent of one hundred feet on each side of the located lines of the road, as shown by maps to be filed with the Secretary of the Interior. The bill also contains a provision for the condemnation of private property by appraisers, to be appointed by the courts, and for giving all railroads an equal right of way through narrow canyons etc. It is also provided that no local aid shall be afforded to any railroad company by territorial or county authorities without the consent of Congress being first obtained.

Take a Drink.

In the hydropathic treatment drinking cold water immediately after rising, provided that breakfast be not taken for at least half an hour, is prescribed. The explanation given is that the internal douche acts upon the stomach as a tonic, in the same manner as cold applications externally upon the skin.

Sylvania Ore Assays.

We present below some assays of Sylvania ores made at the Swansea works for Mr. Darrah. These assays are from a lot of ore brought over by Mr. Darrah a number of weeks ago, and were selected with a view of obtaining the actual average value of the whole of the vein matter. The bullion assay is from a piece of bullion smelted on the ground in a blacksmith's forge. Assay No. 5 is from a peculiar material found in considerable quantities in the vein and heretofore deemed worthless. Taken altogether the Sylvania ores are pronounced by furnace men to be of the very best possible combinations for smelting purposes. The actual extent of the deposit is yet to be demonstrated, as a matter of course, since the deepest sinkings do not exceed twenty-five feet, but no better surface indications, taking all the facts together, could be asked for. The ledge has a continuous run of eight miles, as demonstrated by croppings and numerous prospect holes, from all of which quantities of splendid ores have been obtained. As for the average value of these nothing better can be shown by any mine than are shown by these assays, which are perfectly reliable. Leaving off the descriptive remark for each parcel, the assay by numbers stands thus:

NO.	PER TON.		PER TON.		PER TON.

Justice's Court.

Jacob Dentz lives down the road a little ways and is the chief engineer of a wayside doggery. Now Jacob is one of those who value a quarter or four bit piece as so much money whether received for whisky from an Indian or a white man, and in consequence of his indifference on this point some troubles have befallen Jacob. On one occasion, as we were informed some time since, one of his noble red customers felt so enthusiastic over the tarantula juice he had been drinking, that he tried to chop Jacob into bits with his own little hatchet; but to the grief of his neighbors Jacob's head was too Dentz for ye noble red man's efforts. This being the case the matter of so much drunkenness among the Indians of that vicinity was brought to the attention of District Attorney Snelling, who had Jacob brought before Justice Gunnison to see what could be done about it. The charge was selling whisky to Indians—two counts. He was found guilty on one, but judgment was withheld till he could be tried on the other, in which his counsel, P. Reddy, demanded a jury trial. For reasons not necessary to specify Judge Gunnison turned the case over to Justice Densmore. Indian witnesses were alone available and though they swore very positive and very direct that Jacob was in the habit of selling them whisky the jury refused to find a verdict of guilty, standing eleven to one for a verdict of not guilty, so the prisoner was discharged and the charges dismissed without further action.

No Mails.

No mail by either the southern or northern stages arrived on Thursday evening last nor since the Tuesday previous, so this section, so far as the affairs of the great world outside is concerned, remains in profound ignorance. We are not advised as to the trouble on the southern route—may be its Vasquez but more likely it is carelessness at some way office. On the northern route we are told that the Independence bag was deflected from its course at Benton, and is now making the tour of southeastern Nevada. It has made a similar round once or twice before so we should only think it a waste of time to send it there any more. As usual when mails fail to come to time a great many persons expected important letters that very trip and so they frown and look severe and use fervent expressions in relation to the postmaster whose carelessness caused the disappointment. It happens that we ourself were confidently looking to the arrival of this stage on account of some mail matter due at that time of considerable importance to us—but we are used to disappointments.

Died.

John W. Harrold, of whom we have made mention as "Tennessee" and as having become insane, died last Tuesday at Dr. White's hospital. For some days previously his sufferings were terrible. He recovered his right mind for a few minutes only prior to his death. He was about 38 years of age, and as his name indicates, was a native of Tennessee.

Not so Bad After All.

Inyo Bonds to the amount of $4,000 issued in 1872, and payable according to our good faith twenty years thereafter—in 1892—were redeemed by our County Treasurer, Henry M. Isaacs, March 7, and interest paid from date of issuance. This lightens the county debt $4,000 of what would have to be paid by our children twenty years hence.

Proceedings of the Owens Valley Pioneers.

Pursuant to call the Pioneers of Owens River Valley met for the purpose of permanent organization at Bennett & Gregg's office, Independence, at 10 A. M., March 15.

P. W. Bennett, the Chairman appointed at the preliminary meeting, being absent, P. Reddy was elected temporary Chairman, and Thos. Passmore Secretary, pro tem.

On motion the Chair appointed a committee of three to report a Constitution and By-Laws for the government of the Society—committee, R. A. Loomis, T. F. A. Connelly and Thos. Passmore.

Awaiting their report the Society took a recess till 2:30 P. M.

At that hour the Chairman called the meeting to order, which proceeded at once to the consideration of the Constitution and By-Laws reported by the committee, as read by its Chairman, Mr. Loomis. Except in matters of local application the Constitution and By-Laws are essentially the same as those of the Sacramento Society of California Pioneers. They were unanimously adopted and signed by all present, as follows:

John Lentell, Patrick Reddy, V. G. Thompson, Thos. Passmore, James Shepherd, R. A. Loomis, D. D. Gunnison, T. F. A. Connelly, J. B. White, W. J. Lake, W. L. Moore, John Lubken, G. W. Brady, J. B. Rowley, J. J. Moore, J. A. Lank, C. D. Begole, Joseph Fernbach, Thomas W. Hill, T. May, and subsequently by John Willett and John Shepherd. [For name of Society and plans see extracts of Constitution below.—Ed.]

Whereupon the Society proceeded to elect officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, Patrick Reddy; Vice Presidents, J. B. Rowley and Thos. Passmore; Recording Secretary, J. J. Moore; Corresponding Secretary, R. A. Loomis; Treasurer, T. F. A. Connelly; Directors, J. A. Lank, D. D. Gunnison and John Lubken; Marshal, Wm L. Moore.

Moved and carried that 300 copies of the Constitution and By-Laws be printed at The Independent office for use of members.

Moved and carried that the Corresponding Secretary be authorized to procure 300 printed circulars for use in his correspondence.

Resolved.—That a special meeting be held in Independence on the 2d of May next, and dinner be given by and for all who now or before that day may become constitutional members of this society.

Ordered, That the Recording Secretary be authorized to receive signatures to the Constitution and By-Laws of all persons qualified to become members, up till the 2d of May, after which time new members can only be admitted on ballot.

Moved and carried that a copy of these proceedings be furnished The Inyo Independent with request to publish.

All the business of this, the first meeting of the Society of Owens River Pioneers, having been satisfactorily transacted the Society adjourned to meet in special meeting as above stated, and the next stated meeting as prescribed in the Constitution.

P. Reddy, President.

R. A. Loomis, Secretary.

Article 1 of the Constitution fixes the name of the society as the "Society of Owens River Valley Pioneers."

Following are Articles 2 and 14, which we give in full for the information of numerous persons not present but interested in the subject matter:

ARTICLE 2.

Qualifications for Membership.

This Society shall be composed of citizens of the United States and foreigners, residents of the Valley prior to the 5th day January, A. D. 1865, who shall be considered active members, and who shall be entitled to all the privileges of the Society. Honorary and Life members may be admitted in accordance with the provisions contained in By-Laws.

ARTICLE 14.

Anniversary.

The annual celebration day of this Society shall be on the 20th day of May, unless it shall fall on Saturday or Sunday, and then it shall be on the 18th day of May. The first celebration shall be at Independence, the succeeding year at Lone Pine and the next year at Bishop Creek, and shall be held in that order for succeeding years.

School Moneys.

The following is the apportionment of the County School Fund: Amount subject to apportionment, $3,172 64; Bishop Creek, $439 46; Big Pine, $290 94; Irving, $220 26; Independence, $314 66; Lone Pine, $839 10; Milton, $266 04; Round Valley, $382 63; Union, $419 55. Total $3,172 64.

A Grange.

One of the high Grangers of the State is expected at Bishop Creek in a few weeks, where he comes by invitation to organize a Grange for that locality. It is to be hoped other localities in the county will take advantage of that opportunity for similar organizations.

Extinguished.

Like the old fraud of a building for which it was created the old Building Fund of the county is now wholly extinguished, County Treasurer Isaacs having paid off the last warrant against it March 9, leaving a surplus in the Treasury from that fund of $119 64.

Did Come.

Some mail matter arrived by last night's stage, being the same due the previous evening. No news of importance.

"Busted."

The Surveyor-General has refused our Josiah's application for 133,000 acres of Inyo "swamps." That was a a Dismal Swamp speculation for Josiah.

The Meeting.

Elsewhere will be found a pretty full report of the proceedings of the Pioneer meeting. Severe indisposition that day prevented us from being present (as a spectator, not being a tabooser) except for a few minutes only and therefore we can say but little about it beyond what is set forth in the proceedings. We note, however, that the attendance was quite large, circumstances considered, and that all seemed to take hold with a will and determination to carry this commendable undertaking to a successful issue; and thirdly, that we have not a doubt but they will do it, for pioneers are never mere milk and water people in their undertakings whatever they may be. Among these taboosers, as their names will show, are many of our most thorough going citizens, and there are many more of the same class to be added the first opportunity. As intimated in the report they are to have a little dinner of their own the 2d of May. It is for the pioneers and their families only, and only those whose names are signed to the Constitution before or at that time. In the meantime it is hoped that all who are qualified to become members and desiring to participate on that occasion will let the fact be known in time for preparation. If plates are to be laid for but fifty it will be inconvenient at the last hour to prepare for a much larger number and hence the need of knowing whom to expect long enough in advance. But this matter, we presume, will be attended to by R. A. Loomis, Corresponding Secretary, so we will say no more about it.

The "Rose Buds."

Once or twice a week a number of our young men, including a number who were quite young a long time ago, get together at the Masonic Hall and have a good time learning how to dance, practicing the graces, etc. They have good music and a very enjoyable time and call themselves the "Rose Buds." One gentleman, though, confidentially informed us this should read "hoodlums"—but he may be a little "prejuced" because he was black balled and also because ladies are not admitted. The fact is, it is a very good institution, this of the Rose Buds, and is not at all of the hoodlum order. They have a very able bodied committee appointed expressly to suppress disorderly manifestations of all sorts, and a hoodlum, unless he kept his throttle valve tight closed, would be hustled out so quick it would make his head swim.

Schools Closed.

Owing to his ill health Mr. Washburn has resigned his school at the Post and gone below. But for this that school would have been continued three months longer. The school here under Mr. Hardy closed last Friday, after a five months term, for lack of funds for a longer continuance. It is likely there will be no public school here for several months to come, but Miss Whitcomb will keep a private school, during the interval and longer perhaps, if she meets with proper encouragement. We will take this occasion to remark that in our opinion Mr. Hardy, our late teacher, has proved himself during his three years here, to be a most excellent and well qualified teacher, and we would cheerfully recommend him wherever he goes.

Gone Below.

Mr. John Broder, accompanied by his niece, Miss Sarah Nichols, started for Los Angeles this morning. Miss Nichols goes there for a short stay in the hope of recuperating her failing health.

More Whisky Legislation.

Assemblyman Norton's bills to add a section to the Penal Code, provides that every owner, lessee or keeper of any house used, in whole or in part, as as a saloon, or drinking place, who, knowngly permits any person under twenty years of age to play at any game of chance therein, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Assemblyman Furguson's bill to discourage the use of intoxicating liquors provides that any person who shall ask, or caused to be asked, at any time any, person or persons to take a drink of any spirituous or malt liquors, wine or cider, at any public or licensed bar, at his expense, and shall take a drink of any such liquors upon such invitation shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; provided that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent any person from drinking any such liquors at his own expense. The act to take effect from and after the 1st of July next.

Senator Finney's bill to prevent the sale of intoxicating drinks to certain persons and other purposes, provides that every person who shall give, sell or dispose of to any male under the age of eighteen years, or to any female of any age, to be by him or by her, at the time or in the place where sold or given, drunk, or used as a beverage, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Every person who causes, procures, or allows any female to sell give, or distribute, deliver or dispose of any intoxicating drink or beverage to any person or persons in any bar-room, drinking saloon, dance cellar, ball room, public garden, theatre, public highway, or any public place whatever, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. A violation of the laws is to be punished by a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $1,000, and may also be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not less than three months. If the offending party hold a license he shall forfeit it and shall not be given another for the space of two years thereafter.

—There is over 5,000 mines and prospects within a circuit of twenty-five miles of Salt Lake city. The most of these will be actively worked this season.

—The principal attraction of a private museum at Nevada City is a white quail.

—A farm of 736 acres was recently sold in Sutter county for $20,000.

Introduced.

We noticed in The Union's report that "Mr. Parker presented a petition from the farmers of Inyo county asking the extension of the no-fence law over the whole of that county, which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture." We presume there is an error in this report and the petition referred to is the one asking that the no-fence law be put in force the year through. A remonstrance against this has also gone forward, we understand. It is hardly probable anything will come of the petition at this late date, or in other words, that the present law will be changed.

Presidential Term.

The Judiciary Committee of the House, it is said, have prepared and will present a proposition to amend the Constitution regulating the term of the Presidential office. The proposed amendment is to make the term six years and the President ineligible for a second term. It is thought that both Houses of Congress will adopt the proposition, and if they do there is not much doubt that three-fourths of the State Legislature will accept the amendment.

—An Eastern paper says that the way to kill off the poets who offer to write pieces gratuitously, is to accept their efforts, hand them to the worst compositor, and let the proof reader correct them according to his own idea of prosody. This is warranted to destroy the strongest poetical fever in three weeks.

—A man and wife in Penobscot, Maine, died suddenly after eating a dinner of vegetables boiled in a kettle. The pan which covered the kettle had been used in mixing meal and arsenic for crows, and had not been so thoroughly cleansed but that a deadly quantity of the poison was dislodged by the steam.

—When does a man have to keep his word? When no one will take it.

—A poor family in Green Bay had to mortgage their six dogs last week to get a barrel of flour. The case is pitiable.

—The latest zoological curiosity is reported from Richmond, Va.—a dog with two tails. One of them, however, was an ox tail, carried in the dog's mouth.

—Quite a business is now being done in the East, making barometers for farm use.

—Walnut trees three feet high may be seen in a nursery at San Bernardino, grown from nuts planted in March, 1873.

SQUIBLEMS.

—The child who cried for an hour didn't get it.

—"Jack" said a man to a lad just entering his teens, "your father is drowned." "Hang it," replied the young hopeful, "and he's got my jack-knife in his pocket."

—An Irishman in speaking of the evils of committing suicide, said the only way to ever stop it was for the law to take charge of it, and make it an offense punishable with death.

—Well, Bridget, if I engage you, I shall wan't you to stay at home whenever I wish to go out." "Well, ma'am I have no objections, providin' you do the same when I wish to go out."

—After a clergyman had been preaching an hour and a half he remarked: "A broad field opens before me," when a good natured colored gentleman in the audience was heard to say: "Put up dem bars; put up dem bars."

—An old Judge on being asked what was the longest Circuit he had held, replied: "The longest, as to distance, was when I used to court a girl to reach her house I had to make a circuit of eleven miles; but the time was a mere nothing."

—"Jonathan, where were you going when I saw you going to the mill?" "Why, I was going to the mill, to be sure." "Well, I wish I'd seen you; I'd have got you to carry a grist for me." "Why, you did see me didn't you?" "Yes but not until you had got clean out of sight."

—A genius in the Virginia Legislature, from Loudun county, has introduced a bill entitled "A bill to prevent the sale of intoxicating liquors to minors, habitual drunkards, and persons liable to become intoxicated." This must be a sweeping bill, and, should it pass, the whisky dealers might as well shut up shop entirely.

Stamps in the Legislature

All the loca bills on the file having been disposed of, Mr. Cowdery offered the following:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to inquire what members have used their postage stamps, and to collect all stamps in the possession of members and divide them equally. [Laughter.]

Mr. Cowdery—Some of the members may take that as a joke, but it is a very serious matter with me. The fact is that the San Francisco delegation and the delegations from the interior of the State, received the same quantity of stamps as the Sacramento delegation, who live at the same place where the Legislature is held. I am credibly informed that they have each of them from $4 to $5 and $7¾ left in stamps I have got left over, now, a one cent stamp, which I borrowed from Mr. Swift, and something has got to be done. [Laughter.] Now this is no joke. I ask what right have the Sacramento delegation to have $15 or more in stamps when they have no use for them? What right has the gentleman from Shasta county—he tells me that he has $14 left in stamps.

Mr. Klotz—I have got more than that; I have got $15.

Mr. Cowdery—As I understand it the stamps are the property of the State, and my stamps are all gone. I have borrowed Mr. Swift's stamps for some time, and I think it is a very just resolution. I have offered this at the request of a great many members. [Laughter.]

Mr. Parker—I offer an amendment to the resolution.

Mr. Cowdery—I am sorry to see this matter treated with so much levity, Mr. Speaker:

Mr. Parker moved to add the following.

Resolved, that Mr. Cowdery shall not participate in the proposed division unless he establish the fact that he did not dispose of his by sale.

Mr. Cowdery—I rise to a point of order. It is against the rule for the private conduct of any member to be inquired into.

The Speaker pro tem. (Mr. Williams)—I must decide the whole matter as out of order.

Mr. Meyers—I move to adjourn.

The motion prevailed, and at 8:40 P. M. the House accordingly adjourned.

A Good Story.

It is a pity to have one of Mr. Evarts' good stories mangled by the reporters, as is in the case of the reports of his anecdotes about a donkey, told at a recent Harvard meeting. The story told was as follows: A few summers since, Mr. Evarts at the urgent request of one of his daughters, sent up to his country place in Vermont a donkey for use. She had read about donkeys, but was not familiar with their peculiar vocalism. The animal's strange noises inspired her with the profoundest pity for its evident distress. So she wrote to her father; "Dear papa—I do wish you would come up here soon, my donkey is so lonesome." As Mr. Evarts renders this pathetic appeal, it is irresistible.—New York Evening Mail.

To Tan Skins.

The following method is recommended by a correspondent: Take equal parts salt, alum and Glauber's salt, and half a part saltpeter; pulverize and mix. Handle the skins and rub the mixture in well three or four times a day, the oftener the better. If there is not moisture enough in the skin to dissolve the salts, put a little water into the latter. We are assured that no moth will attack furs, the felts of which have been thus prepared.—Scientific American.

SHERIFF'S NOTICE OF SALE.

WHEREAS, UNDER AND BY VIRTUE OF A decree or judgment of foreclosure rendered by the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, on the Tenth day of July, A. D. 1873, in a certain cause therein pending, wherein Isaac M. Bull, Wm. Watt and John H. Ockerhausen, Trustees, were plaintiffs, and the Owens Lake Silver-Lead Company was defendant, it was, among other things, ordered, adjudged and decreed that sale should be made by the Sheriff of Inyo County in the manner prescribed by law for the sale of real estate of all and singular the property therein described, that is to say: All that certain portion, claim and mining right, title or property on those certain veins or lodes of rock, containing precious metals of gold, silver and other metals, and situate in the Russ District, Inyo (formerly Tulare) County, in the State of California, and described as follows, to-wit: Those certain mining grounds known and recorded in said Russ District as the "A No. One" lode or lead, and the "Virginia Gordon" lode or lead, both of which are situated near the head of Owens Lake and situated on said lodes as follows, to-wit: Commencing at a monument where the notice of location of said lodes was posted, and extending in a southerly direction along said lodes one thousand six hundred and fifty (1,650) feet on each lode; being the same premises conveyed to said parties of the first part by Sherman Stevens by deed dated the 28th day of February, 1865, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Tulare County April 13th, 1865, in liber F of deeds, folios 387, 388 and 389; together with all the dips, spurs and angles, and also all the metals, ores, gold, silver, lead and other metals and mineral bearing quartz rock and earth therein. Also all the furnaces, machinery, buildings, fixtures, now erected and hereafter to be erected, tools, implements, horses, mules, ways, water courses and water powers belonging or appertaining to said mining property, (including all the furnaces, buildings and machinery which have been built or purchased by said company in the vicinity of Owens Lake or elsewhere) and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant or appurtenant or therewith usually held and enjoyed, or so much thereof as might be necessary to pay the sum of One Hundred and Two Thousand Three Hundred and Eleven 38-100 ($102 311 38-100) dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum from the Tenth day of July, A. D. 1873, and the costs and expenses of sale, of which decree, a copy duly certified under the seal of said Court has been delivered to me.

Now, therefore, I hereby give notice that on the EIGHTH DAY OF APRIL, A. D. 1874, at the hour of 12 M. in front of the Court House door, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell the said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, in parcels, as follows: 1. That certain mining ground situate in the Russ District, Inyo County, California, near the head of Owens Lake, and known and recorded in the said Russ District as the "A No. One" lode or lead, commencing at the monument where the notice of location of said lodes was posted and extending in a southerly direction along said lode 1,650 feet, with all the dips, spurs and angles, and also all the ores, gold, silver, lead and other metals and mineral bearing quartz rock and earth therein, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant, or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances. 2. That certain mining ground situated in the Russ District, Inyo County, California, near the head of Owens Lake, and known and recorded in the said Russ District as the "Virginia Gordon" lode or lead, commencing at the monument where the notice of location of said lodes was posted, and extending in a southerly direction along said lode 1,650 feet, with all the dips, spurs and angles, and also all the ores, gold, silver, lead and other metals and mineral bearing quartz rock and earth therein, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances. 3. The works which have been built or purchased by said company in the vicinity of Owens Lake, commonly known as the Swansea Works, with all the furnaces, machinery, buildings, fixtures, tools, implements, horses, mules, ways, water courses, and water powers, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances. 4. The furnaces, water-wheel and water right situated on Tuttle Creek, on the west side of Owens Valley, about two miles in a southerly direction from the town of Lone Pine, with all the machinery, buildings, ways, water-courses and water powers, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Reddy, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiffs in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars, in U. S. Gold coin, with interest thereon from the Tenth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America, as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this Nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four. [SEAL.]

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND,
Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, [SEAL.] this 30th day of January, 1874.

SENATE BILL NO. 56.—INTRODUCED BY MR. TUTTLE.

An Act to Amend Certain Sections, to Repeal Certain Sections, and to Add Certain New Sections, to the Political Code of the State of California.

The People of the State of California, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 1521 of the Political Code is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 1521. The powers and duties of the Boards are as follows:

First—To adopt rules and regulations, not inconsistent with the laws of this State, for its own government, and for the government of the public schools and district school libraries;

Second—To prescribe and enforce rules for the examination of teachers;

Third—To prescribe a standard of proficiency before a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a person examined by such Board to a State certificate;

Fourth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools;

Fifth—To prescribe and enforce the use of a uniform series of text books in the public schools;

Sixth—To adopt a list of books for district school libraries;

Seventh—To grant, or to revoke for immoral or unprofessional conduct, profanity, intemperance, or evident unfitness for teaching, life diplomas;

Eighth—To review, on appeal, an order revoking a State certificate or diploma;

Ninth—To have done by the State Printer or other officer having the management of the State printing, any printing required by it;

Tenth—To adopt and use in the authentication of its acts, an official seal;

Eleventh—To keep a record of its proceedings.

SEC. 2. Section 1,593 of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 1593. An election for School Trustees must be held in each district, on the last Saturday of June of each year, at the district school house, if there is one, and if there is none, at a place to be designated by the Board of Trustees:

First—The number of School Trustees for any school district, except where City Boards are otherwise authorized by law, shall be three;

Second—In new school districts, or in case of a vacancy for any cause in an old one, the School Trustees shall be elected to hold office for one, two and three years, respectively, from the first Saturday of July next succeeding their election;

Third—Except as provided in subdivision second of this section, one Trustee shall be elected annually, to hold office for three years, or until his successor shall be elected and qualified.

SEC. 3. Section 1617 of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 1617. The powers of Boards of Trustees of school districts, and Boards of Education in cities, are as follows:

First—To prescribe and enforce rules not inconsistent with law or those prescribed by the State Board of Education, for their own government and the government of schools;

Second—To manage and control the school property within their districts;

Third—To purchase school furniture and apparatus, and such other things as may be necessary for the use of schools;

Fourth—To rent, furnish, repair, and insure the school property of their respective districts;

Fifth—When directed by a vote of their district, to build school houses, or to purchase or sell school lots;

Sixth—To make in the name of the district, conveyances of all property belonging to the district, and sold by them;

Seventh—To employ the teachers, janitors, and employes of schools; to fix and order paid their compensation,

Eighth—To suspend or expel pupils for misconduct.

Ninth—To exclude from schools children under six years of age;

Tenth—To enforce in schools the course of study and the use of the text books prescribed and adopted by the State Board of Education;

Eleventh—To appoint District Librarians, and enforce the rules prescribed for the government of district libraries;

Twelfth—To exclude from schools and school libraries all books, publications, or papers of a sectarian, partisan, or denominational character;

Thirteenth—To furnish books for the children of parents unable to furnish them.

Fourteenth—To keep a register, open to the inspection of the public, of all children applying for and entitled to be admitted in the schools, and to notify the parent or guardian of such children when vacancies occur, and receive such children in the schools in the order in which they are registered;

Fifteenth—To make arrangements with the Trustees of any adjoining district for the attendance of such children in the school of either district as may be best accommodated therein, and to transfer the school moneys due by apportionment to such children, to the district in which they may attend school;

Sixteenth—On or before the first day of June, in each year, to appoint a School Census Marshal, and notify the School Superintendent thereof;

Seventeenth—To make an annual report, on or before the first day of July, to the School Superintendent, in the manner and form, and on the blanks prescribed by the Superintendent;

Eighteenth—To make a report, whenever required, directly to the Superintendent, of the text books used in their schools;

Nineteenth—To visit every school in their district at least once in each term, and examine carefully into its management, condition, and wants; this clause to apply to each and every member of the Board of Trustees.

SEC. 4. Section 1842 of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows.

Section 1842. In case an Assessor or Collector of district taxes refuses or neglects to qualify within ten days after his election, or having qualified, refuses or neglects to act, or in case of any vacancy from any other cause, in either or both of said offices, the Board of Trustees shall call a special election, giving at least ten days notice, to fill the place.

SEC. 5. Section 1858 is amended to read as follows:

Section 1858. All State moneys apportioned by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, must be apportioned to the several counties in proportion to the number of school census children between five and seventeen years of age, as shown by the returns of the School Census Marshals for the preceeding school year; provided, that Indian children who are not living under the guardianship of white persons, and Mongolian children, shall not be included in the apportionment list. The School Superintendent of each county must apportion all State and county school money as follows:

First—He must ascertain the number of teachers each district is entitled to, by calculating one teacher for every one hundred census children, or fraction thereof, as shown by the next preceeding school census;

Second—He must ascertain the total number of teachers for the county, by adding together the number of teachers assigned to the several districts;

Third—Five hundred dollars shall be apportioned to each district for every teacher assigned it;

Fourth—All school moneys remaining on hand after apportioning five hundred dollars to each district for every teacher assigned it, must be apportioned to the several districts having not less than thirty census children, in proportion to the number of census children in each district.

SEC. 6. The following numbered sections of the Political Code are hereby repealed, viz: 1756, 1845, 1846, 1847, 1848, 1542.

SEC. 7. The following new sections are hereby added to the Political Code of the State of California:

Section 443. The State Controller must, between the tenth day of August and the first day of September of each year, estimate the amount necessary to raise the sum of seven dollars for each census child, between the ages of five and seventeen years, in this State, which shall be the amount necessary to be raised by ad valorem tax, for school purposes during the year, which amount the Controller must immediately certify to the State Board of Equalization.

Section 3719. The State Board of Equalization must levy annually, at the time other State taxes are levied, a tax of such number of cents on each one hundred dollars value of taxable property in the State, as will produce a net sum equal to the amount reported to them by the Controller as being necessary to be raised by an ad valorem tax for school purposes; and the assessment and collection of said tax shall be performed in the same manner and at the same time as other State taxes are assessed and collected.

Section 1533. The Superintendent of Public Instruction must report to the Controller, on or before the tenth day of August in each year, the total number of children in the State, between the ages of five and seventeen years, as shown by the latest reports of the School Superintendents, on file in his office.

Section 1551. Each School Superintendent in this State must, on or before the first day of August of each year, report to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and to the Board of Supervisors of their respective counties, the number of children in their counties, between the ages of five and seventeen years, as appears by the latest returns of the Census Marshal on file in their office.

Section 1640. If the Census Marshal neglect or refuses to make his report at the time and in the manner herein required, or to perform any other duty devolved upon him, he must be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction be punished by fine or imprisonment.

Section 1870. No officer named in this Title, or teacher in any public school held under the provisions of this Title, must act as agent for any author, publisher, bookseller, or other person, to introduce any book, apparatus, furniture, or any other article whatever, in the common schools of this State, or any one or more of them, or directly or indirectly contract for, or receive any gift or reward for so introducing or recommending the same; and any officer so acting or receiving, must be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction be punished by fine or imprisonment, and be removed from office.

Section 1552. No School Superintendent who receives a salary of fifteen hundred dollars or more, per annum, must follow the profession of teaching, or any other avocation that can conflict with his duties as Superintendent.

SEC. 8. This Act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Length of the Days.

The days of Summer grow longer as we go northward, and the days of Winter shorter. At Hamburg the longest day has seventeen hours, and the shortest seven. At Stockholm the longest day has eighteen and a half hours, and the shortest day five and a half. At St Petersburg the longest day has nineteen and the shortest five hours. At Finland the longest has twenty-one and a half, and the shortest two and a half hours. At Wandorbus, in Norway, the day lasts from the 22d of May to the 1st of July, the sun not getting below the horizon for the whole time, but skimming along very close to it in the north. At Spitzerbergen the longest day lasts three months and a half.

JUST WAIT.

The Bakersfield Californian, commenting on the passage of the Independence and Los Angeles Railroad bill, thinks that work will begin on that road in about two years—from Tehachepi northward after the Southern Pacific reaches that point. Perhaps; but we feel very confident that active work will be undertaken on the aforesaid Los Angeles and Independence road in a very few months from this date. At least that portion of the incorporators or rather of those who hold the franchise, residing in this county propose to call a meeting in Los Angeles in a short time for the purpose of preparing for the work, and in the resolve to put it through if such a thing be possible—about which there is scarcely a doubt. We are quite sure that portion of the company living in Los Angeles and San Francisco mean business, and if so, the undertaking is comparatively of easy accomplishment.

A New County.

The bill to create the new county of Vallejo has passed the Legislature and, unless the Governor vetoes it, the Federal employees of Vallejo, who rejoiced so greatly that they had succeeded in swindling Solano out of its proper county-seat, can now bewail themselves in sackcloth and Navy Yard ashes—can put a thousand men at work in the Yard the day previous to an election, and discharge them the day following, and thereby succeed in ruling the political destinies of—the great city of Vallejo, that and nothing more, henceforth. P. S.—The Governor has vetoed the above mentioned william, so that now he appears on the Vallejo calendar as "Saint Newton," and on that for the rest of the county as "Old Booth, the whisky merchant." "Uneasy is the head," etc.

Not So.

It was rumored that the Goodall, Nelson & Perkins line of steamers were to be withdrawn from the Los Angeles and San Francisco route. The Company publish a card in The Herald of March 27, in which they declare that the line will not be withdrawn, but on the contrary, two additional steamers are to be put on just as soon as they receive their new engines now being put in. This will be good news to Inyo freight payers.

Do You Know Him?

Information is wanted of Levi T. Heath, who came to California in 1851. Was last heard from in 1861 at Jackson, Amador county. His afflicted family, in destitute condition at Warsaw, Wyoming county, New York, will be grateful for any tidings of said Heath, if living, or the circumstances of his death. Address Sarah J. Heath as above.

Another New Paper.

We are in receipt of No. 1 of "The Semi-Tropical Press," a large fine looking weekly just started in West Oakland, Alameda county, by Geo. W. Barter, formerly of The Los Angeles Star. We suspect George has his weaknesses like other people, but he is a good newspaper editor—considerably above the average.

Newton Booth and the Presidency.

It is said that there is a movement maturing in Washington to concentrate and organize strength there and elsewhere, in favor of Newton Booth for the next President. Prominent men in the labor organizations say there can be massed three thousand societies throughout the country in his support.

Legal Service.

The "act concerning the service of summonses upon absent defendants by publication," which included the filing of a copy of the printed notice and other documents in the office of the Secretary of State, has been repealed. Attorneys and others interested will act accordingly.

Too Secure.

The C. P. Railroad folks got into a bad fix at their office in San Francisco recently by losing the combination of one of their safes, the whole week being occupied by the best locksmiths in that city and Sacramento in trying to open it, but without success.

Can't Trust Them.

The military officers in Arizona report that no faith can be placed in the present seemingly peaceful attitude of the Apaches, and that the troops in that Territory will have all they can do next Summer to keep them quiet.

THE COLORADO DESERT SCHEME.

Some of the Eastern papers are trying to throw discredit upon Senator Jones' great project of submerging the Colorado Desert, claiming that the scheme is not original with Mr. Jones, and that its practibility is extremely problematical, and that it could not, in any event of success, be of a degree of benefit commensurate with the cost thereof. It is no matter whether the idea was original with Mr. Jones or not, it is quite certain that he expended a considerable sum of his own money in ascertaining by competent surveyors that the region in question, which includes Death Valley within this county, is from forty to one hundred feet lower than the Gulf of California and of course proportionately lower than that with respect to the Colorado river from which this basin can easily be filled with fresh water, thus forming a chain of navigable lakes, or if preferable, the whole region could simply be watered to a requisite extent by the waters of the river, thus reclaiming a vast amount of what is ascertained to be really rich and fertile lands, instead of barren desert wastes. By this means a large section of valuable country could be added to the resources of the nation, and although its cost would be great, it would not be too much for the benefit conferred. It is also further shown that the submerging or reclaiming of the region in question would have a decidedly beneficial effect upon the vast extent of country lying to the northward of it, extending even as far as Tulare Valley. This latter benefit would lie in the permanent suppression of the "sand storms," hot parching winds, deficient rain fall and other existing evils directly traceable to the existence of this hot arid desert, especially in the Summer season, when a vast body of dry heated air comes from it as from a great furnace.

A writer in The Los Angeles Star thinks the volume of the Colorado river would be insufficient to fill such a vast basin—30 miles wide by 180 in length—since the loss by absoption and evaporation would be so very great. We are rather inclined to that belief ourself, but as the Gulf itself can be easier turned in, the sea thus certainly attainable will answer all required needs, pretty nearly the same. This same writer also objects because such a sea would also interpose a great obstacle to the Southern Pacific Railroad. It might do that, but the loss in that respect would be more than compensated in the water transportation furnished for the vast inland mining region surrounding it.

Legislative.

Long introduced a bill allowing the Mono Assessor $700 per annum. Pendegast introduced an act conferring power on city and town authorities to pass such ordinances as may be deemed best for the suppression of disorderly acts by minors, and to regulate the hours for them to be on the streets at night without written consent of parents, etc. Counties are to be reimbursed for moneys paid the State for copies of the Codes. The Freeman and Irwin railroad fare and freight bills were both lost and in lieu thereof, or as the sum total of the anti-railroad (so-called) Legislation, we have a bill creating a Board of Transportation Commissioners who are to have certain powers in regulating freight tariffs. It is doubtful if this bill will be of the least benefit to the people however it may effect the railroad. The bill to pardon Harry Meigs passed both Houses, but was vetoed by the Governor, and then by both Houses passed over the veto. The Governor also vetoed the bill enacting the county of Vallejo which was a thing he ought not to have done, in justice to the people of a very large and important county.

Vetoed.

The bill providing for the Legislature to elect a Board of State Harbor Commissioners, was vetoed by Governor Booth. The veto caused great fluttering among those who hoped to secure a position through an election on joint ballot.

The Big Race.

The New York Sun declares that the race challenged between Thad Stevens and Joe Daniels is a trick to catch the uninitaited, and that there is no doubt Daniels is the best horse, and can beat Stevens in a fair race.

Mail Swindles.

Mr. Luttrell, of California, is giving Mr. Cresswell's pet mail contractors particular Jesse. It appears that one or two of them have been drawing some $200,000 on contracts in advance of any service.

Sensible.

The Senate bill providing that solvent debts other than those secured, shall be subject to taxation only on the excess of the cash value over the indebtedness of the owner, passed.

Panamint and Los Angeles.

Mr. Jacobs of Panamint has been down to Los Angeles seeking aid from the businees men of that place toward constructing a wagon road into his district. The Chamber of Commerce have taken hold of the work with a will and are determined to assist in the undertaking to the full extent of their power. We copy from The Express Mr. Jacob's statement made at a meeting of the Chamber, at the conclusion of which, the above action was taken:

Mr. N. J. Newmark said that Mr. Jacobs came to him endorsed by some of the best business firms of San Francisco, and that the aid he sought was to be expended in the interest of the commerce of this city. He called on Mr. Jacobs to explain his views on the subject.

THE IMPORTANCE OF PANAMINT.

Mr. Jacobs said that he had a thorough knowledge of Panamint district. It was entirely new, and surpassed in richness and capacity any district that he had ever seen, and he had been engaged in mining in this State and Mexico since 1849. He knew of no such district equal to the quality and richness of its ores. He knew of one or two mines there which would surpass anything but the Comstock. The country is a broken one, and from that fact is much nearer a paying development than was the Comstock lode years after its discovery. The only thing now required was easy ingress and egress. He thought if they now had the assistance of about $2,500 the road could now be made practicable clear to the mines with wagons. The miners there intend to open the road, any way, but they were just now poor and required some assistance. They have all worked more or less on the road, and there now remained only about four miles in the canyon and a bad place beyond the Slate Range to repair, so as to give an easy road from Los Angeles to Panamint. The distance from here to the mines is about 185 miles, and with the exceptions named is all a good natural road. There are now seventy-five miners in the camp, but a large accession of population cannot fail to reach there this Spring. [In the course of private conversation with Mr. Jacobs we gathered these facts: The main lode of the district was cut in two by a deep canyon, and paying ore could be entered on from this cut on either side without any heavy superficial work. He estimates that there are now in sight and available no less than 5,000 tons of ore, which will average $100 to the ton; but as it runs in rich veins, the sulphurets can be easily separated, and the great bulk of the non-metal bearing rock thrown away. Thus, only the more valuable ores will be hauled, such as would contain in the vicinity of a thousand dollars to a ton. This will sell readily at San Francisco to houses shipping to Swansea, England, and an advance of 85 per cent can be had on it. He was cofident that all the district required was an easy outlet for its best ores, and then it would produce ample capital of its own to build itself up as one of the most valuable mining centers on the continent. Mr. Jacobs says there are also lead-silver mines there which may be equal in value to those of Cerro Gordo, but that they had not been sufficiently developed to enable him to safely pass an opinion. The staple ore of the Panamint region which they were now getting out, is known as copper-silver glancer. So far the croppings have been traced several miles, but it was impossible to give any accurate idea of its extent. No doubt, however, existed as to the great amplitude of this remarkable discovery.

The Drawing

The long looked for "Official List of the Drawing of the Nevada State Gift Concert," has arrived and been distributed. Typographically the list is well gotten up and neatly printed, on heavy book paper. The first line of the introduction contains a sarcasm worthy of preservation: "Seventy per cent of the following respective amounts will be paid on all sums over and including $50,000." The sarcasm is there was no sum "over" $50,000, and only one of that amount. Following this are 1,321 numbers credited with drawing various sums from $50,000 down to $10 respectively. Then follows 6,040 numbers under the heading: "Holders of the following numbers are entitled to $5 each." The "official list" gives 350 numbers as having drawn $10 each; 349 as having drawn $20 each; 304 as having drawn $50 each; 152 as having drawn $100 each; 101 as having drawn $250 each; 50 as having drawn $500 each; 10 as having drawn $1,000 each; 5 as having drawn $2,000 each; 2 as having drawn $5,000 each; one of $15,000, one of $25,000, and one of $50,000. Total of numbers drawing prizes, 7,361; total number of prizes in scheme, 10,071. Total amount announced as having been drawn, $251,330; total amount of prizes in scheme, $265,000. The list, therefore shows that the number of tickets drawing prizes fell 2,710 short of the number of prizes announced in the scheme, and that the aggregate amount of money drawn falls $13,678 short of that set aside for prizes.—Virginia Chronicle.

Promising Route for a Stage Line.

Travel from Eastern Nevada to Arizona is pretty certain to be pretty lively from this time on, in view of which some good stage man ought to "locate" the route and put on at least a weekly line of stages. To do this it might be well to commence by securing the contracts for carrying the United States mails over the route, which would, at least, give tone to the enterprise. Just now mining in all the districts along the route looks well and promising, and as far-off San Juan is destined to have some visitors, a stage line on this route would send many of said visitors via Prescott, from which place they would find easy "sailing" to the new Dorado north of us.—Arizona Miner.

Santa Barbara and Cerro Gordo.

[From The Sata Barbara Index, March 19.]

The rapid increase of the production of silver in the extensive mineral reions of Inyo and Mono counties, on the eastern side of the impassable portion of the Sierra Nevada mountains, is a matter of first importance to the people of Santa Barbara, and calls for their prompt attention. The development of this mineral region has been rapidly but quietly going on, until it now has become of great consequence—until the sum of values produced startles one with its amazing proportions. By reason of the impassable character of the Sierra Nevada mountains, this bullion—bars of lead enriched with silver—must find an outlet to the sea by going southward, and is carried on large freight wagons from the Cerro Gordo and other furnaces to Los Angeles. It requires at this time nearly two hundred large mule teams to transport it and the number is steadily increasing from month to month. These teams leave Los Angeles for the mines laden with merchandise and provisions, returning freighted with bullion, making a round trip in about thirty-five days. This bullion trade can be secured to Santa Barbara, with all its advantages, by the construction of a narrow gauge railroad from Santa Barbara to Soledad Pass. The bullion can be freighted from the mines to Soledad Pass, and carried from there by railroad to Santa Barbara, and thence by steamer to San Francisco, for one-third less than is now paid for its conveyance by way of Los Angeles and Wilmington, and in less time than is now required, save lighterage, and over one hundred miles of ocean freightage. Important as this business is at present, it is but the beginning of a trade of almost unlimited extent. The veins and deposits of mineral now worked successfully, and the many others known to be valuable, that have not yet been made productive, are sufficient to give assurance that Inyo and Mono will rank anong the most famous districts for the production of silver in the world. This Owen's river bullion trade is sufficient to warrant the immediate building of a railroad from Santa Barbara to Soledad Pass and beyond, as rapidly as possible. Los Angeles is strugglug to retain this trade to enrich herself in the future as by it she has enriched herself in the past. With a railroad to Santa Barbara to Soledad Pass, this valuable trade would leave Los Angeles, and seek the harbor of Santa Barbara; the future terminus of the Southern transcontinental railroads.

A Mysterious Affair.

On Wednesday on the 18th instant, Mr. Andrew Rabbitt left Columbus with the avowed intention of going directly to Alida. He rode J. B. Hiskey's horse, a fine large sorrel, worth about $200, and had in his possession about $1,000. Messrs. Coats and Callison who left Columbus on the following Saturday, reached Alida on Monday. Up to that time nothing had been heard of Rabbitt. In the meantime Mr. Hiskey, who had been to Aurora, returned to Columbus, and finding the horse gone, left on Wednesday morning the 25th, for Alida, to endeavor to obtain some information of Rabbitt's whereabouts. Some suspicions of foul play are aroused, as Mr. Rabbitt has always borne the reputation of being an honorable man. Mr. William Ring, who arrived in Columbus from Belmont on Thursday last, thinks that he saw Mr. Rabbitt riding the sorrel horse in the latter place the day before he left. Up to the time of our going to press nothing further has been heard from Mr. Hiskey, who is either hunting Rabbitt or waiting at Alida for information regarding him.—Borax Miner.

Practical Railroad Legislation.

The Senate has now before it the Chamber of Commerce Railroad bill—introduced by Aldrich—which passed the Assembly Friday last, and it is to be hoped that it will neither be defeated nor choked off by delay. This bill which establishes a Board of Railroad Commissioners, with such full powers of control of lines of transportation as is given by the English system and rather more than is accorded to a like Board under the new law of Pennsylvania. It is not open to the serious objections which are urged against bills arbitrarily and inflexibly establishing fares and freights, while it tends to the attainment of all the good results that could be hoped for from such enactments. For this reason, as also for the further one that it is the best bill for railroad control which is now in shape for action in the limited time at the disposal of the Legislature, we hope to see it favorably acted upon without delay.—S. F. Chronicle.

Cerbat News.

The following is a private letter addressed to a gentleman in this vicinity, and though not intended for publication contains matter of interest to the public. The letter is dated Cerbat, Arizona, March 16, 1874, and less the introductory remarks, reads:

* * * As for this country, I can't say that things look much better than they did. Times are very dull. No money in the country as usual. The leaving the post and going on the warpath has made it very bad for the present prospects of the country. If Gen. Crook don't get them in soon on his terms there won't be anything done here this year—but I think Crook will be able to "camp" with them. Lieut Johnson, with a scout of cavalry and Apache Indians, is out in the Wallapai country, but nothing has been heard from him for fifteen days. It is supposed that he has gone up in the Smoky and Sevince country, where it is supposed Curum and his band have also gone. A great many have left the country and all mining and prospecting on the outside has stopped, all thinking they have as much as they can do to look out for Indians.

FOR FEAR OF THE INDIANS,

Bud Grounds, at Lexington Spring, lost 400 head of cattle and most all his horses. Bud has made one good Indian, and the Indians came near making Bud pass his checks in. The man that was with Bud at the time got his arm broken and two shots through the leg. The Indians got six horses from the mail driver between here and Prescott, and the driver got

ONE SHOT THROUGH THE LEG.

Remington was in the fight at the Willows when the driver got shot through the leg, and they came near getting him. Rem. says after running the way he did at the Willows he is now prepared to run against any man, or Indian.

THE CAUSE OF THE OUTBREAK.

What caused this Indian war is this: The Indian Ring are determined to force the Wallapais on the Colorado Reservation. Crook came to Beal Springs and had a "big talk," and told the Indians they would be sent to the Colorado River Reservation in so many weeks. They toll Crook they (the Indians) would not go there; that they would fight first. Crook left for Prescott in the morning, leaving the Indians better armed than the whites in the country, and better prepared to make war, and that same night they all left, except Wallapai Charley and his squaw. They remained at the post.

A MODEL OFFICER.

Charley had a good time getting drunk with Capt. Burns. About a week ago Charley and Capt. Burns lay all night together at Brown's milk ranch drunk in one pit. Sometimes Charley would knock Burns down, and then Burns would knock Charley down. This Capt. Burns is a fine man to have charge of a post.

FURNACES.

I am much obliged to you for your information on furnaces. I went in and helped Fisher on his last run and done very well. We run nothing but New London ore. Fisher sent to Lexington Spring and got some limestone—there is plenty of it there—and we started up on old slags. The furnace went off well enough, but as soon as the limestone was put in down she went. We saw at once that there was too much lime. In one hour we had her going again on old slag and New London ore, and no lime. The first tap we got six bars and some fenos. As soon as the fenos went in with the ore and old slag, and no lime, it worked as well as any furnace could work, and in twenty hours we made seventy-eight bars and the last tap was seventeen bars. The stock being all worked up, it was shut down as smooth as a cup, and in a better condition to do work then than it had ever been, and there it stands to this day unmolested.

UNDERSTANDS IT.

I am now satisfied that I see the trick. A great deal of zinc forms in the furnace in the shape of oxide and makes the furnace run bad, but by adding fenos enough in the charge to carry of that oxide of zinc there is nothing more wanting.

Fisher is still at work on the

and I think it looks well. That is to say, the ledge, at the bottom of the shaft, has held out all the way down fully four feet wide. The shaft is about 85 feet deep, and then there is a drift run on the ledge, both north and south, from the bottom of the shaft. These drifts are each about 70 feet long and show the same body of ore about four feet wide all the way. Some of the ore is better than the rest. Some of it will go as high as 80 per cent. in lead and as low as 20 per cent., but the average is about 55 per cent. in lead, and about $40 in silver. Fisher has now stopped the drifts and has commenced to sink the shaft again. I wish Fisher had money enough to do something. If he had he would do it.

COL. DAVE BUELL

is now in this country, and perhaps something may come of that. Buell is much pleased with the New London as it now looks.

Stearns is now at work on the Dean mine. The shaft is down 50 feet, where the ledge is cut and shows a good body of ore (average about $365 per ton), and still sinking. Notwithstanding the Wallapai fever the boys at Stockton are still shipping good ore; "63" shaft is 150 feet down, looking better than ever. Stearns is at work on the Keystone; is well pleased with his prospect so far. McGeary is shipping some very fine ore from the

and has now 100 sacks of ore at the river.

Well, Pletz has finally

to go in with him on his great patent furnace, with which he was going to smelt the whole country. Run one month, made three lead bars and threw up the sponge! A little better than Tom Moran did.

March 17. This is Pat's day. I have just seen Dr. Gildersleeve, from Beal Spring, he says about half the Indians came in last night.

CURUM AND HIS BAND

still out. Perhaps our Indian war is about over, I hope so at any rate

This has been a very cold Winter; set in about the first of December and is still very cold. Rain and snow most all the time. I do not think that there has been a night since the first of December that the ground has not been frozen. The cold weather is what has driven some of the Indians in, I have no doubt. If it is so, and will only keep long enough to drive in Curum and his band so that Capt. Burns can hang him, it will be all right.

COUNTY SEAT QUESTION SETTLED.

Judge Porter has decided the county-seat question in favor of Cerbat. After that there came a rain that lasted until it washed down every house in Chloride but one; in Mineral Park many houses went down, including Lod's stone house. Cerbat lost four houses. Ralph's big barn was much damaged. X.

Wood's Household Magazine.

The March number of Wood's Household Magazine is a capital one. It opens with an interesting story entitled "The Guiding Hand," by Mrs. H. C. Rowe; following this Joseph Schneider gives his "Experience in the City," an article which for its simple truth the youth of the land should read to their profit; "My Prayer" is not a religious sketch as one would suppose from the title, but is a most touching story in the sincere manner, and rough speech of a railroad hand. "The Weekly Diabolical," by Karl Kase, aims a sharp and timely blow at sensational literature. "The Kaiser Frederick" is one of Mary Hartwell's entertaining stories. In the installment of "Misery Jipeau," H. V. Orsborne raps the knuckles of the fashionable clergymen, and buries Penny Post from sight. There are several other articles of merit, and some choice poetry. The magazine contains six illustrations, including a fine design for a country schoolhouse. Terms only one dollar a year—with chromo Yosemite one dollar and a half. Subscriptions may begin with any number. Address, Wood's Household Magazine, Newburgh, N. Y.

THE PACIFIC IRRIGATING PIPE, AIR PIPE AND PUMP CO.

San Francisco, Cal.

THE ATTENTION OF AGRICULTURISTS AND farmers, especially, is called to these celbrated pumps already in use throughout the Western States and Pacific Coast, giving perfect satisfaction everywhere. For durability, efficiency and cheapness they cannot be excelled, the material used being cut from the butt log of the most durable timber in use. These pumps are adapted to all climates, and are not affected by heat or cold. They are made of different sizes to raise water in greater or less volume as may be required; and various lengths to operate in wells and cisterns either shallow or of great depth, and are handsomely turned and painted to preserve them against exposure. Air pipe for tunnels, mines, etc., made of the same material, are very efficient, cheap and durable.

Agency for Inyo and Mono counties at the Inyo Drug Store, Lone Pine, where full information will be given, orders promptly attended to and pumps may be inspected, having one in good running order in the well.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

THE FENCE QUESTION.

Hon. D. B. Curtis, J. J. McCall, Jacob Vagt, and others: Gentlemen—I have the honor to be in receipt of largely signed petitions for, and several remonstrances against, a change in the no-fence law as it now applies to Inyo, and upon careful examination find that about three-fourths of those really interested, and whose opinions are consequently alone entitled to weight, are on the side of the perpetual no-fence proposition. There is no greater moral truth than that the farmer is possessed of an abstract right to the exclusive enjoyment of his property at all times as against trespassers of any description.

At the same time the interests in question must, in reason, make mutual concessions; and upon this idea we formerly congratulated ourselves that the Inyo law was a perfect compromise. During the canvass I never heard of a proposition to make the law continuous. Further, the result of driving out of stock must cause a very considerable loss to our revenues, and a consequent increased levy of tax upon all other property.

However, Mr. Long, of the delegation, has introduced a bill extending the Fresno law over Inyo from and April 15, 1875, to which I shall offer no objection. Before the next Legislative election this will give the farmers the advantage of a trial of their system, and the stockmen a chance to prepare for its coming. A square issue in the legislative contest will then decide whether this law shall remain in force in Inyo or not, which, I may add, is considered far superior to the Los Angeles act.

Most Respectfully,

Jas. E. Parker.

Shooting in Lone Pine.

A curious sort of shooting affair came off in Lone Pine the other night. Jim Moffitt has a fine mule and from the movements of certain Mexicans he thought there would be a chance for him to loose that mule unless he kept a close watch. Accordingly he put him in Coburn's stable and made his own bed in the same apartment. About midnight Jim was awakened by a noise of some one endeavoring to enter the door, and believing it to be some Vasquez man after his mule, blazed away with his six shooter, through the door. It so happened that Utterback, who has an interest in that stable and who had just returned at that late hour with his team, was the man making the noise, and at whom Moffit fired. The ball grazed Utterback's left arm. He was astonished, of course, and ran off to get help to assist him in securing the bloody minded robber he had corralled in his stable. The "bloody robber" in the meantime was congratulating himself that his mule was yet safe, thanks to his own sagacity and quickness on the trigger, and that he had at least one robber corralled on the outside of the stable. Utterback got some neighbors and returned to the attack, but before any more shooting was done, the real state of affairs was made plain, and things went on smoothly.

Placer Mines.

Very fair "diggings" are reported as having been struck about ten miles westerly from Bishop Creek, in the Sierras. An attempt was made to work these mines some four or five years ago, but owing to the scarcity of water—none being obtainable, except early in the Spring—they were abandoned. The pan prospect is said to be excellent, and the owners are making active preparations to commence work in earnest. We hope these mines may hold out as good as they promise.

Sunday School Officers.

At the annual election of the Union Sabbath School, held at Bishop Creek, March 29, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: Superintendent, M. H. White; Assistant, C. H. Walcott; Secretary, S. Hall; Librarian, Thos. Clark, Jr.; Treasurer, Mrs. Andrew Clark. The school is in a flourishing condition, with fair prospects for an increase in numbers.

Certificate Filed.

The incorporation of the Panamint Mining Company was completed by the filing of the certificate of incorporation in the County Clerk's office, March 27 This company is the owner of the "Wonder of the World," and other ledges, and, as we have previously stated, expect to have a mill in operation just as soon as it can possibly be done.

Compromised.

From Mr. Reddy we learn that the suit threatened by Mr. Lyford against A. Mack, mentioned in our Benton correspondence last week, has been compromised.

Preaching.

Rev. E. H. Orne preaches to-morrow at Lone Pine in the morning. George's Creek in the afternoon and here in the evening.

Personal.

E. A. Reddy, lately from Salt Lake and Pioche, is now at Benton, where he proposes to locate.

Deputy Surveyor.

County Surveyor M. H White, has appointed Jo. Seeley his Deputy Surveyor.

Commissioned.

Rockwell Loomis has received his commission as Notary Public.

Not at All.

The Borax Miner in copying our report of Sylvania ore assays, concludes that that portion relating to the bullion assay is "so muddled in the printing that no 'fellow can find out its meaning.'" It was not muddled in any respect in the printing. We followed "copy" strictly, even to the ounces per ton of lead. Instead of ounces lead per ton, it undoubtedly should have been written "per cent.," but it warn't. With that correction the remainder, even to the bullion assay, which The Miner does not give, is clear enough in results shown to excel any other district within our knowledge.

Attempted to Shoot.

In Round Valley, March 31st, one "French Joe," for some cause to us unknown made a demonstration to shoot Mrs. Jas. Jackson; he snapped a pistol at her four times and then rested from his labors. A warrant was issued out of Justice Walcott's Court for the arrest of the said Joe. On investigation by the Court it appears that Joseph's pistol was not loaded at all, and whether intentionally or otherwise, that he had been making a fool of himself, wherefor he was held to answer in the sum of $300.

Public Meeting—Local Option.

Next Wednesday evening a big meeting is to be held here at which the advisability, practicability and merits of the Local Option law is to be discussed. Some of the best speakers in the county will give their views, and let everybody—particularly the ladies and all anxious about the welfare of the rising, as well as the "grown," generation, be on hand. The occasion promises to be unusually interesting. Will call to order at half past 7. P. M., sharp, at the Court House.

Pumps and Pipes.

Dr. Gelcich has accepted the local agency of the somewhat new style of Redwood Pipes and Pumps for conveying water under almost any pressure, no matter how great. We have lately heard much of the cheapness, durability and general superiority of these pipes and pumps over metal of any kind. The Dr. has one of these pumps in use on his own premises in Lone Pine, and he assures us that he is highly pleased with it in all respects. See his ad in another column.

Was Frightened.

"Local Option" is agitating the minds of our citizens, one whisky seller particularly. Visions of blue ruin, should his shop be shut up, have set him on a wiry edge, and he thinks everything depends upon his success in securing a good healthy remonstrance Remonstrances are very good in their way but in the matter now in hand they amount to nothing. Constitutional measures constitute the only hope.

Returned.

The party of I. O. G. T's who went to Bishop to attend Oasis Lodge celebration last Thursday returned all duly sober, Thursday evening. They speak in high terms of the warmth of their reception by the Bishop Creekers generally, and of the pleasant time they had. We have been handed a statement of experiences in detail by one of the party, but too late for this issue.

For Sale and to Rent.

Rockwell Loomis wants to rent his desirable farm on George's Creek, the Lubkin ranch, and also to sell some good work horses, pack or work mules and other property, and will give responsible buyers a splendid bargain.

The Aldine Chromos.

We acknowledge the receipt of The Aldine chromos for 1874. They come already mounted and varnished ready for framing, and are really magnificent paintings—faithful copies as they are of actual paintings made by the celebrated artist, Thomas Moran. They represent scenes characteristic of the East and the West; The White Mountains of New Hampshire, and the Cliffs of Green River Wyoming Territory. In all the range of grand and beautiful American scenery, it would be difficult to find two more picturesque or charming views, unlike as nature in her varying modes, yet appropriate companion pieces. These pictures in taste and execution, are strictly in keeping with the splendid publication, The Aldine, with which they are given as a premiums. Of the Aldine itself it is enough to say that no family of taste and refinement once acquainted with this beautiful monthly, would ever do without it when in their power to obtain it. The pictures and monthly together only cost $5 a year. James Sutton & Co., N. Y.

The New Paper at Eureka.

The new paper about to be started at Eureka, we understand, is to be published ostensibly as a Republican organ, but with a Democratic figure head in the back ground. The material to be used is that on which The Independent was printed in Carson City, in 1863; afterwards used in printing a Republican paper at Elko, during the campaign of 1870; then in 1872 for printing The Review at Pioche, another Republican sheet, and now it turns up at Eureka. It has brought many a dollar into its manipulator's pocket during its many changes, but the coming campaign will reveal many "dings" of it not all pleasent to somebody.—Belmont Courier.

Indian Troubles Threatened.

The Malhuer river Indians (a bad lot), Idaho, are threatening death to all the whites in that section.

Pacific Coasters.

Arizona has had another Indian fight. Result—eleven good Indians, and three of our soldiers wounded.

The Tulare County Court on the 14th ultimo sentenced Albert Downen to the Penitentiary for a term of twenty-two years. He was indicted twice for stage robbery and once for house-breaking. On trial he was found guilty of one of the indictments for stage robbery and also for house-breaking. He was accordingly sentenced to twenty years for the first offence and two years for the latter.

A very rich and extensive gold mine has lately been discovered in the mountains near Mineral King mines, Kern river. It is said to be four miles in length, the lead being four feet at the surface. W. Owens, an interested party, showed The Tulare Times some of the quartz specimens which were very rich with gold. The discovery is creating a great excitement.

Local Option.

Governor Booth has signed the bill which gives the people of a district or township the right to decide whether intoxicating drinks shall be sold within its limits or not.

Now Try Your Hand.

A smart professor has devised an exercise to test the accuracy of English pronunciation among the teachers of an Eastern State. At a number of teachers' institutes he has presented the following composition, offering a reward of one hundred dollars to whoever would read it at once without error in the pronunciation, and not a single person has yet accomplished the feat. The exercise is as follows :

A sacriligious son of Belial, who suffered from bronchitis, having exhausted his finances, in order to make good the deficit, determined to ally himself to some wealthy, lenient and docile young lady. To accomplish successfully his vagary, and forge the fetters of hymenial, he armed himself with a calliope and a coral necklace of chameleon hue. He also secured a suit of rooms at the principal hotel and engaged the head waiter as a coadjutor ; he next dispatched a letter of most unexceptional caligraphy extant, inviting her to the matinee to be held on the morrow, the handsomest young lady in town. She revolted at the idea, and refused to consider herself sacrificable to his desires. and accordingly sent a polite note of refusal ; on receiving which the misguided young man procuring a carbine and a bowie knife, proceeded to an isolated spot and deliberately severed his jugular vein and discharged his carbine into his abdomen. It need not be said that the result was fatal ; the debris was removed by the coroner.

A Model Composition.

In a dingy room sat an old man writing with a Roman nose and a tall hat. Not far from him, a broken-backed chair supported his daughter with rickerty legs and cracked rungs. In the same identical room was an old woman blowing the fire with a lean cat under an old stove being the wife of the old man writing with a Roman nose. In a corner might have been seen a hungry boy eating onions with bow-legs and red hair from a table which he swallowed without chewing. The whole scene was overlooked by an old clock ornamented with Pocahontas saving John Smith with the legs covered with cobwebs and was wound up every eighth day by the old man with a brass key. Ever and anon the door was rattled by an old dog without any hinges or a knob. Through the window might be seen a woman with a baby on her arm cutting cabbages through the shattered panes of which the daylight feebly shone. Another window looked out upon the street where a little man wiping the sweat from his face with a hand-organ, carrying a monkey on top, by grinding which he had thought in vain to get a few cents from the old man writing with a tall hat. Such were the lodgings of the miser being the old man writing with the Roman nose so squalid and miserable that it seemed as if no thrifty broom had entered there.—Danbury News.

Pleasant.

A number of ex-Confederate soldiers of Lancaster, S. C., recently exhumed the bones of two Union soldiers buried in neglected graves on the road side, enclosed them in handsome coffins, and forwarded them to the national cemetary at Florence, in that State. One of the dead was J. E. Smith of the twenty-seventh Ohio volunteers, and the other Harvey Leich, regiment unknown. They belonged to General Sherman's army, and were killed in a skirmish with Confederate cavalry in February, 1865. Judge Mackey for his comrades, said that they were moved to the act by the generous and fraternal conduct of survivors of the Union army in decorating the graves of Confederate dead at Madison, Wis., and by other acts and utterances, showing that the soldiers of the North entertain generous feelings towards their former foes.

MISCELLANEOUS.

$5 TO $20 PER DAY easily made by any one. We want men, women, boys and girls all over the country to sell our fine steel engravings, chromos, crayon drawings, illuminations, photographs, etc., etc. We now publish the finest assortment ever placed before the public, and our prices are marked down so low as to defy all competition. No one subscribes for a premium giving paper in order to get a picture after seeing our pictures and learning our prices. We have many old agents at work for us who have made canvassing for books, papers, etc., their business for years, and they all report that they can make much more money working for us than at anything else. Our prices are so low that all can afford to purchase, and therefore the pictures sell at sight at almost every house. New beginners do as well as agents who have had large experience, for our beautiful subjects and low prices are appreciated by all. To make large sales everywhere all an agent has to do is to show the pictures from house to house. Don't look for work elsewhere until you have seen what great inducements we offer you to make money. We have not space to explain all here, but send us your address and we will send particulars, free, by mail. Don't delay if you want profitable work for your leisure hours, or for your whole time. Now is the favorable time to engage in this business. Our pictures are the finest and most pleasing in this country, and are endorsed by all the leading papers, including The New York Herald. Those who cannot give the business their entire attention can work up their own localities and make a handsome sum without being away from home over night. Let all who want pleasant profitable employment, without risking capital, send us their addresses at once and learn all about the business for themselves. Address

THE GEM MICROSCOPE.

THE GEM MICROSCOPE IS THE MOST WONDEREUL scientific production of the nineteenth century. It furnishes the power the of a high-priced instrument for a mere trifle, and exceeds in usefulness any microspope ever invented. It reveals the hidden wonders of minute creation—as Eels in Vinegar, Animals in Water, Butterflies' Feathers, the Golden Marrow of a Hair, Insects' Eyes, the Pads, Claws, Joints, and Hairs of a Fly's foot, makes Ropes of fibers of cloth, a Crowbar of a needle's point, and so on indefinitely. It furnishes hours of insruction, entertainment and amusement for young and old and every family should possess it. It is invaluable to students, professors, teachers, physicians, in fact everybody, and especially in the home circle is it a gem. It is cheap and at the same time of great value. It is really of great value to any family if only because it shows the adulterations in food, as sugars, teas, etc., and the qualities of cloths. It also plainly shows Trichina Spiralis, or Pork Worm, whenever it exists in Pork. Price $1 50. Mailed post-paid to any address on receipt of price.

A FAT TAKE FOR AGENTS—MEN and Women, Boys and Girls. Whole time or leisure moments and evenings. It works as well by lamplight as by daylight. Parents buy it for their children. Liberal cash commission paid. Exclusive territory. Congenial employment. It excites the curiosity, which produces a desire to have it, and requires no talking by the agent. Complete outfit mailed post-paid on receipt of $1 50. Circulars and terms free. Send for it and make money. Address,

THE PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD.

THE PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD IS AN Elegant Oil Chromo, Photograph Album and Family Record combined, and as its name indicates is designed for the insertion and preservation of the pictures of the family as well as the names. It is something entirely new, combines beauty and utility, and should ornament every home in the land All who see it pronounce it superb, and are lavish in its praise. The faces of dear ones appear in a tasteful setting of gold and beautiful colors, and is at once and forever a household treasure. And its low price places it within the reach of all. Send for it and you will be gratified when you shall see it. It is something long needed, but never before attainable. Size 20x15 inches. Price $1 50. Mailed post-paid on receipt of price.

$200 A MONTH clear profit made easily by agents. Agents wanted everywhere. Men and women, boys and girls. Entire time or spare moments; day-time or evenings. Everybody wants it, and every family will buy it. Big cash pay. Pleasant employment. Exclusive territory. In fact the best agency ever offered. Circulars and terms free on application. SHERIFF'S NOTICE OF SALE.

WHEREAS, UNDER AND BY VIRTUE OF A decree or judgment of foreclosure rendered by the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, on the Tenth day of July, A. D. 1873, in a certain cause therein pending, wherein Isaac M. Bull, Wm. Watt and John H. Ockerhausen, Trustees, were plaintiffs, and the Owens Lake Silver-Lead Company was defendant, it was, among other things, ordered, adjudged and decreed that sale should be made by the Sheriff of Inyo County in the manner prescribed by law for the sale of real estate of all and singular the property therein described, that is to say: All that certain portion, claim and mining right, title or property on those certain veins or lodes of rock, containing precious metals of gold, silver and other metals, and situate in the Russ District, Inyo (formerly Tulare) County, in the State of California, and described as follows, to-wit: Those certain mining grounds known and recorded in said Russ District as the "A No. One" lode or lead, and the "Virginia Gordon" lode or lead, both of which are situated near the head of Owens Lake and situated on said lodes as follows, to wit: Commencing at a monument where the notice of location of said lodes was posted, and extending in a southerly direction along said lodes one thousand six hundred and fifty (1,650) feet on each lode ; being the same premises conveyed to said parties of the first part by Sherman Stevens by deed dated the 28th day of February, 1865, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Tulare County April 13th, 1865, in liber F of deeds, folios 387, 388 and 389 ; together with all the dips, spurs and angles, and also all the metals, ores, gold, silver, lead and other metals and mineral bearing quartz rock and earth therein. Also all the furnaces, machinery, buildings, fixtures, now erected and hereafter to be erected, tools, implements, horses, mules, ways, water courses and water powers belonging or appertaining to said mining property, (including all the furnaces, buildings and machinery which have been built or purchased by said company in the vicinity of Owens Lake or elsewhere) and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant or appurtenant or therewith usually held and enjoyed, or so much thereof as might be necessary to pay the sum of One Hundred and Two Thousand Three Hundred and Eleven 38-100 ($102 311 38-100) dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum from the Tenth day of July, A. D. 1873, and the costs and expenses of sale, of which decree, a copy duly certified under the seal of said Court has been delivered to me.

Now, therefore, I hereby give notice that on the EIGHTH DAY OF APRIL, A. D. 1874, at the hour of 12 M. in front of the Court House door, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell the said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, in parcels, as follows: 1. That certain mining ground situate in the Russ District, Inyo County, California, near the head of Owens Lake, and known and recorded in the said Russ District as the "A No. One" lode or lead, commencing at the monument where the notice of location of said lode was posted and extending in a southerly direction along said lode 1,650 feet, with all the dips, spurs and angles, and also all the ores, gold, silver, lead and other metals and mineral bearing quartz rock and earth therein, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant, or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances. 2. That certain mining ground situated in the Russ District, Inyo County, California, near the head of Owens Lake, and known and recorded in the said Russ District as the "Virginia Gordon" lode or lead, commencing at the monument where the notice of location of said lode was posted, and extending in a southerly direction along said lode 1,650 feet, with all the dips, spurs and angles, and also all the ores, gold, silver, lead and other metals and mineral bearing quartz rock and earth therein, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances. 3. The works which have been built or purchased by said company in the vicinity of Owens Lake, commonly known as the Swansea Works, with all the furnaces, machinery, buildings, fixtures, tools, implements, horses, mules, ways, water courses, and water powers, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances 4. The furnaces, water wheel and water right situated on Tuttle Creek, on the west side of Owens Valley, about two miles in a southerly direction from the town of Lone Pine, with all the machinery, buildings, ways, water-courses and water powers, and all the rights, privileges and franchises thereto incident, appendant and appurtenant or therewith usually had and enjoyed with the appurtenances.

NOTICE NO. 21.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
Independence, Cal., February 21, 1874.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT JOHN R. HUGHES and M. W. Hammarstrand have made application for patent for eight hundred linear feet of the WITTIKINT Silver Quartz Mine, lode, vein or deposit, being 400 feet northwest and 400 feet southeast from the main shaft and point of discovery on said mine, with surface ground 100 feet wide, being 50 feet on each side of said mine or lode, measuring from the center of the claim, situated and being on unsurveyed land in Township 16 south, Range 39 east, in Cerro Gordo Mining District, Inyo county, California, said Wittikint Mine being described on the plat and field notes on file in this office as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the shaft on said lode at point of original discovery; thence with a variation 15 degrees, 40 minutes east, running south 55 degrees, east six (6) chains and six (6) links, to a post set in mound of rock marked, "A. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence returning to point of original discovery at shaft; thence with a variation 15 degrees 40 minutes east, running north 55 degrees, west six (6) chains and six (6) links, to a post in mound of rocks marked, "B. L. W. S. Q. M."

SURVEY OF EXTERIOR BOUNDARIES:

Beginning at post "A. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence with a variation 15 degrees 40 minutes east, running north 35 degrees, east seventy-six (76) links to a post in mound of rocks marked, "P. 1 W. S. Q. SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Reddy, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiffs in the District court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars, in U. S. Gold coin, with interest thereon from the Tenth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America, as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this Nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy four.

[SEAL.] M. W. HAMMARSTRAND, Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, [SEAL.] this 30th day of January, 1874.

Prospectus for 1874—Seventh Year.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, WHILE ISSUED WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature ; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost ; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centers of Europe it is an admitted fact that its woodcuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates" is rapidly yielding to a more discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality, with greater facility for production. The woodcuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

To fully realize the wonderful work which THE ALDINE is doing for the cause of art culture in America, it is only necessary to consider the cost to the people of any decent representations of the productions of great painters.

In addition to designs by members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the refining influences of true art.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1874 will be by Thos. Moran and J. D. Woodward.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attraction any of its predecessors.

PREMIUMS FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1874, will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thos. Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives the Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The differences in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and affords a good display of the artist's scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appearance exact fac-similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial over the signature of Mr. Moran himself.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 20, 1874.

MESSRS. JAMES SUTTON & Co.,

Gentleman—I am delighted with the proofs in color of your chromos. They are wonderfully successful representations by mechanical process of the original paintings. Very respectfully

(Signed,) THOS. MORAN.

These chromos are in every sense American. They are by an original American process, with material of American manufacture, from designs of American scenery by an American painter, and presented to subscribers to the first successful American Art Journal. If no better because of all this they will certainly possess an interest no foreign production can inspire, and neither are they any worse if by reason of peculiar facilities of production they cost the publishers only a trifle, while equal in every respect to other chromos that are sold singly for double the subscription price of THE ALDINE. Persons of taste will prize these pictures for themselves—not for the price they did or did not cost, and will appreciate the enterprise that renders their distribution possible.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free at New York Office.

For 50 cents extra the chromos will be sent mounted, varnished and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate ; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

A Sad Story.

A little boy having heard a beautiful story about a little boy and a hatchet, and how, because he wouldn't tell a lie, he, in time, got to be President of the United States, was very much impressed by it. Now it so happened that on the last day of March, he was just ten years old, and his father asked him what he would like to have for a birthday present. Very naturally the boy's answer was, "A little hatchet, if you please, papa."

The father bought him a little hatchet that very day, and the boy was so delighted that he actually took it to bed with him.

Early the next morning he took his little hatchet and went out into the garden. There, as luck would have it, the first thing that caught his eye was his father's favorite cherry tree. "My eyes!" exclaimed the little boy to himself, "what a time my father would make if a fellow were to cut that tree!" It was a wicked thought, for it lead him into temptation. There was the tree—tall straight and fair—standing invitingly before him, just the thing for a sharp little hatchet. And there was the hatchet, strong sharp and shining, just the thing for a favorite cherry tree. In another instant the swift strokes of an axe were heard in the still morning air, and before long a small boy was seen running toward the house. His father met him at the door.

"My boy, what noise was that I heard just now? Surely you have not been at my favorite cherry tree!"

The boy stood proudly before him, but with downcast eyes and flushing cheeks.

"Father," he said, "I cannot tell a lie. That cherry tree is——"

"Say no more," said the father, extending his arms. "You have done wrong my son; and that was my favorite cherry tree; but you have spoken the truth. I forgive you. Better to——"

This was too much. The boy rushed into his father's arms.

"Father!" he whispered, "April fool! I havn't touched the cherry tree; but I most chopped the old apple-stump to pieces."

"You young rascal, you!" cried the father, "do you mean to say you havn't chopped my cherry tree? April fool your old father! will you? Take off your coat, sir!"

With a suppressed sob, the little boy obeyed. Then shutting his eyes, he felt his father's hand descend upon his shrinking form.

"My son," said the father, solemnly, as he stroked the little shoulder, "it is the First of April. Go thy way."
—St. Nicholas for April.

Better Late than Never.

Stewart, of Nevada, offered the following resolution, which was agreed to, calling on the Secretary of the Interior for information concerning the establishment of an Indian reservation on the Muddy river, in Nevada, and how many settlers were thrown out by its establishment.

It was about time some searching investigation was made into this matter. It may be all right, but some of those concerned say not. A rigorous inquiry will do no harm in any case. How singular it is, we remarked the other day, that every thing connected with Indians turns out to be a swindle. Take a few dozen wretched Indians, that to clothe and feed in good style would cost but little, and the invariable result is that an enormous expense is occurred, somebody steals themselves rich, and the Indians go naked and hungry. The Courier Journal's suggestion that every one connected with the Indian service should be hanged, it might be an extreme measure, but it would be remarkably useful, for so long as there is any one of them left to transmit the contagion of stealing, it will never cease, at least not under the present regime.—Pioche Record.

The Mines of Our BackRegion.

["Old Prospector," in The Los Angeles Express.]

In California, more than in any other country, the interests of our people are diversified. We have here a thousand industrial pursuits partially or absolutely undeveloped. In no one, as yet, has this fact become more patent than in the pursuit of mining. True, it has been for a number of years the favorite method of "raising the wind" with a large number of our floating population—a means when all else failed, of making "grub," or a little more, but that time is nearly passed, and now capital, persistent labor, is required to wrest from Mother Earth her treasures. Fortunes have been made from the Comstock lead, but how many fortunes have been lost in San Francisco at the Stock Board? The Pioche mines are rich, but how much money was spent in litigation before a dollar was realized by stock-holders? Take almost all the quartz leads of California, and we find them involved in lawsuits, under incompetent management, or their legitimate owners "froze out" by swindling directors. Nearly all the country from the line of Oregon to Salt Lake has now been explored, but there is a region of country that, so far, has awakend but little attention from capitalists, and with the exception of the Cerro Gordo country is almost a terra incognita. This country we wish to bring before the public—a country possessing greater mineral treasures than all California besides—a country abounding in gold, silver, copper, tin, cinnabar, lead, plumbago, and iron, that only awaits the hand of labor to become the paradise of the miner. This country extends out upon the desert, from the Washoe mines to the Colorado to the east, and almost to the Gulf of California to the South. There are belts of mineral that can be traced across the desert into lone mountains and mountain spurs, with certainty, from spurs of the Sierra Nevada mountains, and there is no doubt that the plains may in time yield up their hidden treasures. We purpose to give a history of some of these mines, which from 1858 to the present time we have owned, worked in visited or explored. We will begin with

THE POTOSI MINES.

These mines are situated about twenty miles from Mountain Springs, and eighteen miles from Los Vegas, near the Salt Lake road. They were first discovered by the Mormons, before the threatened war between the Saints and the United States, and Brigham Young sent a party of men there to extract lead for belligerent purposes; but the lead was found to contain so much silver that it was found to hard for bullets, and the Mormons abandoned the mines. A party under Capt. Allen relocated the ledge, took possession of the abandoned cabins, made a road to the mines, built a furnace out of limestone, started a splendid smelt of the best ore—but alas! the limestone yielded to the action of the fire, and all we realized was a splendid kiln of lime. We paid ten cents per pound for freight, and the ore (assayed by the assayer of the "Camel" expedition that ran the boundary line between California and Utah) only yielded $35 per ton in silver. We abandoned that claim after having expended some $20,000, and several parties having gone on the mines, worked them to a greater depth, but have not, as far as we have heard, realized over $40 per ton. Should the railroad run near this mine, no doubt it would pay, as the lead assays $75 per ton, but at the present rates it will not pay for hauling and realize much profit to the miners.

THE ARMAGOSA MINE.

About the same time the Potosi mine was discovered, some Mexicans discovered mines in what was called the Armagosa Mountains, near Salt Spring Valley, a short distance from the Salt Lake road, and about 18 miles from Kingston Springs. Very rich gold quartz was discovered, brought here, and created considerable excitement. At this time the people were wild on the subject of quartz discoveries and soon a San Francisco company was formed, who sent out expensive machinery and an inefficient superintendent, (we were told the he was a clerk in a drug store and never saw a mine in his life,) and as a consequence the company got in debt, shut down the mill, left the property in charge of three or four men, and a short time afterwards the mill was burnt by the Indians and the men in charge killed. There is no doubt this mine is rich; and should competent miners take hold of the claim a fortune will yet be realized by them. J. A. T.

The Wrong Article.

[From The Reese River Reveille.]

A certain young gentleman, resident of this town, recently contracted a severe cold in his head, in consequence of which he had always been particular to keep himself well supplied with clean pocket-handkerchiefs of large size. The other evening he made a visit to a lady friend, and being an old and valued friend, he was invited into the family sitting-room. The gentleman before starting from his room had placed one of his "cold" handkerchiefs in his pocket as he thought, but he had left it on the table and came away without it. When he entered the sitting room the young lady's baby brother was creeping on the floor, and while engaged in this peculiarly baby occupation, a necessary appendage to a baby's attire dropped off on the floor. After a while our hero had use for his handkerchief, but when he felt in his pocket for it it was not there. Happening to cast his eye on the floor, he observed the article dropped by the infant, and making a pretense to play with the cherub, he stooped down and whisked it into his pocket unobserved. He is a very particular man, and don't like to blow his nose in company; so, luckily, he made no attempt in that direction until he had concluded his visit and emerged from the house, and concluded to have a good hearty blow. The sequel of this story is that he wore out a scrubbing brush and a bar of castile soap on his face; threw his coat down a shaft, and remarked: "damababyanyhow!" This is a true fact.

Good Templars,

The members of Reclamation Lodge, No. 20, of the order of Good Templars of this place, is in a most flourishing condition, the list of active members reaching nearly one hundred. They hold their meetings every Tuesday evening, and after transacting the business incident to the order, the evening is spent in the most pleasant manner—recitations, singing, and other exercises pertaining to the good of the order being given. The members of the lodge comprise many of our well known citizens, both young and old. Attached to the lodge is a society called the Templars' Club, who have the management of all the parties and socials given under the auspices of the order, and which have been so popular during the past Winter. The next social, the necktie party, takes place on Wednesday evening, April 8th, and promises to surpass those already given by the club.—Eureka Sentinel.

Senator McClinton.

We are very sorry to learn that Judge J. G. McClinton, of Aurora, is hopelessly ill with that fell destroyer, consumption. We are told by those who know him best that he was one of the ablest men who ever sat in the Nevada State Senate (the term for which he was elected is not yet expired), and his death will be a loss not only to Esmeralda but to the entire State. He has many friends and old acquaintances in this section to mourn his loss. Esmeralda, as The Austin Beveille remarks, has been peculiarly unfortunate in her representatives. Since the session of 1871 three of them have died, viz: Senator Boring, and Assemblymen McCall and Carpenter, and now she is about to lose her hold-over Senator.

Homicides and Suicides.

The Spring blood carnival seems to have set in with prospects of a lively season. At Milford, Lassen county, a saloon dispute arose between Thomas Harris and Philip Winters, which was brought to a conclusion by Harris shooting Winters dead. Harris very foolishly ran away though it is said he was justifiable in the killing. In San Francisco, Kingston, an employe in Silva's Photograph Gallery, shot another employe named Congden dead and then killed himself. A short time previously another photo artist in the city took his own life. From numerous other places on the coast we have similar accounts too numerous to mention.

The Bribery Investigation.

The Committee of Bribery Investigation, connected with Booth's election, made a final report previous to adjournment. The report says that improper advances were made by irresponsible parties, but it could not establish that a single dollar had been used corruptly by either of the principals in the contest. It also takes occasion to compliment Mr. Broruck very highly for the part he played in making the charges. And thus ends in smoke, as usual, the much talked of charges of bribery.

A Railroad Strike.

An extraordinary strike by railroad employes has taken place on the Pennsylvania Central. They had not been paid for services during February and went on the strike to compel payment, during which they destroyed much property. A battery, with five hundred troops, has been sent to protect the property and compel the strikers to permit the passage of trains. More trouble is apprehended, though the back dues have all been tendered or paid up.

Another Daily.

We ackowledge the receipt of divers copies of The Eureka Cupel, a very neat little daily just started at Eureka, Nevada, by W. B. Taylor, a well known newspaper man of Eastern Nevada. If we are not mistaken we have, in days past, seen brother William B. sticking type in the Tidal-Wave office way up in Idaho. Here's hoping his cupellations may always show big buttons 999 fine, straight through.

Reduction in Appropriations.

The appropriation bills already reported show a reduction of from eleven to twelve millions. From the revised estimates of the Committee, it is expected that the aggregate reductions will be twenty five millions in the total appropriations for this year, as compared with last year.

Financial Legislation.

Washington specials say: A careful review of the ground and calculation of chances indicates beyond a doubt that the financial legislation this session will comprise the legalizing of the issue of the reserves, and the enactment of the free banking law.

Sumner and Chase

It has come out that Lincoln offered to make Sumner Chief Justice after the death of Taney, but he declined in favor of Chase for the sake of peace between Chase and Lincoln.

"Truxton."

"Truxton" is the name which is to take the place of "Shoo Fly," the elegant cognomen by which the new landing twelve miles from Los Angeles has hitherto been known. 'Tis well.

Snow.

From The Eureka Cupel we learn that the most fearful snow storm of the season began there March 30. The snow fell to the depth of three feet on the level

LOS ANGELES AND ITS BACK COUNTRY.

The Los Angeles papers are very sanguine as to the future greatness of their city, and are advancing some very potent reasons in support of their faith. The Herald publishes a map showing the geographical and commercial position of Los Angeles, the system of existing and proposed railroads, Coast and Trans-Continental, all of which by reason of the impassable nature of the great range from Oregon to Lower California save at the San Gorgonio (Los Angeles) Pass, must center at that place and make tributary to it the greatest mining region in the world. This map is far from correct in its details and fails to give due prominence, by name or special location, to numerous localities already of considerable importance; but, on the whole, conveys a fair general idea of the Los Angeles Back Country and the proper system of railroads to develope both. These papers, in all their estimates and speculations make Cerro Gordo the most prominent in regard to the amount of trade furnished, especially in the way of freights. At the present time Cerro Gordo furnishes fully four-fifths of all the business in this section which falls to Los Angeles, and as a bullion producing district simply, may always continue to hold the lead in that respect over any or perhaps all similar districts in this county. The capabilities of its mines have barely been touched as yet; we have no doubt that its present yield will be more than quadrupled. But taking it at its present standard we are just as confident that we have at least two other similar districts that will ere long equal it in the production of silver-lead bullion. But, however that may be, the fact which we now desire to point out is this: That but a small portion, say one half of the freighting business of this section at the present time goes to or by the way of Los Angeles; that, a railroad made to command the Cerro Gordo trade, will do the same for as much more now coming and going by the north, instead of south over the Los Angeles road. This pre-supposes the road completed as far north as this place, though it is quite probable that a terminus at the foot of the lake, 40 miles south of this place, would be sufficient to turn towards it all the business from all the mining and agricultural country intermediate and as far north as Benton, the borax and silver mining business of Columbus, and of the numerous other districts south of that place along the foot of the Inyo range and considerably nearer to us Among these are Lida, Gold Mountain and Sylvania. No portion of the extensive freighting business of those localities now goes south, yet it is quite certain that it can all be made to do so. In the aggregate it is probably more than equal to that of Cerro Gordo, and should secure due attention in the consideration of this "Cerro Gordo" and Los Angeles railroad enterprise. As part and parcel of very important probabilities in the way of business for such a road and Los Angeles as well, it should not be overlooked that within the borders of this county are extensive beds of salt, sulphur and borax Each and all of these articles exist in unlimited quantities—beds of salt a foot thick covering miles square, sulphur by the hundreds of tons, and borax mines, recently located, where the production will be several tons every day for years to come—with cheap freights it is certain that this class of mining would become of great commercial value, and added to the metal products of this section, it insures beyond peradventure a magnificent business for any railroad, and certainly no less for the city receiving its first fruits, as Los Angeles bids the fairest of all to do. In speaking of the promising future of that city' The Express makes the following observations to which we commend attention:

Commercially, we are six hundred miles nearer Pioche than San Francisco is, and from Pioche to Beaver, the terminus of the Southern Utah railroad, is, in an air line, less than one hundred miles. A connection once formed with that road, which now runs a distance of three hundred miles through one of the most prolific granaries of the country, and the entire products of Southern Utah would be compelled to find their outlet to the ocean through the Los Angeles and Cerro Gordo (we shall term it that at the present) railroad. Those products are now carried north for over three hundred miles to Salt Lake. Then they are sent a distance of over 878 miles to reach an ocean outlet at San Francisco. There is no portion of Utah, clear to Salt Lake on the north, which cannot reach Los Angeles in a shorter distance than San Francisco. Then, if we take into consideration the fact that by this route we avoid the immense grades of the Sierra Nevada, and can reach Beaver City without in any instance having to overcome a greater elevation than that at Tejon Pass, the supreme advantages of our route must be apparent to every one. If, as Mr. Stanford says, the the heavy grades of the Sierra Nevadas double the commercial distance of the Central Pacific, then the Los Angeles and Cerro Gordo road, as it would relate to the trade of Southern Utah, would be as 800 miles is to 1,600 miles.

There can be no competition with our road under this showing. The more we investigate this subject the more and greater the reasons we find to urge us to take hold of the project at once and get it under way. As if nothing should be lacking to render it feasible from the very start, we have now a transportation at hand in the products of the Cerro Gordo mines which will secure a paying trade to the road as fast as each section is laid. Indeed, if time were not a material consideration, the road would build itself on its own earnings with a small start. But it is for us to look upon this great project with that great expansivement of discernment which should be brought to bear in all great enterprises. We must make present sacrifices for future gains. We must not loose sight of the fact that a railroad from here to Beaver would be signalized by the growth of a city here of one hundred thousand inhabitants We should realize that a commercial artery of that important character would soon be fed by lateral roads reaching north and south as far as the natural economy of trade would drain itself into our lap. And we should never forget that such a road would open to improvement and civilization a vast stretch of territory which is now only explored by the adventurour prospector, but which is known to be rich in metals and minerals, and the latent wealth of which is sufficient to turn Los Angeles into one of the most populous and opulent cities on the American continent.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

There are a great many two legged brutes in this world who, if they do not actually love to inflict pain upon dumb animals, are at least perfectly indifferent to their sufferings however cruel and extreme. Humane persons, like the famous Bergh of New York, have done much by organizing societies and securing the passage of laws to prevent cruelties to animals, and commensurate with their success in the direct object, is their success in "humanizing" humanity. The rising generation are not now educated into cruel habits by witnessing daily displays of outrageous cruelties to horses, dogs and other helpless brutes at the hands of older persons, and thereby taught to believe that such things are but right and proper. At least, such is the case in all our large cities and other places throughout the country, where societies have been organized and such would be the case everywhere if civil officers would do their whole duty under the law. But in order to spur them up to this duty organized societies seem to be required. Our late Legislature passed a bill which is now a law, to facilitate the incorporation of such societies. Under this law any three citizens in any county may incorporate under the general incorporation laws of the State, for the purpose of preventing cruelty to animals.

"All members" says section 5, "and all agents, and all officers of each or any of the societies so incorporated, as shall by the Trustees of said societies be duly authorized in writing, approved by the County Judge of the county, and sworn in the same manner as constables and peace officers, shall have the power to lawfully interfere to prevent the perpetration of any act of cruelty upon any dumb animal, and may use such force as may be necessary to prevent the same, and to that end they may summon to their aid any bystander; they may make arrests for the violation of any of the provisions of this act in the same manner as is herein provided for other officers; and may carry the same weapons as other officers are authorized to carry; provided, that all such agents and members shall, when making such arrests, exhibit and expose a suitable badge to be adopted by said society. All persons resisting said specially appointed officers, as such, shall, on conviction, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor." It is a misdemeanor to carry any domestic animal in a vehicle in a cruel manner, or to cause a bull, bear, cock, dog or other fight, or for any person to let his premises or witness such exhibitions, or to turn out any old, crippled or disabled domestic animal to starve or perish for lack of food and shelter, or to impound any animal for a longer period than twelve hours without food and water, and similar offenses are all punishable as misdemeanors and any member of such society can act as his own attorney in any Court of competent jurisdiction in prosecuting such violations.

Johnny Stewart.

This individual, after being refused a new trial by the Nevada Supreme Court, was re-sentenced and is to be hung on the 24th of this month, unless the Board of Pardons sees proper to recommend commutation. The Board was to have taken the case into consideration in Carson, where Stewart is confined, March 27, and the chances are deemed favorable for the murderer.

MR. EDITOR: For the short space of two weeks Old Sol has been distributing his warm blessings upon us abundantly. The mountain bunch grass is coming up finely on the south side of the lower ranges, but the meadow grass does not yet show a single sign of vitality.

SILENT.

The rumbling noise of the quartz stamps, and that ever welcome shrill note of the steam whistle of the Mack mill, has been silent for the past few days after a steady run of some four months. We are informed that the battery is undergoing repairs and that other machinery connected with the mill is being overhauled or replaced.

PERSONALS.

Mr. James Tregembo, who has been home on a visit to Cornwall, England, some five months, has just returned and with him a life companion, one of Britain's fair ones. Mr. A. Mack left here Saturday last for the East; he goes to Philadelphia, where his better half has been enjoying the society of the Quaker City ladies during the past Winter; her father resides in that city. Thence Mr. Mack, with his lady, goes to New York to visit a brother prior to the final departure of the latter for "Vater Land." Thence to return via. Philadelphia, Niagra Falls, Chicago and Salt Lake city. Mr. Philip McDonald, a miner well known here and Austin, left on the same stage for Canada East. Mr. E. A. Reddy and Frank Ridgely, formerly old residents of this camp, returned here two weeks since from Eureka, Nevada, where they say the snow is piled in polar style; they are luxuriating at Kelty's Hotel. J. W. Stewart, our Assessor, paid us a brief, unexpected visit last week. Creaser and B. F. Tade were both here, and their movements were a matter of interest to his vigilant eye. Mr. S. G. Cobb and lady have grown very tired of rural life, and have gone back to Aurora, where they have opened a hotel at their old residence, the only place in Aurora where travelers can now get meals. The Exchange is closed and will be sold on the 5th, proximo, at auction by Poor & McCloud, the owners. Johnny Stewart, the murderer of Frank Durand at Columbus, received his sentence at Aurora last week; he is to be hung on the 24th instant. Mr. Louis Saumaun, of Mono Lake, has purchased Jeffrey's property on Main street, and intends to erect stables and a large butcher shop. CONTRIBUTOR.

L. A. & I. Railroad.

The Governor having signed the bill to provide for the construction of the railroad from Los Angeles to Independence, in Inyo county, it is claimed the work of survey and construction will soon be begun. Ex-Governor Downey and other capitalists have encouraged the scheme, and seem determined to push it through. The immense amount of bullion produced at Cerro Gordo, for the rapid transportation of which railroad facilities are needed, would of itself almost justify the inauguration of the proposed line of road; and the country through which the track would be laid has other resources which would contribute toward the profitable operation of the road.—*S. FOR AN ORDER TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE COUNTY of Inyo, State of California. In the matter of the Estate of CHARLES DUMAY, Deceased.

Order to show cause why Order of Sale of Real Estate should not be made.

It appearing to the Probate Judge of said Court, by the petition this day presented and filed by John A. Lank, the Administrator of the Estate of CHARLES DUMAY, deceased, praying for an order of sale of real estate, that it is necessary to sell the whole of the real estate to pay the expenses and charges of the administration. It is therefore ordered by the Hon. John A. Hannah, County Judge, and ex-officio Probate Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of the said deceased, appear before the said Probate Court on SATURDAY, THE SIXTEENTH DAY OF MAY, A. D. 1874, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court room of said Probate Court at the town of Independence in the County of Inyo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said John A. Lank, Administrator, to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased, as shall be necessary: And that a copy of this order be published at least four successive weeks in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said county.

Dated April 6, 1874.

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT the Soledad Borax Association, composed of the associates J. W. Searles, Eben M. Skillings, Charles Gressard and Dennis Searles, have heretofore caused a survey and plat of a mineral claim to be made, which is known as the Soledad Borax claim, in the Brier Borax Mining District, in the County of San Bernardino and State of California, that the location of the said mining and mineral claim was made on the Fourteenth day of February, A. D. 1873, and recorded on the Fifth day of May, A. D. 1873, in the records of the said mining district where the same may be found. That the said claim is bounded and described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at a post marked D. S., distant 247.38 chains south, 14 degs. 02 min. west from the corner on the 6th Standard south, of Sections 3 and 4, T. 23 S., R. 43 E., Mount Diablo base and meridian; running thence west 40 chains; thence south 40 chains; thence east 40 chains; thence north 40 chains to the point of beginning containing 160 acres. And that an application will be duly made to the Register of the United States Land Office at Independence, Inyo county, California, for a United states patent for said mineral lands and mining claim. The adjoining claim on the east is the Mohawk claim, on the south the Ohio and Maine claims. This notice is posted at the northwest corner of the said claim together with the plat thereof.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Meeting.

Pursuant to notice there was quite a gathering, including a number of ladies in the Court room Wednesday evening to hear the Local Option law discussed. Mr. J. L. Darrah delivered quite an eloquent temperance speech with good effect throughout. He was followed by Messrs. Van Arsdale, Bennett, Clark and others, not one of whom but advanced strong arguments against the liquor traffic in all its branches. We do not propose a review of their speeches nor the subject, but will remark here that their range was for compulsory temperance. In the opinion of those who expressed themselves in that particular, local option fell far short of the needs and expectations of the temperance cause, but it was better to have that much favorable Legislation than none at all. None of the speakers devoted more than a few words, or attempted any special argument in detail, to prove that in a mere business as well as moral point of view, it was better to enforce the law by towns and townships singly than not at all. All expressed opinions decidedly favorable to such application but none, as before stated, discussed the question on its argumentative merits, which was presumed to be the principal object of the meeting. In that omission the meeting partially failed in its object. On the main question there is scarcely a dissenting opinion even from those whose calling and habits might be thought to favor a different view; all agree that intemperance is an unmitigated evil, or at least, unmitigated in regard to its victims and society generally, but is upheld by a few because of its business importance. Almost the only difference comes in the question. How is this evil to be checked, annihilated? Moral suasion, appeals to minds and hearts, arguments, prayers, statistics of ruin wrought—all have failed, and most likely ever will. Legislation is the only recourse; to be effective it must be general in its application. In our individual opinion the enforcement of the present law in a particular township can harm it but temporarily, if at all, in a business point of view, and eventually is morally certain to redound to its advantage in that and all other respects, though all its neighbors continue as before. Individuals engaged in the traffic would suffer a material loss without doubt, but the community would be the gainer nevertheless. This particular point did not receive the attention it demanded at the hands of the speakers. No advocates of the present regime arose to the question, and consequently no arguments were advanced on that side to draw out the strength of the other. No one stood forth to maintain that the cash paid for liquor licenses in this county equalled the salaries of its officers; that to shut off these licenses would entail that much additional expense on the people in paying their salaries, and so on. Neither did anyone say that the criminal docket, (or that portion of it due directly and wholly to the liquor traffic) has cost the people of this county more the past twelve months than the whole amount of licenses paid during the same period, taking only the more prominent cases to prove this, leaving out the innumerable minor ones which would probably double the amount. But on the other hand again, it is evident, that stopping the sale of liquors in one township only among a dozen, would be simply to stop its proportion of such crimes, and public expense contingent thereon. To reap the full value of this law in the matter of criminal costs saved, etc., it ought to apply to the entire county. Some of the speeches pointed out the fact that the most important object sought to be gained short of universal reformation of all habitual drinkers was the abolishment of the "social glass." It was the social, "Take a drink," that has, and will ever continue to spread the liquor curse, and it was the social glass offered and taken only for good fellowship, that has done the whole mischief. That is the only dangerous enemy that confronts the temperance cause, man and woman kind as well. Do away with the social glass and the fight is won. Then there will be no one scarcely to buy whisky, and when there is no one to buy that he may offer it to others, there will be no one who can afford to devote his time to its sale. It is not the number of depraved appetites that sustains the liquor traffic. The monopoly of the trade of the whole of the confirmed tipplers in this county would scarcely justify the attention of one saloon keeper. It is the "social glass demand" that supports the business, and it is against the social glass that community and state legislation is or should be directed.

Extensive Salt Mine.

A gentleman from Panamint district designs to secure by U. S. patent a portion of a most remarkably extensive salt deposit, located about ten miles from Panamint. The salt to the depth of about a foot on the average covers an area of about a mile and a quarter square, and is a very fine article. And speaking of salt mines, immediately north and in sight of Cerro Gordo there is a valley lying along the foot of the Inyo range which, for several miles square, is covered to about the same depth as the Panamint deposit. The article, ready for use, can be shoveled up by the ton in either of these places.

Borax.

Quite an excitement was created some months since by the discovery of reported extensive borax deposits in the southern borders of this county. Something like a hundred and fifty quarter sections of borax lands were located, but subsequently most of them were abandoned, it appearing that the quantity of the crude material obtainable was not sufficient to justify further prosecution of this industry. But little has been heard of the business in that section since, and it has been deemed of little promise. But notwithstanding all this a number of lucky and enteprising locators have been all the time quietly at work, and with rude and most temporary facilities have been producing on the average about half a ton per day of the best quality of borax. Right in the midst of a lake bed in Slate Range, thirty-five miles west of Indian Wells, there are some seven quarter sections of land where the borate of soda, (not lime) is found in inexhaustible quantities while the ground to the depth of a foot or more is so full of the borate as to be spoken of and considered as a bed of borax a foot thick. The marketable article is obtained in three ways: By evaporation of the water heavily impregnated with it, by working the earth containing the borate of soda, and from extensive deposits of the pure article. After the surface of the ground has been scraped clean, another deposit soon takes place, and altogether these borax mines are considered practically inexhaustible. Wednesday last two gentlemen, Messrs. J. W. Searles and J. D. Creigh, as company representatives made application to the Land Office here for four different U. S. patents covering 160 acres of these lands. Notices of these applications will be found in this issue. From these gentlemen we learn that work is to be henceforth prosecuted at their works on a scale equal to six tons per day. Besides a few white men they are now employing eight Chinamen and expect to increase the number. The San Francisco market price of borax is 12 cents per pound, and as the freights are comparatively cheap from Slate Range, quite a handsome income will be derived from its production, especially at the rate of five or six tons per day. We are indebted to these gentlemen for specimens of the manufactured article and also of natural crystals of equal size, scarcely distinguishable one from the other. These gentlemen feel confident that the business of their mines is going to be an item of no small importance in the commerce of Southern California, and we do not doubt it in the least. We are promised by Mr. Creigh an account in detail of the extent and character of the deposits in Slate Range, facilities for working, shipping, and other matters relating to the business, for which we shall look with interest.

Road to Panamint.

We are pleased to learn that steps are being taken to bring all this portion of the county in direct wagon and mail communication with Panamint. An effort will be made to secure some help from the county, or general subscriptions, to build a road directly from the foot of the Lake at Olanche to a point of connection with the Los Angeles road at the canyon, four and a half miles from Panamint. To that point it is now a fair natural road except a few places where the road will have to be built. The whole cost will probably not exceed $2,000, and the whole distance from the Lake to Panamint is less than sixty-five miles, or a saving of near twenty-five miles over the present route down by way of Little Lake. It is a matter of considerable importance to this valley that this road should be built at an early day. That camp is bound to be a large one, and will afford a fair market for all our surplus hay and grain, which surplus is likely to be larger this year than usual for the reason that the Los Angeles teams do not propose to buy a pound of either from us henceforth. A petition has gone forward for a mail service over this road, and it is much to be hoped it will be granted. Passmore is out now viewing out the route and will report soon.

Panamint.

R. P. Stewart, better known as "Bob," one of the original discoverers of Panamint, has been paying this place a visit during the present week. No one can be more confidently hopeful of the great and easily obtainable wealth of any mining locality than is Bob in relation to Panamint. He thinks its prospects in that respect unequaled, and in this he is borne out by all who have been there. Embraced within an area of three by twelve miles some 170 locations of different ledges have been made. At present there are about 125 men in the district, and the number is increasing daily with fair prospects of soon reaching the thousands. A 10 stamp mill is being erected on Jacobs' "Wonder," and another, it is believed, is to be at once built for the "Morning Star," owned by Senator Perkins' company. Three shifts are at work on Stewart's "Venus," working on a hundred foot contract. They are now down about 40 feet. The depth attained in the Wonder is only about 36 feet. Many other locations are being prospected to about the same extent, and so far not one but with the most encouraging and materially improving prospects.

Sold.

The Swansea furnace, and the Omega Tunnel mines pertaining thereto, were sold Monday last, at Sheriff's sale on foreclosure of mortgage. Mr. Van Arsdale in behalf of the mortgagees was the successful bidder, the price paid ($8,650) being merely nominal. The furnace will probably fire up in about four weeks.

Almost an Item.

We came near having a first-class item Wednesday night—but we are not grieved that it turned out only an "almost." About 10 o'clock that night, and fortunately before we, and others who had attended the meeting, had retired to bed, W. Morris, an employe in this office, very carelessly set fire to a large map hanging against the division wall of the office, and of the two-story dwelling belonging to the establishment. Without noticing what he had done he passed on into his room and sat down. Immediately after, Dr. J. D. Blair happening to be passing the front of the office, noticed the unusual light from the inside and give such a yell of "fire!" as to bring us and half the town nearly, to the rescue almost on the instant. Rushing in we soon extinguished the flames, though they were streaming up to the dry ceiling thirteen feet high. A minute more and office and dwelling would have been among the things that were, and we should have been exceedingly bankrupt. This place has no means whatever for successfully fighting any fairly started fire, nor any town of equal size more better burning material. Our thanks are due to Dr. Blair for his timely alarm, and to the citizens generally for the astonishing promptness with which so many were on hand.

The Post Lands.

We are indebted to Senator Hager for the information that House Bill No. 2278, to restore certain lands about Camp Independence to Vagt, Malone, Schalten, Martin, Huff, Chaquette, Densmore and Quelet, as introduced into that House by Mr. Houghton, has been amended by the addition of Earl's name and introduced into the Senate on leave by Mr. Hager. After being read twice in both Houses it was referred to the Committee on Public Lands, and will doubtless become a law.

Stock.

Sheriff Mulkey reports the loss of horned cattle in the northern end of the county as being very considerably greater than is generally supposed. Many perished from cold and a lack of feed, and recently many more from eating the wild parsnep. The Assessor makes an allowance of one-fourth in his cattle assessments, and in the large bands like Murphy's and Broder's the allowance is none too great. Mr. Mulkey loses about 60 head. There is no loss of horses worth notice.

The Pic-Nic.

Without going into particulars we may state that the pic-nic proposed by Busy Bee Lodge, I. O. G. T., is to take place May 1, next, and at the Messrs. Shepherd's place, George's Creek. The ceremonies on the ground will be the crowning of a May Queen, oration, singing, dinner, etc., and everybody is invited to participate, and, except those of the order from a distance, are expected to bring their own baskets.

Discharged.

French Joe, whom we mentioned last week as having been charged with an attempt to kill Mrs. James Jackson, Round Valley, was brought before Justice Walcott Monday last, to have the charges investigated. P. Reddy, Esq., appeared for the accused and from all the evidence adduced it was not made clear that any attempt to kill had been made, so the prisoner was discharged at once.

Deferred.

Several items of interest are unavoidably crowded out this week; among these is the full text of the Local Option law, which, whatever its merits or short comings, ought to be generally understood.

Fair Average.

We are told that, for the fifteen days ending Monday last, Beaudry's furnace turned out on the average 230 bars per day, while Belshaw's did nearly as well. The teams are now taking from Cartago about 380 bars a day.

Refitting.

Connelly is repairing and refitting the Aldine saloon in a grand style, and local option or no local option, is receiving a very large stock of the best liquors, cigars, etc., to be obtained in San Francisco.

Returned.

Mr. John Broder, returned from his trip to the railroad a few days since accompanied by his brother, R. C. Broder, a Deputy Grand Lecturer of the Masonic order.

Windy.

Last night we were favored with a howling wind from the south and plenty of dust from every where. Weather cloudy.

The Panamint and Los Angeles Road.

Through the exertions of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce the citizens of that city are subscribing quite liberally toward the construction of the Panamint road. No doubt need be entertained but that a good road will be constructed through the canyon offering the only serious obstacle.

St. Nicholas for April.

The current number of St. Nicholas opens with an article on the invention of printing, by Donald G. Mitchell, and illustrated by a large engraving of Guttenburg's statue at Strasburg. An article, entitled "Life Saving On Our Coast," by William H. Rideing, gives a useful and interesting account, of how poor shipwrecked sailors and passengers are saved when they are thrown upon our coast; for it appears they are nearly always saved. Four excellent illustrations accompany this article. Another useful paper is that upon "Wood Carving," illustrated by working designs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps contributes a short story called "Taken at His Word," finely illustrated by James Sheppard. T. B. Aldrich has an account of the infant violinist, James Speight, which is full of pathetic interest; There is the "Church Cock," a translation from the Sweedish of Topelius; "Mrs. Pomeroy's Page," by Miss Mary E. Bradley; "The Wrong Bird," by Paul Fort, the story of a little negro boy who got into trouble by going after birds' nests larger than himself; and the conclusion of that "real boy" story, "Wrecked at Home," by Noah Brooks. The poems are by Celia Thaxter, Margaret Etynge and Mary Lathbury. The latter illustrates her poem which is a curious conceit, showing how old Mother Moon goes about after her little stars who stay up to late. The serials are increasing in interest. In "Fast Friends," there are adventures at a boarding house in New York; In "Nimpo's Troubles." the children get into scrapes in a Western village, and in "What Might Have Been Expected," wonderful schemes are concocted in the backwoods of Virginia. "Jack-in-the Pulpit," is unusually good this month; he fairly sparkles with fun, and everybody, old and young, will be sure to have a jolly laugh with "Jack," for April. The Letter Box and other departments are full and interesting as usual.

Wholesale Slaughter of Geese by Lightning.

The singular story given below is related by The Yuba City Banner March 28th:

On Monday the 16th instant, an almost incredible occurrence transpired in the northern part of Sutter and the southern part of Butte counties. On Monday evening, just before sunset, a large thunder cloud came up, accompanied by an unusual amount of chain lightning. First a small amount of common hail fell, then followed a sufficient amount of snow to whiten the ground. As the hail began to fall and the lightning to flash, thousands of wild geese which were in the ponds of shallow water, suddenly rose up in a great flutter, as if many hunters had discharged a volley among them. They went up and up, apparently to rise above the fearful cloud. It was nearly dark, and those who saw them rise thought no more of it till morning, when they began to find dead geese and hear of hundreds being picked up by the neighbors. Some 700 had been found. One man picked up as many as two horses could haul. Their heads were badly torn and their bills split into fragments. Many of them had the feathers of their backs crisped and burnt and their bodies bursted upen. The portion of the country thus affected was about a mile and a half wide, and reached several miles into Butte county. The terrific lightning in this cloud was witnessed by people on the Honcut in Yuba county, and in the central portion of this county. The thunder was heard twenty miles from this place.

Clean Teeth.

If you will only keep your teeth clean they won't decay. The wonderful dentifrices which are sold at fabulous prices are greatly inferior to a simple mixture of soap and chalk, with a little something like orris root; but the essential articles are soap and chalk. The druggist will prepare you enough for a quarter of a dollar to last a long time. When you go to bed, take a broad, soft tooth-brush go through the mouth thoroughly. If disposed to a bad mouth, you may repeat the dose in the morning. But the principal article for keeping the teeth clean is a toothpick, a soft goose quill, which you must use after eating, no matter though it is but a piece of apple, and if convenient, after using the pick use a mouthful of water to rinse from the teeth what the toothpick may have left.—Dio Lewis.

—"Papa, what does the editor lick the price current?" "Whip it! he don't whip it, my child." "Well, this ere paper says, 'Price Current carefully corrected;' and when I gets corrected I gets licked, hey, don't I?"

—"Has the cookery-book any pictures?" asked a young lady of a bookseller. "Not one," replied the dealer in books. "Why," exclaimed the pretty miss, "what is the use of telling us how to make a good dinner, if they don't give us no plate?"

—A young lady talking about wigs, said she would rather dye than wear one.

—A Charleston landlord charges $1 extra per night for sleeping in a room next to an alderman.

—In some of the Western villages the liquor dealers are so frightened that their hair won't dye.

—"My wife," said a critic, "is the most even-tempered person in the world—she's always mad."

—The Postmaster General's dignity must have suffered the other day when he received a letter from Delta, Iowa, saying: "If yer doant git some one to run this yer poast offus purty soon, it'll be throwed in the river, for I'm goin' off on a bear hunt, and can't fool any moar."

Hints to Young Students.

It is a most excellent study to write off sentences or whole pages which have pleased you, and then putting books and manuscripts both aside, again write the ideas or facts, clothing them in your own words and not referring to either the written or printed page. It the practice is persevered in for one year, the student will be surprised at the facility he has gained in the expression of ideas and breadth of thought. The boy or girl with energy enough to try this will also be bright enough to vary the exercise in a dozen ways, making it at once more interesting and if more value.—Ohio Farmer.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE PACIFIC IRRIGATING PIPE, AIR PIPE AND PUMP CO.

San Francisco, Cal.

THE ATTENTION OF AGRICULTURISTS AND farmers, especially, is called to these celbrated pumps already in use throughout the Western States and Pacific Coast, giving perfect satisfaction everywhere. For durability, efficiency and cheapness they cannot be excelled, the material used being cut from the butt log of the most durable timber in use. These pumps are adapted to all climates, and are not affected by heat or cold. They are made of different sizes to raise water in greater or less volume as may be required; and various lengths to operate in wells and cisterns either shallow or of great depth, and are handsomely turned and painted to preserve them against exposure. Air pipe for tunnels, mines, etc., made of the same material, are very efficient, cheap and durable.

Redwood,

Agency for Inyo and Mono counties at the Inyo Drug Store, Lone Pine, where full information will be given, orders promptly attended to and pumps may be inspected, having one in good running order in the well.

$5 TO $20 PER DAY easily made by any one. We want men, women, boys and girls all over the country to sell our fine steel engravings, chromos, crayon drawings, illuminations, photographs, etc., etc. We now publish the finest assortment ever placed before the public, and our prices are marked down so low as to defy all competition. No one subscribes for a premium giving paper in order to get a picture after seeing our pictures and learning our prices. We have many old agents at work for us who have made canvassing for books, papers, etc, their business for years, and they all report that they can make much more money working for us than at anything else. Our prices are so low that all can afford to purchase, and therefore the pictures sell at sight at almost every house. New beginners do as well as agents who have had large experience, for our beautiful subjects and low prices are appreciated by all. To make large sales everywhere all an agent has to do is to show the pictures from house to house. Don't look for work elsewhere until you have seen what great inducements we offer you to make money. We have not space to explain all here, but send us your address and we will send particulars, free, by mail. Don't delay if you want profitable work for your leisure hours, or for your whole time. Now is the favorable time to engage in this business. Our pictures are the finest and most pleasing in this country, and are endorsed by all the leading papers, including The New York Herald. Those who cannot give the business their entire attention can work up their own localities and make a handseme sum without being away from home over night. Let all who want pleasant profitable employment, without risking capital, send us their addresses at once and learn all about the business for themselves. Address

THE GEM MICROSCOPE.

THE GEM MICROSCOPE IS THE MOST WONDEREUL scientific production of the nineteenth century. It furnishes the power the of a high-priced instrument for a mere trifle, and exceeds in usefulness any microspope ever invented. It reveals the hidden wonders of minute creation—as Eels in Vinegar, Animals in Water, Butterflies' Feathers, the Golden Marrow of a Hair, Insects' Eyes, the Pads, Claws, Joints, and Hairs of a Fly's foot, makes Ropes of fibers of cloth, a Crowbar of a needle's point, and so on indefinitely. It furnishes hours of insruction, entertainment and amusement for young and old and every family should possess it. It is invaluable to students, professors, teachers, physicians, in fact everybody, and especially in the home circle is it a gem. It is cheap and at the same time of great value. It is really of great value to any family if only because it shows the adulterations in food, as sugars, teas, etc., and the qualities of cloths. It also plainly shows Trichina Spiralis, or Pork Worm, whenever it exists in Pork. Price $1 50 Mailed post-paid to any address on receipt of price.

A FAT TAKE FOR AGENTS—MEN and Women, Boys and Girls. Whole time or leisure moments and evenings. It works as well by lamplight as by daylight. Parents buy it for their children. Liberal cash commission paid. Exclusive territory. Congenial employment. It excites the curiosity, which produces a desire to have it, and requires no talking by the agent. SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Reddy, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court

The People of the State of California send greeting to William Watt, William B Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiffs in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars, in U. S. Gold coin, with interest thereon from the Tenth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America, as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this Nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy four. [SEAL.]

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND, Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, [SEAL] this 30th day of January, 1874.

Prospectus for 1874—Seventh Year.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, WHILE ISSUED WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centers of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood-cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates" is rapidly yielding to a more discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality, with greater facility for production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

To fully realize the wonderful work which THE ALDINE is doing for the cause of art culture in America, it is only necessary to consider the cost to the people of any decent representations of the productions of great painters.

In addition to designs by members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the refining influences of true art.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1874 will be by Thos. Moran and J. D. Woodward.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attraction any of its predecessors.

PREMIUMS FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1874, will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thos. Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives the Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The differences in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and affords a good display of the artist's scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appearance exact fac-similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial over the signature of Mr. Moran himself.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 20, 1874.

MESSRS. JAMES SUTTON & Co.,

Gentleman—I am delighted with the proofs in color of your chromos. They are wonderfully successful representations by mechanical process of the original paintings. Very respectfully

(Signed,) THOS. MORAN.

These chromos are in every sense American. They are by an original Amerian process, with material of American manufacture, from designs of American scenery by an American painter, and presented to subscribers to the first successful American Art Journal. If no better because of all this they will certainly possess an interest no foreign production can inspire, and neither are they any worse if by reason of peculiar facilities of production they cost the publishers only a trifle, while equal in every respect to other chromos that are sold singly for double the subscription price of THE ALDINE. Persons of taste will prize these pictures for themselves—not for the price they did or did not cost, and will appreciate the enterprise that renders their distribution possible.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free at New York Office.

For 50 cents extra the chromos will be sent mounted, varnished and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

Commercial Position of Los Angeles County.

[From The Los Angeles Herald.]

Commercial distances are not computed by the length in miles between two points, but by the cost in labor, wear and tear and time consumed in passing over the distances. This branch of the problem is reduced to an accurate science by railroad companies. It has been found that it costs as much to rise or fall a grade of twenty feet, as it does to run a mile further on a level road. Hence it is as cheap to run five miles further round a hill as it is to run up a grade of fifty feet over it. So each curve is the same as adding an additional distance to the road. For this season it is commercilly nearer for Scott to run two hundred miles farther through San Gorgonio Pass, than to run direct over the montains to San Diego. With this rule as our guide, we shall show that Los Angeles is the natural commercial shipping point on the Pacific Coast for our "back country" as shown on our map. The only competing point is San Francisco. As shown by the official survey of the Central Pacific Railroad, the road from San Francisco to Salt Lake is 950 miles. The sum of the successive elevations is 11,738 feet; the sum of the depressions is 5,462 feet; total 17,000 feet. Divide this by twenty, and we have 855 miles to be added to the running length. Hence the commercial distance is equal to 1,809 miles of level road. This distance does not include the additional distance for curves, of which we have no statistics. A competent engineer assured us that the many short curves would add at least 400 additional miles more, making the whole distance 2,209 miles. The cause of this is that the Central Pacific Railroad cuts right across several mountain ranges. A glance at our map shows this fact, and that part of it is made from a map of the Central Pacific Railroad Company. On our map the size allows only the bold ranges to be shown. Now pass the eye over the route from Los Angeles to Salt Lake. It will be seen that the heavy mountain ranges run nearly north and south, and terminate before reaching very far south. The route from Los Angeles follows a natural grade all the way to Salt Lake having no heavy grades or sharp curves. The length of a road from here to Salt Lake will be almost 900 miles. The elevation of Salt Lake is about 4,000 feet, equal to 200 miles. An actual survey would show intermediate elevations and depressions of probably 2,000 feet, equal to a hundred miles. Total commercial distance from Los Angeles to Salt Lake 1,300 miles, against 2,209 miles, the distance from San Francisco to Salt Lake. The difference in favor of Los Angeles is 909 miles. Another item in the case is that the Road to Los Angeles will run below the snow-belt, which of itself is of vast importance. At this time a road is already under way from Salt Lake towards us, and has Pioche for its objective point. Extend from Los Angeles a road to meet this one, and it will open up the extensive mining regions of Southern Nevada, Utah, and Northwestern Arizona. Look at our map with the proposed road from San Gorgonio Pass to Salt Lake, or deflect the road from Pioche to Cerro Gordo if found practicable. All the ores of these thousands of mines will reach tide-water here and save the present cost of transportation of ores 909 miles. Look again at the map. It will be seen that San Gorgonio Pass is almost due east of Los Angeles. At this pass the mountain range has been pulled apart breaking the range in two and making a pass of so easy a grade that the ascent is not perceptible to the eye. Through this pass the 35th and 32d parallel roads must find their way to the Pacific, and once entering the pass are forced through Los Angeles valley. These roads tap the entire resources of Arizona, Northwestern Colorado and the western part of New Mexico.

The roads north from Los Angeles, one along the coast, the other down the San Joaquin plains to San Francisco, Stockton, Sacramento, and connecting with the entire northern system of the State and trans-continental railroads; two others contemplated, one to Cerro Gordo, and the other to Truxton on this coast, and one now being built to Anaheim, complete the railroad system which makes Los Angeles its center. These roads will open up an unlimited market for all our semi-tropical fruits and farming products. Our merchants can by energy and business foresight make this place the great wholesale metropolis of this vast area. Spread this information and the foregoing facts broadcast over the land. Let it reach the eye of the capitalist and the railroad men. Some one will take hold of the enterprise, put it in shape, and with that determination which knows no failure, will carry it out to success. Cannot our Chamber of Commerce start the matter, and induce some energetic citizens to organize a company? Go before Congress for aid and build the road to Pioche or Beaver, connecting with the Southern Utah Railroad.

LOCAL OPTION.

Following is the full text of the Local Option Law:

SECTION 1. From and after the passage of this act, whenever one-fourth of the number of legal voters of any township, incorporated city, or town, shall petition the Board of Supervisors of such county, or the county wherein such township, incorporated city, or town is situated, to call a special election, to vote upon the question of "Liquor License," or "No Liquor License," the Board of Supervisors of the county receiving said petition, shall, within one month after said petition is filed with the Clerk of said Board, make proclamation for the holding of said election in the township, incorporated city, or town, as may be asked for in such petition.

SEC. 2. The Board of Supervisors shall, by such proclamation, require an election to be held within such township, incorporated city, or town, as the case may be, on a day to be designated by such Board, and within thirty days from and after the day of the issuance of said proclamation. Such proclamation shall be published in a newspaper printed in the township, city, or town, in which said election is to be held, if there be one published therein, otherwise a newspaper to be designated by such Board of Supervisors. Such a proclamation shall be published once a week for at least three weeks previous to said election.

SEC. 3. Said election shall be conducted and governed by the general election laws of this State, so far as the same are applicable thereto; provided that copies of the Great Register need not be used, and section 1056 of the Political Code shall not apply to or effect such elections.

SEC. 4. The tickets voted at such elections shall contain the words, "For License," or "Against License." If the majority of votes cast at such election "For License," or "Against License," shall contain the words "Against License," then it shall not be lawful for any Court, Board, or officer to issue any license for the sale of any spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors in said township, city, or town wherein said election may have been held, at any time after the determination of the result of said election, provided, that nothing contained in the provisions of this act shall prevent the issuing of license to druggists for sale of liquors for medicinal or manufacturing purposes.

A Terrible Blow.

One night recently the signal station on the top of Mount Washington reported a northwest gale blowing at the rate of 140 miles an hour—as shown by the anemometer—and a temperature of eighteen degrees below zero. This is probably the highest force ever attained by the wind in New England A gale of sixty or seventy miles an hour will often blow trees down. In the hurricane of the tropics a force of 100, even 110 miles an hour is not uncomon. No human being could stand before such a gale. The people in the chained down hut contrive to examine the anemometer without emerging—else they would be swept off bodily and hurled down Tuckerman's Ravine. The roar of such a mountain gale is terrible beyond words.

Local Option.

The Optionists are making big efforts in a number of the counties in this State, Solano and Santa Clara particularly. Nearly every township in Santa Clara is making an effort to get an election on the question. The Mercury says: "The liquor dealers have commenced to take out county licenses for the ensuing year. The Tax Collector has been notified by the District Attorney not to issue licenses for the time stated. He holds that any dealer under such a contract cannot be disturbed by the adoption of the Local Option Law."

Another.

New newspapers are becoming as thick as the leaves in that noted Spanish province, but let us hope, not so ephemeral. Among the latest is The Wilmington, (Los Angeles county) Enterprise, W. H. Mason, editor and proprietor. If the p o t of Wilmington is as neat and pretty as its newspaper, it has much to brag of in that way however it may be in regard to business The columns of The Enterprise do not show a surfeit of business "ads," yet.

Terrible April Fool Joke.

Some would be smarties of Salinas Monterey county, attempted an April fool joke by sending a Mrs. Dennison to the room of a man named Downey with a letter containing the words "April Fool." This came to the ears of Dennison who shortly after got into a difficulty with Downey about it. Result: Dennison killed, and Downey badly wounded.

The Mono Strike.

There is much excitement in Salt Lake in regard to the developments in the Mono mine, Dry Canyon. The latest showing is a vein of horn silver two feet thick. The Tribune claims it is the richest silver mine in the world. It yields $14,000 to the ton. Matt. Gisborn, formerly of this county is one-third owner in the Mono.

His Opinion.

John Bright, who is generally pretty bright on all questions effecting the welfare of the people, has written a lecture on the liquor question in which he expresses the belief that the only practical solution of the problem will be found in a license system governed by public opinion exercised through municipal representatives.

Murdered for Seven Dollars.

Two Mexicans, Domingo Estrado and Philip Cotta did a most venomous murder on a German sailor in Sacramento, April 8, merely that they might obtain some seven dollars they knew were in his pockets. The murdered man was named John Kruse. Both the murderers were soon after arrested.

"Heap Stealum Now."

The ten million dollar appropriation for Mare Island will make the pickings and stealings about that terribly thieving locality very interesting for some time to come. It is hardly possible that there is a spot in the nation where the Government gets less for its money than Mare Island.

Good.

The Los Angeles Express of April 11, has this interesting item: "Ex. Governor Downey arrived on the Senator, and is fully satisfied that the Cerro Gordo Railroad is a fixed fact in the near future."

Lines Down.

The Eureka Cupel has under the regular head, a birth notice in the words and figures as follows, to-wit:

Walker River Valley, March 29, to J. J. Richards, and March 30, another son. (The lines are all working, but we have nothing later than the 30th.)

THE PROSPECT.

The talk in relation to the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad has begun to bring capitalists and people generally to a partial realization of the fact that that route, so far as it goes, must form a good part of a through railroad connecting Salt Lake (and the Eastern States of course) with tide-water at Los Angeles; that in doing so it will tap and open up the most extensive and the richest mining region in the world, where, in addition to its great mineral wealth, there are numerous small, rich agricultural valleys—some of which cannot be excelled in any country for richness of soil and beauties of climate—inviting population, and which population in considerable numbers, is certain to step in in advance of the iron horse on the least assurance that he is to follow; that such a road is below the snow line, and can never at any point be obstructed by either snow-drifts or disastrous floods; that for at least nine-tenths of the way almost the only preparation required for the locomotive is simply to lay down the ties and iron, almost without any grading at all; that the whole cost of building and equiping this road through, from one connection to the other, can scarcely exceed the cost of operating the Central Pacific on its snow shed section alone for one Winter like the last—all these circumstances added to the equally important fact that geographically our route is, from Salt Lake via Los Angeles to San Francisco, many hundred miles the shorter, and that in railroad experience, still more than that the superior of the Central or any other route, gives the positive assurance that the only thing required to insure its completion at once is that capital may be made to realize actual facts to the full—that the statements in regard to the route and country, as set forth by the Los Angeles and other papers, including THE INDEPENDENT, are facts and not mere suppositions.

In a general way let us review the route and prospect:

The Utah Mining Gazette says: "The Salt Lake, Sevier Valley and Pioche Railroad is projected from Salt Lake City, by way of Lake Point, at the southern extremity of Great Salt Lake, Tooele, Stockton, Tintic, Sevier Valley and Beaver River, to the rich iron fields of Iron county; thence to Pioche, Nevada, a total distance of three hundred miles. This road was organized in 1872, with a capital stock of $3,000,000. Its present officers are P. E. Connor, President; E. M. Barnum, Secretary; H. P. Kimball, Treasurer and General Superintendent This road will traverse a section of Utah rich in mining camps and agricultural valleys, and will open a route that offers nearly through the entire distance a grade of less than forty feet to the mile. About twenty-five miles of the road are now graded; a large amount of iron is on hand, and rolling stock contracted for. When completed this road willl afford facilities for, and must receive a large share of all traffic to and from the mining districts west of the Oquirrh Range, embracing the following well known localities: Stockton, Dry Canyon, East Canyon, Camp Floyd, Tintic, Granite Mountain. Columbia, Dugway and Clifton, where near a score of furnaces and mills are operating. Work was suspended last Fall by reason of the financial panic, but will be resumed shortly."

With that and the Los Angeles road built as now proposed there remains a stretch of about 150 miles to bring them together. Within that interval, within less than a hundred miles of the line of road, are some of the most promising mining districts in the entire country. In that interval, as well as east and west of it, on the proposed line of the road, are thousands of metal bearing veins, too small as a general thing to justify the attention of heavy companies, but which by individual miners will be made to yield in the aggregate an immense amount of first-class ores.

With suitable reduction works at Los Angeles, or any available place possessing the requisite facilities for cheap and thorough reduction, miners could afford to give their attention to these small mines, and by individual efforts each would at intervals send off a ton or a few tons at a time, and be well paid in the returns. In this way there is no question but thousands of miners could and would find profitable employment independent of the numerous heavy or organized mining operations going on at the same time, and the business thus created by freights at from $9 to $12 per ton would simply be beyond calculation.

Yet such a business—a ton at a time more or less, by individual miners in every district for several hundred miles along this portion of the road—will follow as inevitably as that of the more prominent mining operations, and in the aggregate nearly equal to the big works, as certainly as the railroad will produce cheap freights—there is but the two contingencies—cheap freights and means of cheap and thorough reduction of all lots sent whether large or small. People unacquainted with the resources of the region traversed by this through road, or tapped by it, can have but a most imperfect idea of its extent and promise, especially as considered in the manner just above pointed out.

But, as we have frequently intimated heretofore, this region is not to be considered simply as a lead, gold, and silver producer. There are many other minerals, of value under proper circumstances—brimstone, iron, copper, borax, salt, etc., to be taken into the count, as well as the positive fact that it possesses all the elements necessary to afford good homes for an agricultural population equal to that of some of the Eastern States. Even large portions of its so-called sandy wastes and desert can and will be made profitably available for sheep, cashmere goat and cattle raising.

The most promising railroad enterprise offering this day is the one here in contemplation. That it soon will be built we have not the slightest doubt. Certain it is that Los Angeles cannot do too much in pushing it forward.

THE DIFFERENCE IN COST.

The relative first cost and working capacity of the wide and narrow gauge railway has occasioned much discussion of late, and the practical result is that most or quite all the newly projected roads are to be narrow gauge. The rougher and more mountainous the section through which a road is to be run, the cheaper and more advantageous comparatively is a road of that class. On level ground or light grades the difference in its favor is not so marked, but is still very considerable. The iron (rails, fish plates, spikes, etc.), for a three and a half-foot gauge is exactly one-half as much in cost and weight as that for the standard, or four feet, eight and a half-inch gauge, while the cost of ties for the first is not as much as for the standard by about one-third. That is to say, the total cost of the material simply, is: For the standard gauge, $12,175 per mile; for the narrow gauge $5,699, taking the exact estimates for rails at $80 per ton, other iron in proportion, and ties at $25 per thousand feet. The real cost of material would doubtless be somewhat above those estimates on portions of the proposed road from Los Angeles, particularly in the matter of ties, but the relative cost would be the same. As almost the entire distance from San Fernando hither is practically perfectly level the difference in cost of grade would not exceed 20 per cent in favor of the narrow gauge, but this percentage, added to the still greater on the other counts in favor of the three and a half-foot road, gives that gauge the preference most decidedly for any company undertaking it without Government aid, the which this company does not but ought to have.

Pacific Coasters.

Charles Maclay, ex-Senator from Santa Clara county, has purchased the San Fernando ranch in Los Angeles county. It is one of the largest ranches in California, containing 57,000 acres. It is Maclay's intention to have it surveyed into small tracts and put upon the market immediately.

It is estimated that $1,000,000 will not cover the losses in horses, cattle and sheep in this State during the past Winter.

The Nevada State Superintendent of Public Instruction is taking steps for the better enforcement of the Compulsory Education act.

The Crown Point mine has just received a steel wire cable weighing 17,750 pounds. This is an immense weight to hoist every time a car-load of ore is raised.

Within two days after the county seat of Fresno was located at Fresno City one hundred building lots changed hands.

A correspondent writing from the San Joaquin Valley says they have had enough rain there to insure the crops for two seasons.

The Fresno Expositor has been moved to Fresno City, the new county-seat of Fresno.

A valuable coal mine was recently discovered back of Carmelo bay, Monterey county.

The Spring races at Los Angeles will commence May 28 and continue three days.

Woodward's Gardens.

Rev. T. M. Dawson publishes a voluminous and exhaustive paper, in the New York Weekly, descriptive of Woodward's Gardens, San Francisco. Mr. Woodward, or some one else interested in the Gardens, was kind enough to send us a copy of The Christian Weekly, together with the "Illustrated Guide and Catalogue" to that "great emporium of natural wonders," all of which we found very interesting, and for which we give this notice with the additional expectation of soon receiving a pass allowing us free entrance to the Gardens when we go to San Francisco. —Bakersfield Californian.

The steamship Europa, of the French Transatlantic line, from Havre to New York, March 28, was abandoned at sea April 4th in a sinking condition. Her passengers and crew were taken on board the steamship Egypt and landed at Queenstown.

Agassiz Memorial.

We are in receipt of the following circular which we publish, hoping that the teachers in this country may take sufficient interest to act upon its suggestions:

"LOUIS AGASSIZ, TEACHER"

This was the heading of his simple will; this was his chosen title; and it was well known throughout the country, and in other lands, how much he has done to raise the dignity of the profession, and to improve its methods. His friends, the friends of education, propose to raise a memorial to him, by placing upon a strong and enduring basis the work to which he devoted his life, the Museum of Comparative Zoology, which is at once a collection of natural objects, rivaling the most celebrated collections of the Old World, and a school open to all the teachers in the land. It is proposed that the teachers and pupils of the whole country take part in this memorial, and that on the birthday of Agassiz, the 28th of May 1874, they shall each contribute something, however small, to the Teachers' and Pupils' Memorial Fund in honor of Louis Agassiz; the fund to be kept separate, and the income to be applied to the expenses of the Museum All remittances and communications for the Teachers' and Pupils' Fund of the Agassiz Memorial, may be sent to the Treasurer, James M. Barnard, Room 4, No. 13 Exchange street, Boston.

A Senator's Wife.

The galleries were crowded to hear Mr. Schurz. He is their idol; but there was one listener whose interest was his inspiration. Mrs. Schurz is the most sincere of worshippers at his shrine. Her husband is always sure of one devoted hearer when he speaks in public, notwithstanding that she has already approved all that was written of the speech. He always acknowledges her presence in the Senate at such time with an expectant look. She answered him to-day, as she often does, with a congratulatory wave of her handkerchief. Hard work and uncommon intellect have given him the position he holds; inheritance has filled her lap with the fortune they deserve But the most beautiful thing about the Senator and Mrs. Schurz is the lover-like devotion, which seems to have strengthened day by day for these more than twenty years.—Washington Letter.

Twenty-five Apaches Killed.

The World has the following special dispatch from Arizona, dated Prescott, April 9: The Miner of to-day states that on Sunday the 4th instant, Captain Byrne of the Twelfth Infantry, commanding Camp Beale Spring, started between six and seven hundred Hualapi Indians to the Colorado River Reservation. The Indians were very reluctant to go.

Lieutenants, A. B. Bache and Reilly of the Fifth Cavalry, while on a scout in the Pinal Mountains, jumped an Apache Rancheria, killed twenty-six warriors, captured forty-two squaws and destroyed the rancheria. The troops were led to the rancheria by two captured squaws. The prisoners were taken to the San Carlos Reservation. The command was greatly aided by friendly Indians.

Wadsworth and Belmont.

The principal point for shipping freight from the railroad to Belmont, is Wadsworth, a distance of 189 miles from Sacramento. The rate of freight usually charged from Wadsworth to Belmont, being about four cents per pound, the distance 180 miles; the time occupied, ordinarily, about 16 days. There are quite a number of heavy freight teams running regularly between Wadsworth and Belmont.—Reno Journal.

Perhaps.

The Sacramento Bee asserts that the laws passed by the last Legislature will be published in two or three weeks. If The Bee is correct there has been a decided revolution in the State Printer's office. Heretofore more than that number of months have elapsed before the laws were in type.

Ten Hours.

Master Mechanics of New York have resolved not employ any workman after May 1st, who refuses to work ten hours per day.

Cerbat News.

A correspondent of The Arizona Miner gives the following Cerbat items:

Lieut. Thomas and party rested five days at Beale Springs, and two days after they had started out again Sheerum and 250 of the Wallapais returned to that post, and on the 29th about 100 more followed them. They are now feeding about 625 Indians, all of whom are willing to go wherever Capt. Byrne chooses to take them. Oquania and about 30 of his band are out yet, living among the Servents and Wallapai Supais.

The four rascals who stole the horses from the Willows and wounded the mail rider, are in the Beale Springs' guard house.

The success in bringing the Wallapais back without fighting them is due in a great measure to Capt. Byrne's kind and just treatment and his protecting them in all their troubles. Wallapai Charley, who at the commencement of the difficulty, was believed by a great many to have been left as a spy, has, so far, proved to be true and faithful to the whites, and has done his best in bringing his red brethern back and persuading them to go on the reserve. If the orders are not countermanded, the Wallapais will move to the reserve in about ten days. Indian rations will last till about the 15th day of April. The Wallapai warriors were disarmed upon their arrival.

Mining news is important and very favorable for our section of the country. Col. Buell has started back to California well pleased with the country, and is going to put up a 20-stamp mill on John Sloan's place, on the Big Sandy, immediately. He has men at work grading the mill site, and expects to be back here by the 10th of May.

Mr. Stearns, principal owner of the Dean mine, is also shipping a mill, which will be put up at Freeze wash, about 14 miles east of Beale Springs, on the road to Prescott.

The Keystone, at Mineral Park, is working 20 men. The ore produced is very rich in native and ruby silver.

Eastern.

Richardson will not retire from the Treasury Department till he gets ready, and the President no longer wants him.

No Senator yet in Massachusetts.

The Democrats elected the Governor and have a majority in both Houses of the Legislature in Connecticut. The Governor (Ingersoll) has 1 900 majority over all. The prohibition vote is 4,563, with but seven towns to hear from. So much for Butlerism.

Sanborne, the Treasury special contractor, testified April 6 that he had contributed to a Butler fund in Massachusetts to make Butler Governor of that State.

After adopting all the inflation amendments to the currency bill, the United States Senate debated on the bill as amended at considerable length and it was passed, by—ayes, 29; noes, 24; and fourteen paired.

Judge Edmunds, the Spiritualist is dead.

Efforts are being made to have Boss Tweed put into more comfortable quarters on Blackwell's Island. It is said he can't stand the discipline.

General Howard is making a better showing than was expected.

A Court in Indiana has declared the law in that State, which denies colored children the benefit of the public schools, to be null and void.

The Champion Telescope of the World.

James Lick, who has recently delighted the tourists of this State with his notion of erecting a model observatory in the highest Sierras, has now set those gentlemen fairly beside themselves with joy by promising a million dollars to furnish it with the champion telescope of the world. The new Clark telescope at Washington, which has been the theme of so much descriptive writing of late, cost only a matter of $30,000, and will compare with this proposed monster as the pocket spy-glass of the tourist with the mammoth instrument of the observatory. Just how large the new telescope can be made, it is impossible at present to say. Experiments must be made with glass, and the most careful investigation will be needed to determine the feasibility of constructing a lens of the extraordinary diameter and focal length required. The Scientific American points out the capability of a twelve-foot objective with a focal depth of 120 feet; which, with an eye-piece of 1 20 inch focus, would give a magnifying power of 28,000 times the linear dimensions, or over 80,000,000 times the surface of the body. This would bring Mars, so to speak, within 4,000 miles of us, and make it appear 100 times larger than the moon. As for the moon, let the reader seriously think of having that satellite withing eight miles of him; so near that, if inhabitants there be, he can see them. Even if no more astonishing discoveries be made, the effects of volcanic action upon the surface will form a prolific field for study.—Truckee Republican.

The Governor's Pocket.

The wasted sweetness of Legislative labor was comprised in about twenty-five bills, which went into the Governor's pocket and stayed there. Perkins' apprentice bill and the bill providing for the taking of a State census, are among the most important of the dead things in the Governor's breeches' pocket.

Volume Three.

Our namesake across the ridge, The Sonora Independent, has entered upon a new volume, and remarks, as we do essentially for ourselves:

"With this number commences our third volume. During the past two years we havn't pleased everybody, and didn't intend to. Expect to be just about as independent in the future."

Forfeited.

A bill forfeiting to the United States the lands granted to the Placerville and Sacramento Railway has passed the House.

DIED.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Caught Them.

Broder and Reddy, and perhaps others, have at different times found their flocks of chickens unaccountably diminishing. From information received from a reliable Chinaman the mystery in this regard has been cleared up. Thursday last Sheriff Mulkey and others went to the China wash house run by Messrs. Koon Chang and Ah Ching to see what they knew about it. Koon, who had not yet recovered from the raid of the night previous on Reddy's hen house, was yet in bed, and on being requested to get up intimated substantially that he felt a "diabolical, invincible repugnance against appearing in deshabille,' but finally crawled out. His visitors then proceeded with the search for evidence of the fowl deed charged, and under the floor and elsewhere, soon found proofs as clear as a lawyer's writ—there were an abundance of feathers, wings, heads, feet, and even the whole bird, and though Koon and Ah Ching couldn't tell how they got there, whether by an earthquake or otherwise, the matter was submitted to Justice Gunnison who thought a fine and costs to the amount of $30 each, would enable them to elucidate the matter. That they may give their whole minds to the subject they have concluded to study it out in jail.

Personals.

Mr. Beaudry and P. Reddy, Esq. started for Cerro Gordo yesterday morning and by the same stage, Mr. N. Rhine for San Francisco. Sheriff Mulkey and P. W. Bennett, Esq, have gone to Bishop. Assessor Dillon returned from up that way, and, pursuant of duties, has gone south. Hon James E. who, with his family, were at last accounts in Virginia City, will probably reach here this evening. Mr. Cowles, from Cartago paid us a visit during the week. "Uncle" Harvey Russell of the Bishop Creek flouring mill firm, called on us the other day, being en route for San Luis Obispo, where he goes on a visit to relatives, and for health and pleasure. Paul W. above mentioned, seemingly with a view of spoiling a personal item, has returned, but for new-paper purposes the neuter verb "is," still stands.

Another Citizen.

Joseph Diaz is a tall gentleman of the Piute persuasion, and a resident farmer of Bishop Creek. Hitherto he has been allowed to run his ranch, held by a mere possessory title, unmolested, but recently some covetous white men thought they had better take Joseph's eighty acres from him, so as to keep somebody else from doing the same thing. To checkmate this Christian like desire Jo presented himself at the Land Office this week, and made a homestead entry of the SW ¼ of the SE ¼ and SE ¼ of SW ¼, Sec. 4, Township 7 south, Range 32 east. As he forswears his tribal relations, this entry is perfectly legal under the laws of the United States, made and provided for such as Joseph, and he can now go on unmolested.

Ready for Business.

C. & M. Cohn have opened out in Lone Pine, and are now prepared to accomodate customers in as great and good a variety of goods as can be found in this county. Their terms are exclusively cash or its equivalent in trade, therefore they propose to sell cheap enough to make it an object for all cash customers to give them a call. By referring to their new ad. it will be seen that they offer the highest cash price for hides and sheep skins. They are to be shipped to Los Angles, of course. Elsewhere throughout this State quite a thriving business is done by saving the hides from the numerous cattle, dead from cold or starvation, and in the same way quite a sum of pocket money could be made in this county, now that there is a demand for the hides.

For Europe.

I. Davidson, late of the Webfoot Nation, more recently of this place, started last Monday for England and "Vaterland," perhaps, Dave is not very sure, but he will locate permanently in some of the new and rising towns on that side of the water, and grow up with the place. Among the places seemingly of promise, is one called London. It is now quite a village. In this connection we may remark that another of our well known pioneer mercnants, D. Cohn, is residing in Berlin, happily married and well to do in the world, having been quite successful in some real estate speculations during the Franco-Prussian War.

Who Claims It.

We are in receipt of an exchange, The Des Arc Citizen, all the way from Arkansas addressed to "The Independent, Valley of California." Now the question, which of the hundreds of "valleys' of California," and two dozen Independents published therein is meant? If the Postmaster can solve that query they can also tell where to send a paper marked "The Citizen. Valley of the Mississippi."

Preaching.

Rev. E H. Orne will preach in the afternoon to-morrow at George's Creek, and in this place in the evening.

School at the Post.

Miss Mary Graham, a highly educated young lady from Havilah, takes charge of the school at the Post.

Poll Taxes.

Assessor Dillon desires us to call attention to the change of time when poll taxes become delinquent. We have a copy of the law in full but a brief synopsis of its requirements is all we need give at this time. Heretofore if poll taxes were not paid upon the second Monday in October, one dollar was added to each. The law as it now stands, provides that every male inhabitant of this State over twenty-one and under sixty years of age, must annually pay a poll tax of two dollars; provided, the same be paid between the first Monday in March and the first Monday in July; but if not paid prior to the first Monday in July, then it shall be three dollars. It will be seen therefore, that the poll tax for the current year is now due and payable.

Improvements.

John Bourland, now no longer a boniface, but henceforth a granger, is preparing to build a large dwelling and barn on his farm at Bishop Creek. The work has been delayed because the deep snows at the mills have made it impossible to procure lumber.

Reduced.

The indications are that, principally from the loss of stock, the Inyo Assessment List is going to be many thousands of dollars lighter than it was last year.

One Good Thing Begets Another.

[From The Los Angeles Express, April 11]

Journalism has its sunshines as well shadows—its roses as well as thorns When a newspaper has earnestly put forward and advocated ideas of practical value, and finds that its thought and labor haae been fruitiul of good results, there is sunshine in the sanctum. The practical effects of our labor in regard to the Cerro Gordo railroad are of the most gratifying order, and we now find ourselves in the position to be able to announce with almost an absolute certainty that initial work on this great enterprise will be commenced at once. Capitalists in San Francisco are anxious to invest in it, and money will not be wanting to push forward the work. But our people should not be backward in doing that which will give them certain control of the road. Every man and woman, according to their means, when the project is in shape to place before the public, should take an interest in the road. Parties are here now from San Francisco, in the interest of large capitalists, to view out the advantages of the raod; and in a few days when the Cerro Gordo incorporators arrive here, corps of engineers and surveyors will be sent out to explore the difficult adjacent country for the best route. In addition to this good news, we have the information to give that ths suggestions of The Express, in relation to the establishment here of reducing, refining and separating words to treat the bullion and ores of our back country mines, have been heeded, and all the chief mine owners and furnace men of Cerro Gordo, have determined to establish such works here. Thus, the certainty that we shall soon have a railroad to Cerro Gordo has given birth to the certainty that great refining works will be established here.

We could go on and speak of several other great enterprises which are in embryo in connection with this railroad project; but we only wish to speak now of those of which we are satisfactorily assured. Make way for the new era of life and prosperity which is now about to dawn on this city and section. Be ready to pull down the adobes of a past and effete civilzation, and replace them with the substantial material of a new, vigorous and progressive one.

Vasquez Pays Poll Tax.

Mike Madigan, while out assessing a few days since, was overhauled on the road by a man whom he says he recognized as the famous Tiburcio Vasquez. Not at all dismayed by the company of this renowned bandit, he rode along with him a whole day, chatting good-humoredly the whole way. As they were about to separate, Vasquez handed Mike $2, saying: "Don Miguel, let it not be said that Vasquez would seek to evade a miserable poll tax, imposed by a Government which has so high an appreciation of his value as to offer $15,000 for his head. Here, let my mite be contributed to maintain so good and liberal an administration." Miguel has officially returned the poll tax of Tiburcio Vasquez. —Los Angeles Express.

? ? ?.

Nullified.

An important case, involving the legality of a late seizure of liquors in Boston, has recently been decided in that city. A State Constable siezed a stock of liquors and arrested the owner for a violation of the prohibitory law. The defendant set up the plea that the goods were siezed in the original packages as imported, and that there were only a few bottles on the bar at the time of siezure, exhibited as samples, and did not have the effect of breaking the original package, nor take it from under the jurisdiction of the Federal law. The Court took the same view of the case, and the jury acquitted the prisoner. This would indicate that prohibitory laws are nugatory in all similar cases.

Officers' Servants.

A bill has been presented in the House prohibiting any officer of the Government from using the labor of Government employes for private purposes. It is supposed to strike at high officials who are in the habit of using United States soldiers and sailors as servants.

The Vote.

On the sixteenth vote for Senator in Massachusetts Curtis (Dem) had 72 and Adams raised to 19. On the seventeenth and last vote, Curtis had 72 and Adams fell to 16; Dawes 82; and Hoar 60.

The Rabbitt Mystery.

The mystery regarding the disappearance of Andrew Rabbitt has been partially cleared up. Mr. Hiskey, of Alida, found the sorrel horse at Belmont, where he had been left in a stable by Rabbitt. From Belmont, Rabbitt went ont by stage to the railroad. So all fears as to his personal safety are at an end —Borax Miner, April 11.

As a further elucidation of the above mystery, we herewith give the substance of a Lida letter addressed to us and from a gentleman in whose word we have perfect confidence: This Andy, alias A. Rabbitt, was in partnership with G. Smalley in a contract on the Brown's Hope mine. They extracted some four tons of first class ore from the mine, and sent it to Columbus for reduction, Rabbitt, the very honest miner, going along to look after it and receive the money. About the time he drew the money extracted from the ore, Hiskey, of Hiskey & Walker, Lida mill, arrived at Columbus about that time, riding the horse referred to, and which horse Rabbitt agreed to ride back to Lida. Instead of that, however, Rabbitt went to Belmont, put his horse in a stable, and ordered him well fed with grain until his return from Austin where, he said, he was going in search of a man who had stolen a horse and a mule. He gave his name at the stable as "A. Abbit." He had with him about $1,000 belonging to his partner, (who is left without a dollar), and the miners who were at work for them. Our informant thinks it probable that Rabbitt has gone to Los Angeles or San Diego, and as he is up to tricks like the foregoing, people wherever he may go, will do well to keep an eye on him. He is described as an Irishman, six feet in height, well built, sharp face, pock-marked, or freckled, light hair, chin whiskers, small mustache, talks, using the brogue, in a smooth, honest sort of a way, frequently saying in conversation, "so I did," and so "he did." He is well known at Mineral Hill, and Virginia City, Nevada and appears to be a number one rascal, so it is comforting to know that "all fears as to his personal safety are at an end."

A Historic Gun.

By direction of Congress the Secretary of War is to deliver to the authorities of Rhode Island a gun which with Battery B, First Regiment of Rhode Island Light Artillery, fought at Gettysburg. It is to be placed in the custody of the Veteran Association of that battery. Its history is thus detailed by The Providence Journal: "The gun did good service in various battles, but its usefulness was cut short on the third day of the battle at Gettysburgh, where the battery was actively engaged, in the following manner: It was being loaded. No. 2 man, Alfred Gardener, of Middletown, had placed the cartridge in the muzzle of the gun and stepped back, and No. 1, Wm. Jones, of Boston, had stepped one pace forward with the rammer, to drive the cartridge home. Just at that moment a solid shot from the enemy's battery cut one of the men in two, struck the muzzle of the gun in such a manner as to fasten the shot there permanently, and glancing, struck and killed the other man. One of the men belonging to the battery, seeing the condition of affairs, at once attempted to drive the charge in with an axe, but failed, so firmly was it held there. It was found that it could not be removed, or if it were removed the gun was spoiled for use; so the gun was sent to West Point, and afterwards to Washington, to be kept as a relic of war. Now in pursuance of this act, it is to be transferred to the State, where it rightfully belongs. It is the intention of Battery B Association to have a grand demonstration in its honor upon its arrival in Rhode Island, in the course of a couple of months."

Notaries' Fees.

The Real Estate Circular says: The Codes reduced Notaries' fees from one dollar to fifty cents, but the present Legislature amended section 798 of the Political Code and advanced the notarial fees as follows:

For drawing and copying every protest for the non-payment or non acceptance of a bill of exchange, note, draft or check, $2; for drawing and serving every notice of non-payment of a note, or of the non-payment or non acceptance of a bill of exchange, order, draft or check, $1; for recording every protest, $1; for drawing an affidavit, deposition or other paper for which provision is not herein made—for each folio, 30 cents; for taking an acknowledgement or proof of a deed or other instrument, to include the seal and the writing of the certificate—for the first two signatures, $1 each; for each additional signature, 50 cents; for administering an oath or affirmation, 50 cents; for every certificate, to include writing the same and the seal, $1.

Johnny Stewart.

The Carson Appeal is pleading for the commutation of Johnny Stewart's sentence of death, to imprisonment for life. Our impression is and has been that he deserves hanging if any man slayer does. The Columbus affair was not his first break in the shooting line, though it was the first man he succeeded in effectually killing. With no interference by the Board of Pardons, next Friday closes his earthly career.

Increased Reward.

Governor Bradley has offered a reward of one thousand dollars each for the apprehenson of Thomas Heffron and Charles Jones and five hundred dollars each for Timothy McNara, William Forrest, David Lynch, T. J. Watson, Elijah Ingraham, E. B. Parsons and John J. Jacks, who escaped from the Nevada State Prison on the 17th of September, 1871. It is said the whereabouts of Heffron and Jones are known and it is though they will soon be recaptured.

Cremation.

The subject of cremation, which has lately been widely discussed by the press, is being brought home to the people of New York City in a practical manner. The Tribune of the 26th ultimo, says: "It will probably surprise most of our readers to know that there are a number of persons in this city really and zealously in earnest in the effort to introduce the practice of burning the dead instead of burying them. These gentlemen, or some of them, held a meeting last night at the office of Dr. Sexton West Thirty-fifth street, with the view of perfecting arrangements either of a large meeting or some other form of demonstration upon the public. They consider the subject solely from a scientific and sanitary point of view, and in that light is certainly a question deserving the fairest hearing."

Simple Timber Preservative.

To render posts or timber, placed in the ground, practically impervious to moisture, and for a long time prevent decay, the following simple recipe has been tried and found to answer the purpose excellently. For fence and gate posts it is particularly recommended: Take linseed oil, boil it, and mix it with charcoal dust until the mixture has the consistence of ordinary paint. Give the posts a single coat of the mixture before painting them, and no farmer, says one who has used it, living to the age of the patriarchs of old will live long enough to see the same posts rotten. The posts or timber should be well seasoned and dry when the paint is applied.

—Missouri has passed a law providing for the punishment of sellers of prize packages by a fine of five hundred dollars and imprisonment for not less than two years or more than five. This looks like encouraging immigration.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE PACIFIC IRRIGATING PIPE, AIR PIPE AND PUMP CO.

San Francisco, Cal.

THE ATTENTION OF AGRICULTURISTS AND farmers, especially, is called to these celbrated pumps already in use throughout the Western States and Pacific Coast, giving perfect satisfaction everywhere. For durability, efficiency and cheapness they cannot be excelled, the material used being cut from the butt log of the most durable timber in use. These pumps are adapted to all climates, and are not affected by heat or cold. They are made of different sizes to raise water in greater or less volume as may be required; and various lengths to operate in wells and cisterns either shallow or of great depth, and are handsomely tin[illegible] and painted to preserve them against exposure. Air pipe for tunnels, mines, etc., made of the same material, are very efficient, cheap and durable.

Redwood,

Agency for Inyo and Mono counties at the Inyo Drug Store, Lone Pine, where full information will be given, orders promptly attended to and pumps may be inspected, having one in good running order in the well.

FOR AN ORDER TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE COUNTY of Inyo, State of California. In the matter of the Estate of CHARLES DUMAY, Deceased.

Order to show cause why Order of Sale of Real Estate should not be made.

It appearing to the Probate Judge of said Court, by the petition this day presented and filed by John A. Lank, the Administrator of the Estate of CHARLES DUMAY, deceased, praying for an order of sale of real estate, that it is necessary to sell the whole of the real estate to pay the expenses and charges of the administration. It is therefore ordered by the Hon. John A. Hannah, County Judge, and ex-officio Probate Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of the said deceased, appear before the said Probate Court on SATURDAY, THE SIXTEENTH DAY OF MAY, A. D. 1874, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court room of said Probate Court at the town of Independence in the County of Inyo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said John A. Lank, Administrator, to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased, as shall be necessary: And that a copy of this order be published at least four successive weeks in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said county.

Dated April 6, 1874.

JOHN A. HANNAH, Probate Judge.

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY CLERK of the County of Inyo.

I, M. W. Hammarstrand, County Clerk of the County of Inyo, State of California, and ex officio Clerk of the Probate Court in and for said County, do hereby certify the foregoing to be a true, full and correct copy of an order duly made and entered upon the minutes of said Probate Court.

Witness, my hand and the seal of said Probate Court, this eighth day of April, A. D. 1874. [SEAL.]

$5 TO $20 PER DAY easily made by any one. We want men, women, boys and girls all over the country to sell our fine steel engravings, chromos, crayon drawings, illuminations, photographs, etc., etc. We now publish the finest assortment ever placed before the public, and our prices are marked down so low as to defy all competition. No one subscribes for a premium giving paper in order to get a picture after seeing our pictures and learning our prices. We have many old agents at work for us who have made canvassing for books, papers, etc, their business for years, and they all report that they can make much more money working for us than at anything else. Our prices are so low that all can afford to purchase, and therefore the pictures sell at sight at almost every house. New beginners do as well as agents who have had large experience, for our beautiful subjects and low prices are appreciated by all. To make large sales everywhere all an agent has to do is to show the pictures from house to house. Don't look for work elsewhere until you have seen what great inducements we offer you to make money. We have not space to explain all here, but send us your address and we will send particulars, free, by mail. Don't delay if you want profitable work for your leisure hours, or for your whole time. Now is the favorable time to engage in this business. Our pictures are the finest and most pleasing in this country, and are endorsed by all the leading papers, including The New York Herald. Those who cannot give the business their entire attention can work up their own localities and make a handseme sum without being away from home over night. Let all who want pleasant profitable employment, without risking capital, send us their addresses at once and learn all about the business for themselves. Address

THE GEM MICROSCOPE.

THE GEM MICROSCOPE IS THE MOST WONDEREUL scientific production of the nineteenth century. It furnishes the power the of a high-priced instrument for a mere trifle, and exceeds in usefulness any microspope ever invented. It reveals the hidden wonders of minute creation—as Eels in Vinegar, Animals in Water, Butterflies' Feathers, the Golden Marrow of a Hair, Insects' Eyes, the Pads, Claws, Joints, and Hairs of a Fly's foot, makes Ropes of fibers of cloth, a Crowbar of a needle's point, and so on indefinitely. It furnishes hours of instruction, entertainment and amusement for young and old and every family should possess it. It is invaluable to students, professors, teachers, physicians, in fact everybody, and especially in the home circle is it a gem. It is cheap and at the same time of great value. It is really of great value to any family if only because it shows the adulterations in food, as sugars, teas, etc., and the qualities of cloths. It also plainly shows Trichina Spiralis, or Pork Worm, whenever it exists in Pork. Price $1 50. Mailed post-paid to any address on receipt of price.

A FAT TAKE FOR AGENTS—MEN and Women, Boys and Girls. Whole time or leisure moments and evenings. It works as well by lamplight as by daylight. Parents buy it for their children. Liberal cash commission paid. Exclusive territory. Congenial employment. It excites the curiosity, which produces a desire to have it, and requires no talking by the agent. Complete outfit mailed post-paid on receipt of $1 50. Circulars and terms free. Send for it and make money. Address,

THE PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD.

THE PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD IS AN Elegant Oil Chromo, Photograph Album and Family Record combined, and as its name indicates is designed for the insertion and preservation of the pictures of the family as well as the names. It is something entirely new, combines beauty and utility, and should ornament every home in the land. All who see it pronounce it superb, and are lavish in its praise. The faces of dear ones appear in a tasteful setting of gold and beautiful colors, and is at once and forever a household treasure. And its low price places it within the reach of all. Send for it and you will be gratified when you shall see it. It is something long needed, but never before attainable. Size 20x15 inches. Price $1 50. Mailed post-paid on receipt of price.

$200 A MONTH clear profit made easily by agents. Agents wanted everywhere. Men and women, boys and girls. Entire time or spare moments; day-time or evenings. Everybody wants it, and every family will buy it. Big cash pay. Pleasant employment. Exclusive territory. In fact the best agency ever offered. Circulars and terms free on application. SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Reddy, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiffs in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars, in U. S. Gold coin, with interest thereon from the Tenth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America, as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this Nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four. [SEAL.]

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND, Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, [SEAL.] this 30th day of January, 1874.

PROSPECTUS.

THE BEST PAPER! TRY IT!

BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, NOW IN ITS 29th year, enjoys the widest circulation of any weekly newspaper of the kind in the world. A new volume commences January 3, 1874.

Its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Facts, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various Arts.

The Scientific American is the cheapest and best illustrated weekly paper published. Every number contains from 10 to 15 original engravings of new machinery and novel inventions.

Engravings illustrating Improvements, Discoveries and Important Works, pertaining to Civil and Mechanical Engineering, Milling, Mining and Metallurgy; Records of the latest progress in the Applications of Steam, Steam Engineering, Railways, Ship Building, Navigation, Telegraphy, Telegraph Engineering, Electricity, Magnetism, Light and Heat.

Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, Teachers, Clergymen, Lawyers and People of all Professions, will find The Scientific American useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College, Academy or School.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several Hundred Engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. Terms $3 a year by mail. Discount to Clubs. Specimens sent free. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with The Scientific American, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of new inventions and sketches examined and advice free. All patents are published in The Scientific American the week they issue. Send for pamphlet, 110 pages, containing laws and full directions for obtaining Patents.

Prospectus for 1874—Seventh Year.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, WHILE ISSUED WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centers of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates" is rapidly yielding to a more discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality, with greater facility for production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

To fully realize the wonderful work which THE ALDINE is doing for the cause of art culture in America, it is only necessary to consider the cost to the people of any decent representations of the productions of great painters.

In addition to designs by members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the refining influences of true art.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1874 will be by Thos. Moran and J. D. Woodward.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attraction any of its predecessors.

PREMIUMS FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1874, will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thos. Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives the Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The differences in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and afford a good display of the artist's scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appearance exact fac-similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial over the signature of Mr. Moran himself.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 20, 1874.

MESSRS. JAMES SUTTON & CO.,

Gentlemen—I am delighted with the proofs in color of your chromos. They are wonderfully successful representations by mechanical process of the original paintings. Very respectfully

(Signed,) THOS. MORAN.

These chromos are in every sense American. They are by an original American process, with material of American manufacture, from designs of American scenery by an American painter, and presented to subscribers to the first successful American Art Journal. If no better because of all this they will certainly possess an interest no foreign production can inspire, and neither are they any worse if by reason of peculiar facilities of production they cost the publishers only a trifle, while equal in every respect to other chromos that are sold singly for double the subscription price of THE ALDINE. Persons of taste will prize these pictures for themselves—not for the price they did or did not cost, and will appreciate the enterprize that renders their distribution possible.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free at New York Office.

For 50 cents extra the chromos will be sent mounted, varnished and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

AGENTS WANTED.

Lincoln and Seward.

[From The S. F. Bulletin.]

That "Death loves a shining mark" is painfully illustrated in the case of Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet. All the great men who were gathered around him, as his constitutional advisers—Stanton, Seward, and Chase—have passed away; but Montgomery Blair and Gideon Welles, the nobodies of the historic group, "still live." The former has passed into decorous obscurity; but the later fights against fate and insists that he shall not be forgotton. If he cannot play the lion he can assume the role of the jackal. If he cannot make the world regard him as a great man, he will take his revenge in defaming the memory of his betters. Hon. Charles Francis Adams having paid a high tribute to Mr. Seward, Mr. Welles becomes unhappy, and finds relief in a series of articles published in The Galaxy, which now appears in a collected form. Ostensibly a defense of Mr. Lincoln against a disparaging remark, the work is really an attack upon Seward. Mr. Welles says Mr. Lincoln's Secretary of State was no statesman. Neither was he versed in the science of diplomacy. He had no influence in the Cabinet. He had very little to do with shaping the foreign policy of the Government. In a word, he was the mere registering instrument of the President, did as he was told, wrote as he was dictated; was generally right when he followed the instructions of his chief, and generally wrong when he followed his own inspirations. There is no use in quarreling with such a man as Gideon Welles. No friend of Mr. Seward has yet thought it worth while to notice his attacks. The simple fact is, that Seward was a great man, and Welles was not. The one was a power in the Cabinet, the other was a cypher. The one was the trusted friend and adviser of Mr. Lincoln; the other was a fussy old man, with more conceit than brains, whose opinions were seldom asked, and whose councils were never followed. That a man of Mr. Welles' towering vanity should be jealous of Mr. Seward was perhaps natural; but that he should attempt to defame him after death shows that he is not only envious but malicious.

The Slaughtering Process in Texas.

[From The Baltimore American.]

Our Baltimore butchers would be as much startled as I was at the wholesale process of killing carried on in the establishment. The ordinary plan of drawing the steer down to the block and striking him on the head with an axe, is too slow for the wholesale butchery carried on here. About one dozen head are driven into a small pen, just sufficiently large to hold that number closely packed, and a gate forced to behind them. This pen has an open slat platform at the top of it, upon which two men are stationed with poles with sharp pointed knives fixed at the end of them. With a rapidity acquired by long practice, they plunge their spears into the necks of the struggling and affrighted animals, cutting the jugular vein, each falls as if struck by an axe. The blood spurts out in streams as from a dozen fountains, and in less than a minute the whole pen full is down quivering in the throes of death, and covered with blood. The door of the pen leading to the rendering room is then thrown open, the animals drawn out in succession, a knife rapidly splits the skin around the neck and down the stomach. A rope is attached to the upper part of the hide by means of a clamp, to the other end of which is a mule, which liesurely walks off down the yard carrying the hide with him, and leaving the carcass still quivering with animal life. A tackle hoists the body up to the level of the mouth of one of the immense cauldrons, and in less time than we have taken to describe the process, it is in the seething, boiling mass. There are four or five of these cauldrons, each large enough to hold a dozen beeves, and they are kept constantly going during the killing season. The tallow is drawn off into large hogsheads, and the remains of these great soup kettles are carted out on what is called the "hash pile, consisting of bones, horns, and the animal matter, from which all the fatty substance has been extracted.

A Victim of Circumstantial Evidence.

[From The Daily Graphic.]

The other day lawyer Johnson went out of town for the afternoon and left the office in charge of a boy. As soon as he had got fairly out of sight the boy hailed Scolville's boy, and bringing him into the office the two set down to a game of seven up. They were playing with great spirit, continually accusing one another of cheating, and getting up to throw books at one another's head, and sitting down again to resume the game, and generally enjoying themselves as much as if they had both been orphans, and there was no apple tree switches in the country. After this had gone on for an hour or two, and lawyer Johnson's boy had nearly "broken" Scoville's boy by winning five of his seven cents, the Rev. Mr. Smiley happened in to ask Mr. Johnson when he ought to have a donation party. The boys were caught and there was no use of lying about it, although lawyer Johnson's boy showed the effects of his legal education by at once beginning to swear that he could prove an alibi when the proper time should come. Good Mr. Smiley thought he would just talk kindly to the boys, and so he set down to the table with them, and picking up the cards began to ask them if they had any mothers, and what those mothers would say to see their sons gambling, and whether they were prepared to die with their hands full of aces and jacks, and how they would explain this matter in a future world. Just then old Biggs came in, "Hello! Playing the boys a little euchre, are you? Don't mind if I take a hand myself." Mr. Smiley replied, very sternly, that he didn't know the game to which he alluded. "Don't know it, hey?" said old Biggs; "well, what was you a-playing, boys?" "Seven-up," answered lawyer Johnson's boy with great promptness. "Well, well, I'm sorry to hear it. Seven up ain't no game for a minister, Mr. Smiley. Euchre, now, is a nice, genteel game: but I never thought you'd play seven-up, and for money, too. If you're goin' to play for money, poker's your best hold. I'll play you myself now for half an hour—ten cent ante and dollar bets. Here's my pile you see"—and that graceless old reprobate pulled out his pocket book and drew up another chair to the table. Mr. Smiley sat speechless, holding the cards in his hand, when in came Scoville and collared his boy. As he dragged him away to execution, he remarked to Mr. Smiley: "So I'm a backslider, am I? All right. After I have done my duty as a parent, I will call on your deacons and ask them what they think of a minister who teaches boys to play cards. Oh, yes! I'm a backslider, I am! To be sure. Of course I am." Uttering these and and other withering sarcasms he withdrew, and the question which now agitates the village is whether old Biggs did lose fifty dollars on a flush to Mr. Smiley, who held a full, or whether Mr. Smiley's four jacks was the hand that really broke old Biggs.

The Efficacy of Prayer.

The Herald has already given from its special correspondent many facts relative to the Bald Mountain terror in North Carolina, but we find the statement of Miles Higgins to the correspondent of The Raleigh News, the earthquake was an answer to prayers sent up by a fervent Baptist preacher, Mr. Higgins, is thus reported:

"It was three days before the first shock that notice was sent over the mountain that Rev. Posey Owensby, a sort of Baptist preacher that lived on top of the mountain, would commence a revival of religion at the school-house, on a certain night. He came, but met only a slim congregation. He kept up his revival three days and nights, without getting up the slightest excitement. On the night of the 9th of February he made a long and fervent prayer, in which he said: "Oh Lord, for three days and nights hath Thy servant endeavored in vain to move the strong hearts of this wicked people. Now we beseech Thee that Thou wouldst, in Thy great and omnipotent power, cause the mountain to shake and tremble beneath their feet, that they might be brought to a consciousness of Thy power and wrath, etc., etc." The people still remained unmoved, but at the hour of 10 o'clock, next day, the mountains shook and trembled beneath the feet of the people. The Rev. Posey was at work clearing up new ground when the shocks came, one after another. Hurrying to the house, he told the old woman to make all possible speed for an immediate evacuation. When the sun rose next morning, Bald Mountain was far in Posey's rear."—N. Y. Herald.

Repent, my love, before you die,
For you must come and sleep with I."

BUSINESS!

Our junior, sadder, wiser, poorer, and undoubtedly meaner, having returned home, the full force of THE INDEPENDENT establishment is again in harness, and holds itself in readiness for the promptest despatch of business. Speaking candidly about the matter, we know of no reason now why the entire county and community should not heartily join in our prolonged effort to make THE INYO a success—such a one as will encourage the proprietors to make it a credit to the region for which it is fighting. This is business. What do you say?

Railroad War in Wisconsin.

Wisconsin is likely soon to afford a solution of the fare and freight question, at least far enough to demonstrate just to what extent powerful, overriding railroad companies are amenable to law. Now, in a few days, a fare and freight bill goes into effect there reducing railroad charges 30 per cent. The railroad companies, under legal advice, have resolved to close all ticket and freight offices in the State when the law is enforced, and consequently to run through each and all without stopping. The people have made a long struggle to get the law they now have, and have become desperate by the soulless acts of the railroad companies. It has cost them more to have an article transported a hundred miles in Wisconsin by railroad, than to have it carried by rail from New York to Chicago. They have had to bleed financially to pay dividends on watered stock; have tried again and again to get relief by building rival lines, and seen each one swallowed up by the giant monopoly which oppressed them. Under these circumstances they will not be likely to yield readily in the conflict about to be inaugurated. They will insist on the line being clearly drawn, defining what obligations public corporations owe to the public in exchange for the privileges they hold.

Sir Charley.

Charles E. De Long, United States Minister to Japan, has received from the Governments of Holland, Peru and Hawaii cordial letters of thanks for services rendered those countries as ad interim representative of their respective interests in Japan, while there as United States Minister. In addition to these, he has been knighted by the King of Hawaii, and by a decree of the King and Council of Holland has been made a Commander of the Order of the "Dutch Lion." These decrees and insignia are now in Mr. De Long's possession, and thus he becomes "Sir Charles De Long."

Two Decades.

Nearly all the distinguished men who took part in the violent political contests of 1850-51, twenty-five years ago, are now dead. They were Clay, Webster, Calhoun, Cass, Buchanan, Douglas, Benton, Seward, Fillmore, Chase, Sumner, Corwin, Bell, Clayton, Everett and Dickenson. This demonstrates what an immense and fatal span in human existence is composed in two dedecades of years. We see hardly a name now that figured in the great contests that we had before the war.

A New Party.

A session of the Industrial Congress of the United States is now holding at Rochester, New York. Representatives from the industrial societies of nearly all parts of the country are in attendance. There seems to be a general purpose towards efforts of co-operation with the Grangers.

Lincoln's Stories.

A small volume of stories, entitled "That Reminds Me," professing to have been told to and by Abraham Lincoln, has recently been published in London. The edition of the work was confined to 250 copies, and greedily sold at three guineas each.

Its Beauties.

It appears that, notwithstanding the eight hour law, a contract system has been obtained in the construction of public buildings by which the laborers are cheated out of all the benefits of the law, and official thieves and favorites get all the good of it.

Senator Elected.

Washburne, the present Governor of Massachusetts, has been at last elected Senator from that State. This is considered a great victory of the anti Ben Butlers.

THE GRAND PROJECT.

Elsewhere will be found a synopsis of the preliminary railroad meeting held in Los Angeles on the 16th. It will be inferred from that that the call did not meet with as hearty a response as the object would seem to demand. Gov. Downey, the Chairman, and a very active advocate of the project, and all other enterprises calculated to develope the natural destiny of his city, was pretty severe upon the lukewarmness of some of the Los Angeles merchants who failed to respond to his call.

But in our view there was no need for any feeling of disappointment on this account. In these days of Credit Mobiliers and Finance Company swindles of all kinds, people whose substantial aid is necessary to the furtherance of any public enterprise, demand a full understanding of the probabilities not only of the beginning but of the outcome. Furores will not build railroads or anything else of a desirable nature, and so far as this project is concerned, it is just as necessary to mark out in advance its financial track by honest and tangible guarantees, as it is to survey and prepare the ground for its rails. It was in this spirit this Los Angeles and Independence railroad was conceived and thus far, in its essential preiminary steps. carried out. The rights of all, incorporation and people, are as carefully and fairly assured as statutory law can do it, and on that point neither can ask any more. That far the people, through their representatives have done all that is required. It now remains for those to whom they have given this valuable franchise to come forward with their guarantees—to definitely state their plans, objects and desires, and who it is that is to carry them out. If this is done clearly and in the same spirit with which the franchise was given, then never fear but that a further call for substantial aid will meet a tangible and hearty response from all the people interested from one end of the road to the other. There are none of common sense but concede the vital importance of this road, or can have any reasonable doubt as to the advisability of the undertaking right now. Until such definite plan is presented it is premature and idle to call public meetings or open subscription books in the hope of either donations, or subscriptions as an investment. With a fixed and satisfactory plan, aid, by both donations and subscriptions, sufficient to put it through can be counted on as certainly as the necessity of the road itself.

Mr. Parker, the junior of this paper, worked hard in planning and securing the passage of this bill, in the firm belief and conviction of its importance to the immediate and future welfare of the district he represented and also to Los Angeles, in no less proportion, but far greater extent. In doing this, men of both localities, calculated to command respect for probity of character in all cases, and the wealth and enterprise of the largest portion, were entrusted with the high duty of carrying out the great project. The names of those, identified, as all are in the destinies of their respective and joint localities, coupled with the guarded framing of their franchise, is undoubtedly a sufficient guarantee to command the respect and substantial assistance of the whole people in both sections. It only remains for these men to come forward with a fixed and satisfactory plan to insure the complete and almost immediate success of the great work. With this done, one single determined business man can do the rest almost alone.

It is but proper perhaps to remark here that the writer of this is named as one of the incorporators, and that in making these suggestions he only advises what he himself is anxious to do to the full extent of his abilities It is unnecessary to state that being a newspaper man these abilities are too limited to be of much practical avail so far as he is concerned, but this lack on his part is not to be in any manner an obstacle in the way of those more fortunate in that respect. But there are men in this company financially able to to complete this work, to their own profit and advantage, almost unaided. Let them go ahead if they will, and the stumbling blocks, if there are such, will be forced out of the way. Incorporate the company, which involves a 10 per cent. cash investment to begin with, and which, with the additional required expenditure of $20,000 on the road before the 28th of next March, will test the ability and intentions, if not the earnestness, of all to whom has been given a privilege they have no right to long hold idle. With that much done, and the work put in the hands of the few who mean business, there is not a shadow of doubt but that the undertaking will at once command all the capital required to put it on a paying basis. This basis will in all probability be secured at the end of the first fifty miles. In other words, we believe that with that much road in operation ready to accommodate the business between the Inyo section and Los Angeles, that its receipts will equal half the cost of building the remainder, and that therefore not over two-thirds of the actual cost of the whole road need to come out of the pockets of its builders. But let that be as it may, it behooves the Inyo members of the company to come forward and reciprocate the efforts of Los Angeles as soon as may be. "Something or nothing and soon," are the alternatives.

RAILROAD MEETING AT LOS ANGELES.

A few of the citizens of Los Angeles met in that city on the night of the 16th to discuss the railroad project. Gov. Downey was called to the chair, and took occasion to express his surprise and regret that so many of the leading business men of the city were absent; that a matter of such vital importance to their city was deserving at least a portion of the time and attention of every inhabitant of this city, and especially the class referred to. It was true the object of this meeting could hardly be considered specific, being simply preliminary to a better understanding as to what course should be adopted as to the road. This was substantially the views expressed by Mr. Ayers, of The Express, who further stated that Los Angeles should come, take and retain a controlling interest in the road.

Mr. Belshaw was present and stated that the road was not in need of moral but of financial support and, proposed that books be opened for subscriptions at once. He stated that the people of Inyo county are very anxious to have the Cerro Gordo road built and would be willing to raise a hundred thousand dollars or two in hard twenty dollar pieces for that purpose. The road if built would have good prospects of securing enough freight at once to pay a good dividend on the outlay. He pointed out the very great advantages this road would be to both Inyo and Los Angeles, and that it was deserving the most substantial encouragement from the citizens of both.

The Governor then made some additional remarks endorsing Mr. Belshaw's views as to the need and importance of the road. He also stated that while in the city of San Francisco he interviewed Mr. W. C. Ralston, President of the Bank of California, in regard to this proposed railroad. Mr. Ralston thought the enterprise was one worth the attention of capitalists, and gave the assurance that his means would be invested in prosecuting the work to speedy completion, and he hoped that other capitalists would also be induced to subscribe liberally to the stock of the company. Gov. Downey, however, thought that the iniatory work of subscription ought to be commenced right here, among those most closely connected and to be benefitted by the construction of the same. He further stated that it was to be a railroad belonging entirely to Los Angeles and Cerro Gordo, and not to be controlled by any other company; that it would probably be a narrow-gauge, and built on as economical a basis as possible.

The distance from this city to Owens Lake is 229 miles, and it was estimated that it would cost about two and a half million dollars, or at the rate of ten thousand dollars per mile to build the road. At the close of the meeting a committee, consisting of Drs. Griffin and Howard and Messrs. Griffith and Ayers, were appointed, empowered to call another meeting for the further development of the question as soon as the incorporators of the road had formed, and the books were ready for subscriptions.

CUBA.

There has been for some time past an undercurrent of belief that the Administration contemplates a change of front on the Cuban question. That belief has lately been strengthened by Carpenter's resolution calling for the recognition of the Cuban Republic. This resolution is believed to have been prepared after a consultation with the President and to have his approval and the support of his friends in Congress. In this connection the fact is recalled that two elaborate editorials have recently appeared in the Washington papers which have confidential relations with the Administration, in which the recognition of Cuba is strongly urged. In the latest of these articles various reasons are given why the Cuban Republic should be recognized, and now is declared to be the opportune moment. It is evident, say those who are posted, however, that such a change of policy as that indicated cannot take place while Fish is at the head of the State Department, and consequently rumors of his speedy retirement are revived.

On the 16th Senator Sargent introduced the following important resolution:

Whereas—It is the clear and undoubted right of any American colony to sever its connection with the mother country, and establish itself as an independent nation, whenever the good of its people require it, and

Whereas—The people of Cuba have declared themselves free and independent of Spain, have established a Government for themselves, and abolished negro slavery, and for more than five years have successfully resisted all efforts of Spain to reduce them to submission and re-establish slavery in that island, and

Whereas—The war between Spain and Cuba has been and is now being conducted with a degree of barbarity shocking to all Christendom, and there is no reasonable prospect that Spain will ever be able to re-establish her authority over the people of Cuba; and

Whereas—In consequence of the proximity of war to the United States, this war has been and is injurious to the people of the United States, and it is evident that a prolongation of the contest will only result in great suffering and bloodshed, to be followed by the ultimate recognition of the independence of Cuba by Spain herself; therefore be it

Resolved—By the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled, That it has become the duty of the United States to recognize Cuba as one of the independent nations of the earth, and that the United States will maintain a strict neutrality between the contesting parties during the further prosecution of the war, and will accord to them belligerent rights and equal privileges in all the ports and places in the United States.

Vasquez at his Old Tricks Again.

Los Angeles is much excited over another of Vasquez' daring exploits, for there appears to be no question but that it was that redoubtable cutthroat himself. On the 16th he and four of his followers robbed a wealthy sheep-owner at his ranch almost in sight of Los Angeles. He put the rancher, an Italian named Rapetto, on an $800 ransom, which money had to be obtained from Temple's bank in the city. A boy, Rapetto's nephew, was ordered to bring the money and say nothing of what was going on at the ranch, on pain of instant death. But circumstances not necessary to detail here gave the authorities the clue, and a strong force started and arrived within a mile and a quarter of the ranch before Vasquez and his gang mistrusted and fled. Though closely pursued, they took time to rob parties they met on the road of several hundred dollars, and then went on to Soledad Canyon. The following is a Chronicle dispatch, dated on the following day:

I have just had a brief interview with Harris, who has returned from the pursuing party. It seems that soon after the pursuit was begun the party was divided, Gen. Baldwin with a portion of the force making a detour to head off Vasquez at the big Tejunga, while Harris and Hartley Sands and Ramon Benito pressed forward on the robbers' trail. Harris said that one of the robbers had an extra horse. All their horses were in excellent condition and well shod, while those of Harris and his men were barefoot and unequal to the task of following the rugged trails on the steep sides of the canyon.

Vasquez himself rides a splendid cream colored American horse, which he occasionally relieves by mounting the fresh horse led by one of his men. The bandit is a superb horseman and travels with first-class stock. One portion of the canyon was supposed to be absolutely impassable for horses, and it was thought Vasquez would have to abandon his animals and perhaps make a stand, but on reaching the place on foot the pursuers found that the Vasquez party had made the perilous ascent up the almost precipitous trail, where a man could hardly trail himself on foot, without dismounting, as was evident from the horse shoe tracks. Baldwin and his party were not in time to head off Vasquez at the Tejunga, and, having effected his escape, he was left free to go up the San Fernando Valley or to move on toward Soledad and perhaps wind up his career by a collision with Harry Morse. Baldwin has not come in yet, but it is probable that the pursuit is abandoned from this side. A rumor is current here, to which I find general credence is given, that for a week or two previous to his last exploit, Vasquez was snugly housed with a Mexican female known by the nickname of "Coneja," or the "Rabbit," living in the Spanish quarters in the eastern portion of this city.

Canada.

An Ottawa dispatch of April 16th says;

The House to-day voted by 126 to 62 to erase from the roll the names of all members who, by reason of political or civil crimes, had failed to take their seats. This disposes of Riel, so far as Parlament is concerned. Votes against the resolution were given mainly by French members. There is great excitement and all sorts of rumors are floating. One is that there will be another rebellion in the Northwest, and that Manitoba will be annexed to the United States; and it is hinted that the people of Quebec will agitate for an entrance into the American Union. The situation is alarming. The French people are very wroth, and the English people are equally determined to prevent the defilement of the House by a fugitive from justice and a man under indictment for murder.

Grangers.

One thousand Grangers appeared in procession at Modesto, Stanislaus county, on the occasion of a celebration, April 15th. Prof. Carr delivered the oration.

Eastern.

The House Committee on Territories will report in favor of admitting New Mexico as a State.

A general strike in New York on the 1st of May is probable if employers insist on the ten hour system.

The House of Representatives passed a bill April 15th, to abolish the mileage of Congressmen, and to pay them instead their actual traveling expenses.

Wilkes, of The Spirit of the Times, was committed to jail in that city April 14th, in default of procuring bail in the suit for libel which Chamberlain has instituted against him.

The Samana Bay Company have decided to demand of the United States Government that it reinstate them in possession of their rights at Samana, from which the new Government of San Domingo has ousted them.

Dockery, the ex-Collector of Customs at Jacksonville, Florida is under trial in Havana on a charge of communicating with the Cuban insurgents. The Judge-Advocate of the Court-martail demands a sentence of death upon Dockery.

Thomas Russell, late Collector of Boston, who was succeeded by the renowned Mr. Simons, has been appointed by the President as United States Minister to Venezuela.

A dispatch from Washington says that the finance bill will, April 16, be presented to the President for his approval, and adds that there are no indications that he will veto it.

Gen. McCook will probably be confirmed as Governor of Colorado, the Senate Committee on Territories having decided to report in his favor.

Pacific Coasters.

A Mrs. Hicxox, of Monteith, Santa Barbara county, was thrown from a buggy while riding to Santa Barbara a few days since, and instantly killed.

The city of Los Angeles is jubilant because two of her citizens, P. W. Dooner and Dr. Preuss, drew prizes in the Louisville lottery.

A Chinese murderer was mobbed and hung at Corinne, April 14.

The first steam fire engine ever manufactured in California was tested in San Francisco recently, and gave satisfaction.

The Supervisors of Santa Clara county have ordered elections in Santa Clara, Redwood and Fremont townships upon the Local Option question.

It is rumored that the Committee of "601" met in Virginia recently for the purpose of putting a stop to the increase of crime. "Six hundred and one's" measures are usually very effective.

The canal known as Chapman's—taking water from the San Joaquin river, above Firebaugh's, and surveyed to strike the Chowchilla river—is under construction by a large number of men.

The Visalia Delta says there is little doubt that the Local Option law will be carried in that municipality, and presumes that it is likely to be carried with still greater force in the other districts of the county, which are now petitioning the Board of Supervisors to call the elections. Drunken officials are contributing largely to this result.

Speaking of the mining outlook in that section, The Belmont Courier says: "In keeping with everything else just now, we are unable to ascertain whether the prospects in the lower levels of our mines are good or bad. The stockholders must abide the time when the trap will be sprung; but when that time will be deponent sayeth not."

War in Arkansas.

The fight for the Governorship of Arkansas between Baxter and Brooks has culminated in a most threatening state of affairs. Dispatches to New York, dated Little Rock, April 15, says:

Brooks has revoked all of Baxter's militia appointments and commissioned F. B. Cotterson as Adjutant and Jack Brooks as Major-General.

Baxter is organizing the militia, and says that he will act vigorously, having plenty of arms at his disposal at the United States Arsenal. Robert Newton will be appointed General. There will probably be bloodshed.

Over 300 men were under arms on the State House grounds last night. The people are arriving en masse from the country. Baxter's troops are concentrating.

It was rumored last night that the commander of the United States troops had received orders to support Baxter.

The State House has been made impregnable, having been intrenched by howitzer. Brooks issued a proclamation in which he claims to have been elected Governor in November, 1872, and was refused the right of contest by the Legislature through the influence of Baxter; that the Supreme Court declared it had no jurisdiction when asked for a writ of quo warranto, but that the Circuit Court had rendered judgement in his favor for the office and salary; whereupon he took the oath of office and possession of the State House. He says Baxter no longer holds the office of Executive, and asks the citizens to rejoice that at last the man who was legally elected has possession of the office. His policy is that of the Reform Party, on whose platform he was a candidate in 1872. He has never departed from those principles and never will. Ballot-box stuffing, which he says was in vogue in 1872, shall cease, and the voice of the people shall govern him so long as he remains the Executive of the State. He will resist all attempts to create strife and bloodshed; will suppress mobs; maintain the supremacy of the State; bow to the decrees of Courts, when adjudicated for or against him. He advises all citizens to keep order and quietly pursue their vocations. He says that while peace and order is preserved their services will not be needed at the Capital, but when needed he will call on them to preserve the peace. Previous to this the President had refused to interfere between the factions in any manner.

OBITUARY.

Died at Bishop Creek, on Monday evening, April 13, WILEY FRANKLIN HUTCHISON, son of Thomas K. and Maggie M. Hutchison, of pneumonia, after one week's severe illness, aged three years five months and twenty-one days.

Our baby is dead! Our little Frankie is no longer a denizen of earth! Three years and a half, lacking but a few days, was all his allotted time here. The dark shadow of the wings of the Angel of Death has hovered around us for some months past, and I had thought that for me he called. I put my worn sandals from off my feet and prepared to cross the dark river.

But death passed me by and plucked our half open bud of promise from the parent stem, and has borne it from mortal sight forever, and filled our hearts and home with sadness.

How much of the love-light of home goes out with a little life like this! None can know but those who have been made to feel the like affliction. No more is heard the prattling tongue and childish voice, or the pattering of little feet; all is hushed, and silence reigns around, while the leaden hours go by, and we listen in vain for the sound of the familiar voice, no more to be heard on these earthly shores.

Only a little grave is left to us—his little bed of clay where rests his mortal form, over which we can only spread a covering of flowers and bedew them with our tears.

Can wisdom ever tell us why our earth should be so filled with little graves? Is it wise design or is it our ignorance that takes away our children in life's bright morning?

Why is the vail of futurity so closely drawn before our pathway here that we seem to stumble at every turn, all unprepared for coming events?

Shall we ever wisely know and be able to understand the causes and control the issues of life and death? Will our severed lives yet be found one unbroken chain with no missing links? And shall the great questions which death forces upon the mind of, "Whence are we, and whither are we going?" never be fully solved on this side the tomb? The only answer we get to these questions of the inner life is the whisperings from the angel of Hope of a life beyond this, the pattern or design of which we here see only the wrong side.

"Though severed be love's tender ties,
Still on the broken chords we trust
To tune our harps with melodies
Ere grief has eaten them with rust.
For hope will shed a glimmering ray
Of light on pleasure's ruined shrine,
As mouldering columns still look gay
When sunbeams on them shine.

"The gloom may pass—the shadows fade,
And the sunlight only seem to reign,
And still there is a lingering shade—
A fear that clouds will come again.
Life wears away 'mid smiles and tears—
The wedding peal the funeral toll;
But though o'ershadowed still by fears,
Hope is the sunlight of the soul."

L. HUTCHISON.

Bishop Creek, April 17, 1874.

From Sylvania.

A private letter to Col. Geo. C. Alexander, dated at Log Springs, Sylvania District, April 8, contains some items of interest, to-wit: We landed our cargo here yesterday at noon, put the little pack train out to grass, and took a little skirmish to the nearest mines. As we had no time to sink many shafts or run many tunnels, we could not tell much about the length, width or depth of the mines, but from the looks and general appearance of things, this is a wonderful mineral belt. Rich ore is piled up around the cabins as specimens, and is of every hue, grade and color, most of which proves that there is something here of interest, if once developed. The galena ores are mostly gray carbonates some very rich sulphides and chlorides. Timber is abundant, and consists principally of pinyon pine; some very fine springs are in the locality, and vegetation is starting nicely on the south hill sides, while snow still remains on the north. The few prospectors here are out early and late, and, they say, find new deposits almost daily, but little work is done outside of prospecting. I was shown a salt sack full of gold specimens from a distance of only eight miles from this place, some of which seem to form about one fifth of the bulk in gold, and must be exceedingly rich. Recent discoveries of gold have been made, as I have been told, but I cannot learn the locality, though it is not far off. As soon as I become better posted in the run of things here, I will give you the particulars of the camp and surroundings.—Borax Miner.

—"Don't prevaricate, sir!" thundered a Columbia Judge to a witness from the mines. "Can't help it, Judge," answered the miner. "Ever since I got a kick from a mule that knocked my teeth out, I prevaricate a good deal."

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

More of the Railroad.

We are indebted to Maj. Egbert, who is now in Los Angeles, for some interesting items in relation to the railroad and other matters of more immediate local importance. There was a meeting, (subsequent to the one mentioned elsewhere) on the 18th at Downey's Bank, and a partial, temporary organization effected. F. F. P. Temple, Esq., was elected President, Gov. Downey Treasurer and Chas. E. Veane, Secretary of the company, and books for subscriptions are to be opened soon. W. C. Ralston and other wealthy men of San Francisco are to be added to the incorporators. The capital stock of the company is fixed at $2,200,000, or $10,000 per mile the distance from Los Angeles to Independence being set at 220 miles. It is now proposed to set to work at once to find a better and a shorter route across the San Fernando range than the one through which the Stanford road is to run. The wood and lumber on the proposed route for forty miles will afford a business equal to the cost of the road that distance. Without further remark upon this matter at present, the Major assures us that the whole outlook for this section, railroad included, is of the most encouraging character. There is no question but that active work will be begun in Waucoba now in a very short time. Brady is also in Los Angeles, and with the Major will probably return here in two or three weeks.

On Dit.

The San Francisco parties principally interested in the respective properties intimate that during the Summer the Silver Sprout company will remove and rebuild their mill, the new feature thereof being the Paul process of reducing ores. A strong effort has been and is being made by some of the owners to resume operations on the Kearsarge which it is to be hoped may prove successful. A working tunnel, superceding the tramway and tapping the mine at an immense depth, is among the things to be contracted for—a compressed-air, diamond drill arrangement to be used in rapidly prosecuting the work. Paul Neumann, the attorney representing some of the creditors of the Lida property, is understood to have proposed to our old friend D. P. Pierce to come over and start up that concern. Having received the reports almost direct, we give them for what they are worth.

Royal Johnny Stewart.

Yesterday being the time set for the execution of the young murderer who signs himself as above, nothing save a desperate escapade can have saved him from that fate. When informed that the Nevada State Board of Pardons had declined to commute his sentence, he simply remarked: "Well, many a man has fell at my bullet"—which is an undoubted fact. He shortly afterward indited a letter to Sheriff Swift, of Carson, in a tone that would be affecting were his true character unknown. Afterwards, however, he assumed a nonchalant, devil may-care air, satisfying all who saw him that he certainly calculated upon some event occurring to prevent an unpleasant hanging scene. An account of the finale, with some sketches of his career will be given next week.

School Trustees.

School Superintendent J. W. Symmes is officially notified that the time for the election of school Trustees has been changed from the last Saturday of April to the last Saturday in June. And, talking about trustees, the good people of Independence will please take notice that there will be at least one vacancy to fill with a new victim, the Right Hon. P. A. Chalfant, the writer hereof, and a school Trustee for lo, these years, having decided to give somebody else a show at the public school crib. There will be a full Board to elect here the next election.

Mono District Court.

Judge Reed commenced court at Bridgeport on the 20th instant. The case most prominent was that of the trial of Ernest Reusch for the killing of E. H. Erickson, at Silver Mountain, the venue being changed to Mono from Alpine. There was a woman at the bottom of the affair, superinducing the use of a shot-gun by Reusch, while laboring under an attack of "intellectual insanity," as it is now termed. A later item, elsewhere given, sets forth that this unfortunate man was tried at other hands.

Inyo Drug Store.

Parties throughout the county needing a prescription, or drugs or medicines of any sort can depend upon receiving full satisfaction by calling upon or addressing Dr. Gelcich of the Inyo Drug Store, Lone Pine. The doctor fully understands the business, as well as numerous languages, and is a highly educated gentleman.

Question and Answer.

An old gentleman living close by one of the big cracks made a couple of years since, propounds and answers a geographical query thus: "How is the earth divided?" Answer—"By earthquakes."

A Social.

As will be seen by advertisement elsewhere the Independence Social Club will give a social at Masonic Hall May Day evening, and everybody and his wife are invited to attend.

Close of the Round Valley School.

A friend writing from Round Valley informs us that the eight months' term of the public school of that district, C. Wainright, teacher, closed March 17. Mr. Wainright has reason to be proud of his success as a teacher, particularly in this: That he succeeded in infusing such a zeal and emulative spirit into the hearts of his pupils as to make each feel that the credit of the school devolved almost exclusively upon his or her individual conduct and advancement. The teacher and pupils received the encouragement of numerous visits, particularly from the ladies of the district, a point worth noting. There were six Rolls of Honor and three beautifully bound books distributed by Mr. Wainright, and some fine flower paintings donated by Prof. A. F. Stockley, and a basket of fruits by Mr. Thos. E. Jones. The pupils receiving testimonials for high standing were: Charles Jones, first prize; Lillis Olds, second; Mary Jones, third; Sarah Shipley, fourth; Deborah Jones, fifth; and Millie Hilton, Roll of Honor. "At the close," says our correspondent, "Mr. J. E. Jones made some instructive and interesting remarks, and as the gathering broke up one could see the children involuntarily lingering upon the threshold, as if there were endearing and enticing influences clinging around they were loth to dispel; it was like severieg the bonds of the family circle."

The Kearsarge.

We acknowledge a visit from Superintendent G. W. Todd of the Kearsarge. Mr. Todd informs us that the mines are now looking and panning out as well as at any time in the past two years, but that the deep snows interpose serious obstacles to profitable work just at this time. Bad, however, as this Winter has proved, it has not been near so disastrous to the Kearsarge interests as the one which gave it such a backset two years ago. Then it went behind in both principal and interest—now, under Superintendent Todd's management, it at least holds its own. He is only working four men at present, and this number is not likely to be increased until things take such a shape as to cut off all danger of any clamor about "back pay"

Way Up.

Hay commands $65 per ton at Benton, and scarce at that. The construction of the Round Valley cut off road to that place finds a supporting argument in such a fact as this, and the project should have favorable agitation. It would save twenty-five miles of rough traveling to the farmers of that region in getting their produce to a certain cash market, and would be of the greatest value to our stage men and the county generally.

Personal.

Harry Clauson is general boss of the Winters mine, situated in the Palmyra Mountains, some 25 or 30 miles from Carson, Nevada. The mine is said to be a big one, and the ore, which closely resembles the galena of Cerro Gordo, is to be shipped to Melrose, on the C. P. R. R., near Oakland, for reduction.

Shake Up.

About 3. P. M., Thursday last, there was quite a little earthquake at Lone Pine—a noise and a bump, like a barrel dropping from a slight elevation, rolling across the floor and back again. It is a little remarkable that nothing of this shake was noticed here only 18 miles north.

Lager and Soda.

We learn that Messrs. Walters and Kurtz, near Camp Independence, are preparing to supply the thirsty with bottled lager and soda water, all of their own manufacture. They will begin soon after the 1st of May, and following those as soon as may be with bottled ale and porter.

Silver.

"Benton bits," or trade-dollars, are beginning to form the staple circulating medium in this and counties adjoining us on the north. P. S.—Stage drivers generally will cheerfully convey them to this office, where the sender has had value received.

Hospital Matters.

Parties submitting sealed proposals to the Board of Supervisors for the care of the indigent sick of the county, at their next meeting, will be required to give a list of their bondsmen in the event of the county's acceptance of their bid.

Hung.

By reference to our Benton letter it will be seen that some people thought it would be cheaper and better to hang Reusch, the Alpine murderer, at once, than go to Bridgeport at so much expense of time and trouble to give him a show under the law.

The May Party.

There will be quite a delegation from Bishop and elsewhere to attend the May Day Pic Nic, to be given under the auspices of the Good Templars of this place. It should be understood that all are invited to participate.

As Yet.

The saw mills are still in a state of peaceful quietude, on account of the snow. H. L. Childs and another Indian are running the Black Rock, all by themselves.

For New Mexico.

W. R. Neal, late of Ventura county, left this locality yesterday for New Mexico, taking with him about 900 head of horses, all grades.

Religious Services.

Rev. E. H. Orne will preach here at 7:30 P. M. to-morrow.

Murder and Robbery.

News comes of a most cowardly murder committed three or four days since at Indian Wells. It appears that a teamster, whose name we are not able to give, had been discharged from Belshaw's employ. Going to the station at the Wells, kept by one Bridger, the discharged teamster walked into the kitchen and deliberately shot the Chinaman cook dead. There appears to have been no provocation whatever for the murder other than a manifestation of a coward's animosity and instinct against the race, together with a desire to secure to himself a bloody passport into the ranks of the professional cutthroats infesting that portion of the State. With drawn revolver he then made Bridger examine the dead Chinaman's pockets, from which he obtained some $7 in all. This sum, together with all he had in his own pockets, about $50 more, Bridger had to hand over to the murdering scoundrel, who immediately started down the road toward Los Angeles. In a short distance he met a peddling wagon, from which, under force of arms, he took one of the best horses, and rode away. Some think he is one the Vasquez gang, playing spy as a teamster, but this is not very probable.

The May Term.

District Court will commence at this place on the first Monday in May. A venire of 100 trial jurors has been ordered for the term.

OUR BENTON CORRESPONDENCE.

BENTON, April 22, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: April has wrought marvelous changes here. Within the past few weeks a good dray and drayman could have piled up a few trade dollars in

THE FLITTING BUSINESS:

Constable Lewis has changed his base again, moving to the premises southwest of Mack's mill; Mr. Jeffreys, who was formerly in the employ of Hightower & Sanguinetti as book-keeper, has been employed by Mr. Mack, and has moved into a room in the rear of the store of the latter; Mr. James Tregambo has fitted and now occupies the center rooms of the "La Salle House," opposite the Partzwick Hotel; Mr. Hermon Steblin, the landscape painter, has moved his studio out into the commons, where peace and quietness prevails; many other changes have gone into effect where the parties have been largely benefitted. Mr. Creaser's mountain clippers landed all of here last week in good order. The Borax Miner of the 18th, speaking of the Williams mill says, "Mr. Wickland, the builder, has all the timbers on the ground and framed." The same paper may tell its readers in the next issue that, "Mr. Wickland has the mill completed and rolling out bullion." This is all very fine; but building quartz mills and manufacturing are absolutely two distinct professions; nevertheless the work is progressing finely. The husk for the driving machinery will be put in place in a few days, and the boiler is set and partly walled in.

IMPROVEMENTS.

Mr. E. C. Kelty, one of the enterprising spirits of Benton, has got under way of construction a large two-story frame building, 24x46 feet, fronting on Main street. The basement contains two sitting rooms in front, and a main hall and bed rooms in the rear. The second floor will be kept as a free hall for the Summer amusements. G. W. Cross and E. R. Minor have purchased the old Morrison establishment of Mr. Kelty for the purpose of opening business in the merchandise and liquor trade.

Miss S. B. Hughes, the teacher of the public school in this place, will bid us adieu by giving a social party here in behalf of the pupils on Friday evening next in the school house, where the roll of honor will be read in public, and the proper rewards donated, according to classification of grade and merit, by a chosen committee.

LYNCH LAW.

News of rather a startling nature reached us to-day by one of the returned jurors from Bridgeport. It appears that the prisoner (Reusch) from Alpine county, in charge of the proper officer, bound for Bridgeport, this county, where said prisoner was to have an impartial trial, was overtaken last Friday, the 17th, at the Carson river bridge, Alpine county, by an infuriated mob of masked men, numbering some twelve or fourteen. The prisoner was demanded of the officer, and after some parleying taken by force and the officer told to drive on. The prisoner was taken to the bridge and hung, and after he was dead, cut down and set afloat down the river. The next day the body was searched for and found, an inquest was held, and so ends the matter.

CONTRIBUTOR.

A Fable.

"The millennium has come," said the lion to a lamb; "suppose you come out of the fold, and let us lie down together, as it has been foretold we should." "Been to dinner to day?" inquired the lamb. "Not a bite of anything since breakfast," was the reply, "except a few lean swine, a saddle or two, and some old harness." "I distrust a millennium," continued the lamb thoughtfully, "which consists solely of our lying down together. My notion of that happy time is that it is a period in which pork and leather are articles of diet, but in which every respectable lion shall have as much mutton as he can consume. However, you may go over yonder sunny hills and lie down until I come."

Brief.

Hon. Creed Haymond has favored us with a copy of his lengthy argument before the Supreme court in the case of Houghton, Appellant vs. Austin, Tax Collector of San Francisco, Respondent. Mr. Haymond appeared for the State in support of the constitutionality of the revenue law of California, but the Court couldn't see it in that way.

—Simpson—Brown has failed. Jones—Has he, indeed? Well, I'm glad of it, he's worked hard for a good many years, and it's time he began to lay off and take things easy. I suppose he will set up a carriage now, won't he?

THE PACIFIC IRRIGATING PIPE, AIR PIPE AND PUMP CO.
San Francisco, Cal.

THE ATTENTION OF AGRICULTURISTS AND farmers, especially, is called to these celbrated pumps already in use throughout the Western States and Pacific Coast, giving perfect satisfaction everywhere. For durability, efficiency and cheapness they cannot be excelled, the material used being cut from the butt log of the most durable timber in use. These pumps are adapted to all climates, and are not affected by heat or cold. They are made of different sizes to raise water in greater or less volume as may be required; and various lengths to operate in wells and cisterns either shallow or of great depth, and are handsomely turned and painted to preserve them against exposure. Air pipe for tunnels, mines, etc., made of the same material, are very efficient, cheap and durable.

Redwood,

Agency for Inyo and Mono counties at the Inyo Drug Store, Lone Pine, where full information will be given, orders promptly attended to and pumps may be inspected, having one in good running order in the well.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday,.....April 25, 1874.

—Hon. S. S. Cox was very "sarkastieal," he moved in the House of Representatives that "each one-dollar green back note now in circulation shall be a legal tender for three dollars, and each two, five and ten-dollar greenback note shall be, and is hereby declared a legal tender for three times its present value."

—A correspondent of The Winchester News says one of the most important acts so far passed by the Virginia Legislature is "an act for the protection of deer in Frederick county," and adds, "Gen. Washington killed the last deer in Frederick county over a hundred years ago."

—A naughty little boy, blubbering because his mother would not let him go down to the river on the Sabbath, upon being admonished said, "I didn't want to go down swimmin' with 'em, ma. I only wanted to go down to see the bad little boys drown for going in swimmin' on a Sunday."

—"Will the Coming Man Steal?" is the suggestive title of an editorial in a New York paper, which, after enumerating a fortnight's frauds throughout the country, thus answers its conundrum, "We believe he will—if there's anything left to get away with surreptitiously."

—A lawyer in Bucyrus, Ohio, stated at a temperance meeting that having seen his father killed by the carelessness of a drunken man, he took a solemn oath never to drink again. "Since that time," he continued, "I never have broken that oath, at least not very much!"

—"Breakfast for ninety-nine," said a waiter to a verdant clerk at a hotel not long ago. "Thunder!" said the clerk; "we can't do it." The waiter explained that ninety-nine was the number of the room.

—A Texas gentleman four years ago bought a sow and four pigs for $5, branded them, and turned them loose. He now enjoys the proud distinction of being the "Hog King" of Texas.

—A clergyman who has the bad habit of adding "ah" to many of his words, told last Sunday of those who had been brought up on the Lord's side-ah.

—In a recent trial in Baltimore it was shown that patent medicine men can get almanac certificates of the wonderful virtues of their medicines for fifty cents per head.

—A boy of sixteen years of age left Danbury eight years ago with the loftiest of aspirations. He said he would make people open their mouths. He is now a dentist in Wisconsin, —Of their local crusaders The Leavenworth Times feelingly pharaphrases: "They drink not, neither do they sin: yet Solomon in all his glory was not a raid like one of these."

—In Denmark it has been made illegal to manufacture matches other than those which will ignite only when struck on specially prepared surfaces.

—Gen. John B. Hood of the late C. S. A. is doing his best to repopulate the South. He has been married five years, and is now the father of seven children.

—A Western moralist thinks that the two greatest evils of the day are "intoxication and costly funerals."

—A Louisville reporter had what he called "a pleasant conversation with an amiable undertaker" on the subject of cremation.

—Chicago pork packers have handled 1,483,389 hogs this season.

Application for Patent.

NOTICE NO. 21.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE, Independence, Cal., February 21, 1874.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT JOHN R. HUGHES and M. W. Hammarstrand have made application for patent for eight hundred linear feet of the WITTIKINT Silver Quartz Mine, lode, vein or deposit, being 400 feet northwest and 400 feet southeast from the main shaft and point of discovery on said mine, with surface ground 100 feet wide, being 50 feet on each side of said mine or lode, measuring from the center of the claim, situated and being on unsurveyed land in Township 16 south, Range 39 east, in Cerro Gordo Mining District, Inyo county, California, said Wittikint Mine being described on the plat and field notes on file in this office as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the shaft on said lode at point of original discovery; thence with a variation 15 degrees, 40 minutes east, running south 55 degrees, east six (6) chains and six (6) links, to a post set in mound of rock marked, "A. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence returning to point of original discovery at shaft; thence with a variation 15 degrees 40 minutes east, running north 55 degrees, west six (6) chains and six (6) links, to a post in mound of rocks marked, "B. L. W. S. Q. M."

SURVEY OF EXTERIOR BOUNDARIES:

Beginning at post "A. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence with a variation 15 degrees 40 minutes east, running north 35 degrees, east seventy-six (76) links to a post in mound of rocks marked, "P. 1 W. S. Q. M.;" thence north 55 degrees west twelve (12) chains and twelve (12) links to a post marked, "P. 2 W. S. Q. M.;" thence south 35 degrees west seventy-six (76) links to post "B. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence one (1) chain and fifty-two (52) links to post marked "P. 3 W. S. Q. M.;" thence south 55 degrees east twelve (12) chains and twelve (12) links to post marked, "P. 4 W. S. Q. M.;" thence north 35 degrees east seventy-six (76) links to post marked, "A. L. W. S. Q. M., the point of beginning, containing one (1) and eighty-five hundreths (85-100) acres. Said Wittikint Silver Quartz mine connecting with the surveys of public lands, giving a course and distance from station "P. 4 W. S. Q. M.," to corner on the 4th standard parallel south, common to sections 3 and 4, Township 17 south, Range 38 east, Mount Diablo base and meridian line, south 46 degrees 49 minutes west five hundred and fifteen (515) chains, thereby locating said mine in Township 16 south, Range 39 east. Said mine or vein is situated about one and a half mile east of Buena Vista mountain, and about two miles easterly from the town of Cerro Gordo, being 400 feet originally located by C. F. R. Hahn, on the tenth day of November, 1868, record of which was made in Book "D," Page 49, and 200 feet first east extension thereof, originally located by John Patterson, on the twelfth day of April, 1869, record of which was made in Book "D," page 116, and 200 feet first west extension thereof, originally made by W. A. Greenly, on the twelth day of April, 1869, record of which was made in Book "D," page 109, records of Cerro Gordo Mining District, Inyo county, California. For a more perfect description of said lode or mine see the official plat and field notes on file in this office, and the plat posted on the claim itself,

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Beerty, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiffs in the District court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars, in U. S. Gold coin, with interest thereon from the Tenth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America, as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this Nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy four.

[SEAL] M. W. HAMMARSTRAND, Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, [SEAL] this 30th day of January, 1874

$5 TO $20 PER DAY easily made by any one. We want men, women, boys and girls all over the country to sell our fine steel engravings, chromos, crayon drawings, illuminations, photographs, etc., etc. We now publish the finest assortment ever placed before the public, and our prices are marked down so low as to defy all competition. Any one subscribes for a premium giving paper in order to get a picture after seeing our pictures and learning our prices. We have many old agents at work for us who have made canvassing for books, papers, etc., their business for years, and they all report that they can make much more money working for us than at anything else. Our prices are so low that all can afford to purchase, and therefore the pictures sell at sight at almost every house. New beginners do as well as agents who have had large experience, for our beautiful subjects and low prices are appreciated by all. To make large sales everywhere all an agent has to do is to show the pictures from house to house. Don't look for work elsewhere until you have seen what great inducements we offer you to make money. We have not space to explain all here, but send us your address and we will send particulars, free, by mail. Don't delay if you want profitable work for your leisure hours, or for your whole time. Now is the favorable time to engage in this business. Our pictures are the finest and most pleasing in this country, and are endorsed by all the leading papers, including The New York Herald. Those who cannot give the business their entire attention can work up their own localities and make a handsome sum without being away from home over night. Let all who want pleasant profitable employment, without risking capital, send us their address at once and learn all about the business for themselves. Address

THE GEM MICROSCOPE.

THE GEM MICROSCOPE IS THE MOST WONDERFUL scientific production of the nineteenth century. It furnishes the power the of a high priced instrument for a mere trifle, and exceeds in usefulness any microscope ever invented. It reveals the hidden wonders of minute creation—as Eels in Vinegar, Animals in Water, Butterflies' Feathers, the Golden Marrow of a Hair, Insects' Eyes, the Pads, Claws, Joints, and Hairs of a Fly's foot, makes Ropes of fibers of cloth, a Crowbar of a needle's point, and so on indefinitely. It furnishes hours of instruction, entertainment and amusement for young and old and every family should possess it. It is invaluable to students, professors, teachers, physicians, in fact everybody, and especially in the home circle is it a gem. It is cheap and at the same time of great value. It is really of great value to any family if only because it shows the adulterations in food, as sugars, teas, etc., and the qualities of cloths. It also plainly shows Trichina Spiralis, or Pork Worm, whenever it exists in Pork. Price $1 50. Mailed post-paid to any address on receipt of price.

A FAT TAKE FOR AGENTS—MEN and Women, Boys and Girls. Whole time or leisure moments and evenings. It works as well by lamplight as by daylight. Parents buy it for their children. Liberal cash commission paid. Exclusive territory. Congenial employment. It excites the curiosity, which produces a desire to have it, and requires no talking by the agent. Complete outfit mailed post paid on receipt of $1 50. Circulars and terms free. Send for it and make money. Address,

The Mining Bills in Congress.

The mining community is still very much exercised over the proposed amendments to the mining law, now being discussed in Congress. Resolutions have been adopted at several miners' meetings in different sections of the country, deprecating any attempt to change the existing laws, and more especially where the amendments will compel miners to patent their mines whether they want to or not.

During the debate on the Negley amendment in Congress, Mr. Luttrell made the following remarks about our mining patent system: What does it cost to acquire title to land under the present law? In the first instance, a man must place $500 worth of improvements upon his claim; then he must deposit with the Surveyor-General from thirty-five to one hundred dollars, as I can show to your satisfaction has been done in some three hundred cases, in many instances $100 were paid, and the average was $50 to a claim. Then the miner must go and make his contract with the Deputy Surveyor-General, who charges him one hundred dollars for surveying his claim of probably one acre, and making a plat of the same. Then he must advertise in the public prints, which costs him from forty to a hundred dollars more. Then he must deposit with the land officer from twenty five to fifty dollars in each case. Then he must pay a Notary Public some fifteen dollars. Then his personal expenses amount to from fifty to a hundred dollars. Thus he has paid out on an average, provided he meets with no litigation, eight hundred or a thousand dollars. Of that amount how much does the Government receive? Only two dollars and fifty cents, while the poor miner has been obliged to expend nearly $1,000, two thirds of which goes into the hands of officials, and then, if his claim prove a failure, the miner is bankrupt.

How is it with the rich men? In one county in my district, speculators have gobbled up 2,250 acres of the best mining lands in one body, which is now owned by these speculators, and will be worked by coolie labor to the exclusion of the honest miner. How do they manage to acquire so much valuable land? I will tell you. They take $500 worth of hydraulic pipe, and lay it upon twenty acres, and then make affidavit that they have put so much improvement upon the land. The next day another one of the ring hauls that hydraulic pipe upon another twenty acres; then a similar affidavit is made; and so they will go on until they occupy the entire country.

On three hundred claims within the last year, the requirements of the law have forced us to perform $162,500 worth of labor. As a further requirement, we have paid in cash about $113,750, making an aggregate of $276-250 to acquire title to probably three hundred acres of land. Of this expenditure the Government received only $812.

The Senate Committee on Mines and Mining has referred the Mineral Patent bill, together with the amendments, to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and Commissioner Drummond has prepared a report, in which he says both the amendments proposed in behalf of Sutro are injudicious and unwise; that the Holman amendment is not needed, because the bill as it passed the Senate does not affect Mr. Sutro's interests at all, and the Negley amendment would be unjust to the miners, and would effect a total change in the policy of the laws governing the mineral lands. It is the policy of the law that miners should not be compelled to apply for patents until they need them to protect their rights. As far as Sutro is concerned, there is no necessity for this amendment to protect him in his rights. He is now secure, whether the miners take out patents or not, being protected by existing laws.

The bill will not come up for consideration in the Committee until the 20th of this month.

The Traffic of the New Railroad.

[From The Los Angeles Express, April 20]

The incorporators of the L. A. & I. Railroad have organized and elected their officers, and their subscription books will probably soon be opened. The first object will be to have paid into the treasury the ten per cent required by law on one thousand dollars per mile of the two hundred and fifty miles of the road to be built. This will enable the company to make the preliminary surveys, the first step of practical necessity in the road. All the passes out from this valley, and the various approaches from the other side of the mountains will be carefully examined by competent engineers, and from their reports the company will determine the shortest exit commercially in connection with the best line of way traffic. Then, we presume, an assessment will be called in and the work be vigorously pushed ahead. It is hardly to be doubted that the company will determine on a narrow-gauge. This style of road is so much more economical in construction that there will hardly be any hesitancy in adopting it. Besides, the entire system of roads which will grow up in the interior country, reaching from New Mexico and Colorado to Montana, Idaho and Washington Territory, is destined to be a narrow gauge system, and it will prove of incalculable advantage to make our back country road conform to that system. Ten thousand dollars per mile is considered a very liberal estimate to make for a narrow-gauge, including rolling stock, while a wide-gauge costs about two-and a-half times that amount. But let us say the Cerro Gordo road will have cost when finished and in operation, $3,000,000, is there a present and prospective business to justify that outlay? We are in position to answer in the affirmative. If we should merely count on the traffic and certain developments of the region of country which is immediately to be tapped, without taking into view the fact that a railroad from Independence will create new traffic and attract an immense trade beyond the terminus, which is now finding its way by lengthy wagon carriage to the Central Pacific, we shall find that we have a basis of fair business estimate to go upon which would well reward the expenditure. We give the following figures showing the railroad freight which can be and is now furnished by a group of ten districts in the belt of country to be tapped by the projected road. They are carefully prepared by a gentleman who is perfectly familiar with the subject, and are as follows:

TONS PER MONTH FROM:

Slate Range, ore	100
Panamint, ore	100
Cerro Gordo, bullion	750
Independence, ore	100
Waucoba, bullion	750
Lida Valley, ore	100
Silver Peak, ore	100
Hot Springs, ore	100
White Mountains, ore	100
Columbus, ore	100
Total tons per month	2,300

At the rate of ten cents per mile, as allowed by the bill this freight would yield a revenue of $59,500 per month. If we allow only one-fourth of this revenue for the up-traffic and passengers, we would have a total of $71,875 per month, or gross earnings for the first year of $862,500. Charging $100,000 for the working of the road (considered ample by experts) we would have left net earnings of $762,500, which would be equal to about twenty five per cent interest on a capital of $3,000,000. Now, we have merely here grouped a traffic which it is well known only awaits the opening of the road to find its way to a profitable market. The exportation of Cerro Gordo is a fact. Its production of bullion can be doubled with proper transportation facilities; and the capacity of Waucoba we fully set forth in a review of that district last Saturday. Now, if the Engineers should determine that a road could be run so as to tap the Holcomb Valley region, we would have an immense railroad traffic ready at hand at the very start. But why dwell on one or a dozen districts? This road will open an empire, and pour its treasures into our laps.

Mrs. Stowe in Ashantee.

Stanley, the correspondent of The New York Herald, who accompanied the expedition of Sir Garnet Wolseley to Coomassie, thus describes one of the curiosities found in the palace of King Koffee:

But one of the most curious things of all found was an old brass snuff or tobacco box, on which was engraved the unmistakable features of Mrs. Beecher Stowe, with the name of "Mrs. Stowe" engraved upon it. There were certainly the outlines of the face of the famous authoress of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and the ringlets hanging down on each side of the face—a true portrait, I suppose, of Mrs. Stowe as she appeared twenty or thirty years ago. The gentleman who picked up this antique box intends to present it to the British Museum.

—A member of the Ohio Legislature recently visited the State Penitentiary, and while there had his hair cut by the prison barber. While undergoing the tonsorial process a party of lady and gentlemen visitors looked in, and the legislator was made happy by catching such remarks as, "Ugly look about the eyes," "Vicious mouth," "Looks capable of any wickedness," "Wonder what he did," &c.

It Means Business.

[From The Los Angeles Herald, April 22.]

The organization of the Los Angeles & Independence Railroad Company, and the alacrity with which our leading citizens are taking stock in the enterprise, evinces an earnestness and determination which almost insures the speedy construction of the road. It is one of the very best schemes for the prosperity of Los Angeles and the development of the mineral wealth of Inyo county that could be undertaken, and it is a source of gratification to know that the entire press of this county and the community to a man, are working in unison for its advancement. The building of the road will open up a large section of country and secure its trade to this city. It will furnish transportation for and render valuable millions upon millions of tons of ore that is now considered almost valueless. It will give cheap and rapid transportation to an immense freighting business. It will run through the center of an almost exhaustless supply of oak timber, and give us an abundance of cheap fuel. It will secure to this city the trade of all the upper portion of the San Joaquin Valley, and will, by connecting with the railroad soon to be completed to Sumner, near Bakersfield, give Los Angeles and her valley, railroad communication with San Francisco. It is probable that Stanford & Co. will complete the Southern Pacific on to this city very soon, but in case they should not the road to be built by our citizens will secure the trade and open an out let by rail—a consummation devoutly to be wished.

The Gum Tree.

Don't trim them. The eucalyptus, in its natural localities, obtains a hight of from thirty to forty feet, with a diameter of forty inches. The first two years of its growth from the seed are largely employed in making root. Cut off its side branches and you cut of the organs which supply the root with food. Dwarf the root and you produce an ill-shaped, ungraceful tree, which, having no firm hold on the ground, is liable to be blown over by every high wind. Our gardeners ball up the roots of the eucalyptus like a mass of worms, and sell them in this condition; the purchasers dig a hole and cover them up. They grow awhile, blow over, are trimmed, reset, replanted, to look as much like a eucalyptus as a jackass does like a philosopher. The hole for a eucalyptus should always be from eighteen inches to two feet square, and of like depth it should be filled to within eight inches of the top with good vegetable mold or compost; the roots should be spread out so as to have no twisted accumulation, and the tree, when planted, should be about an inch below the earth line. So planted it will rarely blow over.

THE VETO.

The political and financial sensation of the day is the President's veto of the inflation bill. This bill, according to the President's views, would add a hundred millions to our paper currency, which, in his belief, is a departure from the true principles of finance, and its approval would be a departure from every message to Congress by him on that subject. He recommends earnestly such legislation as will secure as speedily as possible a return to specie payment, and refers to the pledges of the Government to make provision, at the earliest practicable moment, for redemption of United States notes in coin. He recommends that the revenue of the country be increased so as to meet current expenditures, as a preparatory measure toward specie resumption. He was disposed at first to give weight to the argument that there was an unequal distribution of national bank currency but thought different upon considering the fact that four millions of such currency still remained in the Treasury subject to the demand of the section desiring it.

In the Eastern States and in Paris and London the veto is received with the greatest satisfaction, while in the South and West it is looked upon as a misfortune. It is needless to say that the Pacific Coast, people and Representatives in Congress, are gratified, and will sustain the veto.

A Washington dispatch says the President, in a conversation with General Garfield, informed him that he would approve the bill which provided for free banking, with the further provision that, as new bank notes were issued, that greenbacks to the extent of 50 per cent of the amount of the new issue should be retired; this process to continue until the volume of greenback circulation was reduced to $300,000,000.

Col. Mose C. Andross.

Ex-Senator Andross, of our delegation in the last Legislature, ofttimes referred to as "Prince Mose," and personally one of the jolliest men in existence, has been appointed Register at the Land Office at Visalia, vice E. D. Payne, a land speculator whose services the Department have wisely concluded to dispense with, which action must have a disheartening look for Josiah. We hope that Mose will, in the conduct of his office, meet the expectations of his many warm friends.

Nevada Politics.

William Sharon is the Republican and Thomas H. Williams the Democratic candidate for United States Senator from Nevada. There is talk of an Independent candidate, and Charley De Long thinks he wants a finger in the mess. King Bill is expected to shy a couple of millions into the ring, and Gen. Tom will be asked to put up $750,000. Nevada is beyond question the rotten borough of the world.

Woolen Mills of the Pacific Coast.

There are on the Pacific Coast 11 woolen mills—eight in California and three in Oregon, viz.: Two at San Francisco, one at San Jose, one at Marysville, one at Stockton, one at Sacramento, one at Los Angeles, and one at Los Gatos. In Oregon, there is a small mill at Oregon City, one at Willamette, and one at Brownsville. They have in the aggregate 20,840 spindles and 232 broad looms.

Tornado in Los Angeles.

The Los Angeles Star says that on the 17th a tornado struck the beautiful place of L. J. Rose, tearing up more than half of his large walnut trees by the roots, nearly all of his immense olive trees and a great many of his fine orange trees. It is reported as the first instance of the kind ever having occurred in that country.

To be Transferred.

The Los Angeles Express says that the Cerro Gordo bullion teams will hereafter transfer their freight to the cars at San Fernando, so that that item of shipment will pass through the city without the record it has had heretofore.

Lively.

We infer that Austin is getting particularly lively. On the 21st, according to The Reveille, a delivery wagon passed up the street at trot, and a dog chased a pigeon, and the said Reveille takes heart thereat.

Peace Reigns.

Governor Baxter of Arkansas proclaims that he will call a meeting of the Legislature to decide the issue between himself and Brooks. The trouble is ended by this proclamation, and the two armies are going home.

IT MUST BE DONE.

Nothing except a hearty and thorough co-operation by all our citizens remains to secure the early completion of the great enterprise which is destined to so revolutionize the commercial affairs of our county. We are, of course, alluding to the railroad that is to be. With an earnest, united action, the great object is far easier of accomplishment than perhaps appears to some of those now striving for it.

For years past the business men of both this and Los Angeles county have been keenly alive to the prime necessity of this work, but more particularly since the granting of the franchise to some of our heaviest, representative citizens has the enterprise begun to be looked upon as an investment, the which will undoubtedly pay from the very outset.

Aside from the direct realization of dividends on the money invested, the consequent enhancement of property values generally forces itself upon our consideration. When the railroad is known to be actually underway, the very fact itself will give such an impetus to present business and insure such prospective values as will enhance property to the extent of all the capital that the project will eventually cost. On this point a high railroad authority gives expression to the following:

Although, before deciding upon the construction of a railroad, the first requisite would seem to be a careful computation of the amount of business already done upon the route in the transportation of passengers and freight, with a view of determining whether this would justify the proposed expenditure, estimates of this character have been found by experience to afford a very uncertain index as to the actual business that would result under the new circumstances. A more enlarged view of the conditions of the country through which the road is to pass is consequently necessary, and a careful consideration of the effects already experienced from the opening of new roads in other similar regions. New branches of trade are stimulated by the greater economy of transportation offered by the new road, inducing an increase of population and of the travel of passengers, and these as well as freight may moreover be drawn in from other channels of travel.

It is known that the construction of roads wonderfully develops travel—a fact comparatively set forth in the following examples, under conditions which will be recognized as not half so favorable for comparative increase as those surrounding the L. A. & I. road will be. The first column of figures (a) represent the estimated number of passengers before the road was built; the second (b), the number soon after; and the third (c), the number in the year 1848, third after completion:

Rame of Road.	a	b	c
Boston & Worcester...	23,500	262,830	807,143
Boston & Lowell.....	37,400	400,886	525,764
Fitchburg	71,790	327,044	745,825
Eastern.....	121,700	488,026	1,021,169
Boston & Maine.....	.....	462,426	1,057,569

We are all familiar with the notable fact that the Central and branch roads have transmogrified the desert mountains of Utah and Eastern Nevada into populous and wealthy regions, where mines are worth gold coin, and mineral discoveries are not abandoned the next day, as is the case here. Most certainly the eventual freighting business of twenty mineral districts of every description, of proven richness and extent, will more than equal that done for one ledge by one road, even though that ledge be the Comstock. The transportation of that region amounts to not less than $12,000 per day, over a road but 35 miles long.

In this connection, a little inquiry into the business of the districts adjoining us on the north, will be found profitable. In 1873, Benton, Mono county, paid $45,000 for the transportation of ores, bullion and merchandise. Wells, Fargo & Co. shipped in that year a gross total of $229,078 47 worth of bullion, the largest amount in one month (December) being $40,952. For the ensuing year the estimated product reaches $600,000, the capacity of their reduction works being now more than doubled. The Carson Branch Mint kindly furnishes the following statement:

Amount of Silver Bullion purchased from Benton in 1872, and the amount of Silver Coins returned.....	$ 36,613 24
Amount of Silver Bullion deposited and purchased in 1873, and returned in trade dollars, half dollars and dimes.....	123,140 92
Amounts of same for January and February, 1874.....	30,552 17
Total.....	$190,206 33

Columbus, that in the season, with borax and mining operations in full blast, ships and receives 20 tons per day; Silver Peak, lately in reception of 70,000 pounds of supplies and machinery for a resumption of operations; Montgomery, Lida, Silvania, Gold Mountain and the various rich districts of the White Mountains—now paying costly tribute to Nevada and the Central Pacific—will all hail this southern outlet as inaugurating a new era of prosperity for them. That it will be one for Independence, as the terminus, is a fact so patent as to need no mention.

The future business of the Piute, Deep Spring, Russ, Waucoba, Kearsarge and Alabama Districts can only be treated in the light of probabilities; the same remark will apply to the great salt beds of the country, as well as to the now worthless deposits of iron ore—but with railroad communication minerals are as staple as wheat, with only a greater commercial value.

To the southward, and in this county, we have the new borax works, now beginning the shipment of 5 tons per day; Granite District, said to have an incalculable amount of argentiferous-galena in sight; Telescope, Coso and Death Valley regions, to which is to be added the Slate Range and Panamint—the latter now arranging for the immediate production and shipment, with its consequent business, of 7 tons of concentrated pulp per day. But it is well known that Panamint is second only in importance to Cerro Gordo.

There is $480,000 capital, in the shape of teams, employed in the present comparatively limited forwarding business of this county. All this interest, and much more, will be a necessary adjunct to the future railroad, but its centering point will be Inyo instead of Los Angeles, as at present. With an ability to get the bullion away, the smelting works now in operation would ship 5,829 tons per annum, an aggregate of but little more than what they are doing. Allowing each team two-thirds of a load up, and we have a total southern transportation of 9,415 tons, for which we pay—or our mines do—the sum of $706,155 annually. At the highest rate allowed by law, and probably 25 per cent more than would ever be charged, this freighting would cost $235,375 by the railroad—a difference of $470,780 a year, or that amount added to the present profits on mining. Of course no account is taken of the freights, express and mails which leave and reach this county by other routes.

Following are the actual bullion shipments of the past, or that portion of them which went over the L. A. & S. P. R. R. Since the latest date mentioned, the capacity of two of the three furnaces has been about doubled:

1870....	21,704	Bars, weighing	1,989,100 lbs
1871....	51,009	" "	4,491,038 "
1872....	62,390	" "	5,303,150 "
1873....	58,056	" "	4,826,741 "
1874....	9,570	" "	789,961 "
Total..	202,729	" "	17,400,050 "

Our report for 1874 is confined to the month of January. In 1873 there were two months in which no shipments were made, on account of litigation. There is no record obtainable of the shipments prior to Nov. 1, 1869, nor do we know of the amount which went via Bakersfield.

In addition, for the purpose of showing the acknowledged capacity of our furnaces, we introduce the following excerpta from a statement made by Mr Beaudry, in October, 1872, directly relating to the subject:

We can take out of the mine 70 tons in 10 hours, or 140 per day of 24 hours. I am preparing to double the capacity of my furnace, and hope to produce 10 tons of bullion per day, or 300 tons a month. * * Two million dollars should be applied to the building of a railroad from Los Angeles here. In case Stanford & Co. continue their road to Los Angeles, then we will build a railway from Tehechepi to this place, which can be done for $1,000,000. By this time we would reduce the cost of freight to $20 per ton, instead of $55 50, and this would give an economy of $106,500 on my part alone, at 10 tons per day; on Belshaw's the same amount, and to the Swansea Company and transients an equal amount—making a total of $319,600. Now, the return freight, grain and passengers will reach $106 500—so that there would be a total of $426,000 of revenue for a capital of $2,000,000.

These guarded and safe estimates, based upon the figures given and our knowledge of the facts, will convince the skeptics, if any there be, that the business now being done would more than pay interest upon an actual investment of $3,000,000. But the question can not be fairly considered without calculating upon the inevitable increase. As the road progresses, its business will meet the construction demands of the balance, and we have no idea that over 65 per cent of the capital stock will ever be called in.

The Church Conflict in Germany.

The new Ecclesiastical bill lately submitted to the German Reichstag contains the following clauses:

1. Ecclesiastics or other church servants dismissed from office by sentence of a tribunal may be prohibited from residing in certain districts or places, or may be assigned a residence by the police authorities of the State.

In case of resistance to such order of the police authorities or the continued exercise of religious functions by disqualified ecclesiastics the central authorities of the State shall have power to declare such ecclesiastics deprived of their nationality, and to expel them from Federal territory.

2. The provisions of Clause 1 are also applicable to persons who have assumed ecclesiastical functions or have such functions transferred to them contrary to law and to those who have been legally condemned to punishment. The police authorities may prohibit or assign to the accused residence in certain districts or places after the commencement of a judicial inquiry and until the termination of legal proceedings.

3. Persons who, according to the provisions of this law, have been deprived of their nationality in one of the Federal States lose that nationality in every other, and cannot be naturalized in any other Federal State without the sanction of the Federal Council.

THE NO-FENCE LAW.

By general request, we republish the essential portions of the No-Fence law as it now applies to this county. This law continues in force till April 15th, 1875—save the interim provided therein—when it is replaced by Ferguson's Fresno law, which is no-fence all the time, but comprises great improvements in the matter of details. Virtually, there is no change until November 15, 1875, when the full force of the change will be felt. At that period any particular community can, by general agreement, waive its provisions during the two weeks intervening before the session of the Legislature, when, if the opponents of the law succeed in electing their candidate, a repeal will of course be had. If otherwise, otherwise. On an issue sprung which ought to have been let alone by the petitioners, we think the matter, as finally compromised, is the best arrangement that could have been secured. Following is the text of the present law:

SECTION 1. Every owner or occupant of land, whether it is inclosed with a fence or is uninclosed, finding any horse, mare, jack, mule, jennet, goat, sheep, hog or horned cattle thereon, doing or having done damage, may take up and keep such animal or animals, at the expense of the owner, for the space of ten days.

SEC. 2. The expense of keeping an animal so taken up must be computed as follows: First. If a horse, mare, jack, mule or jennet, at the rate of twenty cents per day. Second. If a sheep or goat, at the rate of five cents per day. Third. Cattle at the rate of twenty cents per pay.

SEC 3. If the owner of an animal so taken up is known, and resides in the township, he must be forthwith personally notified, but if at a great distance from said place of taking up, the notice of such detention and the reasons therefor must be served by depositing the same, postage paid, in the nearest postoffice, directed to the owner or owners, at the postoffice nearest to his or their residence. When the owner or owners are not known, written notices containing a description of the animals, their marks and brands, and stating the cause of detention, must immediately be posted conspicuously in three of the most conspicuous places in the township, and a copy delivered to the Justice of the Peace of said township.

SEC. 4. At the expiration of ten days, if the animal has not been applied for, and sooner if it has, and the parties cannot agree on the amount of damages and compensation, by three disinterested persons selected by the parties aforesaid as arbitrators, are selected, the taker up, when the damages and compensation claimed shall be less than three hundred dollars, shall file a written complaint, verrified by his oath, with a Justice of Peace of the township, setting forth the facts, location and nature of the alleged damages, and stating the amount he claims against said animal or animals and that he has actually sustained the damages claimed

SEC. 5. When the owner is known and is within the jurisdiction of the court, the action shall be against the owner, and the summons shall be served and returned as in all other actions. When the owner is not known the action shall be against the property: and every action thus commenced shall include all the animals thus found doing damage, whether of one or more marks or brands, and no judgment shall be entered up under the provisions of this act by default or otherwise, as to the damages done, except upon the testimony of two creditable witnesses whose names shall be entered in the Justice's docket.

SEC. 6. When the action is against the property the summons shall be served by posting a copy of the same conspicuously on the outside of the door of the Justice's office, and three other places in the township, and shall be returnable in not less than ten days from such posting. The return of the officer certifying to such posting, or the affidavit of any person qualified to be a juror who did it, shall be evidence of a sufficient service thereof.

Sec. 7. If judgment be in favor of the plaintiff the property may be levied upon and sold as other personal property siezed upon execution. If the judgment be for the defendant the plaintiff shall pay such costs and damages as may be awarded by the court or jury.

SEC. 8. The officer selling shall give a bill of sale to the purchaser, describing the animal or animals sold, the price paid therefor, and stating that it or they were sold under the authority of this Act. Any overplus of the proceed of such sale, after satisfying the judment, shall be paid by the Justice to the owner of the property upon demand, if demanded within three months from the date of sale, or otherwise it shall at the expiration of that time, be immediately paid into the County Treasury for the benefit of the County School Fund.

SEC 9. Any owner or owners of any animal or animals seized under the provisions of this Act may at any time previous to the sale demand, and shall be entitled to the possession of such animal or animals, or if so many as he may claim, upon his making satisfactory proof of ownership, and paying his proportion of the fees, charges and damages; and after the sale may at any time within three months redeem said animal or animals by producing satisfactory proof of his right thereto, and paying the purchaser the amount of purchase money with the interest at the rate of three per cent. per month, together with compensation for the keeping said animals at the rate of one dollar per week per head for the time the purchaser has had them in possession.

SEC. 10. The Justice of the Peace before whom any action is brought under the provisions of this Act shall keep a book, which shall be open to public inspection, and shall make a record therein of all sales made by his order under this Act, a discription of the animal sold, the price paid, the name of the purchaser, amount of fees and charges and the amount of surplus money, if any, arising from such sale, and if such surplus money shall be received by the owner of any animal, he shall receipt for it on the margin opposite such record, and the Justice shall without fee, give the book over to his successor in office and also any surplus money in his hands arising from any sale made by authority of this Act, and the receipt of his successor shall be a legal discharge of the retiring Justice for all such sums paid.

SEC. 11. The fees of Justices and Contables for services under this Act shall be the same as allowed by the General Fee Bill for similar services in other civil actions in their respective counties.

SEC. 12. Nothing in this Act shall be so construed as to prohibit persons from driving stock through uncultivated lands not fenced and who may be required to pass from one county to another, from watering said stock at natural watering places on said lands.

SEC. 13. Any person who shall drive stock from lands other than his own, or to any lands or possessory claims, for the purpose of taking advantage of any provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall upon conviction thereof be punished accordingly.

SEC. 14. The owner or occupant of lands, whether inclosed or not, upon which damage has been done by any of the animals referred to in Section 1 of this Act, may instead of pursuing the remedy given in this Act, have an action for damages in any court of competent jurisdiction against the owner of such animal.

SEC. 15. If the owner or occupant of land intends to institute proceedings under the preceeding section, he must first within ten days after the damage was done, cause the same to be viewed, and estimated in writing, by two residents of the county competent to be witnesses on the trial of such action; second, such action shall be brought within one month after the damage was done.

SUPPLEMENTARY.

SECTION. 1. The provisions of an act entitled an Act to protect agriculture and to prevent the trespassing of animals upon private property in the counties of Los Angeles, San Diego and parts of Monterey, approved February 14, A. D., 1872, are hereby extended to and shall have full force and effect in the county of Inyo from the fifteenth day of March to the fifteenth day of November in each year.

SEC. 2. No person in the county of Inyo shall be able to maintain an action for damages under the provisions of this Act except those who have complied with the laws regulating the right and granting title to public lands of this State and of the United States.

Reminiscences of Charles Sumner

[N. Y. Evening Post.].

Maj. Ben Perley Poore, who was a familiar friend of Sumner, writes to The Boston Journal some interesting sketches of the late Senator's daily life. He repeats what all of Sumner's habitual visitors know, that "nothing could be more simple than the daily life of the Senator at his home in Washington, when he was not a sufferer from the martyrdom of scientific medical practice. He used to rise about 7, bathe, shave himself and carefully dress for the duties of the day, with the exception of his coat, for which he would substitute a comfortable dressing gown. Then, going into his study, or 'den,' as he often called it, which adjoined his bed room, he would read the Washington and Baltimore morning papers until the arrival of his mail, brought from the Senate postoffice. Scanning the budget of letters, he would pick out those which he recognized as from Longfellow, Whittier, Bird, Phillps, Curtis and other personal friends, and read them before he went down stairs to breakfast."

Of the Senator at the breakfast table, he writes: "Sumner always sat at the north side of the large round table, where his simple breakfast, with its cup of exquisite tea was served; he had not drank coffee for several years prior to his death, but he was a connoisseur in teas, and was familiar with the flavor and taste of the choicest varieties. While at breakfast he used to read The Springfield Republican and The New York Evening Post of the day previous, with some of the many newspapers sent him from all parts of the country.

"While at the breakfast table he used to receive the visits of friends, and the room was often crowded. His devoted friend Wormley used also to come to consult with him on his housekeeping arrangements, which he looked after with a careful eye. In a letter now before me, written when Sumner was last in Europe, he said: 'Pray tell Wormley to expect me at the end of the month. His friendly care will see that my small house is in order.' Never was friendly care more devotedly displayed, and prominent among the African race who manifested deep, unceasing gratitude to Sumner were Wormley and J. B. Smith, of Boston. Unlike others, they never sought to use their friend as a pedestal for self exhibition."

Progressing.

The Bakersfield Californian says work is progressing finely on the railroad south of Delano, and it will reach Kern River by the 1st of July.

—On the 4th of May ensuing, Earl Russell will ask the House of Lords for "an account of compensation made by the United States for damages caused by Fenian raids in Canada."

—No female candidate yet announced for the United States Senatorship

—Queen Victoria has twenty-one grand children.

Eastern.

Old Bender, the Kansas murderer, has been identified at Salt Lake.

Ways and Means Committee will report against the Sanborn contract, and for the unconditional repeal of the law.

Drummond, Land Commissioner, has resigned. Inadequate salary is the alleged cause. Resignation to take effect in May.

Three people froze to death in a snow storm at Council Bluffs, Iowa, one day this month.

Blood was shed on the 21st in a skirmish between the Baxter and Brooks parties at Little Rock, and several were seriously wounded. The interference of United States troops prevented a general fight.

Baxter is being abandoned by his friends.

In the House April 21st, a resolution was adopted in favor of a uniform rate of interest throughout the United States.

Incremation has taken shape in a bill introduced in the New York Assembly to incorporate a company of body burners.

Briggs' Girl.

Our neighbors, the Briggs, have had trouble with their hired girl. She arrived in this country only last month, and she had never seen gas used in houses. The first night of her stay at Briggs' the family smelt gas strongly after her retirement, and upon going to her room found that she had blown the light out. Mrs. Briggs woke her and showed her how to turn it off properly. But the next night, fearing to trust her, Mrs. Briggs gave her a candle to go to bed by. About midnight Mrs. Briggs woke, and looking out she saw that the light was still burning brightly in in the girl's room. She went up to ascetain what was the matter. She found that the girl after spending an hour try to extinguish the candle by fumbling with the gas cock was now endeavoring to turn off the candle by twisting the handle of the candlestick. They think of giving her a dollar a week more than they promised her because she knows less than they thought she did. Hired girls' wages always increase in proportion as their intelligence diminishes.—Ex.

—Sydney Smith commenced a charity sermon by saying, "Benevolence is a sentiment common to human nature. A never sees B in distress without asking C to relieve him."

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

May Day.

Yesterday was May Day and to day is publication day, therefore we do not purpose a very elaborate review of incidents and proceedings attending the celebration under the auspices of the Good Templars and the ball following by the Dancing Club. The weather was not particularly auspicious, as the wind blew about an eight-knot breeze, but notwithstanding this, pretty much all Independence, together with a fine delegation of young ladies and gentlemen from Bishop Creek, chaperoned by Squire Walcott and lady, repaired in procession, M. S. Clark and P. Hubig, Marshals, with flags and music to J. & J. Shepherds' grounds, George's Creek, and went into the business of picnicking with a will. In due order the President of the Day, Dr. Blair with an appropriate address called the large gathering to order. The May Queen, Miss Lulu Lewis, was duly crowned by her maids, four handsome young ladies from Bishop, and made a neat inaugural address. Interspersed in the programme was music and singing. Mr. J. L. Darrah then delivered in good style and effect a temperance oration, both interesting and instructive, but the difficulty in talking out of doors in a semi-gale, rustling through the trees and entailing a strain upon the lungs that none but the stoutest could long effectively sustain, necessarily imposed undesirable brevity; but for this, Mr. Darrah, who is an excellent speaker, could easily have held his audience highly interested for a much longer period than he tried to do, notwithstanding the fact that the seductive flavor coming from numerous boxes and baskets, naturally at that hour of the day, suggested something needed of a carnal nature. Soon the contents of these boxes and baskets were spread through the grove, and several scores of people, big and little, "pitched in," with a will and effect that would have made an economical step-mother weep. But after all there were bushels to spare, for everybody had made it a point to bring more than a sufficiency of everything, and to this ample store was added a quantity more by the lady of the manor, Mrs. Shepherd. The grounds selected, the Shepherd place, were particularly well adapted to the business in hand, and we suspect we are all under obligations to the proprietors for the kindness in tendering them for the purpose, as no other spot available, within our knowledge, would have answered the purpose half so well on such a day. Four or five sets took the floor, (i. e. a piece of canvas), and danced in honor of the occasion or for the fun of the thing, and all had a good time generally. In the evening the ball room of the Dancing Club at the Masonic Hall was crowded almost to excess, and the dance was a gay affair throughout. As force of circumstances, distances, etc., have hitherto made all these occasions in this county very local in attendance, we are constrained to note the exception in the attendance on this occasion of such a goodly number of the delegates from Oasis Lodge I. O. G. T. We have the names of the following young ladies: Millie Hilton, Alice Clark, Rhoda Smith, Nellie Smith and Laura Hall; also Squire Walcott and lady, Marion Clark, Wm. Dean, W. Clark, Perry Gunter, Fred Swartz, Geo. Clark and D. E. Hunter. As part of the day's proceedings these met in convention with Busy Bee Lodge of this place, but an account of which we will have to forego.

A Reception.

Our junior was the recipient of quite a flattering reception last Saturday night, pretty much everybody in the locality having gathered at the Blaney House to listen to speeches by Messrs. Gregg and Reddy, in which his legislative services were so earnestly and pleasantly recited and acknowledged as to almost make him think that he had done something. When this and the responses were ended the deck was cleared for action and then the spirit of Terpsichore and real enjoyment reigned supreme till—it is hard to say when, for the clocks and watches some how or other got out of gear. It was a most pleasant affair throughout, and upon one at least will leave kindly impressions, that time will never efface.

Drug Store in Cerro Gordo.

As will be seen by advertisement elsewhere, Dr. J. O. Grant who is very highly spoken of as a physician, has established a very complete drug store at Cerro Gordo. From all accounts the doctor in his practice, since he located in that place a few months since, has secured the confidence of all the Cerro Gordians, and will doubtless retain it.

Mining.

John Simpson, formerly of Cerro Gordo, having succeeded in organizing a strong San Francisco company, is inaugurating some heavy hydraulic mining operations near Weaverville, Trinity county, as we learn from The Journal.

Another Notary.

D. P. McCarty has been appointed a Notary for Cerro Gordo. This completes the allowance for Inyo and is a good appointment, but it strikes us that Bishop was entitled to one of the seven.

Renovating.

Mr. Thompson has this week had his large lodging house connected with the Blaney hotel, thoroughly overhauled and repapered in style, and every room is now as good as new.

In Bankruptcy.

The many friends of Johnny Ullrick, the popular stage man and proprietor of the Northern line, will be sorry to hear that he has filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. For two years and more he has probably done more real hard work in the fulfilment of his duty to the traveling public and as a mail carrier than any other stage man in the country, and in these particulars he has succeeded admirably; but the extraordinary expenses entailed by two severe Winters and the horse disease together, were rather much for the profits from the light travel and mail pay, and hence in justice to all his creditors he has deemed it right to turn over every dollar's worth of his property legally exempt or otherwise, his homestead at Benton with the rest. With proper management by the assignee, soon to take charge, the assets will fully equal the liabilities, the latter being about $6,000. But for the nefarious system, apparently countenanced and sustained by the Department in the mail lettings, there would have been at least an even chance for Ullrick to have secured the new contract on an honest bid, and being all prepared, to have continued the business without interruption from the present cause; but legitimate bids might as well be left at home in these days of straw bids, and which seem to be the only kind the Department wish to countenance. Look at this Independence and Gold Mountain route for instance; subsequent to the announced acceptance of a legitimate bid at rates too low to begin with a straw bid at still lower rates is accepted and the first revoked without the courtesy even of a fictitious reason named. The next thing we hear in reference to that will be that some gentleman of easy virtue takes the place of the straw man, and the contract at about six times the amount of the lowest legitimate offer. Curious people would then like to know the names of the postmasters who make oath to the personal responsibility of these unknown straw men and their sureties, through which certification these swindles can alone be perpetrated unless the Department clerks themselves come in for a share of the loot. If Congressman Luttrell succeeds in his efforts to put a stop to this class of swindles he will deserve higher thanks than if he had established an universal freight and fare bill. But recurring to the original subject, the successful bid on Ullrick's route was legitimate so far as we know, but was a little less than his, which was based on a fair knowledge, gained by experience, of what an adequate compensation for the service should be. The saving clause in favor of the successful bid in this instance, and which obviated the necessity of the usual straw bid, was probably the fact that service for a good part of two routes is performed as one and paid for as two. It seems to be a settled conclusion that a reasonable, business offer to carry the United States mails need not be made; only those wholly straw, or under rates with good contingent perquisites collaterly in view, seem to stand any show at all.

Acknowledgment.

In the name of numerous big and little ones we tender thanks to J. P. Taylor, agent at Lone Pine of the Telegraph Stage Line for holding his stage two hours beyond time for their free accommodation in reaching the pic nic grounds yesterday morning and return in the evening. "Yank" Booth took from here on his stage no less than twenty-three, and if there had been twice as many of the little chaps he would have "toted" them all in safety. And Scott Broder is also entitled to a thank or two for the use of his big team, engineered by Tom Hamilton, on the occasion.

The French Restaurant

M. Peter Margalot offers a good chance for any one with a little capital to invest in a well established restaurant. But whether anybody wants to take his place or not he holds himself in readiness to accommodate all who may favor him with a call. See his "ads."

The Lone Pine Hotel.

Since her return from Columbus Mrs. M. A. Barry has been hard at work in thoroughly renovating the Lone Pine Hotel, and now we are told it is in tip-top order and ready for business.

From Panamint.

Mr. M. J. Byrnes, one of our Inyo pioneer prospectors, has for several months been out at Panamint, and came in from there a few days ago. He says that truly that district has the most promising outlook of any he has seen in all his wide prospecting experience. The Jacobs five stamp-mill machinery is being taken in there and will be set in operation at the earliest practicable moment. This mill is calculated to crush fifteen tons of ore per day and concentrate in proportion down to about one ton in ten, the pulp then to be shipped to Los Angeles or San Francisco for final reduction. The same system is also to be adopted with the 20-stamp mill, for the building of which preparations are now being made. These two mills will thus afford quite an item in the way of freights. The toll road through the canyon, and the Los Angeles subscription road connecting with it, will be completed in about thirty days. In fact, the latter is now ready for use. Nothing is being done about the road direct from Passmore's, but it is a matter of considerable importance to the rest of the county that that road should be put through. Its cost will probably not exceed $1,500. There is plenty of wood and water in Panamint, but not a spear of grass nearer than Passmore's, so that Kern and Los Angeles counties will furnish all the provender for the district unless this road is built.

A MURDERER'S FATE.

The Hanging of Johnny Stewart.

AURORA, Nev., April 24.

MESSRS. EDITORS—John Stewart, the young man who killed Frank Durand at Columbus, in May last, expatiated his crime to-day, at 3:20 o'clock P. M. Upon his own acknowledgement he had been a wild youth, and admitted the justice of his fate.

Before leaving the jail for the place of execution, prayer and religious services were held, at his request. In talking, he warned his old companions to take heed in time, and above all things not to touch the intoxicating bowl, as that had been the bane of his life, causing him to be led astray and to yield to the promptings of his wilder associates. He further warned them against the practice of carrying deadly weapons.

On the scaffold he appeared to be nerved up for what was to follow. He asked that those who felt an interest in him might take leave of him, being for the last time. Some of the expressions used and repeated by the doomed man while on the scaffold were: "I never went back on a friend, or left the trail of an enemy." "This is not the last of this 'fray, you bet your sweet life on it." "Indians on the upper road; if you take the lower road you'll die sure, and there's no water on the trail!"—this being repeated some half dozen times. "I have lived a man and will die a man." "Tell my old, lone mother, God bless her!" He made no confession, being advised by his family not to do so.

The gallows were well arranged, with a drop of seven feet. After the drop fell there was no motion of the body except a muscular contraction of the breast. In six minutes the physicians pronounced him dead, but the body was allowed to hang forty five minutes. It was then taken down, placed in a coffin and removed to the jail, from whence it will be buried to-morrow.

Lida Items.

LIDA, Nev., April 25.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Got a conundrum. Can you give me any reason why the Local Option law of California should in any way interfere with the sale of liquor in Lida, Esmeralda county, Nevada? Since it has become generally known that Gov. Booth has signed the bill, the hightoned barkeeps of Lida refuse to pass out the ardent. [The new era is perhaps traceable to the idleness of the mill; the boys don't throw cause in sight.—EDS.]

LIGHTNING.

On Sunday evening last, April 19th, this locality was the scene of a severe hailstorm, accompanied by heavy peals of thunder and blinding flashes of lightning. The electric fluid struck into the flag-staff, but as it was of nut-pine, knotty, twisted and as contrary as some of the citizens, the lightning left it and went after flock of goats, killing three and stunning many others—the moral of which is—well, you can cypher that out yourself.

PERSONAL.

Justice Brown and Constable Nicholas have moved to their Summer residence, to engage in agricultural pursuits. I understand they will raise vegetables, principally garlic and onions. The garlic will command a good price, as it is the only thing known in nature that will improve a man's breath after taking a drink of Lida whisky.

CRITIQUE.

Dan Williams.

Capt. D. H. Williams left by yesterday's stage for Cerro Gordo, where he has entered into partnership in the saloon business. The Capt. is well and favorably known in this portion of the State, and his numerous friends wish him success.—Havilah Miner.

Kern County Financiering.

The cost of tearing down the Court House was $140; of advertising it for sale, at least fifteen dollars, and at auction it sold for the magnificent sum of $60. Tax-payers, how's this?—Havilah Miner.

—The liquor traffic of England represents a capital of $600,000,000, and exercises as much influence in politics over public opinion as the same does in this country; so at least says Archbishop Manning.

THE MOUNTAINS ACROSS.

A Correspondent's Itemizing.

TULE CANYON, April 22, 1874.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Nothing has been said of this camp, yet there is real merit in it and worthy of notice. We are on the same mineral belt of Sylvania, about which so much has been written, but that camp isn't a circumstance compared to our Tule country. It is in having a man for breakfast, stealing and jumping claims that makes a camp lively. You will remember the fight at Log Springs, and how roughly the Mexican was handled. About a month since Murphy, at Pigeon Spring, was robbed; but for its profanity I would give the note of warning which that gentleman now has over his door—a regular sign of the times. Shortly afterwards the celebrated Shoebrick mine was jumped, but the jumper, being a blue-nose, failed to light squarely and slid off. Some jumpers, after extracting and shipping to Columbus a considerable quantity of ore, were somewhat taken aback when they found that parties were ready and did jump the ore on its arrival—which last operation was not in accordance with the order of any Court.

THE MINES.

The Cluster is owned and worked by Black & Co. It is a large and well-defined vein of free silver ore. The Shyster, owned and worked by C. S. Anderson & Co., is a two-foot vein of high grade milling ore. There are many others well worthy of mention, but which are not being worked at present. While water is obtainable, most of the men are now engaged in placer mining, all making good wages.

THE LEAD MINES

of the district are situated mainly in a formation of limestone; veins, large and well defined; ore, galena and cabonate. Wood and water plentiful. It is said that some San Francisco parties are quietly buying up the lead mines, and that as soon as another interest or two is obtained they will commence active operations. It is expected that within two months we will have as good a camp as anybody.

RAGGED MINER.

A Brave Shows the White Feather.

CERRO GORDO, April 26.

MESSRS. EDITORS: He run like a man, did the notorious, would-be brave, Mr. Lindsey Lewis. Last evening it occurred to him to try his skill with his little six-shooter, and of course selected an unarmed man—Mr. Dalihide—at whom this brave directed six shots. In the while Dalahide kept up a scattering fire with rocks, which made Lewis consider in-doors the safest. So the brave took refuge in Johnson's saloon, and to make security doubly sure, he locked the door behind him. Dalihide made for the back door and burst it in; Lewis, having doubts about the room being large enough for both, rapidly opened the door and run down the street, like a perfect little man, Dalihide in hot pursuit. The brave's line of retreat led through Hughes' saloon into the restaurant and from thence to the street, where, by a masterly movement with his heels, he effected a gallant escape. Competent judges pronounce him the fastest runner on the hill. It is said that on passing Hughes' door Lewis imagined that he felt a pricking sensation somewhere in the rear, which accelerated his locomotion down the hill. Though the streets were full of men at the time of the shooting, there was no one hit, strange to relate.

CITIZEN.

About a Detained Letter.

[From The S. F. Bulletin, April 22.]

The case of John Conway, Postmaster at Cuffey's Cove, Mendocino county, who is under indictment for having illegally detained a letter, was occupying the attention of the United States Circuit Court yesterday. The circumstances of the case are peculiarly interesting to the public as illustrating one of the phases of life in a very rough locality. Several years ago a man named Musgrove moved, with his family, to Cuffey's Cove, about fifty miles from Point Arena, and pre-empted 160 acres of timber land. Another and older resident of the Cove named Kenney, who has large landed possessions, attempted to secure Musgrove's land by telling him that he (Kenny) had purchased it from a man who gave a clear title to it. The case was brought before the Register and Receiver of the Land Office in this city, for arbitration, and remained undecided for a long time. On the 20th of December, 1873, a letter was sent from this city to Musgrove by his brother-in-law, informing him that the writer had been informed by Musgrove's attorney that the Land Office had decided the case in favor of Musgrove.

The letter was certainly posted on the 20th, and left the same day for its destination. On the 26th of November Musgrove compromised with Kenny for $650. Of course Musgrove at this time knew nothing of the decision of the case, and adopted what he considered the speediest mode of effecting a settlement. The day following the settlement Musgrove packed up his effects, hitched up his team, and started for this city. Eight or ten miles from the Cove he was overtaken by Conway, the Postmaster, who endeavored in vain to secure a private interview with him, and finally handed him the letter announcing the decision in the land case. The envelope was split open at the side. The letter had evidently been removed, read, and replaced. Musgrove called attention to the fact that the letter had been tampered with, and was informed that the Postmaster did not know how it occurred.

—Japanese capitalists have purchased the United States Store ship Idaho.

—There is a legend to the effect that a party desiring to transact some private business was invited by the other to step with him into a neighboring store. "But we will be disturbed there," said the first party. "Oh, no," said the second party; "they don't advertise."

—Since May, 1873, about 100,000,000 of postal cards have been issued. The demand does not increase with time, and the first furore seems to be dying out.

—At a late meeting of the San Francisco pioneers, J. W. Marshal, the gold-finder, was elected an honorary member of that society.

—The La Crosse man who touched a buzz saw with his foot to see if the thing was running, is ready to swear that it was.

—What is the difference between a temptation and eternity? One is a wile of the devil and the other is a devil of a while.

—Increased currency, instead of being the spade of the husbandman, is the dice-box of the gambler.—Jones, of Nevada.

THE PACIFIC IRRIGATING PIPE, AIR PIPE AND PUMP CO.

San Francisco, Cal.

THE ATTENTION OF AGRICULTURISTS AND farmers, especially, is called to these celebrated pumps already in use throughout the Western States and Pacific Coast, giving perfect satisfaction everywhere. For durability, efficiency and cheapness they cannot be excelled, the material used being cut from the butt log of the most durable timber in use. These pumps are adapted to all climates, and are not affected by heat or cold. They are made of different sizes to raise water in greater or less volume as may be required; and various lengths to operate in wells and cisterns either shallow or of great depth, and are handsomely turned and painted to preserve them against exposure. Air pipe for tunnels, mines, etc., made of the same material, are very efficient, cheap and durable.

Redwood,

Agency for Inyo and Mono counties at the Inyo Drug Store, Lone Pine, where full information will be given, orders promptly attended to and pumps may be inspected, having one in good running order in the well.

Death of the Benicia Boy's Sister.

A special Berlin letter of March 17, published in The London News of the 21st ultimo, contains the following announcement: Miss D. Heenan, the sister of the well known American boxer, died some days ago in Berlin, literally of suffocation. She was undoubtedly one of the most corpulent women in the world, and had been for some time exhibiting her not uncomly features and her all too soft mass of flesh to the admiring Berlin public, together with a selection from the silver cups and other presents received by her from enthusiastic citizens and crowned heads during the course of her travels, when, almost without any previous warning, the poor lady's career was cut short in the way I have mentioned. There is an extraordinary demand just now in Berlin for phenomena of this class, and the enterprising person who had engaged the professional services of Miss Heenan showed himself at once true to time and up to the mark as a caterer for the reigning taste, for the very day following his bereavement, he was provided with another mountain of breathing flesh in the place of that colossal defunct.

—One New Year's as a man entered his house he was met by his wife, who threw about his neck a gold chain. "There, Hubby," exclaimed his wife, "is a New Year's gift for you!" "Oh, yes!" rejoined the husband with great coolness, "I paid the bill for it an hour ago." "You did," exclaimed the lady with equal indifference, "why I told the jeweler to let it go on the July bill."

—The Wareham News man says, the Principal of Middleborough Academy at one time on the approach of a tempest, insulated a chair on four pieces of glass, and, as he thought, politely invited a young lady to a seat in his lap for safety. To show the popularity of the man of letters, the young lady replied she would rather be struck by lightning.

—A Boston court has decided that if a woman lends money to her husband she cannot get it back. This decision will not be new to many wives.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Paul W. Bennett and Patrick Reddy, Plaintiffs, against William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to William Watt, William B. Skidmore, Henry Dexter, John H. Ockershousen, Isaac M. Bull, Henry Edwards and Richard C. Edwards, defendants. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiffs in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover, due on a written agreement from said defendants to said plaintiffs, the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars, in U. S. Gold coin, with interest thereon from the Tenth day of January, 1874, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, together with costs of suit, and that the whole of said amount be paid in gold coin of the United States of America, as does more fully appear from plaintiffs' complaint, to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that, if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiffs' complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this Nineteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four. [SEAL]

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND, Clerk.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a correct copy of the original summons issued in the above entitled action.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, [SEAL] this 30th day of January, 1874.

FOR AN ORDER TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE COUNTY of Inyo, State of California. In the matter of the Estate of CHARLES DUMAY, Deceased.

Order to show cause why Order of Sale of Real Estate should not be made.

It appearing to the Probate Judge of said Court, by the petition this day presented and filed by John A. Lank, the Administrator of the Estate of CHARLES DUMAY, deceased, praying for an order of sale of real estate, that it is necessary to sell the whole of the real estate to pay the expenses and charges of the administration. It is therefore ordered by the Hon. John A. Hannah, County Judge, and ex-officio Probate Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of the said deceased, appear before the said Probate Court on SATURDAY, THE SIXTEENTH DAY OF MAY, A. D. 1874, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court room of said Probate Court at the town of Independence in the County of Inyo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said John A. Lank, Administrator, to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased, as shall be necessary: And that a copy of this order be published at least four successive weeks in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said county.

Dated April 6, 1874.

JOHN A. HANNAH, Probate Judge.

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY CLERK of the County of Inyo. }

I, M. W. Hammarstrand, County Clerk of the County of Inyo, State of California, and ex officio Clerk of the Probate Court in and for said County, do hereby certify the foregoing to be a true, full and correct copy of an order duly made and entered upon the minutes of said Probate Court.

Witness, my hand and the seal of said Probate Court, this eighth day of April, A. D. 1874. [SEAL]

GOOD BOOKS BY POST.

OUR POSTAL FACILITIES ARE NOW SO great that a considerable portion of the new books which find their way to the hands of readers do so through the mails. The cost for postage is so trifling that it is of no consequence compared with the desire to possess a really good book. We publish below a list of good books which may be ordered from this office at the price given, and received by an early post:

The Carriage Painter's Manual. Containing a treatise on the art, science and mystery of coach, carriage and car painting. Fine gilding, bronzing, staining, varnishing, polishing, copying, lettering, scrolling and ornamenting. $1.

How to Paint. For mechanics, merchants, farmers, and a guide to the professional painter. Methods in plain and fancy painting. Including gilding, bronzing, staining, graining, marbling, varnishing, polishing, kalsimining, paper hanging, striping, lettering, copying and ornamenting, mixing paint, tools required, etc. $1.

Life at Home; or The Family and its Members. Husbands, wives, parents, children, brothers, sisters. Rev. Wm. Aikman, D. D. $1 50.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of Both Sexes. Formation of character, choice of avocation, health, amusement, music, conversation, cultivation of intellect, moral sentiment, social affection, courtship and marriage. $1 50.

Wedlock; or The Right Relations of the Sexes. Laws of conjugal selection; showing who may and who may not marry. Wells. $1 50.

Oratory--Sacred and Secular. Or the extemporaneous speaker. Including a chairman's guide for conducting public meetings. Pittenger. $1 50.

The Temperance Reformation; its history from the first temperance society in the United States to the adoption of the Maine liquor law. By Rev. J. Armstrong. $1 50.

Gems of Goldsmith. "The Traveler," "The Deserted Village," "The Hermit." With notes and original illustrations, and biographical sketch of the great author. One vol. 14mo; tinted paper, fancy cloth. Price $1.

Family Physician. A ready prescriber and hygienic adviser. With reference to the nature, causes, prevention and treatment of diseases, accidents, and casualties of every kind. By Joel Shew, M. D. $4.

Hydropathic Encyclopædia. A system of Hydropathy and Hygiene. Embracing outlines of anatomy and physiology; the preservation of health; special pathology, including the nature, causes, treatment and symptoms of all known diseases. Designed as a guide to families and students, and text book for physicians. By Trall. $4 50.

Children; Their Management in Health and Disease. A descriptive practical work. $1 75.

Family Gymnasium. Containing the most approved methods of applying gymnastic, calisthenic, kinesipathic, and vocal exercises to the development of the bodily organs. By Dr. Trall. $1 75.

The Alcoholic Controversy. A review of the Westminster Review on the Physiological Errors of Teetotalism. By R. T. Trall, M. D. 50 cents.

Annuals of Phrenology and Physiognomy. One yearly 12mo volume. Price 25 cents for the current year. For 1865, '66, '67, '68, '69, '70, '71, '72, '73 nine, containing over 350 illustrations, many portraits and biographies of distinguished personages, together with articles on "How to Study Phrenology," "Bashfulness," "Diffidence," "Stammering," "The Marriage of Cousins," "Jealousy; its cause and cure," etc., the nine in one volume. $2.

Right Word in the Right Place. A pocket dictionary of Synonyms, technical terms, abbreviations, foreign phrases, etc. 75 cents. n199*

$5 TO $20 PER DAY easily made by any one. We want men, women, boys and girls all over the country to sell our fine steel engravings, chromos, crayon drawings, illuminations, photographs, etc., etc. We now publish the finest assortment ever placed before the public, and our prices are marked down so low as to defy all competition. No one subscribes for a premium giving paper in order to get a picture after seeing our pictures and learning our prices. We have many old agents at work for us who have made canvassing for books, papers, etc., their business for years, and they all report that they can make much more money working for us than at anything else. Our prices are so low that all can afford to purchase, and therefore the pictures sell at sight at almost every house. New beginners do as well as agents who have had large experience, for our beautiful subjects and low prices are appreciated by all. To make large sales everywhere all an agent has to do is to show the pictures from house to house. Don't look for work elsewhere until you have seen what great inducements we offer you to make money. We have not space to explain all here, but send us your address and we will send particulars, free, by mail. Don't delay if you want profitable work for your leisure hours, or for your whole time. Now is the favorable time to engage in this business. Our pictures are the finest and most pleasing in this country, and are endorsed by all the leading papers, including The New York Herald. Those who cannot give the business their entire attention can work up their own localities and make a handsome sum without being away from home over night. Let all who want pleasant profitable employment, without risking capital, send us their addresses at once and learn all about the business for themselves. Address

THE GEM MICROSCOPE.

THE GEM MICROSCOPE IS THE MOST WONDERFUL scientific production of the nineteenth century. It furnishes the power the of a high priced instrument for a mere trifle, and exceeds in usefulness any microspope ever invented. It reveals the hidden wonders of minute creation—as Eels in Vinegar, Animals in Water, Butterflies' Feathers, the Golden Marrow of a Hair, Insects' Eyes, the Pads, Claws, Joints, and Hairs of a Fly's foot, makes Ropes of fibers of cloth, a Crowbar of a needle's point, and so on indefinitely. It furnishes hours of instruction, entertainment and amusement for young and old and every family should possess it. It is invaluable to students, professors, teachers, physicians, in fact everybody, and especially in the home circle is it a gem. It is cheap and at the same time of great value. It is really of great value to any family if only because it shows the adulterations in food, as sugars, teas, etc., and the qualities of cloths. It also plainly shows Trichina Spiralis, or Pork Worm, whenever it exists in Pork. Price $1 50. Mailed post-paid to any address on receipt of price.

A FAT TAKE FOR AGENTS—MEN and Women, boys and Girls. Whole time or leisure moments and evenings. It works as well by lamplight as by daylight. Parents buy it for their children. Liberal cash commission paid. Exclusive territory. Congenial employment. It excites the curiosity, which produces a desire to have it, and requires no talking by the agent. Complete outfit mailed post-paid on receipt of $1 50. Circulars and terms free. Send for it and make money. Address,

THE PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD.

THE PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD IS AN Elegant Oil Chromo, Photograph Album and Family Record combined, and as its name indicates is designed for the insertion and preservation of the pictures of the family as well as the names. It is something entirely new, combines beauty and utility, and should ornament every home in the land. All who see it pronounce it superb, and are lavish in its praise. The faces of dear ones appear in a tasteful setting of gold and beautiful colors, and is at once and forever a household treasure. And its low price places it within the reach of all. Send for it and you will be gratified when you shall see it. It is something long needed, but never before attainable. Size 20x15 inches. Price $1 50. Mailed post-paid on receipt of price.

$200 A MONTH clear profit made easily by agents. Agents wanted everywhere. Men and women, boys and girls. Entire time or spare moments; day-time or evenings. Everybody wants it, and every family will buy it. Big cash pay. Pleasant employment. Exclusive territory. In fact the best agency ever offered. Circulars and terms free on application. Complete outfit mailed post-paid on receipt of $1 50. Send for it and make money. Address,

Cattle Raising in Texas.

A stranger coming to Texas would be almost of the opinion that cattle must spring up out of the earth, or be blown over the land by the fierce northers. Every steamer that leaves for New Orleans caries its deck load of cattle, and half the men to be met on the streets wear the long spurs and carry the cattle whips which indicate the ranchmen of the prairie. The raising of cattle seems to be the main staple in this section of the State whilst many of those engaged in it do not own an acre of land. They brand and mark their cattle, and turn them loose on the unincloseed prairies, to multiply and increase. A part of these prairies belongs to private parties, but the majority are the public lands of the State. We heard this morning of one cattle raiser who claims that he will have 75,000 calves to brand this season, who has no inclosed pasture, but turns his cattle loose. He claims to have branded 63,000 last year, and and 79,000 the preceding year. Still, in all this great cow country it is almost impossible to get a drink of milk, or sufficient for a cup of coffee. At Galveston it costs $1 per gallon. The cows raise their own calves, which are allowed to consume all the milk. A calf is never killed before it is a year old.

There is now, however, an effort making to compel all parties to keep their cattle in inlands. It is argued that they should be compelled to buy the public lands for pastures, and not be allowed to let their cattle roam at large. It is called the "French law," and imposed a tax on the owners of all cattle found at large after a certain date equal to the tax that would be due to the State if it were owned by private parties. Farmers are not required to fence their lands, but can recover damages for the trespass of cattle in their field. The superiority of cattle fattened in inclosed pastures, and their enhanced value in the New Orleans and Havana markets, will, however, soon compel those who keep their cattle running at large to secure them in inclosed pastures or quit the business. This keeping of cattle in pastures is a comparatively new enterprise, and it has met with marked success everywhere that it has been adopted.

This whole business of turning cattle loose with brands is regarded as a very demoralizing process, leading to all manner of fraud and rascality.—Ex.

Permanent Whitewash.

The season of the year has returned when inquiries are raised for good whitewash. We give the following as excellent: Take a half bushel of excellently burned lime; slack it with boiling water; cover during the process to keep in the steam. Strain the liquid through a fine seive and add to it seven pounds of salt previously well dissolved in water, three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in boiling hot, one-half pound of powdered Spanish whiting, and one pound of clean glue, which has previously been dissolved by soaking it well, and then hang it over a slow fire in a small kettle within a larger one filled with water. Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture, stir it well, and let it stand a few days covered from dirt. For this purpose it can be kept in a kettle on a portable furnace. About a pint of this mixture will cover a square yard.

A Shining Mark.

Grace Greenwood, writing from Denver, says: "Nature did antelopes an ill turn originally by affixing to them a mark by which they can be seen and a bead drawn on them at a distance. It renders them especially liable to attack in the rear, which reminds us of a little story: A small Colorado boy, who had been out planting, ran into the house in a state of great excitement, saying that he had seen some antelopes in a gulch near by. At his entreaty his mother went out to look at them, but nothing of the kind was to be found. She became incredulous and said: 'I don't believe you saw any antelopes; it must have been your imagination, my child!' To this the indignant little mountaineer responded: 'Humph! I guess my imagination isn't white behind!'"

A Wild Boar Hunt in the Fastnesses near Bald Point, Kentucky.

On Saturday, about one hundred and fifty persons, with, dogs, guns, etc., met in the public square of Union, organized under the leadership of Mr. Clarkson, and proceeded to the farm of J. D. Smith, on Gunpowder, which a vicious wild boar had visited the night previous. Here Modoc, a noted dog, belonging to Lucien Dickering, found the trail, and the entire pack was soon in full cry. After a run of more than an hour through the dense thickets and among the bluffs, the boar broke cover toward the open country, with the dogs in hot pursuit. Here the hunt grew very exciting, the pursuers being frequently in full view of the chase, and using their guns whenever they could, and the dogs (fox hound) pressing the game closely, but as yet unable to bring him to bay. In fact, it was almost certain death for one to approach him, his formidable tusks proving such fearful and deadly weapons of defence that he had up to this time killed eight outright and wounded four.

Finally, as he was crossing the Big Bone road, near the residence of Erastus Garrison, a powerful bulldog belonging to Ira Percival of Union, was let loose, and immediately attacked the furious beast. Then ensued a desperate struggle. The boar fought as if he knew that his life was in the balance, and the dog was equally game. The latter seized the maddened animal by the right fore shoulder, and in spite of stabs and gashes from the sharp tusks held on with the tenacity for which the breed is noted. The men coming up joined in the battle with pistols, clubs, and stones, and under the attack of the combined force, the boar was at length stretched on the ground, conquered only in death. On examination it was found that during the chase he had received fourteen shots, inflicting severe wounds. He weighed about five hundred pounds, and his tusks were eight inches in length by actual measurement.

The chase lasted about four hours, and a notable feature of the closing scene was the fact that though the dog was nearly torn to pieces and his antagonist was covered with wounds, neither uttered a cry during the fierce, death struggle, but both were grim, silent, relentless, and game to the very last, and not until the boar was dead could the dog be induced to release his hold.—Covington Advertiser.

Improvements in Cavalry Equipments.

After a session of two months at Fort Leavenworth, the Board of Army officers appointed to report upon cavalry equipments, met at the Watervliet Arsenal, West Troy, on the 25th of March. The Board has about completed its labors, and will soon make its report to the War Department. This is the first Board on cavalry equipments ordered during the past 25 years. It has adopted several improvements, the most important of which are given as follows in The Troy Press:

The saddle has been greatly improved. The ground work is the McClellan saddle, but the tree is hereafter to be made in strict accordance with the explicit measurements, and not to be varied slightly in accordance with the taste of the maker, as heretofore. Instead of the saddle bags now in use, a larger bag has been adopted, which will carry five days rations, thus doing away with the haversack for cavalry. A dark blue saddle-cloth has been adopted. The bit has been materially changed, and is a curb bit of bright shear steel, made somewhat after the English Chiffany bit. The portable forge and blacksmith and saddler tools and materials for cavalry, which have heretofore been carried in separate boxes, have now been neatly and compactly arranged to be carried in a two wheeled vehicle after the pattern used by the Prussian cavalry. This force wagon is so arranged that one horse goes in shafts attached to the whiffletrees. The ammunition is to be carried on the soldier's belt in a double row of cartridge loops which can be removed at pleasure and so arranged as to equalize the weight. By this arrangement the soldier can carry a larger amount of ammunition than heretofore. An improvement has been made in "side lines" for securing horses while herding upon the prairies. The strap extends from the front to the hind leg on the same side, so that the horse cannot run. The Board will also settle the amount of material (leather, sewing materials, etc.) to be issued to a troop each half year. The question of the horse shoe will be decided in a few days. The commandant at Springfield Armory has already received orders to manufacture the carriages for the Gatlin gun after the pattern recommended by the Board.

—An English lady having offered $25,000 to furnish Jerusalem with water, humanity, with all its fears, with all the hopes of future years, is hanging breathless on the settlement of the questions, "Who shall provide the lemons and the whisky?"

—An Indiana woman, whose suit for divorce had lingered along until she was completely out of patience, burst into her lawyers's office, her face radiant with joy, and exclaimed, "Squire, the old man's dead!"

—Now they want to know if one of the Siamese twins had been convicted of murder in the first degree, what would have been done about it?

Lynch Law.

[From The Borax Miner.]

The Alpine Miner of April 25th devotes an entire page to the late hanging by a vigilance committee of the murderer Reusch, near the line of Mono county. The main facts of the affair do not differ materially from the account published in The Borax Miner of last week. The entire community has been aroused, and other parties have been notified to leave the county for the county's good, one of them being the attorney employed by the prisoner to defend him. The "committee" who executed Reusch handed two open letters to the driver of the team before ordering him to move on. Their contents have been widely circulated throughout the neighborhood, and they appear to be indorsed by the citizens: The letters read as follows:

HANGMAN'S BRIDGE, April 17, 1874.

C. P. Goff: We give you thirty days in which to settle up your business in this county; and if you are here at the expiration of that time we will treat you as we have your late client.

(Signed) AN OUTRAGED PUBLIC.

HANGMAN'S BRIDGE, April 17, 1874.

Mrs. L. C. Britton: Your room is better than your presence. We give you thirty days in which to settle up your business in this county, after which time if you are found here you will be politely called upon and assisted away.

(Signed) AN OUTRAGED PUBLIC.

The editor thinks that comment upon these epistles would be superfluous; that they are quite understandable, and their pungency no one can fail to see. He further says that the people have largely discussed the whole matter, and from no mouth has a word of condemnation been heard; the popular verdict is one of universal approval, to which the editor responds, Amen. As to the probable moving cause of the community thus taking the law into its own hands, The Miner says:

Various theories are indulged in as to the reason of this uprising of a band of men to stop the course of law and to meet out what to them seemed justice in the premises. Many looked upon it as a costly farce that we should be put to several thousand dollars expense in the vain endeavor to convict and punish the man. So it is possible that some of that way of thinking may have concluded to squelch the whole thing, and thus do an act in favor of an almost bankrupt people, and at the same time express their sharp opinion as to what they thought Reusch deserved. And others may have thought that the new law giving juries power to fix the penalty for capital crimes—to hang or imprison for life—was the moving cause, that weak kneed jurymen should not cheat the gallows of its dues.

The Cause.

According to the New York Express the recent accident to the Atlantic cable is attributed by mariners to the intoxicated condition of the monsters of the deep, which resulted from the imbibation of the 18,000 baskets of champagne lost in the Europe. The cable, very naturally, in aquatic circles, does duty as a lamp post, and intoxicated fishes, leaning thereon for support, caused the break. This may be taken as one of the stories that may appropriately be told to the marines.

Industrial Exhibition.

The Exhibitions of the Mechanics, Institute at San Francisco have become very popular, and have been of great use in disseminating a general knowledge of the material Industries Arts, Sciences, etc., of our progressive State. The Ninth Exhibition of the Institute is now announced to be open for the reception of goods August 10. Applications for space must be made on or before the 20th of July. Address and mark goods to "Managers of Ninth Industrial Exhibition, San Francisco, Cal." The Exhibition will be open to the public August 18. Following are a portion of the rewards and rules promulgated:

The location of the Exhibition Building is exceedingly central, and convenient to six different lines of street cars, connecting with every part of the city. It is immediately opposite the new City Hall, is but 2½ blocks distant from the United States Branch Mint, and distant 1,500 yards from the Grand Hotel.

The building, running the whole length of the east side of Eighth street, between Mission and Market streets, is bounded by three of the widest streets in the city, and can be approached on the east side by two fifty feet streets.

The Managers need scarcely give assurances of care and attention to the requirements of the exhibitors. The previous Industrial Exhibitions held under the same auspices, it is believed, is a guaranty that all will be done in this respect that is possible.

The Exhibition will be open to all the world, and all exhibitors will be placed on the some footing.

Motive power will be furnished free of charge.

Persons desiring to exhibit will present their applications for space at as early a day as possible, addressing their applications or inquiries to the "agent" of the Board of Managers, Mechanics' Institute, No. 27 Post street, San Francisco.

All persons presenting articles for exhibition must have them registered by the Receiving Clerk, who will give a receipt for the same, which receipt must be presented when the articles are withdrawn, at the close of the Exhibition.

The name of every article must be attached by the exhibitor to it, and filed with the Board of Managers.

In case of any misunderstanding, application can be made to the Manager of the day, who will at all times be in attendance.

Articles intended for sale will be labeled accordingly, but cannot be removed until the close of the Exhibition, except by written permission of the Managers.

Steam power will be provided, so that machinery of all kinds may be seen in actual operation, and every facility possible will be given to exhibit working machinery to the best advantage.

Perishable articles will be received or may be removed at any time during the Exhibition, with the consent of the Managers.

The most effectual means will be taken, through the agency of the Police and otherwise, to guard and protect the property on exhibition; and it will be the purpose of the Managers that all articles shall be returned to the owners without loss or injury. Still, all articles deposited will be at the risk of the owners.

Articles intended for exhibition must be entered and placed on exhibition on or before Friday, August 21st.

Cremation.

In Europe and in the West this subject is being constantly agitated, the method having lately received a practical trial in a recent instance. It may do where there is plenty of coal and furnaces, but here, where winds prevail, fuel is scarce and high, and where we have other uses for furnaces—it being doubtful about an ordinary body making good flux, unless "leaded"—it won't go down. To make it a success it would be necessary to notify all the friends, some time in advance, that "Mr. Smith Jones' demise is confidently looked for in a few days—the doctors being in constant attendance—therefore his many friends are requested to turn out at once and assist in gathering sage-brush with which to cremate him, without danger of disagreeable delay. His lovely relict is desirous of having him well cooked; hence this request."

The Old Story.

The investigation of the manner in which Hippel or Mitchell of Oregon became a United States Senator revealed some ugly facts. One of the members of the Legislature testified that Mitchell offered him $1,000 to go home and not vote at all, and $5,000 more if he could induce two other members to do the same.

A GREAT HARDSHIP—THE POST CONTRACTS.

By reference to the proceedings of our District Court, now in session, it will be noticed that a foreclosure mortgage suit has been decided against one of our citizens, and necessarily a large amount of interest and costs have been heaped upon him. All this is owing to the non-fulfillment of its obligations by the Government, notwithstanding a positive promise by its representatives, the military authorities, on this coast. The latter issued a certified general order, dated October 10, 1873, which was distributed over this coast in a printed form (a copy of which we have before us) to the effect that the regular supplies of forage, fuel, etc., shall be paid for monthly, in cash, from that date. Our citizen referred to, being the principal contractor for these articles, has now, for over four months, nearly $6,000 due him, and has not received a dollar since last January. Relying upon the promise referred to, he hoped to obtain at least a sufficient amount to satisfy the mortgage debt, but failed to obtain the least satisfaction, and in consequence has to bear the onus of a suit and the additional expense and costs of at least $400. The military authorities at San Francisco do not even now respond to the contractor's requests for payment, much less pay his demands, and he is obliged to borrow an additional amount to pay his own debts, incurred by this contract, not knowing when his demands against the Government will be satisfied.

The same contractor only a month ago received payment of about $5,000 which has been due for over thirteen months, on his contracts with the Government of the year previous. This amount he was obliged to borrow to carry out his subsequent contracts, and he has paid out over $1,900 for interest on that sum. Yet the Government continues to make its regular demands for supplies, and the contractor is obliged to furnish them, on time and to order, or forfeit all claims of pay. It isn't decent, the way these things are done by the Government. And here is another matter in the same connection, to which we shall refer. In the first place we will state that this paper was a few months since officially designated by the Secretary of War as the medium for War Department advertising for this district, a fact of which our readers were duly notified, and thereby led to believe that when proposals for supplies for Camp Independence were required the fact and details would be found in its columns. In February an advertisement for commissary supplies was published by order. Later, Quartermaster's supplies, such as hay, grain, wood and freighting, were needed. These last were all of a class of especial interest to local bidders, and with the exception of freights, just such supplies as the locality can alone supply. But no advertisement for any of these was ordered and of course none appeared. In fact the bids (all of which had to be opened in San Francisco) were opened and the awards made on the 15th of April, and fully two weeks before this "official" paper knew that any proposals for such bids had even been submitted. Now, we can furnish the affidavits of at least half a dozen persons to the effect that they were only waiting the proper notification (which they had a right to expect to see in this paper) to submit bids for wood, hay and grain, and also that they, like us, never knew that such proposals had been submitted until a number of days after the awards had been made in San Francisco. Here we ask, what kind of economy and retrenchment is that? And besides that, is it doing the fair thing to the most deserving of all, the frontier public, to thus surreptitiously, as it were, deprive them of an equal chance with those bidders around the Department headquarters? For all we know to the contrary the awards may have been as advantageous to the Government as if there had been forty bidders instead of two or three or thereabouts, but we really do not think this great Sanborn United States Government would have been very much loser by paying the seven or eight dollars which a full and proper advertisement for these Quartermaster's supplies would have cost published, in this paper.

We have in all cases doing the past four years willingly given place to all such advertisements free of charge. First, because we knew that the officers were unauthorized to order such paid, and second, that they, like us, were desirious of giving the information for the benefit of the local public. In all, these advertisements, including some for the Land Department, have amounted to a considerable sum, but except one only, paid by the War Department and one by Capt. MacGowan out of his own pocket, we have never received a cent for any of them. But papers published in outside Territories, hundreds of miles away, regularly advertise for Camp Independence supplies, and regularly, no doubt, draw their pay for the same. But it is not at all on our own account we file these objections. We object on general principles to any such dark lantern system of carrying on Government affairs, and the unjust discriminations in the method, and most of all to the meanness in the matter of the unpaid, hard-earned dues of honest contractors. The management of the War Department has hitherto commanded public confidence in a much higher degree than any other branch of the Government, but it appears that it is losing ground quite as rapidly as the rest.

COUNTY SCRIP.

People seem to have curious ideas about county scrip. They seem to think that the sooner they get it off their hands the better, and in their desire to do this submit to the most outrageous shaves. If one was to tender a greenback to a merchant or other creditor in payment for goods, he would naturally expect and demand its market price, which to-day is 89 cents. If the aforesaid merchant was to refuse to allow him more than 70 cents for it the debtor would boil over, and call up some reminiscences about Shylock and other noted gougers, and walk off swearing that he wouldn't be swindled in that way; that he would keep his greenback, though it bore no interest and was as likely to depreciate as to rise in value. But with intrinsically a more valuable piece of paper, bearing a fair rate of interest, unquestionable security, and certain of redemption in gold coin in a very few months, the conditions are very different, and all because it is "county scrip." It is not essentially a legal tender, of course, and of course the aforesaid creditor is going to take advantage of his debtor's necessities, and take his property at rates depreciated in accordance therewith. He, the creditor, is not satisfied to accept the highest going rate of interest, which is two per cent. per month but with the best of security demands at least three per cent. per month for his little accommodation in allowing the creditor to pay his debt with this kind of money. This plan is legitimate and ordinary for a money broker, and it may be legitimate for a merchant asking public patronage, but it lacks a good deal of being either liberal or politic. It is not the county whose bones are being picked under this regime, but individual customers, and since it is a rule to make distinctions between the two—one being considered fair game by sharps, the other not, because it is impolitic—we feel surprised at the system adopted in reference to all the small issues of the new county scrip. Nine months from date or sooner for a portion of the first issue, each dollar of this will be paid off and with five cents (nearly) in interest added. At two per cent per month discount the present value of one dollar in county scrip, bearing seven per cent. per annum, is within a fraction of 89 cents in coin. But the holders think they are doing well to take 70 cents, which is the same (within a tenth of a cent) as giving four per cent. per month, which is decidedly a ruinous rate for anybody to pay even for coin, much less for goods, previously sold at prices intended to cover a similar rate, cash or long credit. There were this week between one and two hundred warrants issued, averaging about $15 each. The sellers of these at 70 cents submitted to a gouge of about two dollars each, besides paying 2¼ per cent per month for the accommodation. Now it strikes us very forcibly that jurors, witnesses and others receiving these small warrants, and disposing of them at such a discount are fooling away considerable money unnecessarily. These warrants are, for local circulation or neighborhood exchange, worth more, dollar for dollar, than greenbacks, and at the same valuation if no more, ought to be used as such, or the same practically as furnace orders. Some $500 of them have already been paid off in coin, and some more will be, it is fair to presume, before the expiration of the nine months, when the whole issue will be taken up. It should be understood that they are paid off in the order of registration, which makes the first issues somewhat more valuable.

May Do It.

It is thought that the railroad about being constructed from Los Angles to Inyo county, will be extended on through Southern Nevada, by way of Pioche, to Salt Lake, or connecting with the road now being extended south from that city. If so, it can not fail to divert much of the travel from the Central Pacific, and possibly work a reduction of fares.—Reno Crescent.

THE SANBORN CONTRACTS.

"Sanborn, the mysterious man, was again before the Committee of Investigation," is the substance of frequent dispatches of late. Of course this is in connection with some swindle on the Government, the which seems to be the rule and not the exception, these highly moral days. To give some idea of the different ways in which those in high places manage things, a synopsis of the "Sanborn Contract" will be in order.

In the month of February, 1872, the Senate Committee on Appropriations reported the following amendment to the appropriation Bill.

"From and after the passage of this act the Secretary of the Treasury shall have the power to employ not more than three persons to assist the proper officers of the Government in discovering and collecting any money belonging to the United States, whenever the same shall be withheld by any person or corporation, upon such terms as he shall deem best for the interests of the United States. But no compensation shall be paid to such persons except out of the money and property so secured."

There are two things to be noted in this clause, viz: its limitations and its non limitations. It authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to appoint persons to assist the regular officers of the Government in the collecting of revenues. Setting aside the question why such persons should be needed in addition to the regular officers, we notice a peculiar limit to their number, viz: three persons. Now considering the fact that there is no restriction laid upon the Secretary of the Treasury as to the kind or amount of revenue to be thus collected, or to the per cent paid as a compensation, we are confronted with the fact that one single officer of the Government is granted the power of dividing ninety-nine per cent of all the taxes due to the Government from every source of its revenue—if he desire—among three of his personal friends.

The suspicious points of this bill immediately excited the alarm of a number of the members of both Houses of Congress. The Senate adopted it, but the House twice rejected it positively. After its first rejection it was put into the hands of a conference committee of the Senate, which, after nine meetings, forced it through the unwilling House, by cutting off debate, and applying the same spur that was used a year later to carry the salary grab; the necessity of saving the Appropriation Bill.

In a short time a contract was made with John D. Sanborn under this bill; we might more truly say under a most extraordinary interpretation of the bill. According to its terms the persons contracted with were to "assist" the revenue officers, to collect such moneys as could not otherwise be collected, under terms such as might be deemed "best for the interests of the United States." But Secretary Boutwell's instructions were that all regular revenue officers should assist John D. Sanborn, to collect any moneys that he might name, and the compensation agreed upon between this precious pair of protectors of of the public treasury was 50 per cent of all moneys collected.

The following is Mr. Boutwell's letter to the revenue officers:

"You are requested to assist John D Sanborn in the examination of official records in reference to such alleged violation of the Internal Revenue laws as he may ask for your co-operation.

Mr. Sanborn is acting under an appointment from me, and may need some information from the offices of collectors and assessors, for the purpose of verifying his claims."

Everything, we see, trusted to the omniscient wisdom and undoubted purity of this one man Sanborn! What a beautiful faith in the power of human nature to resist temptation his instructor must have had! In effect these instructions made John D. Sanborn farmer-general of all the revenues of the country, and armed with them he proceeded forthwith to enter the offices of Internal revenue, examine all books, and ascertain what taxes were due and unpaid. He discovered nothing that was not known to the proper officers. In some cases by the connivance of the collectors, taxes falling due at this time were recorded as collected by Sanborn; in others, when he discovered that the taxes had been paid in large amounts, he presented his claim for having discovered and collected them, and the Treasury Department never failed to pay him, without question, one half of all sums thus specified. Two of these instances may be mentioned. A large sum of money was due the government from the Delaware & Lackawanna Railroad. A question as to its exact amount delayed its payment for a few days, but when the amount was decided upon as $99,685 it was promptly paid into the United States Treasury. Some days later Sanborn wrote to the confiding Secretary of the Treasury, that he had been instrumental in the collection of the money, whereupon one-half of it was paid over to him. A like case was the Phelps estate. Here also there was a delay because the exact amount was not known, bu but when known, $14,820, it was directly paid to the proper officer, and subsequently one half of it went into the capacious wallet of John D. Sanborn. By these and similar "strokes of business," this gifted gentleman managed, in less than a year, to abstract from the over-flowing coffers of Uncle Sam, the neat little sum of $200,000!

Now while these things were going on, Mr. A. W. Tenny, the United States District Attorney of Brooklyn, obtained some inkling of their stupendous rascality, and wrote to Secretary Richardson for papers to lay before the Grand Jury with the case. These papers were strangely delayed; however, Mr. Tenny did not therefore wait, but convened the Grand Jury, laying before it direct evidence, and during the month of January this body found an indictment against Sanborn for defrauding the U. S. Treasury.

These are the facts in the case. It is very improbable that an official investigation into the details of the frauds, or the direct or indirect implication in them of various men holding high positions, can now be made. But these facts have a value in themselves. They have opened the eyes of the thinking voters of the country to the disgraceful inefficiency of much of our boasted civil service. They have awakened us to the knowledge that we have a set of excise laws, so clumsily framed, and so scandalously mismanaged, that they would disgrace a community of Thugs. They have also called to our notice a brood of vampires who are subsisting upon the life-blood of the country—villains who shamelessly appropriate to their own private uses the money paid by the honest citizen for the support of our government—systematically robbing the nation's treasury under the cover and name of the law.

Daniels, the teamster who killed the Chinamen at Indian Wells, and did some robbing there, is making himself conspicuous as one of the Vasquez men, he, with three or four others, having attacked and wounded one of Sheriff Morse's men down near Los Angeles, a few days since. We prophecy this Daniels will sell out his pals the first safe opportunity.

A New Map.

For a number of weeks past Capt. A. B. McGowan, Camp Independence, has been engaged in compiling a map of the region embraced between the 36th and 39th parallels, and longitude 116 to 120 west (Greenwich). This map is projected on a scale of 6 miles to the inch, and except in the outer margins, where it is merely outline, every notable point and detail is given with great distinctness, and what is of more importance, with correctness of position and bearings. It is compiled from all available sources, including actual surveys, personal observations by glass and compass by the officers, the scout lines inaugurated by Co. "B" 12th Infantry under Major Egbert, and continued to date by Capt. McGowan, Co. "D," same regiment. This map is a model specimen in correctness and neatness of execution, and as it is one of our region, we very much hope the Department will order it published. It upsets some pre-conceived notions of the relative bearings of certain points, among which we mention Lida Valley, Pioche and some others, placing them somewhat further to the northward. By this map the somewhat mooted point as to whether Piper's Ranch is in Inyo or Mono county is definitely settled in favor of Inyo by some three or four miles. The "line of scouts" or trails of the various expeditions of the companies mentioned, Wheeler and others, are all laid down, and from them we ascertain the distance from Camp Independence to the following named places to be, in miles, as follows: To Visalia, via Kearsarge trail, 90; Alida Valley, 84; Cerro Gordo, 40; Gold Mountain, 110; Death Valley, 104; Piper's Ranch, 69; Palmetto, 82; Wacouba, via Big Pine, 76 and by the Mazurka trail 28 miles. As this is to be the official map of the district in the War Department, the official name of Fisherman's Peak or the new Mt. Whitney, goes down as "Inyo Dome; altitude, 15,300 feet," which is a very good name for the highest peak (save one in Alaska) in Uncle Sam's dominions.

A Decision Rendered.

The news comes that Judge Belden has finally denied the motion for a new trial, made by the plaintiffs in the great Union-San Felipe suit. This involves an appeal and indefinite delay in the settlement of an issue of the gravest importance to this whole county, and certainly no less so to the parties immediately in interest. Setting aside the intrinsic merits of the case as regards the legal or equitable claims of the respective parties, we look upon this decision in the light of a present misfortune to more than one important interest of this part of the State. THE INDEPENDENT has no friendly feeling for rights secured by legal possibilities, in contradistinction to those developed and well earned by hard work and persevering energy. So far as the knowledge of man now goes, the Union is the most valuable mine within the limits of the State, and it is the energy and indomnitable perseverance of the defeated parties solely that has proved it to be such. In this view, at least, they have an indubitable property right, of which no legal process can deprive them in public opinion; but an equitable right in public esteem only is not the kind to bring bread and butter, so the issue will still hinge on law process simply.

More Shooting.

For not doing better work when he did commence he got fined in the sum of $30, which he may have to pay. That our account of the affray does not give the names of the principal actors is because we don't know their names, and if we did we might get the shooter represented as the shootee, an avoidance of which is desirable from the very nature of the circumstance. It seems that a creature hanging around one of the infamous dance house dens of Cerro Gordo, literally beat the head of one of the woman into almost an indistinguishable mass of flesh. When the girl's "lover" came in that night he organized a raid upon the house—Lola's—and after a preliminary skirmish or two opened fire upon the woman-beater, who at the time was standing at the bar. One ball struck the wrong young man, a brother of the bagnio keeper, inflicting a flesh wound in the leg. Another struck the woman-beater in the temple, but the ball ploughed around the skull and inflicted no particular or lasting damage. For making a ridiculous failure in this respect the shooter was, upon being brought before a magistrate the next day, fined in the sum of $30.

Kearsarge Peak.

The Franck interest in the Kearsarge property is now in the hands of Col. R. N. Graves, a noted mining operator of the Comstock, and in friendship with the Van Gorder side. D. P. Pierce takes the Superintendency, and one of the preliminary operations is the construction of a furnace for roasting the ores. The Kearsarge belt is undoubtedly rich as well as extensive, the past failures of which were the result of sheer blundering. Bob. Graves don't blunder; at least he never has.

Can Have it.

The lady who is loser of a brown gauntlet glove can have it by applying at this office.

Board of Supervisors.

MONDAY, May 4.

Board met; present, John R. Hughes, J. W. P. Laird and A. N. Bell, President.

John C. Irwin was appointed Constable for Cerro Gordo Township.

Ordered that the money standing to the credit of the now paid up Building Fund—$124 51, less $33 03 advanced by Treasurer in redemption of bonds—be transferred to the credit of the Expense Fund, pursuant to law.

Following were the bids received for the care of county sick, pursuant to advertisement: Margaret Lewis, at $2,695 warrants on Hospital Fund, or $1,840 coin. P. G. Gelcich at $4,000, Hospital Fund warrants.

A. P. Mann was appointed Constable for Third Township.

Ordered, that the money now remaining in the General Fund be, by the County Treasurer, transferred to the Expense Fund.

David Olds was appointed Justice of the Peace for the Fourth Township.

TUESDAY, May 5.

C. Mulkey tendered his resignation as Sheriff, which was accepted. On petition of citizens, J. J. Moore was appointed as such officer.

On petition, Commissioners and Inspector were appointed to lay out and build a road from the town of Panamint to Post-office Springs, as follows: M. J. Byrnes and D. G. Tipton, Commissioners; Henry Gilson, Inspector.

Road Master Bodle's report accepted.

Treasurer Isaacs' report accepted.

Ordered, that the bills of Dr. J. O. Grant be reconsidered at the next regular meeting.

J. W. Allyn was appointed Road Overseer for Cerro Gordo district, and Oliver Cromwell the same for Bishop Creek.

Petition for cross roads in Round Valley passed for next meeting.

A. H. Johnson was granted the right to put up and maintain a toll gate on the Tuttle Creek road, about one and a half miles south of Lone Pine.

The bid of Margaret Lewis for the care of county sick was rejected, on the ground that she was not a sole trader under the law.

The bid of P. G. Gelcich was accepted, to take effect immediately on filing bonds.

The bills of Drs. Gelcich and Columber for holding post mortems were rejected.

The principal business transacted on Wednesday was the making of an order that the Board do meet as a Board of Equalization on the first Monday in July, and also on same date as a Board of Supervisors, to take action in regard to the balance due on bridge contracts, and to make appointments of Justices and Constables for the Sixth (Panamint) Township.

Adjourned for the term.

Rather Cheeky.

It has leaked out that certain disinterested and public spirited (?) residents of Independence are arranging a select reception affair in honor of Mr. Earl upon his return. Considering all the circumstances, this proposition had better be kept as religiously secret as possible by those interested in the mess. In this manner there could be no question of their right to do it, it being a token of their appreciation of a man belonging to the great mail contract ring, and one who could get the authorities to find his bid in the bottom of the box some three days after all others had been opened, examined and passed upon—upon which Earl's credit suddenly improved in certain financial circles.

Resigned.

As will be seen by our report of the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors, Sheriff Mulkey has resigned his office, and the late Under Sheriff, J. J. Moore, is now the appointed Sheriff of the county. The office is in good hands, but Mr. Mulkey's resignation will be received with general regret, and no less so the contemplated early departure of himself and highly regarded family for Montana. This will be a loss not easily compensated.

Off for Europe.

County Treasurer Henry M. Isaacs departs for England on Monday next, his absence to cover a period of four months. Harry certainly has the public's best wishes for a pleasant trip and a safe return—doubled. Mrs. Isaac Harris and family accompany him as far as Reno, from whence they go to San Francisco for a sojourn.

The Sprout.

Superintendent Wingard of the Silver Sprout is looked for by the Southern stage to-night. That company are pinning their faith upon the A. B. Paul process, and we trust that it may have for once the benefit of a fair trial.

Runaway.

George Clark, of Bishop, with Mallory's buggy team, enjoyed a runaway and smash up while on his way hither to the pic-nic, but we've concluded not to mention it. Don't tell anybody.

Anti-License.

A strong local option agitation is obtaining at Bishop Creek. The movement bids fair of proving successful, and it is to be hoped that it may, there, here and everywhere else.

Barn Burnt.

The barn of M. C. Brockman, at Bishop Creek, caught fire by some means to us unknown on Wednesday last, and with its contents was totally destroyed.

DISTRICT COURT PROCEEDINGS—FIRST WEEK.

May Term, 1874—Reed, Judge.

J. A. Sanchez vs. Lewis Wolfskill et als.—same as above.

San Felipe Mining Co., et als vs. M. W. Belshaw et als.—Restitution of San Felipe or Frieburg Tunnel; P. W. Bennett for plaintiffs. Reddy for defendants. By consent, passed for the term.

J. C. Morrison, jr. vs. Wm. G. Squires—assumpsit; R. B. Snelling for plaintiff. Passed.

Martin Mee vs. Boushey Company, a corporation—assumpsit foreclosure of lien; Reddy for plaintiff, Bennett & Gregg for defendant. Passed to latter part of term.

Alice Stecker vs. August F. Stecker—divorce; Reddy for plaintiff, Bennett & Gregg for defendant. Divorce granted.

P. Reddy vs. The Boushey Silver Mining Co., a corporation—restitution; Reddy for plaintiff, Bennett & Gregg for defendant. Passed.

Fleischman, Sechel & Co. vs. S. Pinchower—assumpsit; Reddy for plaintiff. Settled.

W. J. Donathan vs. Catharine Donathan—divorce; Reddy for plaintiff. Divorce granted.

Frank Broder vs. E. Chaquette—foreclosure of mortgage; Reddy for plaintiff. Foreclosure ordered. [This is the case referred to elsewhere in the matter of the Post Contracts.—EDS.]

J. C. Morrison, jr., vs. Petra Romera—assumpsit; Reddy for plaintiff. Judgment by default.

J. W. McMurry vs. Stewart & McDonald—assumpsit; Reddy for plaintiff. Settled.

Paul W. Bennett and P. Reddy vs. Wm. Watt, et als.—assumpsit for $30,000; Bennett and Reddy for plaintiffs. Passed.

Pinchower & Bro. vs Simon Pinchower—assumpsit. Reddy for plaintiff. Passed.

Michels Friedlander vs. S. Pinchower—Reddy for plaintiff. Passed.

COUNTY COURT.

May Term, 1874—Hannah, Judge.

This Court held short sessions on Monday and Tuesday and then adjourned to next Monday.

F. P. Ball vs. John Viel—appeal from Justice's Court, 3d township; Reddy for plaintiff, Bennett & Gregg for defendant.

John J. McCall & A. H. Johnson, against Robert Arnold—forcible entry and detainer. Reddy and Bennett & Gregg for plaintiffs J. G. Howard for defendant.

The Indigent Sick.

The troubles connected with this expensive part of the county government are now considered settled. In the first place no bills from outside parties for taking care of indigent sick persons not authorized by the county physician, will hereafter be allowed, so that the whole charge for hospital matters will be covered by the new contract price allowed the county physician, Dr. P. G. Gelcich. Except in the matter of these outside charges, for which the county physician was not responsible, we don't see that any big thing has been secured to the county by the new arrangement. Last year Dr. White's total charges were $4,900; since that time they have been at the rate of $2,800 per annum. Under the new system whether there be few or many patients the cost remains the same, to-wit: $4,000 a year. We are finding no fault with the arrangement, but wish simply to say that we think there was much useless talk about the former tremendous hospital charges, to judge by the small gain on the new plan. Dr. Gelcich is well qualified in our belief for his undertaking, and we have no doubt will do full justice to all coming under his care. The county hospital will now be at Lone Pine. Dr. White will continue his private hospital, as heretofore.

Denies the Soft Impeachment.

We are in receipt of a communication signed "from the Honorable Charles C. Bell, Esquire," dated at Benton, May 6, in which the writer energetically denies The Borax Miner's imputation that the said Bell has something to do with THE INDEPENDENT's Benton correspondence—and in this matter we will vouch for the correctness of the great Jigadeer Brindle's assertions. The communication proceeds to give The Miner man particular fits, and intimates that it is none of The Miner's business if the writer is "a retired English military officer;" that, as such, he has always paid his bills, which is more than some other folks do, etc. The General winds up with the statement if brother Barnes sends him a challenge it will be "accepted with the greatest pleasure." As we dislike to widen a little breach between friends, or to encourage a contest between a pair of intellectual giants, we can do no more than give this communication a passing allusion. The Miner, however, had butter dry up.

Mining Around Bishop.

The owners of the placer diggings mentioned some time since as having been struck at a point some 12 miles west of Bishop Creek, are preparing to work them thoroughly by putting in hydraulics, having ordered the necessary piping, etc., for the purpose. The owners are Messrs. Chamberlain, Brown, Riddle, McBee, and Meek. The party working in the new Piute District, in the White mountains on the other side of the valley, consisting of Griswold, Dose, Morris and Keplinger, have recently shipped to the arrastras at Fish Springs a fine lot of ore for reduction.

The New Firm.

John R. Hughes and Dan Williams, two men as popular as men can be, are now in partnership in the Cosmopolitan Saloon, Cerro Gordo. See card elsewhere in this issue.

Look Out!

The young hoodlum who stole a six-shooter from this office last night will do well to return it forthwith or leave the county.

Dance To-Night.

There is to be a dance to-night at the Masonic Hall. Kerosene your carbuncles and come along.

The Murder Trial.

The case of the People vs. E. P. Welch for murder was called on the opening of the Court last Monday. The defendant's counsel, J. G. Howard, a Los Angeles lawyer, was not present, but instead thereof was a letter, without date or place, from the aforesaid lawyer stating that he could not be present until the following Wednesday, all because he had been misinformed as to when the stages left Bakersfield! Judge Reed and people generally were struck with the intellectual ingenuity of this excuse, and marveled much as to whether that letter came by stage or telegraph, or if by stage, why it (the stage) couldn't pack a lawyer, drunk or sober, in addition. But, any how, jurors to the number of about a hundred besides witnesses, felt gratified to think one single lawyer's business was of more importance than all of theirs combined, and meekly made up their minds to "sweat" a couple of days longer till the ancient branch of the law should be pleased to put in an appearance. It was annoying to the Court to be thus compelled to hold so many people, but he certainly could do no better. His Honor proposed to appoint counsel for the defense, and go on with the case, and appointed P. Reddy and V. G. Gregg, Esqs., as such counsel. Mr. Reddy declined to take the case on any conditions whatever, except by a peremptory order of the Court, and if at all, demanded two days for preparation. Mr. Gregg was not present. The Court made the order peremptory, to take effect Wednesday morning, conditional on the non-arrival of J. G. Howard, the Los Angeles limb of the law. On Tuesday evening the counsel arrived, not so drunk but that he could use his tongue; but of this, and some other circumstances following, we do not propose to make present mention and for this reason—That a full jury has not yet been obtained and we do not wish nor intend to prejudice anybody's case or chances unnecessarily. The work of empaneling a jury begun on Wednesday morning, Howard having given notice that he reserved the right to move for a change of venue, his client's due as he believed from certain facts to which he alluded, but which with the rest of like nature we pass as also some connected with the way juries are impannelled, which process furnishes an interesting study. By the following day the venire was exhausted and but eight jurors sworn, the defense yet having eight and the people three peremptory challenges in reserve. A venire for fifty more jurors was ordered, returnable Monday next; this venire to be served by Coroner Wayland. The eight jurors are constantly in charge of an officer. The prisoner manifests no especial feeling, and his wife and family are regularly in attendance in court. This much may be said: He has nothing to fear if an able counsel, who possesses more than the average share of legal acumen, can by any means known to the law, effect an acquittal or reduction of the crime. We believe it is the determination of the Court to exhaust the jury list of the entire county, if necessary, before giving up the effort to secure the panel. In this the Court is undoubtedly correct. Save in the advantage of time and adventitious circumstances contingent thereon, we are confident Welch cannot by any possible chance secure a more favorable showing than he will have right here. Not an obstacle equivalent to a feather's weight will be thrown in his way to deprive him of any legal right or chance. If the law is ninety-nine per cent in favor of the defendant as it generally appears to be, then Welch will not be forced to take less by undue or excessively rigid prosecution—he won't be persecuted. Rev. Beecher says that if a man desires to commit murder legally so as to certainly subject himself to the penalty, he must previously consult and strictly heed the instructions of an able criminal lawyer; otherwise he will make a blundering mess of it, and be held guiltless in spite of himself. It remains to be seen whether this defendant blundered or did not blunder in this respect. As soon and as fast as it can consistently be done, we purpose giving the salient points of the case, both preceeding and during the trial, should it come on here at all, which is as it may be.

Correction.

In a notice of the bankruptcy case of J. S. Ullrick last week, the sum of $6,000 was given as an estimate of the liabilities. It appears from the schedule that the amount will reach $14,000 instead. Instead of the creditors accepting a simple assignment, and a release by them on receiving a percentage, the matter is taken before the United States Register in Bankruptcy, holding forth at Virginia—involving a process perfectly interminiable and one that will eat up every dollar that would otherwise accrue to the creditors. Under the present arrangement the final wind up will not be reached in less than two years, if then.

Ornamenting.

During the Spring Harry Wright, of the Taboose, has been setting out numerous shade trees, an example we feel like commending by a special notice. Among the rest is a large, old-fashioned honey locust, a rarity in this country. The Taboose is bound to become a favorite resort.

Proline.

A yellow bull dog of the feminine gender, at Taylor's Ranch, near Big Pine, belonging to Aleck Cochran, recently gave birth to twenty-one pups. The mother and family are all alive and doing as well as could be expected.

Lost.

Attention is called to an "ad" under the above head, elsewhere.

Weather Report.

Following are some comparative weather notes, and observations, for which we are indebted to Dr. C. B. White, U. S. A., Camp Independence:

Freezing Temp. 1873.		Freezing Temp. 1874.
April 4, 5, 6	21°	April 5	32°
" 7	28 "	" 6	28 "
" 8	30 "	" 13	30 "
" 9	32 "	" 14	30 "
May 29	31 "	" 15	30 "
" 30	29 "	" 16	30 "
		May 2	29 "
		" 7	29 "

The winds this Spring have been more constant and more forcible than is usual in this valley. The actual degree of cold, as will be seen by the above, has only been about the same as since the great earthquake. It is probably only a coincidence, but the Springs since the earthquake disturbance of 1872 (including that year) have been much colder and with greater disturbances of the atmosphere than is shown by any previous record at the Post. But on the 29th and 30th of May, 1870, the mercury fell at 7 A. M. to 28° and 29°, and the 31st to 31°.

—It is feared that when Summer comes the song of the cricket will be no longer heard, and the succulent grasshopper will be sought in vain by the dusky warrior in the sage-brush region. "Dirty Bill" the other day pensively remarked to the editor of The Eureka Cupel "Mebbe so bimeby Injun heap ketchum hogadie."

—It is estimated that the total wood drive on the Carson river this season will be about 100,000 cords.

THE PACIFIC IRRIGATING PIPE, AIR PIPE AND PUMP CO.

San Francisco, Cal.

THE ATTENTION OF AGRICULTURISTS AND farmers, especially, is called to these celbrated pumps already in use throughout the Western States and Pacific Coast, giving perfect satisfaction everywhere. For durability, efficiency and cheapness they cannot be excelled, the material used being cut from the butt log of the most durable timber in use. These pumps are adapted to all climates, and are not affected by heat or cold. They are made of different sizes to raise water in greater or less volume as may be required; and various lengths to operate in wells and cisterns either shallow or of great depth, and are handsomely turned and painted to preserve them against exposure. Air pipe for tunnels, mines, etc., made of the same material, are very efficient, cheap and durable.

Redwood,

Agency for Inyo and Mono counties at the Inyo Drug Store, Lone Pine, where full information will be given, orders promptly attended to and pumps may be inspected, having one in good running order in the well.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday,.....May 9, 1874.

—Barley water is said to be very beneficial for patients suffering from inflammatory diseases. Place two ounces pearl barley in two quarts boiling water; boil down to one quart and strain. A little lemon juice and sugar may be added if desirable. It may be drank at pleasure.

—The Sutro tunnel can now be worked on three faces at once, shaft No. 2 having reached the tunnel level. The headed of the main tunnel is enlarged from 8x8 to 8x12 feet in size to accommodate the Burleigh drills they have adopted.

—The greatest velocity of wind registered at any time on Pike's Peak, has been eighty miles an hour. This took place during a severe snow storm, and the frost work collected so fast upon the machine that it had to be taken down.

—Foote once asked a man without a sense of a tune in him. "Why are you forever humming that tune?" "Because it haunts me," was the reply. "No wonder," answered Foote; "you are forever murdering it."

—When a Tennssee father walks into a newspaper office with a shot-gun on his arm and says: "My darter has writ some poetry which I want you to publish," how's a feller going to plead press of matter?

—A farmer living near Glasgow, Del., has a mad horse. The horse is penned in a stall by himself, and keeps up a continual kicking and knocking his head against the partition. He was bitten by a mad dog.

—A Chicago pork-packer, whose pew rent was raised to twenty-five dollars, exclaimed, "Great Cæsar! here is a nice state of affairs—the gospel going up and pork going down. What's to become of us?"

—A reporter on an Iowa paper wrote yesterday morning. "Winter and Spring kissed each other in the sunrise, and each spread its choicest favors on the purple air." He was married next day.

—"And so they go," one of our snobs is reported to have said; "our great men are fast departing—first Greeley, then Chase, and now Sumner—and I don't feel very well myself."

—There is a butcher in Keokuk, Iowa, who gives away a chromo with every ten pounds of meat. Is the generous man sure that his patrons would not prefer an extra chop?

—A man in Wilmington, N. C., is thus described by a young lady of the same city: "He is so stingy that whenever he smiles it is always at his neighbor's expense."

—Those persons who walk in and try to convince one that it isn't Spring, and point to the thermometer and such trifles should be discouraged. Show them the almanac.

—A French doctor says that a vapor bath, at a temperature of 144 degrees on seven consecutive days, will cure hydrophobia. Why not boil the man at once?

—Bobbs complains that his wife is an inflationist. She blows him up every day, and makes him circulate until he actually feels that he is beyond redemption.

—The dead Elder Knapp believed firmly in a personal devil who walked the earth in the form of a Universalist minister, or an editor.

—A jury in San Diego, Cal., the other day brought in a verdict of not guilty, with a request to the defendant to restore the sheep.

—One of the nicest ways of committing suicide and of revenging yourself on your neighbor at the same is to jump down his well.

—A bachelor in Springfield, Vt., keeps twenty-seven cats, and why his neighbors don't murder him is a mystery.

—Beecher is very original kind of a clergyman. He says he don't want a vacation of six months, and won't take it.

Application for Patent.

NOTICE NO. 21.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE, Independence, Cal., February 21, 1874.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT JOHN R. HUGHES and M. W. Hammarstrand have made application for patent for eight hundred linear feet of the WITTIKINT Silver Quartz Mine, lode, vein or deposit, being 400 feet northwest and 400 feet southeast from the main shaft and point of discovery on said mine, with surface ground 100 feet wide, being 50 feet on each side of said mine or lode, measuring from the center of the claim, situated and being on unsurveyed land in Township 16 south, Range 39 east, in Cerro Gordo Mining District, Inyo county, California, said Wittikint Mine being described on the plat and field notes on file in this office as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the shaft on said lode at point of original discovery; thence with a variation 15 degrees, 40 minutes east, running south 55 degrees, east six (6) chains and six (6) links, to a post set in mound of rock marked, "A. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence returning to point of original discovery at shaft; thence with a variation 15 degrees 40 minutes east, running north 55 degrees, west six (6) chains and six (6) links, to a post in mound of rocks marked, "B. L. W. S. Q. M."

SURVEY OF EXTERIOR BOUNDARIES:

Beginning at post "A. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence with a variation 15 degrees 40 minutes east, running north 35 degrees, east seventy-six (76) links to a post in mound of rocks marked, "P. 1 W. S. Q. M.;" thence north 55 degrees west twelve (12) chains and twelve (12) links to a post marked, "P. 2 W. S. Q. M.;" thence south 35 degrees west seventy-six (76) links to post "B. L. W. S. Q. M.;" thence one (1) chain and fifty-two (52) links to post marked "P. 3 W. S. Q. M.;" thence south 55 degrees east twelve (12) chains and twelve (12) links to post marked, "P. 4 W. S. Q. M.;" thence north 35 degrees east seventy-six (76) links to post marked, "A. L. W. S. Q. M., the point of beginning, containing one (1) and eighty-five hundreths (85-100) acres. Said Wittikint Silver Quartz mine connecting with the surveys of public lands, giving a course and distance from station "P. 4 W. S. Q. FOR AN ORDER TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE COUNTY of Inyo, State of California. In the matter of the Estate of CHARLES DUMAY, Deceased.

Order to show cause why Order of Sale of Real Estate should not be made.

It appearing to the Probate Judge of said Court, by the petition this day presented and filed by John A. Lank, the Administrator of the Estate of CHARLES DUMAY, deceased, praying for an order of sale of real estate, that it is necessary to sell the whole of the real estate to pay the expenses and charges of the administration. It is therefore ordered by the Hon. John A. Hannah, County Judge, and ex-officio Probate Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of the said deceased, appear before the said Probate Court on SATURDAY, THE SIXTEENTH DAY OF MAY, A. D. 1874, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court room of said Probate Court at the town of Independence in the County of Inyo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said John A. Lank, Administrator, to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased, as shall be necessary: And that a copy of this order be published at least four successive weeks in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said county.

Dated April 6, 1874.

JOHN A. HANNAH, Probate Judge.

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY CLERK of the County of Inyo.

I, M. W. Hammarstrand, County Clerk of the County of Inyo, State of California, and ex officio Clerk of the Probate Court in and for said County, do hereby certify the foregoing to be a true, full and correct copy of an order duly made and entered upon the minutes of said Probate Court.

Witness, my hand and the seal of said Probate [SEAL.] Court, this eighth day of April, A. D. 1874.

THE MURDER TRIAL.

The People vs. E. P. Welch, for the Murder of Frank Moore.

Third Day.

In this matter when the second venire for fifty more jurors was issued last week there yet remained four of the first hundred who had not been examined. When Court met on Monday, being the third day occupied in this trial, these four were examined, and it was found that two, Sheridan and Horton, were competent to try the case. This left but two required from the new venire to fill the panel, and before noon they were obtained. The twelve selected to try the case are as follows:

F. Dabeeny, L. G. McClure, C. Crohn, James McCarty, W. R. Tibbitts, Aug. Walker, G. H. Palmer, B. F. Theban, P. Sheridan, Wm. Horton, John Lubken, J. W. Allyn.

Court took a recess till 3 P. M., when District Attorney Snelling stated his case, and his witnesses to the number of seven were called and sworn together.

J. G. Howard, counsel for the defense, asked that all witnesses be excluded from the court-room during the trial, except when called to the stand. Granted.

Counsel for the defense expressed surprise at the number of witnesses sworn in excess of those who had previously appeared in the case before the Grand Jury and in the preliminary examination, and gave notice that he reserved the right, which he might use, to except to the procedure.

The Court remarked that the proceeding in this matter was in accordance with rule.

The first witness called was William H. Powers, who testified as follows:

Was a resident of Bishop Creek, in this county and State. Was well acquainted with the defendant, and was slightly acquainted with the deceased; saw them both at Pinchower's store, Bishop Creek, on the 3d of last October; saw nothing of any trouble between the two parties previous to the shooting; about five minutes before the shooting saw Moore, the deceased lying just outside the door, and about three feet to the south of it; he had nothing on but an undershirt; told him to get up and put on some clothes; he raised up and put on a pair of pants, and reached down after a pair of overalls; just then Welch stepped out of the door revolver in hand and demanded $2 of Moore. As Moore picked up his overalls his money dropped out; witness picked up $2 of it and told deceased to lay it on the box as Welch told him. Welch told Moore to walk away; he did so, going about 10 feet, Welch told him to go further. Moore said he wanted to put on his overalls and began to do so; putting his feet in them he dropped to his knees in front of Welch. Welch still told him to go off; Frank Moore (deceased) commenced a pitiful moan which I did not understand. At the latter part of it he pulled his undershirt from his breast with his left hand—the shirt was not buttoned—and said, "If you are going to shoot, shoot." Welch said, "I'll give you one shot, and if that ain't enough I'll give you another," and then fired. Welch made one step forward, and reached down after the $2 and stepped into the saloon. Moore fell fell over and died instantly after the ball struck him; Moore said nothing after he was shot; ball struck him in the left breast, about an inch and a half to the left of the left nipple. The pistol was a six shooter; couldn't state what kind. They were about 12 feet apart when the shot was fired. Welch had his pistol drawn and presented from the time he came out of the door.

Q. What did Welch do after he had fired the shot? A. Only saw him step into the saloon; didn't notice his movements; he made no remark except what I have stated.

Counsel for the defense took the witness.

Q. Have you contributed anything to the prosecution? A. I have not.

Q. You have testified before in this case, have you not? A. I have; before the Grand Jury and on the examination.

Q. Do you think your testimony now corresponds with statements on these two occasions? A. I think my testimony is like that I gave before both times; might be a very trifling difference.

The remainder of this testimony, also a portion of the preceding, was in answer to direct questions.

Never saw a homicide before. Was frightened a little after the shot was fired. It is not marvelous that I should remember the details with distinctness. Horace Smith saw it. I think another man saw it; he was lying drunk at the end of the house. He was beastly drunk. I believe his name is Bill Shaw; not certain as to the name.

Q. Why did not you and Smith try to prevent the difficulty? A. Smith was 40 feet off; I was about 3 feet from Moore; wasn't frightened then, because I did not think Welch wanted to shoot me or Moore; wasn't frightened until after the shot was fired; Welch was drinking that day; deceased was very drunk; could hardly stand up; Welch walked straight.

Q. Did you tell Swartz you would pursue Welch if it took every dollar you had; that you would follow him to h—l? A. Think I said I would follow him as long as I could; didn't say to h—l.

I had been at the store about 15 minutes; had taken one drink in that time; two before when I was at the store in the morning; not more than three that day.

Here the counsel for defendant wanted to know if "the whisky up there was as bad as was here; if it would make people act as bad as they say it did me when I came here the other day?"

Had seen Welch at the store in the fore part of the day; didn't see him playing cards. He told Moore three times to walk away. Moore fell by getting his feet tangled in his overalls and with being drunk together; he was drunk; couldn't walk. Didn't notice anything peculiar in the expression of Welch's face at the time I met him going towards his house about 20 minutes before the shooting. Met Welch about 20 or 25 minutes before the shooting; he was going to his home; it was about 400 yards from the store where I met him; he manifested no peculiar excitement in his manner to indicate that anything was going wrong. Moore had had a difficulty with Bill Shaw, the man who was lying drunk at the end of the house; Shaw was bruised about the face and bloody; Moore had blood on his face but was not bruised; the blood was from the other man; saw a portion of this difficulty after I got to the store. [Counsel showed witness a diagram of the store.] That is correct. Saw no difficulty between Welch and Moore; thought there might have been one, but didn't see it.

Q. Were you connected with that disreputable crowd who threatened to lynch Welch? A. No, sir; am opposed to lynch law; heard it spoken of; will swear that I did not suggest lynching Welch.

Q by District Attorney. What time did the shooting take place? A. Between 2 and 3 o'clock.

Counsel for defense exhibited to witness a document with witness' name attached, which signature he acknowledged as his; counsel asked that the fact be noted by the Clerk.

Q by District Attorney. How far does Welch live from the store? A. About half a mile; met him about 300 or 400 yards from the store; might not have been quite 400 yards; saw no arms; he had no coat on; was walking briskly; he returned in about 20 minutes; had a coat on then; Moore had no weapon. As I met Welch he said "You are riding out for your health, I suppose." I said that I was; nothing else was said.

Horace Smith was called, and testified as follows, mostly in answer to direct questions: Am a resident of Bishop Creek; am well acquainted with defendant; knew deceased. Saw them both at Pinchower's store on the 3d of last October; it was about the middle of the afternoon; saw no difficulty between the parties; didn't see Welch shoot; heard the report; then saw Welch with a pistol; was about 50 feet from him; did not hear Welch say anything after he shot this man; looked to see who fired the pistol; saw Welch and deceased were about 5 or 6 feet apart after the shooting; Welch had a pistol in his hand; Moore fell over on his face, dead; he was killed instantly; saw Welch after that in the saloon; heard him say before he went into the store, "I'll learn you to cheat me out of my money, you s—n of a b—h." This was just after the shot, a minute or two; don't remember who was present; this remark was just outside the saloon; had not seen them together before that morning; saloon was at the north end of store; witness could not draw a diagram of premises very well. [D. Olds was requested to draw a plan of the store and saloon, which he did.] Saw Welch in the saloon playing cards; [diagram, with positions of parties marked, shown witness]; that is right; I was standing in the door, looking south; couldn't see Welch at the moment; turned my head in time to see Moore fall; wouldn't like to swear that the store and saloon was more than 25 feet long; think it is over 30; know Powers; didn't see him till after the shooting; could have heard loud talking between Welch and Moore if there had been any; would have heard it very plain; from where I stood saw Welch in the saloon, after the shooting; I had been standing there two or three minutes. After the shooting Welch went through the store into the saloon; he called for a drink, don't know what he did after that; got on my horse and went home. Never gave testimony in this case before; am not a new witness; was required to appear at the examination and before the Grand Jury, but was not examined; it was not more than a minute after the firing that Welch made the remark mentioned; didn't say he had taken his drink first.

The witness was dismissed, and after the officer in charge of the jury was specially admonished by the Court to keep them under the strictest surveillance, the further consideration of the case was set for Tuesday, at 9 A. M.

Fourth Day.

Merriman called. [Our report does not include the first testimony of this witness] About half an hour before the shooting, Welch and Moore commenced a game of cards in the saloon, 10 points up for one-half dollar. Welch won that; he then proposed to play a game for $2 50; Moore said he would not do that, but would play the first 7 for $2; they played that and Moore took the money. Welch wanted him to sit down and play the game out, as though the game warn't out; Moore said that the money was his, but that Welch might have it if he wanted it; Moore put the money on the table and pushed it over to Welch, who pushed it back; Moore picked up the money again, put it in his pocket and walked off; Welch got up, opened the door and went into the store. Saw no more of Welch for some time, perhaps half an hour; Welch then opened the door and walked back into the saloon; walked within about 5 feet of the door, stopped and drew his revolver and cocked it; then stepped out of the door, presented his pistol at Moore and demanded the $2. Moore offered him the money and Welch told him to lay it on the corner of a box; at the same time Welch stepped back from the box; ordered Moore to walk off; Moore stepped back out of my sight; defendant also stepped back so that I saw neither, but heard the report of the pistol; saw defendant a few minutes after; some time after that saw him walk through the store and turn off toward home; saw where the bullet had taken effect in Moore's left breast; he was dead by the time I got to him.

Cross-examined by Defense—I stood in the door and saw Moore put the money on the box, which was a step at the door; didn't see Powers; stepped back; thought I would get the crowd out and try and stop it; no one in the saloon at the moment but myself; quite a crowd in the store, perhaps 8 or 10; saw the money on the box before returning to the saloon; saw Moore lay it there; no person but the two were then in sight, and both stepped out of my sight immediately after. I had walked 10 or 15 feet before I heard the shot. [The witness pointed out on diagram, to the defense and jury, the position of steps and parties.] Welch didn't take a drink in the saloon that I saw; I went to see about the dead man; suppose defendant came out of the saloon; saw him pass through the store when he started home; I was tending bar that day; defendant had taken several drinks; he took his bitters at times; don't think that he had been drinking very much the last two or three days; I attended the bar off and on during the time.

Simon Pinchower was called, and testified that he was proprietor of the store at that time; knew defendant and deceased, the latter slightly. In the morning of October 3d Moore came in and wanted to get $20 from me; told him to go to Sam; he would give him the $20, which he did, getting the money. Welch saw that Sam had given Moore the $20, and went into the saloon with him; some other parties were there; in the afternoon saw the defendant going home; he came back in half an hour or so, but don't remember the exact time; he went through the store and into the saloon; in a few minutes after that I heard the report of a pistol; ran out of the store and saw Moore lying there dead; went back again into the store; the defendant called me into the saloon and demanded some liquor; took two drinks and remarked, "I have got my man." Saw Welch talking to Olds and Vaughn; defendant then went away; had a pistol in his hand at the time he took his drinks; suppose it was a six shooter.

Q. Have you been talking to Powers since you was sworn? A. I have not; did not agree to pay $50 myself to prosecute the case; my uncle may have done so, or did do so; I did not agree to divide it with him. Might have given defendant a drink in the morning; he was working for Sam, my uncle, that day; got his pay out of the concern. Defendant commenced building the store in July or August, 1873; did not take his pay out at the bar altogether; took some considerable merchandise in the time, over $100 or $120 worth; don't know what my uncle was to pay; I kept the accounts, but can't form any idea how much defendant was to be paid; can't tell anything about that; don't know that all the contract price was ever paid to defendant in whisky; would have to look at the books at home; couldn't say that defendant's wife had taken $10 worth in goods; remember that he had $20 in goods; will swear that he did not get 50 drinks a day.

Q. How does it happen that your memory is so explicit as to what Welch said at the bar? I remember that distinctly. I remember the settlement with Olds; it was not as much as $700; was not anxious to lynch Welch; never heard anything about threats to lynch him, then nor since; never said I'd spend money to prosecute him, never told Olds I'd shoot defendant if he was acquitted; defendant never owed me a note; sued him on a note, but it was not mine; never told Hessians that I'd send Welch to State Prison; never stated to Gracy that if defendant didn't pay the money I'd prosecute him to the State Prison.

Case of the people closed at this stage.

The following witnesses were called up and sworn for the defense: Fred Swartz, P. Laird, J. W. Clarence, D. Olds, R. Hilton, H. Evans, Mrs. Lee, John O'Farrell, G. Gracy, T. Lewis and R. Hessian.

R. Hessian called. Have had talk with Simon Pinchower about a note; he told me that if Welch didn't pay him he would furnish money to hang him or send him to prison; if he would pay him it would be all right.

Objected to by the prosecution.

Defense—It is too late; the testimony is in. [Counsel here read the testimony, to which the Court objected, as not having been witness' answer.]

Have known Welch some 5 years.

Q by the defense. Have you ever noticed him as to his sanity?

Prosecution. I object; witness is not an expert, and this is a mere expression of opinion.

Q. Have you formed an opinion in that matter? A. I have formed an opinion.

Q. What were the facts? A. I have done business with defendant from time to time. I have thought from his actions that he was not quite right; there was a strangeness in his acts; can't undertake to go into details; his memory is very poor; have noticed a peculiar expression of his countenance at times; was not present at the time of the shooting. There is a great deal of talk about the defendant, like this—"if he hadn't been crazy he wouldn't have done as he did do." Have heard the neighborhood opinion on that point; his conduct has been pronounced strange since he got hurt.

Q. by prosecution. You say it was also strange when he was drinking? A. Yes.

Q. All the talk you have heard, then, has been since the killing of Moore, has it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you hear Pinchower say that if defendant paid him the note it would be all right, he wouldn't prosecute him?

Q by defense. Didn't you misunderstand my friend, the Judge's question; didn't you hear some talk about defendant's insanity before this killing—the effect of some hurt?

A. I can't say that I ever did.

Defense here offerred the deposition of Dr. Homer C. Matthews, now of Nebraska, who deposes that he was a practicing physician in the town of Independence in the Fall of 1870; had treated defendant for a severe concussion of the brain, received by a fall from a horse. Didn't remember his opinion as to the nature of the case; impression is, however, that the wound was very severe, and if not fatal, would render him liable to passions of violent anger, especially when under the influence of alcoholic drink.

Mrs. Welch, wife of the prisoner, was sworn and testified: Remember the fall my husband got from a horse in 1870. Dr. Matthews attended him; the doctor told me that it would affect my husband, especially when drinking; would put him out of his head; have noticed singular conduct in my husband's actions; would come in and not speak and go out again; I wouldn't know what to think of it; he would throw things around, do so about once a month; he complained of a pain in the head, and cold feet; applied cold water as a remedy; sometimes the spells would last a day and night; had a wild eye at such times; his eyes would grow larger. My husband had a contract with Pinchower; he was to put up a building for $650; about $100 was taken out of the store, the balance was paid in liquor; the whole store and saloon bill amounted to $900 during the time of building the house; saw the bill; it was charges for drinks all the way through; noticed a peculiarity in my husband's manner for two or three weeks before the killing; raged in his sleep; would start up; this was three days before; he got up and went into the kitchen, talking to himself; he was confined to his bed with sickness on the Tuesday previous to the killing, which occurred on Friday; he was not at home on the Sunday before; he came home that night; on the day of the killing he left home at 7 in the morning; saw him next in the afternoon; he sent an Indian to me for $20; that was about 1 P. M; he asked me why I let the little boy let the hogs get into the corn; he said he drove out 17 head; told him the hogs were in the pen at the same time; he took my little boy out and blacksnaked him; the hogs were in the pen at the same time; they had not been in the corn that day. He asked me where his coat was; told him and he went off; next saw him about half an hour after; he asked where the little boy was; told him he was out herding the hogs; told me to tell the boy to get a horse for him, he was going to Hot Springs. Sometimes he would say I was abusing him when I was saying nothing to him; would throw things over; I wouldn't know what he was doing it for; he wouldn't remember these acts afterwards.

Q. by prosecution. Do you remember that he had these spells before he got hurt? A. No, sir.

Q. About how often did these spells come on? A. About once a month.

Q. Did you never know him to go longer than once a month without having one of these spells? A. Not often.

Q. by defense. Did this shooting occur about the time he would have one of these spells? A. Yes, sir.

Q. by prosecution. How long did these spells continue? A. About a day and night.

Q. Could you see any difference in this respect when he was drinking? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever know him to have one of these spells when he was not drinking? A. He was drinking some all the time; kept some liquor at home; when he drank a little more than usual he would take one of these spells.

Q. Since he was hurt did you ever know him to take one of these spells except when he was drinking? A. Yes, when he got excited.

Q. Did he seem to be more wild than usual the day of the killing? A. Couldn't say for certain.

The foregoing testimony throughout was in response to direct questions by counsel for the defense, save those reported as by the District Attorney. No exceptions were taken to any.

Clanson called. Have known the defendant for three years.

Q by the defense. Have you ever formed an opinion as to whether Welch is crazy? A. I have heard people say when he was drinking he was crazy; that his wife said if he kept on he would have to go to Stockton. Here the witness related an occurrence between the prisoner and himself that occurred three years before. Defendant then threw a hatchet at witness, without provocation; he had been drinking, I think; called me a bad name; he went off; saw him next day; when he came to work I was on the scaffold; he asked me if I had seen anything of his hatchet. I said, "don't you know that you came near killing me with that hatchet yesterday?" showed him the hatchet; he looked pale; tears were in his eyes; wanted me to forgive him. He hardly knew me then, only my name.

Q. by prosecution. How long did you work together? A. Not long; he was there the next day; he didn't finish the building; have seen him often since; have been away the last six months.

Q. Have you ever seen him act as if crazy in these three years? A. Yes, twice; but only when he was drinking; have since seen him beating his horses; was afraid to go to him in the field.

Recess till 2 P. M.

Alex. Cochran sworn. This witness testified that Welch received an injury on a race track in 1870; he was knocked insensible and continued in that state as long as witness staid with him; took him in a wagon two miles from the track.

John O'Farrel called. Q. Did you not take Welch to his residence after he was hurt in 1870. The Court—I would suggest that counsel do not ask leading questions. District Attorney—The question is very leading. A. I did, sir; he was dead to all appearance.

D. Olds called. Have known Mr. Welch 13 years; know that he was injured during a horse race at Slinkard's, 3 years ago.

Q. Have you since then detected any difference in Welch's demeanor? State the particulars. A. I have, both when he was drinking and when he was sober. Two years ago last June he was working for Mr. Sneden dressing some ceiling; noticed that he quit his work and set down with his hands to his face thus (witness shows); asked him what was the matter; he made no reply till he got up to the bench; he said he had a strange feeling in his head. Soon Mr. Tuttle came in and demanded of him pay for surveying his land; defendant told him he didn't know that he contracted with him to survey his land; Tuttle said "no, but he had agreed to pay him something if he would set the stakes to mark his land from that of other parties;" defendant said he was willing to pay him something, but he had not seen the stakes yet, and as Tuttle was about to leave he said he would present the bill; defendant said he need not present the bill after setting stakes for other people; Tuttle went into the saloon and used some harsh words; couldn't hear all that was said; could hear a word sometimes; in a very short time Welch left the bench—I didn't see him when he left—and went to the saloon; John Clark saw him coming in; he had his hammer in his hand; Clark wanted to know of him what he was going to do; he said he was going to stop Tuttle from using such language; Clark fetched him back to the bench, where we had been working together, and asked defendant what he was going to do; he said that man couldn't use such language as that to him; his eyes looked very glassy; he had a crazy appearance, very frantic; think he had heard some of Tuttle's remarks; have seen defendant when he was mad and his appearance was very different from this time.

District Attorney. Therefore you say he looked as if he was crazy? A. Yes sir; he had not drank anything for 5 months; he went off and didn't come to work for two days; four weeks before this accident occurred—

District Attorney. What do you mean by this "accident?" A. This that is called the murder. These are the only two times that I have noticed these symptoms; he was subject to spells of sickness for the last 3 years; he often complained of a pain in the side of his head.

Q. Have you heard any expressions of opinion in regard to his derangement? A. Nothing very particular, except that people said when he was drinking he was crazy. Some time—about two minutes—before the killing I was sitting on the counter at the store; as he came in I spoke to him; he did not answer; I spoke audibly; he passed on through the store to go into the saloon; I remarked that I thought Mr. Welch didn't hear me; I thought that he was under the influence of liquor, but Pinchower said he had not drank over 3 or 4 times that day; his appearance was very wild; after the shooting some little time, saw him standing in three feet of where they said he stood when he shot the man; I was a Justice of the Peace at that time; I spoke to defendant but he did not answer; I sat down on the work bench; he came and wanted to give himself up to me; told him under the circumstances would rather he would give himself up to Mr. McCrosky; that's all that occurred between him and me; noticed Shaw sitting on the porch when I came to the store, washing the blood off of his face; thought defendant was in liquor that day, because he had such a wild look about his eyes—expressions of countenance. Since the accident at the race track have noticed his shortness of memory; his memory was considerably impaired; would forget arrangements made with me entirely until I reminded him of them; his memory has been getting worse on him ever since he got hurt.

District Attorney You say his memory is bad; that he is sorter crazy. Is he sensible of that fact? A. Yes sir.

Q by prosecution. What makes you think he had been drinking that day, when you say he had not been drinking at the Tuttle occurrence for five months? A. Because we both had been in the habit of taking our bitters; at the time of the Tuttle occurrence I had worked with him for 108 days; am satisfied he had not drank in that time.

Q. by prosecution. Did he look—was his expression of countenance similar to what it was at the time of the shooting? A. The expressions of his countenance at that time were so near alike I couldn't discover the difference; at the time of the Tuttle occurrence he had a wild and frantic appearance before he heard Tuttle's remarks; he talked wildly before he heard what Tuttle said; without reference to anything in hand—he wouldn't talk to me the day of the killing, so I can't say that his condition was then similar to the Tuttle occurrence; never saw such expressions on his face before this hurt during the 13 years I have known him; before then I could reason with him; since then I could do nothing with him.

Q. by the prosecution. Have you remarked since he got hurt any peculiarity in his talk; would he talk unintelligibly like a crazy man? A. I have seen him mad often, before; have never known him since to talk unintelligibly like a crazy man, but he would fly off on other subjects without good reasons; have often talked with him about these spells.

Mrs. Lee sworn. I was at Welch's house that day; saw him before the accident [murder] happened, and afterwards; he said he had driven some hogs out of the corn; there had been no hogs in the corn.

Q. What was his appearance? A. He looked as if he had been drinking a good deal of liquor or was excited.

Q. Did he look wild? A. He looked very wild out of his eyes; he looked very wild; he said he had paid $20 the week before and $20 that day for the damage the hogs had done; I saw him whip his boy; he went away then; I had lived at defendant's house for two months; didn't notice anything peculiar in his manner, except he would act flighty, like he was in liquor; he was so once or twice in that time, as near as I can remember.

Q. by prosecution. You say during these two months he acted wild. Did he act wild—different from other people when they are drunk; did he have a different—an unintelligible, wild look? A. He did; he looked wild out of his eyes.

Q by prosecution. You think there was a difference in his drunken talk and that of other drunk men? A. Never was around drunk men much; think he was different; saw him 3 times that day.

Q. by prosecution. When he talked about the hogs did he seem to be pretty tolerable drunk; did he act like a drunk man? A. He didn't look that day like—

Q. by prosecution. He didn't look that day like he ordinarily did, did he? A. No.

Q by prosecution. You warn't near enough to him after the killing—after he came to the house—to say whether he had that same appearance he had at 3 o'clock. A. He only came to the door and went away; heard him tell the boy to bring his horse, he was going to Hot Springs.

Q. by the prosecution. Was there anything in that indicating insanity? A. Yes sir; he called for his horse in a curious way. Hot Springs is north of that place.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday.....May 16, 1874.

The Late Commissioner Drummond.

This officer's resignation has caused considerable remark, mainly, we suppose, because it is about the first instance on record where any officer gave up his position because of the inadequacy of the salary, which is the reason alleged by Mr. Drummond for his resignation. But whatever the cause the general regret that Drummond has thrown up his "commish" will not take the form of excessive wailing and weeping, except by an occasional big land grabber; but these will dry their tears should his successor prove to be sufficiently plastic to suit their honest views. During his term of office Mr. Drummond has made numerous land decisions, many of them chiefly remarkable for their inconsistency, particularly those relating to mineral lands. Some of our mining contemporaries claim that in these his rulings have entirely ignored local laws, and thereby injustice has frequently been done.

Probably a Good Law.

With respect to the trial of persons charged with murder a singular law was passed by the last Legislature of Ohio, which provides that a jury shall be impanneled to try the question as to whether the prisoner is insane at the time of such impanneling, at which trial the prisoner shall hold the affirmative of the issue. If the jury agree upon a verdict, or three-fourths of them concur in an opinion, their finding shall be returned as the verdict of the jury, and if they find the prisoner insane, he shall be sent to the insane asylum until restored to reason, when he is again liable to be prosecuted for the offense for which he stands indicted.

For Life.

A dispatch from Santa Rosa dated May 10, says: The jury in the Burke murder trial, after being out for one hour and three-quarters, returned a verdict of murder in the first degree, designating the punishment as confinement in the State Prison for life. The prisoner seemed to take the verdict rather hard, showing signs of great depression. To-morrow, at 9 o'clock, is the time fixed for passing sentence upon the prisoner. The case lasted lasted just one week. This verdict is considered here a proof that "hanging is played out."

Shooting at Belmont.

For some time past The Belmont Courier has been waging war against one Jake Seymour, who imported a deck of hurdies into that town. Ever since they came, there has been trouble generally, finally culminating in a general shooting match, in which some eight or ten shots were fired and two men dangerously if not fatally wounded. Their names are H. H. Sutherland and Wm. Doran. Jack Walker is under arrest for doing part of the shooting. But the hurdies are still going it.

The Arkansas War.

Considerable fighting has taken place between the Brooks and Baxter parties and a number of persons were killed, but the two contestants have jointly signed a plan of settlement by which a jointly called session of the Legislature is to determine the question of Governorship, without let or hindrance from either, and all troops in the meantime are to be dismissed and sent home, except a body of one company each.

Means It.

In the House of Representatives May 2, Luttrell denounced an article in The Washington Republican as a base falsehood, and declared himself responsible for the statement. The article was about Luttrell's course on mail contracts.

For a Branch Road.

The Visalia people have already subscribed $50,000 to the stock of the branch railroad, to connect the town with the Southern Pacific. The road will be about seven miles long.

In Eureka.

From The Eureka (Nev.) papers we learn that Thomas Laspeyre, Esq., arrived in that place about May 1, and settled down to the practice of his profession.

Louisiana.

Accounts of terrible suff rings among the inhabitants of the submerged districts in Louisiana, are daily received. Government is aiding the sufferers.

New Commissioner.

May 5 the Federal Senate confirmed the nomination of L. S. Burdell as Commissioner of the General Land Office.

THE BOOKS OPENED.

The books of the Los Angeles & Independence railroad have been opened for subscriptions at Temple's Bank in Los Angeles, and stock immediately taken equal to about half the amount required to incorporate. As yet no especial effort, or we may say, no determined effort at all has been made to obtain subscriptions, but such will soon be made. This road can be built at once just as easily and certainly as in years to come, and it will never be any easier done than to-day. For Los Angeles city and county it is highly necessary that work should be undertaken now and at once in order to insure the lasting command of the trade upon which that city can alone depend for future prosperity and greatness. It is true this northeastern section is not by any means her only or perhaps most important dependence, but we take it if she fails on this at this time, ten chances to one she fails on all the others too, that is as to the command of that amount of business necessary for the life of a city in contradistinction to a moderately sized town, all Los Angeles can ever hope to be if she fails now in the start. It is with cities and trade as in an evenly matched quarter race—everything depends on the "bulge." San Francisco took the bulge and takes the race over more than one competitor vastly her superior in natural advantages. Los Angeles has most of the advantages—the choice of the track, and now in turning for the race it is her own fault if she does not take the bulge and the stakes. The prestige to make Los Angeles the great city she can and ought to be is above all things contingent upon the early completion and command of this very enterprise now in hand; not that the trade of Inyo county, great as it undoubtedly is or will be, is of so very great importance of itself, but the prestige of its control, which can only be maintained by this railroad, is all that is needed to build a city that will permit nothing from all her illimitable back country to go elsewhere to seek the mart a great city can alone afford. It is this trade, this road that is to determine the future of Los Angeles. If this trade enters not her gates, neither does any considerable part of that of other equally extensive and valuable regions more nearly her own.

But we are glad to say that Los Angeles is fully alive to the importance of this enteprise, and her leading citizens are bent on taking this bulge if in their power, as it surely is. But they doubtless feel that it is now meet and proper that Inyo should also respond in kind, for they know and we know that in its porportion this road is as essentially important to Inyo as to Los Angeles. True, it is a matter of but secondary consideration to us what point on tide water its terminus may be—whether Santa Barbara, whose claims are well set forth in The Index published there, San Buenaventura, Truxton or Los Angeles. But toward the latter we naturally look and shall continue to look so long as she puts forth her best energies in our joint favor, as she is now doing or trying to do. And to the full extent of her ability Inyo is going to reciprocate. A railroad we must have, but a railroad will not build itself. It is time our citizens made some move in the matter. We shall have more to say on this point next week.

Important Sales of Borax Property.

Mr. Wm. D. Shaver has purchased the entire interest of Mr. Joseph Mosheimer in the Teel's Marsh borax lands. The reduction works of Mr. Mosheimer are included in this sale, and the business will hereafter be carried on by Messrs. Johnson & Shaver. The land which has changed hands by this sale is a portion of the Blanco Vale location, and is regarded as the richest borax deposit in Esmeralda. Mr. Frank Smith has purchased the interest of Mr. Storey in the Chicago Borax Works and locations on Teel's Marsh.—Borax Miner, May 9.

One Hundred Million Dollars at Breakfast.

Sunday morning last at 11 o'clock the following gentlemen, with their friends—in all twenty-four—took breakfast at the French Hotel: W. C. Ralston, I. Friedlander, I. B. Haggin, N. Lunning, ex-Mayor Selby, ex-Mayor Alvord, Mayor Otis, ex-Gov. Stanford, Judge Sanderson, Ben. Crocker, W. B. Carr and Messrs. Towne, Fellows and Hoffman of the railroad—representatives of one hundred million dollars! —Bakersfield Californian, May 7.

Dead or Alive.

The Governor offers a reward of $8,000 for the bandit Tiburcio Vasquez alive, or $6,000 to those who kill him.

Woman Hanged.

Ann Hunt was hanged at Elberton, Georgia, May 1, for poisoning another woman.

—The grading of the first ten miles of the Texas and Pacific Railroad, out from San Diego, is completed. The work was accepted April 22, and the road is now ready for the ties and iron.

PANAMINT DISTRICT.

PANAMINT, May 5, 1874.

MESSRS. EDITORS: As there appears to be but little willingness or disposition from residents of our district to furnish our county paper with any items of news from our young and growing silver mines, the writer offers what follows, in the hope that it may interest some of your readers and furnish valuable information hitherto unknown outside of Inyo county.

THE ROUTE THERE.

The Panamint silver mines are connected with the outer world by the Southern Pacific Railroad to the vicinity of Bakersfield, from thence by the Telegraph stage line to Indian Wells, from thence by wagon or horseback to the mines. Perhaps a more comfortable mode would be by steamer to Los Angeles and from thence by light, covered wagon to the mines. Time, five days from Los Angeles.

ROAD BUILDING.

Messrs. Tait, McGee & Co. have 25 men employed on the road down the canyon, having three of the five miles already completed, and propose to have it ready for the transportation of freight in 30 or 40 days at farthest. Mr. Jacobs is at work on the road south from the mouth of Surprise canyon, and will have the connection made with the Los Angeles road in two weeks, so that loaded teams can come within four miles of the mines immediatly.

THE MINES.

Work is being prosecuted on the Wonder, Wyoming, Venus, Chief and Esperanza mines, with extraordinary developments of rich ores, the high figures of some of which I dare not repeat. The shareholders in the Wonder mine have purchased and are now shipping a 10-stamp mill and concentrator for that mine, and another party, it is said, are contemplating the erection of similar works for working custom ore, of which there is an unlimited amount in sight, patiently awaiting a mill. In the observation of the writer, who has visited many districts, he has never seen one which offers the same inducements for the erection of a custom mill as this one. The mines can afford to pay an extravagant price for the reduction of their ores, the amount of which is unlimited, and still leave a handsome profit, and I challenge any silver district in Nevada or California for similar necessary adjuncts—as rich mineral, water and timber. With one wagon road open to the seaboard we will challenge inspection.

has disappeared from hills and canyons, the grass and shrubbery is growing, and everything looks inviting for a visit, the road being well marked and watering places defined, there is no trouble in reaching the mines. Parties will have to come supplied, for as yet there is no store in the mines.

MAIL ROUTE.

The writer of this received a letter yesterday from Mr. Houghton, M. C., advising us of the establishment of a mail route between Lagunita and the mines, consequently we will have stage communication with the outside world.

I will forward you in a short time specimens of our mines, for the inspection and information of those who wish to do so. If agreeable will keep you posted on the prospects of Panamint.

A Test of Enterprise.

[From The Los Angeles Herald, May 30.]

The books of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad are now open at Temple Bank. It is designed that a considerable portion of the stock in this road shall be owned by the citizens of Los Angeles, and if our merchants, capitalists and real estate owners are fully awake to their interests they will not let this opportunity pass without giving a practical demonstration of their good will towards the enterprise. The proposed road is of vital importance to our city; everybody appreciates that fact. Build it, and we have gone a long way towards fixing the commercial center of Southern California at Los Angeles It will develop the trade in ore and bullion with the Cerro Gordo region to ten times its present proportions. With this road in operation, instead of the few large corporations which alone can profit by the mining and reduction of ore at Cerro Gordo now, we will have hundreds of miners at work on as many claims, digging the ore and shipping it to this place for reduction. Extensive works will here be erected, as a matter commercial necessity. Workmen will be employed to operate them, a fine market for fuel will be opened, trade will receive a new impetus, and a long line of benefits will ensue which at present we do not dream of. Aside from this, the advantages to be derived from this road will be more than commensurate with those enumerated. When the line is extended through to Utah, as it will be some day, and direct communication is opened with the Western States and through them to the Atlantic seaboard, we will no longer need to pay tribute to San Francisco, but Los Angeles can snap her municipal finger at the Queen City and, in the language of the cards, "go it alone." The road to Independence is a certainty; we trust that will be controlled by Los Angeles capital, and then there will be no fear of a rival.

THE MURDER TRIAL.

The People vs. E. P. Welch, for the Murder of Frank Moore.

[CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.]

conversation with defendant 3d of last October; saw him take 3 or 4 drinks; didn't hear of him taking any more; he was trying to get some one to play cards with him; thought he had a strange look; a sort of a strange appearance; looked sorter wild out of his eyes; the strange part of his conversation was his insisting on some one playing cards with him; never saw him do so before; his appearance was different from what I had ever seen before; Mr. Roberts was with me; he wanted to know if I didn't notice a peculiar expression about Welch that day, and I thought I did; he said he thought the same thing, and would have played a game of cards with him, but was afraid of him, as he had a peculiar look about his eyes; have not heard much talk in that section about defendant's derangements; have heard such a thing mentioned.

Q. by prosecution. That was the common talk, was it not, about his having been hurt by that fall? A. Yes, sir.

Q. by prosecution. Did you notice this peculiar look when you first saw him that day; was it a wild look, did you say? How did he talk; his talk seemed to be about as usual, did it not? A. Yes.

Q. by prosecution. He didn't show any signs of being drunk, did he? A. Not that I noticed.

Q. by prosecution. Had you ever noticed that peculiar look of his eyes? A. Never noticed that peculiar look before; never saw him mad; have heard him make some peculiar expressions when he was out of humor.

Q. by prosecution. Who first spoke of this peculiarity, you or Mr. Roberts? A. Mr. Roberts.

T. D. Lewis called. Saw Welch the day of the killing, near sunset; sun was about an hour high; he came to my house; had some talk with him; he came riding by my place; a little while before I was working on the barn back of the house; he rode around the house pretty quick; the dog set at him; went to stop the dog; he went on around the 5 acre lot and came back; had the appearance of speaking to some man on the barn; don't know that he did; he was riding fast; asked him what was the matter; he said he had got into trouble; asked him what it was; he said he'd killed a man; said I "It isn't possible you have killed a man, Welch!" He said yes it was, it was a man who worked for Garrettson; said they had been in a game of cards; that the man kept some of his money; asked him if he was drunk; he said no, and asked me what he'd better do; asked him what he thought of doing; said he was going to Independence to get Pat Reddy to defend him; told him that was the best thing for him to do; he struck out, saying "which way;" said he would be back to-morrow; I thought he had been drinking; he was excited; thought he was considerably under the influence of liquor; he looked that way, yet he could sit up on his horse.

Q. by prosecution. How long have you know him? A. Six or 7 years.

Q. by prosecution. Have you often seen him under the influence of drink? Can you say his conversation was any way incoherent or disjointed? A. There was but little said; he told me where he was going; nothing very peculiar in his look or style more than I have stated; I didn't think he had killed any one; told parties while going to see that I didn't believe he had killed any one.

Fred. Swartz called. Saw the defendant about an hour before the shooting at Pinchower's store; I went into the store on some business; defendant throwed his arms over my shoulder and commenced talking to me; I was busy at the time; noticed that he was under the influence of liquor.

Q. by prosecution. Much? A. Yes.

Q. by prosecution. What made you think he was drunk? A. He talked like a drunken man.

Q. by prosecution. Disconnected? A. Don't know what that means.

Q. by prosecution. Scattering? you know what that means; you came to the conclusion from his manner that he was drunk. A. Yes, sir.

Q. by prosecution. You have heard much talk in that neighborhood about defendant being crazy, have you not? A. Never have.

Q. by prosecution. You have seen defendant drunk before have you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. by prosecution. Did you notice any difference one time with another? A. Did not; he was always drinking; drunk nearly every day, couldn't say how many days before.

P. Laird called. Q. by defense. You have heard the question of defendant's insanity discussed, have you not? A. Not that I know of; might have heard two or three say something about it.

Q. by defense. What is your opinion on the subject? A. I have no opinion about it.

Defense. You are not a valuable witness for our side; you may go.

District Attorney. No questions to ask you, Mr. Laird.

Defense rested; 20 minutes to 4.

W. H. Powers recalled. Q. by prosecution. State the condition of Mr. Welch the day of the killing—was he drunk or sober?

Objected to by defense.

The Court. Objection overruled.

A. Didn't notice anything in his manner indicating that he was insane.

Q. by prosecution. Was his talk rational? A. As much so as I ever saw him.

Q. by prosecution. Did you notice anything peculiar—different from what you have seen before. A. I have seen him more intoxicated before, except in that way there was no difference in his manner.

S. Pinchower recalled. Q. by prosecution. State whether defendant was drunk or sober that day. A. I didn't tend bar; when I first saw him he was pretty straight; after that he looked like he was drunk.

Q. by prosecution. How did he appear after the shooting; did he look excited? A. He did.

Q. by prosecution. Did he act in a peculiar manner? A. Can't say; I was somewhat scared myself; he talked rational enough what little he did say, so far as I know.

Merriman, recalled. Think Welch was under the influence of liquor; have seen him drunk several times in the last two years; his appearance did not differ this time from that under similar circumstances previously.

Q. by defense. Had he been drinking for several days previously? A. He had.

Q. He was playing cards and drinking, wasn't he? A. He played some, I think.

Horace Smith recalled. Thought defendant was sober that day; acted like it, from what I saw of him.

Q. by prosecution. Did you notice anything peculiar in his expression of countenance, different from what you had seen before in his ordinary manner? A. Not at all; he acted about as usual.

Oliver Cromwell called. I was there in the fore part of the day; defendant wanted me to take a letter up to Munson's about the school, having heard me say I was going up there.

Q. by prosecution. Did you notice anything wild or peculiar in his manner? A. Not at all, sir; talked as sensible as usual; it was about 12 o'clock noon. Have known the prisoner about 5 years.

E. Mallory called. Have known the defendant 10 or 12 years.

Q. by prosecution. Do you recollect about Welch getting hurt on the race-track two or three years ago? A. I have heard about it; didn't see it.

Q. Have you often seen him when drinking? A. Yes, sir; I have seen him drinking a good many times; saw him that night on his way home, but not before on that day.

Q. Did you converse with him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he drunk? A. No, sir; might have been drinking a little.

Q. Did you notice any peculiarity in his manner? A. Nothing peculiar, different from ordinary; would have noticed anything in his talk; there was nothing but what was sensible and reasonable as usual.

Q. by defense. Do you know Mrs. Lee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. by defense. Did not armed parties watch her house that night?

A. I was not there; I know nothing about it.

Q. Did you ever at any time tell Mrs Lee that you would kill Welch if he was acquitted of this charge and went back there, or that you would help Mrs Welch get rid of him?

A. I never told Mrs. Lee or anybody else that I would kill Welch or help his wife get rid of him.

Sheriff Moore sworn, testifying as follows: Have been Welch's keeper for several months; have not noticed anything in his manner indicating insanity.

This closed the testimony in the case. It being then about 5 P. M. the court adjourned until the following (Wednesday) morning. At noon, after hearing arguments of counsel and instructions from the Court, the case was given to the jury, which at 4 that afternoon returned a verdict, without recommendation, of murder in the first degree.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Eclipse.

Capt. Eudey arrived here this week from England, bringing with him some eight or ten English miners, from which we infer that the Captain proposes to give the Eclipse a new and thorough trial. As he was the first Superintendent of that mine, and is a man of great practical experience in mining, and also having a few months since given the mine a very particular examination, we feel assured that if a start is made this time it will prove a success. In that event it will add very much to the general business of the county. It is an immense mine, and if the ores will afford any margin for profit at all, it at once becomes a property of enormous value. That under the present management it will do this we feel convinced, relying upon the good judgment and confidence of Capt. Eudey, and with the advantages our railroad will bring them, there can be no doubt about it.

District Court.

The time of the District Court this week has been principally occupied in the murder trial, and the hearing of most of the civil cases is set for next week. In the case of Reddy vs. the Boushey Co., the issue is to be settled by a jury of seven, to obtain which a venire for twenty jurors has been issued returnable at 10 A. M. next Tuesday. At the same hour on the following day a similar jury is to try the case of Martin Mee against the same company. Judgment for $31,000 for plaintiffs was entered in the case of Bennett & Reddy vs. Wm. Watt et als., and sale of property ordered to satisfy same. The order fixing the time for passing sentence upon Welch at 10 A. M. Monday was rescinded, and the time then set was 10 this morning, to-day being the last of the statutory term and for which reason this order was made.

Recovered.

Dan Schaffer, formerly well known here, was attacked some weeks since in Cerro Gordo by that strange disorder known "St. Vitus' Dance." He came to Lone Pine to be treated, and under Dr. Gelcich's care has, we learn, entirely recovered. In this connection we will also mention that Dave Love, who was completely paralyzed some months since, is now in a fair way of recovering, being able to talk but not yet in that fluent way for which he was noted, and also to walk about with the assistance of a cane, and has or is about to return to Bishop. He has been under the care of Dr. White, at the County Hospital.

Horses.

During the week we received a call from Mr. J. Q. Shirley, an old time acquaintance of the prospecting days of '62 or thereabouts. Mr. Shirley is extensively engaged in the stock business, his headquarters being near City Rocks, Idaho, where he has a great number of horses and cattle, and to which seven or eight hundred head of horses more are to be added, these to be taken from this valley. They are from the herds of Workman & Temple of Los Angeles. Mr. Shirley will start them on their long journey in a very few days.

Taken a Partner.

Curt. Harvey, the popular young blacksmith of Lone Pine, returned on the 10th from San Bernardino, bringing with him a life partner, formerly Miss Annie Crane, or Cynthia A. Duke, we can't postively say which. But it don't matter now what the name of the fair partner might have been heretofore, under the united co-partnership act of the State of California and by virtue of the same, it is Harvey henceforth, and it is the wish of yours truly that the new firm may establish numerous branches to bear it in honor and prosperity for generations to come.

Postponed.

At 10 this morning Judge Reed called Court to pronounce sentence on Welch. Col. Howard, defendant's counsel, made a formal motion, the tenor of which we did not catch, which was overruled. He then moved for a new trial, and in order to give time to examine the accompanying bill of exceptions, the Court took a recess till 4 this evening, when, if the motion be denied, sentence will be passed, but too late for announcement in this issue.

Returned.

"Uncle" Harvey Russell, whom we mentioned some weeks since as having gone to San Luis Opispo on a visit, arrived here to-day and passed on for Bishop Creek. Mr. Russell is highly delighted with that section, but he says they haven't any money there; couldn't even get a stamp at some of the post-offices. He says he never saw a finer prospect for crops than there is there, though the farmers are apprehensive of trouble from grasshoppers.

The Kearsarge.

It appears that our information as to the name of the purchaser of the Franck interest in this mining property was not quite correct. It is not Col. Bob Graves but a Mr. Gray, a prominent mining man, who was the purchaser. He is the owner of four-ninths of the whole. On the 11th instant a meeting was to be held to re-organize the company, levy an assessment and prepare for work. We have not heard the result.

The Murder Trial.

Elsewhere will be found a comprehensive report of the testimony taken in the trial of E. P. Welch for the murder of Frank Moore. Except in a few instances, however, it does not include the questions by which the testimony was elicited. The first witness and one or two other subsequent ones told their story substantially as reported. With the fewest exceptions, when they were not smply yes or no, the replies were given in identically the same words in which the questions were severally propounded; in other words, the required answers were generally indicated by the interrogatories. Probably there never was a trial in which a human life was at stake that ran more smoothly. There was no discord between the attorneys; they were so essentially harmonious in their apparent aim and manner of proceeding as to leave an impression in the minds of those present that both were for the defense. The District Attorney made no effort worthy of the name to bring out any facts calculated to injure the defendant's chances. In the face of the defendant's damaging record, he may have considered it wholly unnecessary in order to convict him. While the prisoner's counsel frequently endeavored to lessen the weight of testimony against him, by impugning the motive of witnesses, the people's attorney at no time deemed it at all his duty to draw out a single fact in kind on the opposite side, even when he knew there was good cause for believing their stories were not half told. In this respect the complacency of the prosecution (?) certainly put the opposing counsel in a constrained and awkward position; he could not raise a single issue in which to either create a diversion in his client's favor, open a chance for a misruling or warm himself up in his final appeal. Nothing could have been more unfortunate for the defense, if the counsel on that side is half the stuff generally supposed. There was nothing to draw out his force in the way of a contest with the opposition; nothing in his client's personal character, either as a husband, father, neighbor, citizen or any known act in his history, shown by evidence or common repute upon which to base an appeal for sympathy for a "poor, persecuted" maniac—not an act of his life that his counsel dare point out or uncover but must throw an additional shadow over his chances. The counsel's only hope lay in picturing his culminating deed in its true and unnatural blackness, thereby essaying to prove that such could only be perpetrated by an irresponsible being. The very heinousness of the crime, according to the learned counsel and in point of fact, was the best proof he had to offer or that was offered, that it could be perpetrated by an insane man only. At times the counsel waxed eloquent, and for the want of something of a more recent date with which to work up the feelings of the jury he described the grand scene in the play of Richelieu, where that famous old churchman threatens the pursuers of the heroine with the full vengeance of Rome did they dare to follow their prey within the sacred circle of the church, whence she had flown for protection; and, carrying out the parallel, the counsel attempted to throw this circle around the sorrow-stricken wife and her poor children, as they sat by the side of the man whose chances for life were then being weighed. But it needed not this reference to excite the deep sympathy of both audience and jury in behalf of the unfortunate wife who sat there mutely pleading for her husband's life for the sake of her children. From first to last she had that sympathy, and from first to last it was the only thread upon which to hang a hope of sympathetic mercy in favor of the wretched brute at her side. Following this the counsel related the sorrowful story, as told in verse, of a talented couple who lived, loved and died years ago, and never married, because the heroine had periodical fits of insanity, going stark crazy once about every two months. In her sane moments (when nobody could be any saner than she) she deliberately prepared herself for what was to follow—going into strict confinement, where it was not possible for her to harm the one she loved, whom, at those times, she was specially desirous of destroying. He further showed, by quotations from standard authorities on medical jurisprudence, that homocidal insanity raged through the land; that at least one in every 400 of the population were thus affected, perhaps only periodically, as in the case of the poor man then on trial for his life for having committed a dark and bloody deed, for which he should not be punished because at that moment he knew not what he was doing; insanity was a delusion; it was clear that Welch when he killed Moore was insane, was totally deluded, because, as was shown, he had deliberately killed that man for no cause whatever; an act he could only have done when laboring under the delirium always attending, in fact constituting, genuine insanity. Counsel recited evidence to sustain this view, particularly that of D. Olds, the Justice of the Peace who "under the circumstances" couldn't find it in his heart to accept the surrender of this very crazy man with his smoking pistol, but preferred to allow him to go his way, crazy as he was. Having been acquainted with him for so many years, Mr. Olds probably felt satisfied the very insane man wouldn't do any more damage with his little pistol or blacksnake, and it wasn't best to rile him by allowing a surrender "under the circumstances." However, this was not the portion of the testimony upon which the learned counsel dwelt. It was that pathetic part where the witness had noticed the defendant clasp his head with his hands, complaining of a pain there, and his "frantic" looks, particularly when he went after Tuttle with a hammer. He explained how "that poor man looked wild out of his eyes," and mentioned other "peculiar" actions at the time of the "accident," when that remorseless bullet, directed by a crazed hand, caused the sand to drink Frank Moore's blood. The learned counsel succeeded in proving by the testimony of books and living witnesses that a man cannot deliberately murder another without displaying a little excitement, especially when under the influence of liquor, and excitement, as manifested by "a wild look out of the eyes," was invariably a concomitant of insanity. Welch was somewhat excited, as his oldest friends had testified—ergo, he was insane, and not accountable for murder. The counsel, however, thought that a lengthy confinement of the maniac would be the safest for society, and the best thing for the unfortunate. The learned gentleman indulged in some ill-advised remarks about some of the prosecuting witness and the residents of the locality where the tragedy occurred, the latter being supposititious mainly. With a concluding appeal in behalf of the truly unfortunate wife and children, Mr. Howard brought his two hours' speech to a close. Taking the facts all in all, no lawyer ever had a more forlorn hope on his hands than did Col. Howard in this case. There was nothing to plead in mitigation, nothing save wife and children to excite sympathy, absolutely nothing in the way of a technical legal contest, and the more he analyzed the alleged insane acts of his client the more must be developed a method in his madness. But the counsel surely made as much of a bad case as any one could have done.

The District Attorney, at the close of Mr. Howard's remarks, again reviewed the salient points of the testimoney for the defense, but attempted nothing analytical or argumentative—certainly nothing to show the incongruities of the testimony as to defendant's insanity, or the weakness of that plea, except that in some instances it did not, in his opinion, show insanity sufficient to justify a verdict of acquittal; still, that was a point for the jury to decide, they having heard all the testimony. Either it was murder in the first degree or it was nothing to be punished under the law, but that was a matter for the jury to decide, etc.

His Honor then read the instructions asked by the defense, and his own charge and instructions to the jury, wherein he concisely stated the law by which they were to be governed in their findings. They were clearly instructed that drunkenness could under no circumstances be plead in extenuation of a crime committed while in that condition, even though it should be the act of an insane person, if that insanity, being momentary in its character, was clearly the result of drinking liquor. Otherwise the insanity defense could be successfully plead by any person unquestionably sane when sober, but evil-hearted enough to place their crimes under the cover of the real or fictitious temporary insanity produced by alcoholic drink. The statutes wery explicit upon this point, and it was necessary for the peace of society that they should be so. The principal, if not the only, question in the case for the jury to decide was as to the defendant's insanity; if they found that the fact had been established that defendant was insane at the time of the admitted killing of Moore, that alone could not be offered in mitigation of the murder, unless it was further shown that such insanity was normal, or it was not the direct result of temporary madness produced by strong drink.

The delivery of these instructions occupied something over half an hour. The charge and acts of the Court throughout the entire case were, so far as we are able to judge, of the fairest and most impartial description. The charge covered the whole ground as to the duty of the jury under the law, but so far as our memory goes, made but little if any reference to the facts presented in the testimony, these matters being left wholly to the jury. It is quite out of the question to convey a correct idea of the several points presented by Court and counsel, covering jointly full three hours in the delivery, and especially as we have to depend upon memory as to these points.

We have yet to hear the first dissenting voice as to the righteousness of the verdict—murder in the first degree, without recommendation. The jury was distinctly instructed by the Court that under the Code the power rested with them, should they find the indictment sustained, to dictate whether the punishment should be death or life imprisonment. Upon finding that it was within the power of any Governor, present or future, to at any time turn this murderer loose upon society by an executive pardon, the jury concluded to make no recommendation, and except saved by a quibble of law, E. P. Welch must expatiate his culminating crime upon the gallows.

How he Came to Swear.

The other day an old gentleman named Phillips arrived here from San Luis with a small band of horses. Mr. Phillips is of a very religious turn and makes it a point to condemn profanity on all reasonable occasions, boasting that under no circumstances would or could he be made to swear. While here one of his pack horses stampeded violently, scattering pans, blankets, etc., far and wide over the plain. "Jock," one of the hands, went in vain pursuit of the mustang, and returning warm and excited to the old gentleman abruptly informed him that "that horse has gone to h—" "Follow him, then!" said the old man, and then, taking in the connection of the remarks, hurriedly added, "Well, well, really I didn't mean it that way."

The Silver Sprout.

We note the arrival of Superintendent Wingard of the Silver Sprout and Virginia Consolidated. We are not advised as to the immediate plans of the company towards developing their valuable property, but we presume something will be done to that end.

Will Celebrate.

The Taboosers have fixed the 17th of June as the day for their Pioneer dinner and ball. But for a press of other matters we should give a full report of their last meeting; for the present in lieu thereof we give the above notice, and will add that all Pioneers desiring to participate (and it is hoped there will be no exceptions) are requested to notify the committee a few days in advance of the time how many seats each wishes to secure for himself and family or friends. We will present the matter a little more explicitly next week.

Unbalanced.

A. C. Matlack, one of our best citizens, came here from his home on Bishop Creek last Saturday, evidently much out of balance in his mind. An investigation was had a day or two later by Drs. Blair and Colleau, but at that time he seems to have been so near right, that they did not feel justified in certifying to his insanity.

County Court.

This Court adjourned from last Tuesday to the same day next week. A new suit on the calendar is C. L. Jackson vs. John Lucas, Bennett & Gregg for plaintiff, Reddy for defendant; to be heard soon. In Ball vs. Veil a motion to dismiss was overruled; day of trial to be fixed by attorneys.

Parting Dance.

Last Saturday night an unusually large number of ladies and gentlemen enjoyed a dance at the Masonic Hall, it being a pleasant send off for Mrs. Isaac Harris and sister, who go to San Francisco, and Harry Isaacs, on leave for Europe.

The Child Murder.

The examination of the Tilly case was not concluded when we went to press. As far as we can learn nothing has been elicited that throws light on the mysterious and horrible crime. The witnesses are very numerous and it will prove an expensive affair, not only to individuals but the county.—Bakersfield Courier, May 9.

—A New Haven man, in falling with two other men and a scaffold, saved his life by leaping through a third story window en route.

—Queen Victoria's coming birthday, May 24, will be specially observed in England.

—If cremation comes to pass, funerals should be on Fry-day.

THE PACIFIC IRRIGATING PIPE, AIR PIPE AND PUMP CO.

San Francisco, Cal.

THE ATTENTION OF AGRICULTURISTS AND farmers, especially, is called to these celebrated pumps already in use throughout the Western States, and Pacific Coast, giving perfect satisfaction everywhere. For durability, efficiency and cheapness they cannot be excelled, the material used being cut from the butt log of the most durable timber in use. These pumps are adapted to all climates, and are not affected by heat or cold. They are made of different sizes to raise water in greater or less volume as may be required, and various lengths to operate in wells and cisterns either shallow or of great depth, and are handsomely turned and painted to preserve them against exposure. Air pipe for tunnels, mines, etc., made of the same material, are very efficient, cheap and durable.

Redwood,

Agency for Inyo and Mono counties at the Inyo Drug Store, Lone Pine, where full information will be given, orders promptly attended to and Pumps may be inspected, having one in good running order in the well.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday,.....May 16, 1874.

—The Mare Island Yard, which, during the past Winter, was all life and activity, is now a scene of almost complete solitude. Less that 500 men go to work there daily, a number much smaller than has been employed on the Yard for some time, and this force will be reduced one-half before the July appropriations can be reached. It is a fact much spoken of, that although most of the departments are nearly closed up, still the same number of foremen and almost as many clerks and writers are on hand pay day, as when 1,500 men were at work on the Yard.

—The latest dispatches from the seat of war at hand in Spain state that Gen. Manuel de Taconche, with a body of Republicans, numbering twenty thousand men, has moved from the sea coast in the direction of Valmasol, twenty-two miles southward of Bilbao, for the purpose of striking the Carlists in the rear. Marshal Serrano, with a force equally strong, is to make a simultaneous attack on the insurgents from the front. The Carlists are reported to be strongly intrenched.
